WILL OF LATE SENATOR COX IS PROBATED AT $870,071

Local People Receive Life Interests in Property ---Bulk of the Estate Was Distributed Before Death

His Private Secretary Gets $50,000 and the General Hospital $100,000

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—The will of the late Senator Cox, published to-day, does not deal in sensational figures, being probated at $870,071, made up of $356,872 in real estate; stocks, $305,033; life insurance, $148,843, etc.

It is understood that the bulk of the late Senator's estate was distributed among natural heirs some time prior to his death, including one million dollars settled upon his second wife at the time of marriage.

A codicil to the will leaves fifty thousand dollars to his private secretary, George Little; one hundred thousand dollars to the Toronto General Hospital, and smaller bequests to other institutions.

FATHER OF MR. FRED FRALICK DIES SUDDENLY

Was Seized With Weak Spell at Union Station.

Mr. H. V. Fralick, a well known commercial traveller of Napanee, and father of Mr. Fred Fralick, 186 Edinburgh street, died very suddenly in the Union Depot, Toronto, on Thursday afternoon. The late gentleman had been staying at the Palmer House, where he was a frequent guest and he left the hotel on Thursday stating that he was going west.

Owing to the cold weather Mr. Fralick hurried along and hurried too much for a man with a weak heart. Mr. Bateman, the assistant depot master, saw Mr. Fraelick sitting at the bottom of the stairs near track "six" and he appeared to be in a state of exhaustion. With the aid of a mail man and a policeman, Mr. Bateman carried the unfortunate gentleman to the waiting room and they exerted every effort to resuscitate him.

The latter revived sufficiently to say that he had overdone himself, but refused to have a doctor. Suddenly he became unconscious, and died almost immediately. Dr. Riordan was summoned, but life was extinct. The body was taken to the Morgue.

On inquiry at the Palmer House, the information was elicited that Mr. Fralick had had an attack of the heart while on Bay street two days ago, and that he had to be assisted to the hotel by two men. He was subject to sudden bad attacks.

The hotel authorities notified the relatives in Napanee, who in turn sent word to Mr. Fralick, of this city. The funeral will take place in Napanee.

LYRICS FROM THE CHINESE

British Weekly Refers to Miss Helen Waddell, M.A.

The British Weekly of Jan. 15th, refers to a niece of a Peterborough lady in the following:—"An Irish Missionary's Daughter as a Poetess.—The late Rev. Hugh Waddell was missionary first under the Irish Presbyterian Assembly in China and then under the United Presbyterian church of Scotland for twenty-seven years in Japan ,where he did noble pioneer work. His younger daughter, Miss Helen Waddell, M.A., a distinguished graduate of Queen's University, Belfast, where she holds a studentship in Modern Literature, has now entered the field of authorship, with a volume of poems published by Messrs. Constable & Company, under the title of "Lyrics from the Chinese." They purport to be modern renderings of actual Chinese poems mainly erotic, and dating from very early times—some of them so old as the Twelfth Century, B.C.

Miss Helen Waddell is a niece of Mrs. Waddell, Monaghan road.

THE STATE OF THE SOUL AFTER DEATH

This Subject is to be Discussed by Evangelist Compton.

Evangelist Compton, who is conducting revival meetings in Bethany Tabernacle, spoke last night on the subject of a Scriptural Revival, choosing as his text, Acts 19:18-20.

Doubtless due to the somewhat mild weather the attendance was much larger last night than at any previous service since Mr. Compton began Monday night. He will speak twice on Sunday, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. His subject Sunday night will be "The State of the Soul After Death." It is expected that this will be a most remarkable address on a subject which is of such great interest to all. Service tonight at 8 o'clock. A cordial welcome to all.

MEMORY'S FLOWERS

One of the most enjoyable numbers at the Grand last night was the singing of "Memory's Flowers," by the Harmony Quartette. The words of the song are by Mr. J. L. Milligan, and the music by Mr. Asa Huycke.

Memory's Flowers

I have been thinking, my dear, of the days,
Love bound these two hearts of ours,
Wand'ring and dreaming, in evergreen ways,
Musing o'er memory's flowers.

Refrain—
Dreaming of olden scenes where we wander'd,
Light as the birds in air,
Counting the golden hours we have squander'd,
Eden was ne'er so fair!
Happy were those days, too sweet to last, dear,
Frail as the blooms of May;
Ah, like the dawn's rose rays, soon past, dear,
Time bears them all away.

Yet in our dreams we together may rove,
We were but dreaming of yore,
Still blooms the flowers in the Garden of Love,
Fragrant and fair evermore.

WANT OPEN SEASON FOR FISHING TO START JULY 1st

Stoney Lake Cottagers Association Also After Better Service for Freight.

A meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association will be held on Monday evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. This meeting being of vital importance to the cottagers of Stoney Lake, a large number are urgently requested to attend.

Among the important matters to be discussed is the transportation facilities by the railway companies, and the navigation people. An application will be drawn up and presented to the railway board to give better results at Lakefield, in connection with freight.

The Fisheries Act will also come in for considerable discussion as it is the intention of the Association to have an amendment in connection with the act. Their intention is to have the regulation of open season for fishing on the 16th of June changed to July 1st.

A discussion in the interests of a hatchery will also take place.

SOME REMINISCENCES

Railroad Building and Railway Wrecking in the Early Days

Written for The Review by Mr. F. H. Dobbin

Searching through the files of the papers of forty and fifty years ago, in the course of selecting matter for the historical index of the city, I came across many happenings and doings of the days that are gone; of activities that have long since blossomed, borne fruit and been relegated to the past and forgotten. These things were vital and pressing issues at the time, that provoked men to controversy and to personal altercation and which affected the town in more ways than one.

I dropped on one relation, which the press of that day did not play up with journalistic diligence and effort. Reports were rather staid things, written without levity or hyperbole. A cold collection of facts and as brief as possible. So in this case it is well to dig up from the past some relation of an event that tore the town up and drove men to drink.

Most things we tell about relate to men. Never to boys. Why not ? I believe that there comes into every boy's life—who is at all worthy of being a boy—at some time of his boyhood, some incident, some happening that stands out beyond all others. That forms afterwards a sort of snubbing post or standard of comparison by which everything that came before is measured and back to which everything afterwards is referred. The kind of thing, of which if a boy wished to make a comprehensive definition he would claim as a red hot, tip top, double breasted, copper bottomed, brass mounted, silver plated time. When the cup of satisfaction ran full and the boy at the end of the day went off to bed satisfied that after all life was worth living. Such a time came to me when I was a boy and when I was concerned in the wrecking of a railroad. And it came about in this way.

A Boom in Railroads.

Shortly after the building of the line of the Grand Trunk Railway along the lake front there broke out in this part of the province an era of railroad promotion. Railroads were to be built from everywhere to every where else. All to be propelled by means of a bonus. It was the palmy days of the bonus hunter. Propositions were slapped down on paper without any regard to right-of-way, profile of grades, line fences or picturesque agricultural scenery. A railway was proposed from Madoc to Peterborough. Others from Belleville, from Trenton, Brighton, Cobourg, and from Port Hope on to Lindsay and Beaverton. Even a wooden railway—this came afterwards—from Peterborough to Haliburton. Wooden railway. Not, you understand, that the wheels were of wood. The rails were to be of wood, with some strap iron tacked along on top to take the wear, and the town of Peterborough actually passed a by-law and voted $20,000 in aid of the alleged enterprise, and the county a good $40,00 on top of it.

The first of these schemes to bear fruit was that from Cobourg to Peterborough. It was engineered by a genial gentleman named Fowler. I think a man named Covert of Port Hope had a finger in the pie as well. The proposition was that the municipalities along the route should each put in about $15,000 and Mr. Fowler and his friends would put in fifteen hundred cents. And by jinks they both did it.

The line was graded and railed, both in, at and on the roadbed out as far as Harwood, on Rice Lake, and some traffic began. Then a fierce controversy arose, whether to attempt to cross the lake on some sort of bridge or go around the head of the lake at Bewdley, and come into town over what is practically the line of the Midland and, aterwards, the Grand Trunk Railway. The dispute was fierce and heads, promises and bargains were all broken.

While the dispute was at its best, and let me tell you it went some, an eminent English engineer came out to look over the line of the Grand Trunk. He was induced to go out to Rice Lake to pass on the proposition of bridging the lake. He came and viewed the scenery. Sure thing, he said. All around the tight little island at 'ome we build docks, piers, warehouses, on piles, right into the sea. Look at your magnificent forests. See your splendid timber. The lake you tell me is not deep. Point and drive your piles. Put on your superstructure and it will carry the rolling stock and any load you may put on it. Consider the thing done.

The Bridge was Built.

The bridge, if it could be called a bridge, was built. A part of the way out into the lake the line was filled in, as it shows to-day. Further out is found, by steamboats straying too near the shore, the debris of the defunct piling upon which sundry vessels get hung up in the gay and festive excursion season. Anyway it was built. And traffic began. The lumber freights were considerable and traffic was brisk. While the eminent engineer was right in the abstract he was wrong in the concrete. The bridge would and did hold up the rolling stock, for the locomotives of those days were little dinky affairs. Mostly whistle and cowcatcher, and a bell as big as you find on a prosperous country church, with some wheels that went round and a large, fierce man at the throttle, who viewed the scenery and used language that was really unfit for publication, when cattle got on the right-of-way and sauntered leisurely along the track. They never blew the whistle except when the thing was standing still, for the boiler was not big enough to make steam for both noise and motion at the same time. The freight cars were little larger than an ordinary

MINISTER OF MILITIA HANDS OVER THE KEYES OF NEW ARMOURIES FOR NORWOOD

Interesting Proceedings Are Marked by Large and Enthusiastic Gathering

A CIVIC ADDRESS

NORWOOD, Feb. 14.—The opening of the Norwood armouries yesterday afternoon was attended by an amount of pomp and militarism of which our quiet little village is by no means acustomed to, but to which the citizens responded in a spirit and an enthusiasm which was much appreciated by those who honored us with their presence.

The C. P. R. noon express on which the Hon. Minister of Militia, Col. Sam Hughes, his staff and other prominent officers arrived, was late, almost two hours, and despite the cold weather, the citizens turned out in hundreds to welcome the honored guests.

The officers and dignitaries who attended were:

Col. The Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia.

Col. Fiset, Deputy Minister.

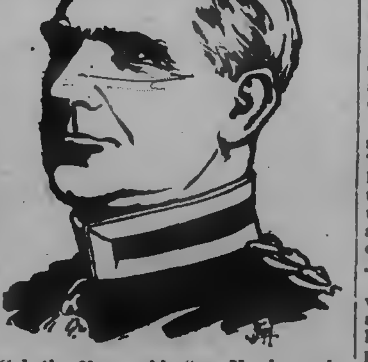
Col. Williams, Adj. General.

Col. Winters, Private Secretary to Col. Hughes.

Col. T. D. R. Hemming, Div. Commander, Kingston.

The 57th of Peterboro was represented by: Col. Miller, Col. E. G. Clegg, Major Mills.

The officers of the 40th Regiment present were: Col. Birdsall, Major Boggs, Cap. Bolster, Cap. Birdsall, Lieut. Hodge, Lieut. Thompson, Lieut. Hall-Able.



Col. the Honorable Sam Hughes, who opened the Armouries at Norwood yesterday.

The 49th was also represented by: Col. Ketcheson and Capt. Bleecker.

After the arrival of the train bearing the distinguished guests, a procession was formed, headed by the 40th Regt. band of Campbellford, followed by the Norwood High School Cadets.

The visiting military officers including the Hon. Minister of Militia then followed in pleasure sleighs. The local members of Parliament, Messrs. J. A. Sexsmith and Jas. Thompson, accompanied the Minister.

After the officers of the 40th Regiment who followed the sleighs on foot, the village council and members of the Norwood Board of Education falling in behind these. A large number of enthusiastic residents of the municipality completed the procession, which marched direct [illegible] armouries. Had the train bee[illegible] time it was intended that the Hon. Minister and staff, together with other prominent military men and members of Parliament were scheduled to lunch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, but this part of the program had to be cancelled, as the Minister and his staff had anappointment of a military character in Toronto, which necessitated their departure on the 4 o'clock afternoon express. On arrival at the armouries the Hon. Minister graciously thanked the High School Cadets, the 40th Regimental band, and the citizens for their cordial reception.

Inside the armouriess one was struck by the beauty of the scene. The daughters of the Empire had hung bunting and mottoes around the walls of the building. Conspicuously across the platform was hung a motto reading the D.O.T.E. welcome Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes. Mr. J. B. Pearce occupied the chair.

Mr. B. W. Squire, Reeve of Norwood, read an address of welcome, after which Mrs. E. P. Cuffe, on behalf of the Daughters of the Empire, also welcomed the distinguished visitors.

The chairman in a few well chosen remarks, introduced the Minister of Militia who on behalf of the Government, formally handed over the keys to the Commander of the 40th Regt., Col. Birdsall.

A Cordial Reception

The Minister was cordially received by the large crowd of people, who filled the spacious building. He referred to the armouries as a training place for the boys of our land. But he said he had always contended that the buildings should be used by the girls as well as the boys. He was an ardent believer in military training. It developed manliness. He thought the boy who faced the world with his head up, had a better chance than the boy who without the military training, went with his head down. The opportunities offered in institutions, such as this, taught the youth manliness and self control. They would not so easily be led into evil. The boy who is taught to shoot well so that he is able to share in the defence of his home and loved ones, had a great advantage over the one who had no such advantage.

He promised Col. Birdsall that a shooting gallery would be installed. He thought it would be a good thing also to have a shooting gallery for the ladies. The hundred trained and disciplined men were better than 2,000 raw recruits. Untrained men are a handicap in active service. He had an educational object in view in opening the armouries as from them he hoped to fill the local regiments. He wanted the youth of the land as well as the Daughters of the Empire to feel that this hall is always open for the advancement of anything conducive to the welfare of the community. He was a firm believer in peace, but he still believed in being ready for emergencies. He could not believe the millenium had arrived. He contended that peace would be more fully guaranteed by us being fully prepared to take a stand. He made a feeling reference to the old Union Jack, the flag that braved one thousand years the battle and the breeze.

The Keys Presented

At the conclusion of the speech the Hon. Minister formally presented Col. Birdsall with the keys of the armouries, at the same time referring to the honored name of Birdsall in this locality as well as in the country at large. The chairman called on the Daughters of the Empire for "Rule Britannia," given by a chorus of fifty voices. The vast

THE SECOND INSTALMENT OF PETERBOROUGH ASSESSMENT

The second instalment of Peterboro properties appears in this issue. The Review has been complimented in many quarters on giving to the people the information which it contains, and which has been required for so long. These reports will be continued until the whole city is covered. The Review was the one paper that has had the courage to do this, and the publishers will see that every piece of property on the assessment roll is printed. There will be no garbled reports in The Review.

HYDRO TO BUY OUT ELECTRIC POWER CO.

The Review is in receipt of the following letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., at Ottawa:

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—It appears to me from time to time that it is my duty to give to the public of Peterboro city and county, all the information which I obtain, of value to our people. The information contained in this letter will refer to Hydro. I had a very interesting conversation with Hon. Adam Beck here tonight. He told me that the Hydro Commission was buying out the Seymour system along the Trent waters and that in two months from this date he expected to have the stock-taking completed. The tale of Hydro is really one of the most marvellous records of genius and public ownership I ever heard of. He assured me that farmers and townsfolk alike would soon be in a position in Peterboro city and county to use electricity, for every conceivable purpose, no matter how trivial, for which power of any sort is needed. He told me that Hydro in comparison with producer or other form of gas power was very much below them in price and much better in every way. The use of Hydro for all purposes has been proven in western Ontario to be more than ever it was assumed to be. In Ottawa, where electric power was the most expensive in Canada, it is now the cheapest. As soon as Peterboro gets new legislation she will have Hydro and not public ownership. You pay for what you get in the way of power and nothing for power development. The benefit to the city and county of Peterboro will total a very large sum per annum in saving and efficiency over all other forms of power, most of which are not really available to the small user. The debt this province owes to Mr. Beck cannot be counted in figures. Hydro is really a gift of an immense sum per annum to the people within reach of it.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

TWENTY-FIVE WORKINGMEN'S DWELLINGS TO BE ERECTED

Mr. H. J. McCannon Completes Exchange of Property to Mr. H. Baker --- Price Paid Was $8000

Among the number of important real estate deals put through by Mr. H. J. McCannon, is the sale of a large parcel of the Chamberlain Estate property on Patterson St, to Mr. Harry Baker, proprietor of the Peterboro Planning Mill. Mr. McCannon has just closed the deal, the purchase price being $8,000.

Mr. McCannon is rapidly coming to the front in the real estate market, and his splendid business ability is responsible for this success. During the month of January Mr. McCannon recorded thirteen sales of property, and already this month he has had a number of good transactions.

It is the intention of Mr. Baker to erect twenty-five modern brick dwellings for working men on the property, and he has at the present time, two saw mills at work making lumber in preparation for an early start. The lumber is now being delivered on the ground. The frontage at this property is 800 feet. Mr. Baker is to be commended for his enterprise.

It is not so very long ago since Mr. McCannon opened his real estate agency at C. R. Banks' store. He enjoys the confidence of buyer and seller alike, and it is hardly necessary to state that it pays to deal with or through Mr. McCannon.

He was removed to his home and medical aid summoned. Two of the young ladies suffered several cuts and sundry bruises. Since the accident the police have prohibited all coasting on the hill.

EXPRESS CAR IS BURNED

Second Midnight Train Meets With an Unusual Mishap

Canadian Press Despatch

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—A ten thousand dollar mail car on the Canadian Pacific express from Toronto to Montreal, was destroyed early this morning with some packets of papers and a quantity of express, by a fire which started from an unknown cause. Nobody was injured.

Mr. F. A. Groose, of Chicago, a guest at the Oriental, who was a passenger on the train, informed The Review today that the car was completely destroyed and it was left at Bethany Junction. It contained a heavy consignment of express for Ottawa, much of which was destroyed. The glare of the burning car could be seen for some distance and the blaze also caused considerable panic emong the passengers, until they were assured of their safety. Mr. Groose said the fire started from a hot box. This train leaves Peterboro 12.58 a.m.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, FEB. 14, 1914.

THE LEAVEN OF CONCILIATION.

HOME RULE is once more the chief topic in the British House of Commons. Sir Edward Carson, Lloyd George, Sir John Simon, John Redmond and Bonar Law have all been making warm speeches at the conclusion of the debate on the amendment to the reply to the Speech from the Throne moved by the Unionist, Walter Hume Long, "that it would be disastrous for the House to proceed further with the Government for Ireland Bill until the measure had been submitted to the judgment of the country," was defeated by a vote of 333 to 255. The announcement of the figures was received with loud Opposition cheers and shouts of "Resign."

John Redmond spoke in a conciliatory tone and appeared anxious to meet the question from a broad viewpoint, with an earnest desire for a peaceful settlement. Mr. Bonar Law predicted civil war the moment Home Rule passed, but urged that the danger of civil war could be averted by leaving Ulster out of the Home Rule bill or by submitting the bill to the judgment of the people.

Sir Edward Carson's speech was very firm, but it did not lack the note of conciliation and reasonableness; he realized the gravity of the situation. He said that only two ways existed of dealing with unionist Ulster, and these were to coerce her or to win her. It was useless to talk about concessions which merely meant reducing the proposed wrongs to Ulster to a minimum. John Redmond, he said, never had tried to win Ulster. He wanted only her taxes. In conclusion, Sir Edward Carson declined to pledge himself as to what he would do as the result of a general election, but, said that after the election the whole position would have to be reconsidered in the light of a new mandate from the country.

Mr. Redmond candidly stated that the Irish Nationalists did share the tragic view as to the possibilities of a civil war, and he thought the House of Commons ought to resent such threats as an affront. The exclusion of the province of Ulster never could be the solution of the Irish question. The Irish National leader concluded by saying he was deeply anxious to remove all fears. He said he would meet the proposals in the broadest and most friendly spirit in the earnest hope that the aspirations of the royal speech might be realized and a peaceful settlement reached in the great problem on which the well-being of Ireland and the unity and the strength of the Empire depended.

It is to be hoped that the leaven of conciliation in both parties will work out an amicable solution of this long drawn out Home Rule squabble; there are far more important issues in Great Britain, and the Green Isle might show a good example to the Balkans by having done with this talk of civil war. King George seems to be using his influence toward this end by bringing pressure to bear upon the Asquith Government. If John Redmond can be brought to appreciate the rightful claims of the minority as well as those of the majority in Ireland, there would be little difficulty in accomplishing a lasting settlement.

TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION.

AS SANATORIUMS, not to speak of tuberculosis, are in the air just now, the people as well as the authorities of Peterborough ought to be on the alert for every item of information as to the latest returns of the various Sanitoriums, and also for news as to the latest methods of treating this fell disease. We are getting a little hardened and sceptical in regard to reported "cures" for consumption. Dr. Friedman drew a rather large draught upon our faith so recently that we have scarcely got over the disappointment, and we naturally greet new methods of treatment with more than usual suspicion.

In looking over the annual report of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, one is struck with the widespread work that is being carried on throughout the country. The Sanatorium has passed the experimental stage and is certainly doing a great deal to check the white plague. The Queen Alexandra Sanatorium of London, Ont., gives some interesting figures. These figures show that out of 15 cases of incipient consumption 13 were discharged apparently cured; of 22 cases of moderately advanced cases 4 were apparently cured; 2 much improved, 1 improved, 10 stationary, 4 failed and 1 died. Of 9 cases of far advanced consumption, none were cured, 5 improved, 3 failed and 1 died.

These figures go to show that the Sanatorium, while it is not a miracle worker, it can and does arrest the disease in its its early stages. The Hamilton Spectator speaks of an interesting experiment which has just been completed in New York for "home treatment." In a Vanderbilt model tenement a home hospital was established, in which, for a period of one year, 27 families, of whom 79 were "tuberculars," have lived "in sanitary homes, with ample sunshine and fresh air, good and abundant nourishment, freedom and undue work and worry, reasonable segregation, skilful medical care and constant nursing supervision." The results have been most remarkable. No new case of tuberculosis developed after admission. Of the adult patients 61 per cent. were apparently cured, 22 per cent. had their disease arrested, and 11 per cent. were much improved. In only four cases was there no progress. The improvement of the children and infants was likewise very satisfactory.

Much stress is laid on the advantage of securing successful treatment without the necessity of breaking up the home, or depriving the able-bodied of the opportunity to work and contribute at least in part to their support. Upon admission to the hospital the average weekly income of the six families discharged as "rehabilitated" was $6.42. When discharged the average weekly income of those families were a trifle less than $15.

ENFORCE THE LAW.

THE FOLLOWING LETTER appeared recently in a local contemporary:

Dear Editor,—I read with interest and profit your article on police women, etc., in which reference is made to the curfew law as being ineffective. There has been no real effort made to enforce it, and surely you would not ask to have a law changed until it is clearly demonstrated by actual test to be defective! If the good people would only finance the remuneration of two persons and appoint three officers of the C. A. S. to enforce this measure as it stands, they would be surprised at the good results that would follow.

Yours,
J. J. KELSO,
(Superintendent Neglected and Dependent Children.)

It is gratifying to find that Mr. Kelso, who knows most things about the care of children, confirms the Curfew law which we has persistently supported. The experience of Peterborough within the last few months is sufficient to show that if this law is only enforced much good can be done. The effect of the enforcement of this law in certain quarters of the city by our Chief of Police has been very marked, and we are glad to report improvement in the conduct of some of our public resorts. But at the same time much remains untouched and it behooves our Police Department to insist more and more upon the observance of the Curfew law. If parents can not be taught to fear God they should be taught to fear the law and the police.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A BOY LICKED an iron rail the other day, during the zero snap, on George St. After the policeman had thawed his tongue loose, he told his chum that he had often got his tongue stuck in an ice-cream cone but that there was no comparison between the two experiences.

THE PACKET says: "The Peterborough Review makes reference to "a former banker, serving a term in the penitentiary for frogery." Frogery looks and sounds like a new and horrible criminal offence, until one re-transposes the letters r and o." Has the Packet never heard the frogs on the bank?

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON affirms that during all the months spent in the extreme cold of the Antarctic not one of his company suffered from a cold. No sooner, however, did their vessel reach a warmer latitude than every man on board was smitten with catarrh. This would seem to explain the reason for the prevalence of catarrh in Canada, these cold snaps do little harm beyond freezing our noses, but the "soft spells" invariably bring a batch of colds.

Money in Poetry?

"Poetry is no longer a drug on the market. The real poet is now a commercial proposition. There are syndicates awaiting to swoop down upon him."

Profit Sharing.
Kingston Whig.

Profit sharing is spreading as a business proposition in England as well as America. Sir William P. Hartley, as the head of a great jam manufacturing enterprise, is the last to announce his devotion to it. Profit sharing is the solution of most labor troubles, and sooner or later will become very general.

The Kikuyu Incident.
(London "Chronicle.")

Africa seems fated to be the breeding ground of religious controversy. The first, and in many respects the most bitter, dispute that split the Christian Church was due to Arius, a native of Libya, who, about 306 A.D., was excommunicated by the Bishop of Alexandria for his views on the doctrine of the Trinity. Raising the banner of revolt, he gained so many followers that for a time his teaching seemed likely to subvert the orthodox creed. For centuries the controversy raged with great bitterness, and more than a millennium later Arianism found an adherent in our own John Milton.

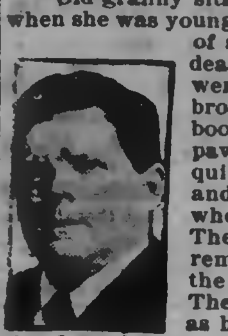
To Mr. Chamberlain.
O. S. in Punch.

Not yet the end; only the end of strife,
  But now—while still the brave unwearied heart,
Fixed upon England, fain to keep its part
    In her Imperial life.

Beats with the old unconquerable pride—
  Now leave to young limbs the dust and palm,
And let the weary body seek the calm
    That comes with eventide.

There take your rest within the sunset glow,
  All feuds forgotten of your fighting days,
Circled with love and laurelled with the praise
    Of friends and ancient foe.

GRANDMOTHER
By Walt Mason



Old granny sits serene and knits and talks of bygone ages, when she was young; and from her tongue there comes the truth of sages. "In vanished years," she says, "my dears, the girls were nice and modest, and they were shy, and didn't try to see whose wit was broadest. In cushioned nooks they read their books, and loved the poets' lilting; with eager paws they helped their mas at cooking and at quilting. The maidens then would shy at men and keep them at a distance, and each new sport who came to court was sure to meet resistance. The girls were flowers that bloomed in bowers remote from worldly clamor, and when I view the modern crew they give me katzenjammer. The girls were sweet and trim and neat, as fair as hothouse lilies, and when I scan the modern clan I surely have the willies. Refinement fades when modern maids come forth in all their glory; their hats are freaks, their costume shrieks, their nerve is hunkydory. They waste the night and in daylight they're doctoring and drugging; when they don't go to picture show, they're busy bunny-hugging." Then granny takes her pipe and breaks some plug tobacco in it, and smokes and smokes till mother chokes and runs out doors a minute.

Government Places Order For Huge Dredges In Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—Two dredges to cost $500,000 have been ordered for the work of deepening Toronto harbor. With a capacity of eighteen thousand cubic yards per day each, shipbuilders declare they will be the largest and strongest ever constructed. They are to be ready for operation by July 1st of this year.

The contract for the two dredge hulls has been placed by the Canadian Stewart Co., who will do the harbor work, with the Polson Iron Works & Shipbuilding Co., along with another contract for a large steel derrick scow to cost $40,000. It is expected that the dredge hulls will be launched by June 1st.

It was the original intention to place the orders for the equipment in question with a British firm, but it was found that quicker delivery could be obtained from the Toronto shipbuilders.

The dredges now on order will do the bulk of the work of reclaiming over six hundred acres of marsh lands in Ashbridge's Bay district, which has been undertaken by the Harbor Board. They are to be equipped with pumps which will deliver the material dredged from the bottom of Toronto Bay to a point from one to one and a half miles distant.

Six dump scows which are being built for the Quebec Harbor Commission will be ready for the water before the end of this month, and the ice in the harbor will be thawed by steam pipes for the launching if "Old Sol" does not remove it earlier than usual.

Two steel steam lighters for Hudson Bay are to leave Toronto about June 1st.

Quebec Liberals Resist Any Further Graft Enquiry.

QUEBEC, Feb. 14.—The two legislative chambers of the province last night discussed the reports of their committee finding J. Octave Mousseau, Louis Phillippe Berard and Achille Bergevin guilty of corruption in accepting bribes.

In the Legislative Council no action is indicated in yesterday's speeches, but in the Legislative Assembly the proceedings were more dramatic. Hon. Mr. Taschereau, chairman of the investigating committee urged the adoption of the committee's report and asked the House to leave it at that. Mousseau having resigned his seat, he submitted there was no need to take further action.

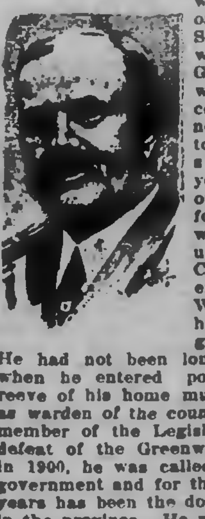
Messrs. Bernier and Jean Prevost submitted an amendment to the report asking that the whole matter be referred back to a committee with instructions that enquiry be held to ascertain if any part of the money which Mousseau had received, had been paid or promised to any members of the Assembly. It was further asked that the strictest probe should be made into the statement of Edward Beck that he had received information that Montreal lawyers held in their safes receipts from lawyer legislators for money paid ostensibly as legal fees, but which really were bribes for supporting private legislation passed through the Legislature.

Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY FOURTEENTH

W. R. Brock, head of the W. R. Brock Company, one of the largest wholesale dry goods houses in Canada, reaches his seventy-eighth birthday today. His career has been a long and interesting one. Owing to the death of his father when he was quite young, he had to give up his purpose of becoming a lawyer and enter commercial life instead. He started at the very bottom rung of the ladder, being at one time simply a clerk in a village dry goods store. By hard work he gradually climbed higher and higher, until at last he had become a partner in a wholesale dry goods firm in Toronto. Eventually he founded a business of his own, which he has conducted with great success and is now reckoned a millionaire. His interests are widespread and at one time he represented one of the Toronto ridings in the House of Commons.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY FIFTEENTH



This is the natal day of Sir Rodmond Roblin, premier of Manitoba, who is now sixty-one years of age. Sir Rodmond, who comes of German descent, was born in the county of Lennox and Addington, and when still quite a young man set out to make his fortune in the west. He took up farming near Carman and later moved into Winnipeg where he went into the grain business. He had not been long in Manitoba when he entered politics, first as reeve of his home municipality, then as warden of the county and then as member of the Legislature. On the defeat of the Greenway Government in 1900, he was called on to form a government and for the past fourteen years has been the dominating power in the province. He was knighted in 1912.

E. G. Porter, K.C., M.P. for West Hastings, and R. Cook, M.P.P. for North Hastings, were last evening tendered a banquet at Marmora by the Conservatives of their riding.

Plans, specifications and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of the District Engineers, Confederation Life Building, Toronto, Ont., Port Arthur, Ont., Post Office, Montreal, and Post Office, Quebec.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to five per cent of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted, the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

E. N. LEWIS PROPOSES TO ADMIT ONLY PRODUCERS AS IMMIGRANTS

Member for West Huron Gives Notice of a Resolution Favoring a Ban on Non-Producing Classes and on All But Natives of a Limited Area in Europe.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. — Yesterday being Friday, the House, under the new rule, went into committee of supply without debate. The estimates of the Marine and Fisheries Department were taken up, and the greater part of the day was consumed by Nova Scotia Liberals in discussing removals from office. Hon. Charles Marcil complained that Norwegian and other foreign vessels were permitted to compete on equal terms with Canadian shipping in the coastwise trade of Nova Scotia and Quebec.

Hon. J. D. Hazen said that the complaint was an old one and had never received much consideration from the Laurier Government. He was advised by the coal companies that the Norwegian vessels were necessary if Canadian coal was to compete for business at Quebec and Montreal.

E. N. Lewis, M. P. for West Huron, has given notice of a resolution which he will move, having for its object the restriction of immigration to the producing classes, or those who purpose engaging as domestic help, and that natives south of 44 degrees of east longitude in Europe, and from Turkey and Asia, shall be, as far as practicable, barred from Canada.

Upon an item for the salaries of inspectors of live stock exported from Canadian seaports, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux took occasion to chide the Government for not having the British embargo on Canadian cattle removed. He declared it was not a sanitary measure, but protection pure and simple.

The reason assigned for the embargo by the British Government constituted a gross libel upon Canadian cattle.

Mr. Sinclair (Guysboro), said that Britain should give Canadian cattle the same treatment that was extended to them by the United States.

Hon. J. D. Hazen said the subject was not under his jurisdiction, but rather belonged to the customs department.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) asked how many head of cattle had been exported last year from Canada to England.

Mr. Hazen: "About 6,500 head, including sheep and horses."

Dr. Clark said the figures were no doubt right for 1912. But he submitted that all export of live stock to England had ceased since the passage of the Underwood tariff law by the United States. "Not a split hoof," he said, "went from Canada to England last November, but during that month, 75,000 cattle, unpatriotic cattle, went to the United States."

Continuing, Dr. Clark said that the British embargo on Canadian cattle was now mere waste paper, but at the same time he believed that the embargo had been placed on our cattle in good faith, although he did not doubt that the influence of the Irish members with the Liberal Government had not been without effect in having the embargo retained.

At the evening session the House considered the private bill authorizing the Canadian Pacific to build certain branch roads from its Calgary and Edmonton line. This bill, it will be remembered, was amended by the railway committee, at the instance of R. B. Bennett, Calgary, and W. F. Maclean, South York, so as to require construction to be commenced within one year and the lines to be completed within three years.

Col. Currie (North Simcoe) opposed the amendment, but in order to give the matter further discussion the bill stood over until Monday next. The bill respecting the Central Canada Railway Co. also went over, but a large grist of bills reported from the railway committee without amendment were then given a third reading and passed.

Another private bill passed last evening amends the charter of Queen's University at Kingston by striking out the clause in the act of 1912 which makes the Provincial Minister of Education ex-officio a member of the board of governors. Major Sam Sharp, as chairman of the committee on miscellaneous private bills, explained that the change in the law was made at the request of Hon. Dr. Pyne.

HAS NIGHTGOWN OF QUEEN VICTORIA

Mrs. Percival of Kingston, an aged lady living on Brock street, has in her possession one of the most interesting relics in that city, and probably the only one of its kind on this continent. It is a nightgown which once belonged to the wardrobe of Queen Victoria, and was often worn by the late Queen. The relic is an object of interest to those who have seen it, and is much prized by Mrs. Percival.

SWEDEN FACES CRISIS.

Constitutional Struggle Is Increasing In Bitterness.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 14.—The constitutional struggle is growing sharper. King Gustave, persisting in his endeavor to secure a Liberal Cabinet, yesterday invited Baron Hammarskjold, former Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs, and a member of The Hague Court of Arbitration to form a new Ministry. Although Baron Hammarskjold advised King Gustave to resort to the Conservatives for the selection of a Cabinet, his Majesty requested him to reconsider his refusal and attempt to form a Ministry.

The members of the Liberal party in both chambers of Parliament yesterday unanimously issued a forceful manifesto against King Gustave's personal politics, exhorting the entire nation to fight for constitutional liberty.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE INDIGESTION

Indigestion is one of the most common ailments of childhood and no other ailment is more dangerous. Indigestion paves the way to many other complaints. Baby's Own Tablets never fail to remove childhood indigestion. They act as a gentle laxative, sweeten the stomach; regulate the bowels and make the baby healthy and happy. Concerning them Mrs. Alphonse Pellitier, St. Phillippe de Neri, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for indigestion with great success. They have also proved successful in breaking up colic and simple fevers." The tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHILDREN'S FEET FROZEN.

Mother and Babes Driven Into Cold When Home Burns.

BRACEBRIDGE, Feb. 14. — Most pathetic was the tale which drifted in from the country yesterday of the affliction caused to the small family of a struggling farmer named Henry Burke, whose wife and three small children were driven into perishing weather Thursday evening by the burning of his home.

It was about forty below zero, and the ground was covered with deep, fleecy snow. A roaring fire had been kindled within the isolated cabin, and this was the cause of the fire.

The mother was in no condition to fight the flames, and there were no means handy by which the fire could be successfully fought. The distracted and weak woman fled from the house with her newly-born baby in her arms, while the two little children ran out into the snow barefooted.

In the excitement which followed, while kind neighbors came hurrying to the scene from all directions, the two barefooted children wandered away unnoticed towards Baysville, two and a half miles distant. When found both children had their feet so badly frozen that all four feet will have to be amputated, it is said.

The fire occurred about ten miles from Bracebridge.

VERY CULPABLE NEGLIGENCE

N.T.R. Report is Disturbing Says London Daily News

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Under the heading of "Corruption in Canada" to-day's Daily News contains some pungent remarks on two items of news "which must be disturbing to friends of Canada. The first is the confirmation by the Quebec Legislature committee of the truth of the charges of corruption brought against several members of the Quebec Legislature, the second is the report of the Canadian Parliamentary commission which shows that £8,000,000 has been wasted in connection with the building of the National Transcontinental Railroad.

"Confirmation has already been secured regarding the first. The commission enquiring into the second do not think there has been any actual dishonesty, but there must have been very culpable negligence to bring about waste on so enormous a scale. If these two affairs stood alone there would be sufficient ground for Canadians to face the need of setting their house in order. Unfortunately there is reason to believe that they are symptomatic of extensive laxity in administration and corruption. It is no matter of to-day nor of tenure of office by one party rather than another. Canada is a land of enormous natural resources, which are being exploited in great haste and great recklessness, and the future will pay a heavy price for it all."

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

Victoria County, N.S., Returns Conservative to Legislature.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 14.—Victoria County, the home of Premier Murray and the riding for which he sits, returned a Conservative to the Provincial Legislature for the first time in over thirty years.

By a majority of 32 Philip McLead of Baddeck, defeated John G. Morrison, who for fourteen years was Mr. Murray's colleague. Morrison had twice received a majority of over four hundred, and on the last occasion he offered for election was returned by acclamation.

The late A. A. Buchanan, whose death caused the vacancy, had 428 majority in the general election of 1911.

Victoria is the third seat that the Conservatives have captured in a little over two years. Lunenburg and Digby joined the Conservative column in November, 1911.

The standing of the parties in the local Legislature is now: Liberals 27, Conservatives 14.

HONORS PAID FOR?

Lord Charnwood Would Like Enquiry Into Recent Charge.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—It is expected that revelations of an exciting character will be made in the House of Lords next week when Lord Selbourne raises the discussion "Concerning contributions to party funds and distributions of honors."

Lord Charnwood, Radical peer, will propose that, in view of persistent allegations implying that contributions to party funds have been the consideration to Ministers who recommend names to the King for honors, the House would welcome an assurance from the Government that such allegations are untrue and that, in view of actual or possible abuses of party funds in regard to the manner in which they are employed, the House urges the immediate appointment of a royal commission to inquire by what amendments of corrupt practice acts such abuses may most effectively be restrained.

Far Northern Claims Assigned.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14. — The Ungava Miners and Traders, Limited, have been assigned by order-in-council thirty mining claims situated on Clark, Curran and Armstrong Islands, in Hudson Bay. These form part of the Nestapoka group on the eastern shore of the bay, in what was formerly Uagava, but the islands did not become part of the Province of Quebec when the northern territory was recently included in that province. Work to the value of about $40,000 has already been done on these island claims.

KEPHALDOL

COMES TO CANADA.

Originated by Dr. Stohr, a famous physician of Vienna, Austria, Kephaldol is known and used throughout Europe and Great Britain.

Now, backed by the endorsements of hundreds of physicians and hospitals, it comes to Canada to relieve pain and cure Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Neuritis, Headache, LaGrippe, Fevers and similar troubles.

Kephaldol has received the highest commendations from the medical profession because of its direct strengthening action on the nerves without injury to the heart, and its lasting regulative and curative effect upon the whole system.

Unlike other pain-killing remedies, Kephaldol is absolutely harmless. It causes no intestinal irritation, and has no depressing effects.

Kephaldol will now bring to pain-wracked Canadians the untold blessings which it has already conferred in the Old Country—joy of perfect life again to those who, perhaps for many years, have dragged through a tormented existence.

Get a 50c tube of Kephaldol tablets at your Druggists. Kephaldol, Limited, 31 Latour Street, Montreal.

EPIDEMIC IN ARMY.

French Forces Crippled By a Variety of Diseases.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—More than 250,000 soldiers of the French army were on the sick list during the month of January, according to figures made public in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday by Deputy Edouard Lachaud, who interpellated the French Minister of War on the subject.

Deputy Lachaud said that a few weeks ago out of a total strength of 717,415 men in the French army, 194,052 were sick in the barrack rooms, 44,192 were confined in the barrack infirmaries and 21,570 in station hospitals, so that at one time or another during the month more than a third of the soldiers belonging to the army were ill. Fortunately, he said, the cases were generally light, and only 280 deaths had occurred.

Figures given by the War Department yesterday show that in the 203 garrisons a total of 6,235 soldiers are suffering from measles, scarlatina or cerebro spinal meningitis.

Eighty-five deaths from these diseases have occurred in the army since the beginning of January, according to the official returns.

Many other cases of sickness from different causes are reported, the victims being mostly young men doing the first year of their military services under the three-year system.

The sitting of the Chamber was marked by spirited debate, in the course of which numerous attacks on the Government were made.

Extricated by Ladders.

MONTREAL, Feb. 14. — Fifty guests and employes at the Victoria Hotel, Windsor and James streets, had a narrow escape when fire broke out on the third storey early yesterday morning. The guests, scantily attired, managed to grope their way to the stairs. Three employes were trapped in a room on the top floor and had to be extricated by firemen, who clambered up the fire escapes. It was 20 below zero.

LARGEST VOTE OFFER OF ENTIRE CONTEST ENDS TO-NIGHT AT 8. O'CLOCK

A Few More Ticks of the Hour Hands of Time and The Future Will be a Reality

To-night at eight o'clock closes the greatest vote offer of this great campaign. What have you done? Have you got every subscription that is possible for you to get. Do you think that you have got enough votes in reserve to win the Grand Prize? Are you satisfied that you have enough votes to carry you through the future. Think of these things, candidates, now, and if you think you may not win, better take precaution of getting a few more of your friends to take a two years' subscription. Always bear in mind that it is better to have a few thousand too many votes than to have one vote too little. Many a Grand Prize has been won by one single subscription.

Great Fight.

This is a great fight for fame and fortune, great people are competing and there are great prizes to be won, and do not forget that it will take a great number of votes to win. Never has anything in this part of Ontario attracted such universal attention of the better public than this great campaign and the candidate that has the honor of winning in this great contest will deserve great credit. Someone is going to be that one. Is it you?

Only a Few Hours More.

Your destiny may depend upon the next few hours. What it will be depends upon yourself and you alone will be the one that is responsible, whether you win or whether you lose. A few more ticks of the hour hands of fate and the future will be a reality. Are you satisfied to cast your present vote against your competitors? You are the one to decide whether or not you will need any more subscriptions to be ahead at the end of this offer. If at the end of the campaign, you find that you won a small prize, don't blame anyone but yourself. Realize this, candidates and don't leave a stone unturned to get every subscription possible in the next few hours. Your success may depend upon it, for the impetus gained in the big "Booster Period" may be what is needed to carry you successfully through the campaign. We are urging action now and you will thank us for this later on.

SCENE FROM "THE LAST DAY OF POMPEII."

There are so many ideally beautifully scenes in George Kleine's photo drama production, "The Last Days of Pompeii," that it is difficult to find any to praise more than the others. Among the unusual episodes, however, that are particularly pleasing to the discriminatingly artistic spectators are those showing Glaucus and Ione floating down the Bay of Naples in their beautiful barge, attended only by their slaves and slowly developing that glorious, steadfast love that sustained them later in the terrible ordeals that befel them—and the scene showing Ione at her bath, receiving the message from Arbaces to come to the Temple. This is one of the most beautiful pictures of the group and gives an excellent idea of the luxurious manner in which the wealthy ancients performed those functions. Both the homes of Glaucus and Ione are gorgeous specimens of ancient beauty and luxury, denoting the artistic quality of the people of those times. The scene showing Ione and Glaucus feeding the fish and doves is exquisite in its daintiness.

"The Last Days of Pompeii" is a photo-dramatization of Lord Bulwer Lytton's widely read romantic novel and is announced for four days at the Grand Theatre, beginning Feb. 16th, with matinees daily. No change in prices. Any seat 10c.

MINISTER OF MILITIA HANDS OVER THE KEYS

audience rose and joined in the chorus.

Mr. J. A Sexsmith was then called on for an address.

In opening, he said it was a great pleasure to be present to meet so many of the good people of the district, as well as the Hon. Col. Hughes and officers.

We have in our beloved Minister of Militia the best man for the position in the whole Dominion of Canada. When the Empire required his assistance he was always willing to go even to foreign fields to help fight the battles of the Empire. He believed one of the first duties of a young man was to prepare to defend his country. The boy who has had the privilege of a military training has a decided advantage over the boy who has no such training.

Col. Fiset

Col. Fiset was called and was introduced by the Hon. Col. Sam as his deputy minister. The Colonel in a pleasing French accent, delighted the audience with a neat speech. He pointed out that the present minister made the building of armouries subject to a rule that a free site be procured. He bespoke better comradeship and more devotion to duty.

Col. William Adj. General said it was a great pleasure and an honor to be present. He was glad the people of Norwood appreciated the efforts of the Minister of Militia to advance the interests of the people of our fair Dominion. He referred in complimentary terms to the chorus. He hoped the cadet movement would take deep root in Norwood.

Col. Winter, private secretary to Col. Sam, a veteran of the Egyptian war, the North West Rebellian and South African war, added a few well chosen remarks.

Col. Miller of 57th Peterboro, spoke briefly, said he was glad to be here, and join in the appreciation of the people of Norwood in the splendid gift of armouries for Norwood.

Col. Clegg, Commander 57th, Peterboro, was glad of the opportunity of being present, thanked Col. Birdsall for his invitation to be present.

The Minister regretted that he, with his suite, were due to attend a military meeting in Toronto, and was sorry he was unable to be present for the evening.

As the Col. with his staff, left the hall, in time to catch his train, the chairman called for three cheers for the Minister, which was heartily responded to with a tiger.

The Campbellford band played, and this was followed with a solo by Col. Hall-Able. He was encored and he responded.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.L.A., felt it an honor to be asked to address the people of Norwood and vicinity on this occasion.

He felt a great interest in the Boy Scout movement, a training of this kind gives the boys character. He was glad to see the ladies taking an interest in things of this kind, as well as the men. History showed that when anything great or noble had been attained in the past, the ladies were entitled to a large share of the credit.

Coun. Hendren was called upon for a few remarks and Mr. A. Dunlop gave a solo.

Mr. F. Birdsall, president of East Peterboro Agricultural Society, on behalf of the society, wished to thank Col. Hughes, Minister of Militia and the local representatives for the magnificent gift of the armouries. Mrs. H. Nicol contributed a solo.

Col. Birdsall, Commanding Officer of the 40th Regiment, was pleased that the people had turned out so well to do honor to Col. Hughes, and Mr. Sexsmith, to whom the citizens are indebted for this building.

Col. Hemming, Kingston, thanked Col. Birdsall and the officers of the 40th for their invitation to be present. His remarks were heartily applauded.

Mr. E. P. Cuffe, chairman of the Board of Education, said it would be unwise for him to take up much time, but he was glad of this opportunity of extending the thanks of the people of Norwood, the local representative and Col. Hughes, for the armouries. He was glad to have the armouries for the use of the High School Cadets. He was proud to represent the Board of Education. He called attention to several graduates of the Norwood High School who were leaders in their chosen professions.

The band here interspersed a pleasing selection, which was followed by a few remarks from Rev. Mr. Cree, Rev. Wm. Peer, Rev. Mr. Snider and Rev. Fr. Kelly.

Dr. Ford and Mr. J. S. Squire were not able to be present and as these were the last names on the program, the gathering dispersed, after the band played God Save the King.

THE CIVIC ADDRESS.

To Colonel, the Hon. Sam Hughes,
Minister of Militia and Defence:

Hon. Sir,—On behalf of the citizens of Norwood and its vicinity I extend to you a hearty welcome to our village on this the occasion of the formal opening of the Armouries, recently erected by your department of the Dominion Government, and in so doing, I feel that I am only expressing the sentiments of every citizen in this community.

Of the building itself we beg to say that it will add very materially to the general appearance of this village, which has already become noted for the substantial character of its public buildings and private residences, but it will stand for something more than a thing of beauty, seeing it will be used for the convenience and practical purpose of affording accommodation for our local militia company, Cadet Corps, Boy Scouts and the local branch of the Daughters of the Empire, all of which we are proud of. They will now have a commodious home where drill and rifle practice can with greater efficiency be carried on, and with the eleven acres of public park lands, in which this beautiful building stands, will give our young men a splendid parade ground, thus supplying a long felt want. We are not making these statements because of any immediate fear of war, with all its accompanying misery and horror, but rather because we believe (to quote an old Saw) "That an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure," but should trouble arise in the future we hope to be ready as in the past, to take our part in defending our beloved country and Empire along with the rest of our fellow countrymen.

Apropos of this view, we with considerable pride wish to remind you sir, of the achievements attained and which stand to the credit of some men, natives of this community, who have risen to the positions of honorable eminence in military circles.

First a boy was born in our sister village of Westwood, who in course of time became a pupil at our High school, and after graduating, entered the British army, by perseverance and true British pluck, is now no other than Major General George Leader. This distinguished soldier served all through the South African war, and was several times honorably mentioned in the despatches to the Home Government.

Also in this same connection a number of our bright young men, volunteered for service in that much to be regretted South African war, and were sent to the front with their Canadians from the Dominion. Most of them returned with glory and this old town gave them an enthusiastic reception accompanied with presentation to each soldier. It is, however, with sorrowful regret that we have to say that one of our boys, William Hampton, was left behind to sleep his last long sleep under Africa's sun, but our ever loyal citizens have perpetuated his name by a brass tablet placed in the High school, his alma mater.

Then during the Rell rebellion, Captain Thomas Burke, late editor of the Norwood Register, raised a local company of soldiers, who played their part in helping to suppress that uprising. Some of these men are here to-day, participating in this function. Furthermore, the late Major Thos. Grover, served his country with credit to himself and his old town.

I feel quite sure sir, that this brief reference does not by any means exhaust the number of our gallant East Peterborough citizens who sprang to arms in the hour of their country's need, when danger threatened the throne and Empire.

Before closing my remarks in this connection I should be guilty of lack of courtesy if I did not acknowledge the valuable and indefatigable services given to the military interests with which Norwood stands identified by another Westwood family, the Birdsalls, who have always been conspicuously prominent in any and every movement pertaining to the military interests of this community, and without doubt the success of to-day's function is very largely due to Lieut.-Colonel Birdsall, who along with his son, Captain Birdsall, and their co-operation with the officers and men of the 40th Northumberland Regiment.

And now in closing this brief address permit me to say that this large company present this afternoon gives tangible evidence of our appreciation for the erection of this building more than any words I can utter. A building which will be utilized for the promotion and development of the peaceful art of agriculture and other kindred purposes, to the mutual advantages of this whole community.

And as you sir, return [illegible] may we venture to hope th[illegible] you will be as personally gratified in the giving as we are in receiving these Armouries.

Long may peace prevail and long may you be spared sir, to serve your King and country, with the same marked ability which has characterised your public life in the past is the prayer of

Yours obediently
B. W. SQUIRE,
Reeve of Norwood
Norwood, Feb. 13, 1914.

Don't jump at conclusions; but on the other hand it doesn't do much good to jump away from them, either.

able-bodied dray and the passenger coaches not more corpulent than the big van in which we see furniture handled about street.

What the engineer did not consider or reckon on was the forces of a Canadian winter. When the ice froze around the piles to the thickness of two feet and the flood water coming down in the spring got under the ice it lifted the piles so far that the profile of the bridge suffered a serious abberation. It bore some resemblance to the edge of a cross-cut saw. The progress of a train across the lake presented a picturesque appearance.

Prince Took the Boat.

When His Royal Highness, Albert Edward, coming to Peterborough, reached Rice Lake, his chaperon, the Duke of Newcastle, asked whether his Highness would cross on the bridge or by boat. Is that the bridge," he asked. He was assured of its identity. "Where is the boat?" That was exhibited. "I'll take the boat," was the sensible and royal selection.

As I said the road did a good business for a time. Presently other routes were developed for the lumber freights. A lot of it from the upper country going out by way of Lindsay. And the enterprise fell on evil days. Lawyers began to get in work and, so to speak, pick the bones. Mortgages were being foreclosed. Bonuses were coming due. Dividends were absent.

School Days.

Coming out of school one day we found so many as thirty or forty flat cars standing on the rails at the Scotch Village, (afterwards Ashburnham) depot. We jumped to the conclusion that the place was going to be a railroad centre. Next day they brought up the other passenger coach and our convictions were deepened. When the other engine came rolling in we were sure of it. We questioned Mr. Buller, who was station master, freight agent, master mechanic and a lot of other things rolled into one, but he gave no information. From our elders we gleaned that some process of law was at work and that the rolling stock had been sent out to the upper end of the line to get it out of way from seizure if found in the township of Haldimand, across the lake. And so matters rested for a few days.

Again coming from school we found men and teams depositing loads of edgings along the street. What could these be for. Only one purpose, we reason, bonfires. There had not been made any statement of public rejoicing for any local event. Scouting about as boys can, will and must do, we found a placard nailed on the door of the old village hall which in great big letters told that the plant had been seized, that all men were to keep their hands off in accordance with the statute in such cases made and provided. God Save the Queen.

We also gathered that a deep scheme was on foot and this scheme accounted for the edgings. The ostensible owners of the stuff were going to run it across the bridge that night so as to get it into Peterborough where it would be safe from seizure, for a time at any rate. They had arranged with the owners of the big sawmill on the lake and up the river, engaged all the mill hands and horses and things would hum right after supper. No greater truth was ever spoken.

The thing as planned was to lay down a couple of sections of temporary track, trundle on the track a couple of the cars, lift a section on ahead and repeat the operation until the cars were down by the bridge ready to be taken across. And so along after dark the men began to arrive from the mills. Big husky fellows from many winters in the bush. Skilled in the gentle art of snaking reluctant saw logs down a corrugated runway with velocity and emphasis. Pails and jugs of refreshment were placed along the route where they would be handy. The entire populace turned out to see the fun.

I said that I was concerned in the wrecking. I was. About fifty boys were equally concerned. Should we, as boys, permit this very bad sheriff, this most unreasonable sheriff who was coming as fast as horses could bring him along the front, to take away our nice little engines and our cute little flat cars. Not much. Not any. Not by a jug full. We viewed the case as being one of an almost national emergency. We volunteered for service and reported for duty on the spot, regardless of the fact that we were not wanted. We would have taken off our coats, only that most of us had not seen a coat, except on Sunday for a matter of two months. In fact the ruling costume for a boy, in those days, during the swimming season was as near as he could get to one suspender and a pair of socks.

A Lively Time.

When the mill men started in to make things hum they would have none of the temporary track idea. They just hitched on a couple of teams of the big powerful horses, flailed them over the back with a stout gad and snaked the flat cars along the street in fine style. It was great. Any one who has tried to draw a waggon by a string or rope will know that the thing will never go where it is wanted. The cars darted from side to side. The horses reared and bolted. The men swore like the army in Flanders. The crowd cheered. There were no concrete sidewalks, no boulevards or ornamental shrubbery to take care of and the street was soon cut up like a plowed field by the flanges of the wheels.

Boy like, we did what we could. We carried water for the thirsty, leaving the pump with a full pail and getting to the scene of carnage with a matter of a quart or so in the bottom of the pail. We tied strings to the bell on the engines, and tolled a solemn requiem to the departing flat cars. From over a fence a rope tied to the whistle provoked a series of unearthly shrieks and wails, for steam was getting low. As fast as they came forward the cars were stacked along the street close to the bridge.

To even the best laid plans of men rise up obstructions. This one was the Warden of the county. Before hostilities had commenced he was summoned from Lakefield, and had objected to the use of the bridge. The bridge, at that time was a joint ownership affair, half being built at expense of the county and half by the town. He said they could run all the cars they liked across the west half of the bridge but he would be hanged if the county half was to be cut up by the wheels in a disgraceful manner. He carries his point, and men and teams were detailed to go to the mills and get loads of plank to cover the floor of the county half, some one going security for payment. During the interval there was large refreshment.

After infinite labor and the use of the temporary track one of the engines was brought to the brow of the hill a little west of the opening of Lake street. Then the track was shifted and a "dead man" having been sunk in the ground to get a hold the attempt was made to let the engine down the hill by a rope. Ranged along the fence, on the elevation above were all the boys of the village, like a string of crows, banging their bare heels on the boards, yelling a frantic chorus and hoping, so earnestly, that the thing would get away and add to the hilarity of the occasion. It did escape. Sped the length of the track, caromed to one side and brought up against the side of the stone mill.

While the committee on first aid to the injured were discussing the situation a strange hush came over the activities of the night. Down by the bridge, where all had been hurry and excitement there was nothing doing. We flocked along the street to enquire within. The reason was plain. Standing up in a buggy was the sheriff, that same, very bad and unreasonable sheriff reading a habeus corpus or the riot act or some equally formidable document and telling everybody to be good and go home and let things alone, for goodness sake. Carried unanimously. Everybody was willing. Even the most ambitions had had enough, and the strongest arm of the service, the mill men, were many of them hopelessly drunk. So just as the sun was coming up over the big hill this side of the lift lock I trotted up the dusty street, climbed on the cook shed roof, crawled through a window and sneaked into bed, tired, dirty but happy. And satisfied, thoroughly satisfied, that after all life was worth living.

LAID AT REST

Omemee, Feb. 14.—The last sad rites of love and respect were paid to all that was mortal of the late Mr. T. C. Stephenson, at 2 p.m., when service was held in Christ church, of which the deceased was a member, a chorister and a lay reader. Rev. H. Earle officiated and was assisted in the service by Venerable Archdeacon Warren, of Toronto, a college companion of the deceased. After the splendid impressive reading of the lesson, the Ven. Archdeacon addressed the congregation, speaking in eulogistic terms of the impeachable character of the departed brother, whose life would influence the community. He concluded by pronouncing benedictions on the assemblage. The solemn cortege wended its way to Emily cemetery, where interment took place. The floral offerings were numerous and infinitely beautiful. The ballbearers were Messrs. T. A. McPherson, W. Curry, H. R. Murray, R. Johnston, S. Grandy, and G. Griffin. The weather was bitterly cold but a very large number were present at the obsequies. There are left to mourn the lamented early departure of one so dearly beloved in his home circle, so much esteemed in business enterprises, so much reverenced in religious work, besides his widow, one brother, Mr. W. G. Stephenson, of Omemee, four sisters, Mrs. R. J. Adams, Misses Rebecca and Annie, of Omemee, and Mrs. D. Smith of Stouffville, to all of whom the warmest condolences are extended. The late Mr. Stephenson was president of the Public Library, an ex-president of the Victoria Conservative Association, secretary of the Rifle Association, a member of the Board of Education, a member of L.O.L. 114 and of the local Camp of Foresters, besides being a senior member of the Stephenson Bros. Milling and Electric Light Co. The High and Public schools were dismissed on the afternoon of the funeral, as a mark of respect to a departed citizen whose prominent position it will be difficult to fill. The entire town and community is plunged in deepest sorrow.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

By F. M. Dela Fosse.

Scientists tell us that there are three characteristics that distinguish man from the brute, viz: insanity, intemperance and the faculty of laughter. Man certainly has no need to be proud of the two former, but he may well be of the latter, and of the factors that produce it, for in wit and humor he possesses two of the most powerful agencies for good or evil that human nature can boast. Wit is a faculty that runs the whole gamut of human emotions, for in its milder forms it lends a charm to social intercourse and literary recreation whilst in its fiercer and more aggressive moods it is powerful enough to make tyrants quake and shake the very foundations of empire. This is not a far-fetched assertion, for history shows us that Voltaire's sparkling epigrams did more to undermine the institutions of Europe than all its philosophers and logicians put together. If Voltaire had known where to stop and not carried his irony into the realms of religious belief it is conceivable that he would today be hailed as a world-benefactor. As it is, he is looked upon as one of the worst forces for evil that the eighteenth century produced. The "little wasp of Twickenham," as Pope was not inaptly stigmatized, was, on the other hand, largely an agent for good, for he did more than all the denunciations of the pulpit to raise a revolt against the vices of the time. All the fashionable world was afraid of him and it was not altogether without reason that he wrote those daring words:

"I own I'm proud, I must be proud to see,
Men not afraid of God afraid of me."

Book of Snobs

Another instance nearer to our own day is furnished by Thackeray's "Book of Snobs." Its appearance caused many heart-searchings and men who had formerly considered it the very height of gentility and good breeding to squander their means on selfish pleasures, leaving their creditors to shift for themselves, began to take a different view of their responsibilities. It would not be hard to multiply instances to show in how great measure the exercise of wit has helped to dispel existing abuses. How far the allied talents are forces in life and literature can be seen from the varied terms that are found in their nomenclature. Irony, satire, ridicule facetiousness, farce, comedy, attic salt, drollery, repartee, buffoonery, badinage, banter, retort, quip, quiddity, merriment, joke, etc. One could really rack one's brains for some time and still discover phrases and words to fit one or other of the phases of thought or speech that are grouped under the general titles of Wit and Humor.

It is from humor I think, that we derive our greatest enjoyment, for we are a merciful race in our fun-loving and much as we may enjoy reading the caustic witticisms of the great men of the past or present, it is always with a feeling of more genuine pleasure that we turn to something really humanising and agreeable. There is this great difference between these two laughter-producing factors. Wit can be pitiless; humor never. Wit scintillates like the frosty particles on the window pane. Humor belongs entirely to the land of sunshine, and is always kindly, always inspiriting. Misanthropes and cynics who have little love for their fellow men cannot be humorists, however largely they may be endowed with wit. To this class belong Ben Johnson, Pope, Butler, Voltaire, and Swift. On the other hand Aristophanes, the ancient Greek dramatist, Chaucer, Shakespeare, Addison, Sterne, Scott, Burns, Cervantes and Goldsmith bubble over with humor as also does Dickens, whose writings show scarcely a spark of wit. Pope could be cruel and venomous to his best friends and the consequence was that he often felt the lash of their tongues in return. Hogarth however, was the one whom he feared the worst for his power of caricaturing was great and his clever delineations of the poet often caused him to writhe in unspeakable anguish.

Great Jokers

Many persons have a habit of confusing the terms and applying them indiscriminately to any piece of literature or any saying that produces laughter. As a matter of fact, although they sometimes insensibly overlap, the extremes that bound their domains are very far removed, the one from the other. The genius of Voltaire was very far removed, for instance, from the genius of Theodore Hook yet both had the same gift of savage retort and the same facility of improvisation. Voltaire however, could never have stooped to the paltry joke-making and miscievous pranks of Hook, nor could Hook have reached to the philosophic heights of Voltaire. Count D'Orsay was a wit, so was Samuel Rogers. Both were of the mordant type and both received their reward in the shape of numerous merciless retorts from their friends. Rogers' cadaverous countenance proved a splendid target for their shafts, and they did not scruple to make merriment at his expense, even when

CRIPPLING PAINS OF RHEUMATISM

Cannot Be Cured by Liniments—Must Be Reached Through the Blood.

Thousands of men and women suffer severely from rheumatism. Cruel, crippling pains in the muscles and joints make every movement a torture. Many people think rheumatism is due to cold or wet weather and they try to cure themselves by rubbing linaments on the painful parts. This is a great mistake—the rheumatic poison is in the blood, and liniments and rubbing cannot give more than the most temporary relief. If you are a victim of rheumatism or lumbago you can only rid yourself of it by making your blood rich and pure, for only in this way can the poisons of rheumatism be driven from the system. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured more cases of rheumatism than any other disease except anaemia, just because they make the rich, red blood that goes right to the root and cause of rheumatism. You cannot be well when your blood is impure, therefore, begin curing your rheumatism to-day with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The following are the particulars of one of the many thousands of cures to the credit of this health-giving medicine:

Mr. Jeremie Nadou, St. Jerome, Que., says: "A few years ago I was seized with a severe attack of rheumatism. The pains in my back, arms and legs were terrible. I treated with several doctors but they did not help me, and as time went on I was unable to work, and began to think that I would be a cripple for life. While in this trying condition a friend who had been cured of rheumatism by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advised me to try this remedy, and I got a supply of the Pills. I had taken the Pills for several weeks before any improvement was noticed, but once signs of relief came the improvement from that time on was rapid, and I joyfully continued taking the Pills until every vestige of the trouble disappeared. No one but a similar sufferer can imagine the gratitude I feel for this relief from pain, and because I have since enjoyed perfect health I urge other rheumatic sufferers to give this medicine a trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CHURCH AND SOCIAL SERVICE

In the third sermon of the special series which the Rev. R. Pogue of St. Paul's church is delivering on the "Church and the Social Crisis," he will preach to-morrow night on the "Relation of the Church to the Social Problem."

Japan bought more than $5,000,000 worth of electrical machinery and supplies last year, most of which came from the United States.

TIME SEEMS OPPORTUNE

Great Waterways Union Will Send Delegates to Ottawa

BERLIN, Ont., Feb. 14.—The executive of the Great Waterways Union of Canada at its meeting here yesterday afternoon discussed the proposed international negotiations for the development of a deep ocean waterway over the entire route from the upper lakes to the sea. The United States being deeply interested in such development, the meeting decided that the time was most opportune for action, especially with a view to a more adequate development of Hydro power in the Niagara and St. Lawrence zones.

Forcible comment was made on the fact that the water available at Niagara under present treaties is practically now all apportioned among the different power companies, and that, by the end of the year the Hydro-Electric Commission will be using eighty per cent. of its available supply. Aside from an increased supply under new arrangements, the extension of the Hydro-Electric Commission's service to new municipalities, and for farmers and radial railways would be impossible, and the municipalities at present supplied from Niagara would be forced largely to go back to steam or to a dual service. In addition to the greatly expanding need in the Niagara zone, it is realized that the power possibilities in connection with the enlargement along the St. Lawrence river would convert that section also into a great electric manufacturing district.

The meeting decided to arrange for a general deputation to go to Ottawa from districts affected. Besides the public bodies invited, it is believed many private citizens who are deeply interested will accompany the deputation.

A resolution was passed instructing the secretary to invite the various municipal councils and boards of trade both in the districts on Ontario contiguous to the present waterway from Montreal to the upper lakes, and in the prairie provinces, to accompany a deputation to Ottawa early in April to urge upon the Government the need of an immediate enlargement of the entire waterway from the upper lakes to Montreal.

THE HOME OF MAN

"The House of God, the Home of Man" will be Rev. Canon Davidson's subject at the 11 o'clock services in St. John's Church.

ON THE VERGE OF A BREAK-DOWN

Wrecked Strength And Shattered Nerves Completely Restored By "Fruit-a-tives", The Famous Medicine Made From Fruit.

MRS. W. N. KELLY.

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 20th. 1913

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" as they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollars' worth but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found ONLY pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case". MRS. W. N. KELLY

A blood purifier, a general tonic, a builder of health and strength, "Fruit-a-tives" is one of the great discoveries of the century in curative medicine. One of the valuable properties of "Fruit-a-tives" is its marvellous cleansing powers. When these tablets are taken, they act on the three great eliminating organs of the body—the bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" keeps the system free of waste matter, prevents the formation of an excess of uric acid, and insures the blood being pure and clean. "Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of the digestive juices, makes digestion complete and enables the system to absorb and assimilate an abundance of nourishment from the food eaten.

"Fruit-a-tives" builds up, invigorates, strengthens the whole system. As a general tonic, there is nothing else quite so good. And these tablets are so mild in action, so pleasant to take, that they are particularly suited to women.

PETES FALL BEFORE SPEED AND TEAM WORK OF ORILLIA

Visitors Won by 7-4, Making the Score 15-8 On the Round

A HARD BATTLE

"SKID" JANES
The Petes' Goaltender had a busy session and played a great game.

GROVER HALPIN
The cub rover who figured in all the scoring by the blue and white

It was Orillia who crushed the hopes of the Bear Cats two years ago, and it was Orillia who put the local Intermediates out of the running for the present season. Backed by a four-goal lead, which they obtained over the locals last Tuesday, and some two hundred red hot fans, they swooped down on the blue and white at Brock street rink last night and handed them a decisive beating, the score being 7—4. The Northeners therefore win the round by 15—8. The half time figures in last night's battle read Orillia 3, Peterboro 1.

There are no excuses to offer. The Best team won, and in doing so, they outclassed the locals in every stage of the game. It was not a one-sided affair, however, far from it, the game was one of the fastest and hardest fought battles ever staged in this city. Every man on both teams went at it in earnest and although the pace grew terrific at times, the play was real clean. Not one delay occurred because of any player being hurt. It was hockey all the way through.

Petes Scored First

When Peterboro secured the first goal they looked like possible winners, but the visitors had no sooner become acquainted with the ice than they made things lively. They soon forged ahead and although the game was tied up a few minutes after half time, the locals didn't appear to have the necssary ability to win the game, let alone the round. Most of the fans expected them to win the game, but the game had only begun when it resembled a fistic encounter between Packey McFarland and Jack Johnson. The locals have a good team, but the Orillia outfit are much better.

The old rink was filled to capacity. It looked like the dear old days of old to see every inch of the space covered. You could almost hear them yelling at "Maggie" Whitcroft and "Bill" Crowley. One item along this line that is worthy of mention is the very orderly way in which the reserved seats were handled. There was no trouble at all, and the club management are to be congratulated upon the result of their efforts to give the fans satisfaction.

Perhaps the most outstanding star of the winners is their goal custodian, Corbould. He is there a thousand ways and then some. Addison, of the T.R. and A.A. brigade of 1913, who is now wearing the St. Michael's uniform, was recognized as about the best man ever stood in the nets at Brock Street Rink, but if he has anything on Corbould, he has yet to show it. Their defence is also very strong, while their forward line is extra good. Draper, their left wing man, was only subbing, and although he showed up well, that can no doubt be attributed to the fact that Bradshaw didn't watch him very closely. He is, as a matter of fact, the only weak man on the team. Lovering Jupp is still there with his class, while Carter, at rover, is an eye-opener. He is big and fast and is not inclined to rough it in any way. It is not improbable that we will hear more of him before the season is over. He was the best man on the ice last night. Ross, at centre, didn't tear off anything exceptional, although he played a steady game.

The Cub Rover

One Peterboro man who showed as much hockey ability as any man on the ice was Grover Halpin. If the cub captain wasn't there, well, we don't know anything about the game. He kept going all the time, and the way he camped around the visitors' net and poked in goals, sent the fans into ecstacies. In the last half he showed up even more than he did before the resting period, and his back checking more than assisted in keeping the visitors in check. Captain Park was going much better than he did in Orillia, and this can be taken as the reason for Ross's limited work. Kelly and Bradshaw worked hard, but the task was too much. The latter injured his knee and was forced to lag a little.

Fred Denison played a whale of a game, and rushed incessantly. His speed was given a chance to work on the hard stuff and Dennie fairly burned the ice up at times. Percy Bond worked hard on defence, and rushed well on several occasions. Percy would have had a goal to his credit in the first half had it not been for Harvie tripping him. He was right in and going to shoot.

Albert Roy Janes had one of the busiest nights any goal minder who ever wore the blue and white ever had. He was bombarded from all sides and although a few beat him, he held out all kinds of hard ones. His blocking of Ross in the first few minutes of play was wonderful.

Jimmy Murphy, of the Toronto Ontarios, viewed the game from the gallery and thought Halpin about the fastest kid he ever lamped. When Grover was passing him at half time "James the Great" patted him on the back and exclaimed: "Stay with it kid, you're the best man on the ice." Just whether Murphy is looking for material or not, is unknown, but it is rumored that he has a liking for Denison.

"Chad" Toms refereed the game and satisfied everybody.

The teams:

Peterboro		Orillia
Janes	goal	Corbould
Bond	left def.	Perryman
Denison	right def.	Harvie
Halpin	rover	Carter
Park	centre	Ross
Bradshaw	right wing	Jupp

The Play

A few minutes after eight thirty Referee Toms dropped the puck and in a few seconds the pace grew fast. The forward men of both teams were bunching and displayed very little combination. Jupp secured the first shot on the nets from outside the defence, but Janes blocked nicely. The rubber hovered around the Petes' net and Janes was called upon to block a few red hot shots. On one occasion he came out and blocked Ross after the latter had circled the defence and the yell that went up could be heard at Nassau. Denison carried the puck up to the visitors' quarters and Corbould was given an opportunity to show his class. Grover Halpin was camping around the nets like a leach, and was finally rewarded for his efforts when he shot one waist high past Corbould. Time 4 minutes. Peterboro 1, Orillia 0.

A few seconds after the face-off Halpin nearly scored again when he bored one from close in. Carter broke away with a nice rush but was stopped and the play was held in Orillia's territory mainly through the great back checking of Halpin. The cub captain was playing a wonderful game and had the fans with him. Denison electrified the huge crowd with a few of his long rushes and then Draper broke away and after a long rush he slid around Bond, and when Janes came out to meet him, the puck rolled in. Time 10 minutes. Peterboro 1, Orillia 1.

For a while it looked all Orillia yet the locals fought hard. Bradshaw injured his knee with the result that he had to slacken up and Draper ran wild. He came down on several rushes but was blocked, yet he came back and finally after rushing from back of his net, he outskated the forwards and passed to Ross, by the defence. Ross scored on a fast high shot. Time 5 minutes. Peterboro 1, Orillia 2.

The next few minutes included some of the fiercest and hardest hockey ever witnessed at the local rink. The Petes urged on by a maddened crowd, tried hard to score, but all to no avail, Corbould was too good. Denison came through with several fast rushes but the visitors' defence skated him into the corner and his work was futile. Percy Bond tore up the wing on a hard rush but was tripped by Harvie, who was penalized for the offence. This was the first penalty of the game. Playing six men, the locals pressed, but Corbould ate everything up. Harvie came back and an instant afterwards Lovering Jupp, who had been setting out an exceptionaly fine brand of hockey, secured a long shot from the side and it fooled Janes completely. Time 7 minutes. Peterboro 1, Orillia 3.

Two goals behind and attempting to overcome a four goal lead, caused many of the fans to sigh and they were kept in suspense when Bradshaw drew a penalty for tripping. With the visitors pressing hard and Janes kicking out a shot every other minute, the half time gong was sounded.

Second Half

After the resting period Park dropped back to rover and Halpin played centre. Bradshaw came back after a few seconds of play and soon the locals assumed the aggressive. Grover Halpin broke away on a nifty little rush and after displaying some fine stick handling, he passed to Park who scored from close in. Time 2 minutes. Peterboro 2, Orillia 3.

Urged on by the fans, who once again entertained hopes the blue and white kept right on pressing. The puck was kept well in Orillia's territory and Halpin camped right in front of the nets. Bradshaw passed the puck back from the corner and Denison bored it at the net. Corbould blocked but Grover was right in on top of him before he could clear, and slammed it in. It was a great bit of work on the part of Halpin. Time 2 minutes. Peterboro 3, Orillia 3.

Once again were they on even footing and the greatly excited multitude cried for goals. The 'Rillians came strong however, and the Mayor Cavan was working overtime. He stopped shot after shot and cleared beautifully. On a face-off in front of the nets Ross registered. Time 4 minutes. Peterboro 3, Orillia 4.

Kelly drew a penalty for an offence committed by Park. Toms had become mixed in the players. The wing man returned however before any scoring occurred, and an instant afterwards Draper was sent to adorn the boards, because of his desire to become an "inside home." Denison contributed a few nice rushes and just as Draper stepped back on the ice he tripped the local big defence man and as a result, went back to the jug. The hockey displayed was brilliant. Everyone was working hard and Park and Halpin combined in several short rushes. It was rather amusing to see the kid bodying the big northeners around but Toms looked on it in a different light and warned him. Kelly who had been tied down all night in the task of watching Jupp, delivered a couple of pretty rushes, but Napoleon himself couldn't bombard Corbould with any results. Carter broke away and after an extremely fast rush, he circled everybody, even Janes. Time 15 minutes. Peterboro 3, Orillia 5.

Bradshaw drew a penalty for bodying Ross into the boards and while he was off Draper scored on a long lift from the side. It was the only shot that ever caught Janes off his guard on the local rink, and was decidedly lucky. Time 1 minute. Peterboro 3, Orillia 6.

Bradshaw came back but ten men couldn't hold the speedy visitors. Harvie started on a lone rush and made it seven, after passing the defence. Time 1 minute. Peterboro 3, Orillia 7.

The game was practically on ice but the Petes got busy and after working hard around the nets, Halpin passed to Park who scored the last goal for the 1913-14 Peterboro O.H.A. Intermediates. Time 1 minute. Peterboro 4, Orillia 7.

Full time rang a few seconds after the face-off.

The summary:

New Fire Ladder Arouses Interest In Berlin, Germany.

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—Many foreign notables were the guests at the Kaiser's castle yesterday morning during the review of the Berlin Fire Brigade, arranged for the purpose of showing his Majesty some of the new apparatus.

The novelty which attracted most attention was the equipment of extension ladders, which can be raised to a height of eighty-five feet instantaneously by power generated from carbonic acid. A couple of old-fashioned ladders, raised by a reel, also were exhibited, to show the superiority of the power-raised type.

Another feature new to Berliners was a water mast, which hoists a nozzle and throws a stream into places which cannot conveniently be reached by water thrown by men on extension ladders. Another display consisted of sending a fireman, clad in diver-like fireproof clothing, into a blazing pile of petroleum-soaked wood.

Remarkable Escape From Drowning.

SARNIA, Feb. 14.—County Constable Joseph Kennedy of Port Lambton had a remarkable escape from drowning. He started to drive across the river on the ice but missed the way, and his horse and cutter plunged into an open air hole in the ice. He tried to drag himself out, but the ice crumpled, and at ten below zero, it was only a few minutes before his sleeves froze fast and he was unable to move.

He called for help. Pat Menton and Ernest Roberts tried to get him, but the ice commenced to crack. Menton pulled off his overcoat and ventured close while Roberts held him. He threw one end of his coat to Kennedy, who had strength enough to hold on while he was dragged to safety.

Fatally Burned.

BERLIN, Feb. 14. — Paul Mosser, aged 45, who lived alone, was burned to death in his home at St. Jacobs about 5 a.m. The blaze had gained headway before seen by neighbors. Mosser is survived by a wife and two children, who live in Waterloo.

HANBIDGE—DEYELL
MAWHINNEY—DEYELL

At four o'clock on the afternoon of Wednesday, Feb. 11th, about seventy guests gathered at "Chrystal Stream" the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell, to witness the marriage of their twin daughters, Elsie Irene, to Mr. William Hanbidge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbidge, of Otonabee, and Ethel Emma, to Mr. Albert Tennyson Mawhinney, of Frobisher, Sask., son of Mr. Robert Mawhinney of Vancouver.

The double ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Cragg, of East Peterboro, in the low window of the drawing room, under an arch of white streamers and smilax hung with bridal bells.

The brides, who were given away by their father, wore dainty gowns of ivory satin draped with shadow pointe and seed pearls, and carried bridal roses and valley lilies. Their only ornaments were the gifts of the grooms, necklaces set with pearls and peridots.

Miss Esetta Chambers, niece of the brides, who played the wedding march, received a pear pin from Mr. Hanbidge, and a bracelet from Mr. Mawhinney. After the usual congratulations and signing of the register, luncheon was served in the dining room. The rooms were decorated with carnations, ferns and evergreens, and the tables with roses and smilax.

Toasts to the brides and grooms were proposed by Rev. C. E. Cragg, and responses were made by Mr. R. A. Deyell, and Mr. John Hanbidge. At later tables Mr. Earnest Deyell, deputy reeve, proposed toasts to the farmer and to Saskatchewan, the future home of Mr. and Mrs. Mawhinney. In the soft candle light the costumes looked particularly well. Mrs. R. A. Deyell wore black silk. Mrs. John Hanbidge, wisteria voile with silver trimmings; Miss Ezetta Chambers, a dainty frock of pink marquisette; Miss Mildred Deyell, golden brown silk.

Among the many gifts were pianos from Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Deyell, and substantial cheques from Miss Mildred and Mr. Warde Deyell.

The happy couples left on the evening train for Toronto, Niagara, and Buffalo. The brides travelled in smart brown tailored suits with hats to match. A LITTLE BETTER THAN THE BEST

The Public are Assured of a Real Treat in Knox Church Lecture Hall Monday and Tuesday Evening, Feb. 16th and 17th.

What enthusiasm and perseverance will accomplish will be demonstrated to the audiences who greet the debut of "The New Minister" Monday evening in Knox church lecture hall. Practices are more or less monotonous, but realizing that they had something just a little better than has heretofore been attempted along this each member of this company of young people to determine that this event would establish a precedent. This was fully demonstrated at the dress rehearsal held last evening, and the public are assured of a real treat. Twelve tuneful musical numbers including full choruses, enliven the sketch and help clear the many tangled complications into which the New Minister unwittingly falls.

The advance sale of tickets assures the management of capacity audiences, and arrangements are already being made in case it is found necessary to repeat the performance a third time to protect all ticket holders.

READING AND ITS PLEASURES

they had their legs under his mahogany.

On one occasion, D'Orsay having got the better of an antagonist in a verbal encounter, his victim turned on him and said: "Look here, D'Orsay, Providence dispenses its favors pretty equally. It has endowed you with a fairly glib tongue, but it has blessed me with a very limber leg. Now, I give you fair warning that if you use your tongue I'm going to use my leg." The case of Lord Rochester will occur to anyone as an instance of another being who didn't count the cost so long as he could make his jest. The well-known lines that he wrote on Chaires II. are said to have cost him that monarch's friendship.

Here lies our sovereign lord and king,
Whose word no man relies on;
He never said a foolish thing
And never did a wise one.

Specimens of Wit.

Reference has been made to several types of wit and humor and this article will close with a few specimens of humor, that, whilst they give very distorted accounts of certain historical personages, cannot be beaten for sheer ingenuousness. They are known as school-boy "howlers" and probably every school-master, in the course of his career, has come across similar specimens.

"Latimer was a martyr who was tied to a stake and said to Ridley:—Cheer up brother Ridley, you'll soon be dead."

"Milton married a young girl who ran back to her parents, so he wrote a sonnet on Divorce."

"Prince William was drowned in a butt of Malmsey wine; he never laughed again."

"The saddest thing King John did was to lose his crown in the laundry."

"Q.—A man has X miles to travel; he goes A miles by train, B miles by boat; and C miles he walks; the rest he cycles? How far does he cycle?"

"A.—D, e, f, g, h, i, j, k, l, m, n, o, p, q, r, s, t, u, v, w, miles."

"If the air contains more than 100 per cent. of carbolic acid it is very injurious to health."

THE CALL MAKES US RESPONSIBLE

Says Miss Babcock at Free Methodist Church.

At the Free Methodist Church last night Miss Babcock continued a sermon on the subject "The Call of God."

"I am glad," said the speaker, "that the word of God contains this text, it has been a comfort to my heart. The fact of our being called leaves the responsibility of our salvation on ourselves. This is the thought contained in the parable of the marriage of the King's Son. God has called each of us to the great marriage feast he has appointed for His Son. Many make excuses; some on the ground of the inconsistencies of professing Christians of which we acknowledge with sorrow there are many. Many other excuses as foolish as that specified are offered for not yielding to the call of God, but the only reason is 'Ye will not.'

ESTABLISHED 1879. PETERBOROUGH, ONT., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1914. PRICE 2 CENTS

OPPOSITION WITHDRAWN

Mrs. Mahoney Will not Contest the Will of Fr. Brophy

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Catherine Mahoney, of Ottawa, sister of the late Rev. Father Brophy of Kingston, who attacked his will, alleging undue influence and lack of testamentary capacity, has withdrawn her opposition, and the will has been sent to Kingston for probate.

The will disposes of an estate of $176,326, and contained one provision leaving a large sum to be distributed among priests who had been deprived of their livings by the heirarchy.

The withdrawal of Mrs. Mahoney's action took place quietly in the chambers of Mr. Justice Britton. By consent she withdrew her statement of defence, and an order was made for the return of all papers and documents to the Surrogate Court.

Was Bequeathed $75

Mrs. Mahoney was bequeathed an annuity of $75 a year and the will stated that any one attempting to break it, would forfeit any bequest made. Father Brophy was a retired missionary priest, who died Sept. 23.

Outside of a few minor bequests, the estate was left to establish a fund by which a sum not exceeding $400 a year should be paid "to each unfortunate Roman Catholic priest in Ontario who has been cast out, or debarred by the clerical authorities of his church," such recipients to make profession of faith, to have no other income, to have no jurisdiction of doclerical duty, and to be respectable citizens. Applicants from other provinces were also provided for. The unexpended revenue was to be turned over to the Ontario Government for distribution among the asylums and deaf and dumb institutes.

Not to Create Strife

The will said: "May God forbid that this will should give any encouragement to insubordination, disobedience or scandal in the church. No one has more respect for the authority of superiors, especially that of a good and kind Bishop, than I, but . . . I believe that the majority of them are haughty, overbearing and tyrannical, some to a shocking degree."

TWO MONTHS IN JAIL BECAUSE HE WOULDN'T TELL

Blacklister Refused to Say Who Supplied the Liquor.

Robert Irwin may be a good man to keep a vow, but it is an expensive trait, for this morning Irwin was sentenced to two months in the county jail for refusing to divulge the name of the man he got his lipuor from.

He remarked that the man who supplied him was married and had a wife and family and he could not conscientiously tell his name. He could, however, pay the man's fine if he were liberated from jail.

"You refuse to tell his name then," remarked the Magistrate.

"Yes."

"You will serve two months in the county jail for your answer," was the response of the court.

TOO FAT TO BE GOOD FIREMEN

Gymnasium to be Provided at All Fire Stations.

London, Feb. 16.—A London firm of publishers recently dismissed all its thin travellers on the ground that fat men were more suitable for commercial travelling. Now fat firemen in the London Fire Brigade are told that they must reduce their weight or resign.

The chief theory is that firemen should not be fat, because that means loss of the agility necessary for their business. The firemen pointed out that there were not enough fires to keep them in strict training and that most of their time was spent waiting for alarms, and that enforced idleness to men of their perfect health meant corpulence.

The London County Council, however, recognizing that fatness was not the men's fault, but their misfortune, has now decided to provide a gymnasium at every fire station, so that the men when waiting for fires can take exercise that will prevent them from larding the lean earth as they run. In the meantime it is said that as the only cure for corpulence is work, and that as work is not forthcoming in sufficient quantities for the purpose, some of the firemen in desperation seek to create work by false alarms.

MILITANTS FRIGHTEN BLACKBURN CITIZENS

People Feared Mine Disaster, But it Was Only a Trick of the Suffragettes

Canadian Press Despatch

BLACKBURN, Feb. 16.—The whole city was shaken and the population alarmed by a terrific explosion last night. People flocked into the streets in the darkness, fearing a mine disaster had occurred in the neighborhood. Only late today was the cause discovered. Then it was found that the suffragettes had rammed a big charge of powder in an old gun captured from the Russians in the Crimean war, sixty years ago, and which has since been in the city park, and fired it.

An inscription on a calico banner floating from a tree nearby, read: "Wake up Blackburn, the labor party which claims to act for justice and freedom, supports a government that tortures woman."

CHURCHES ARE DOING GOOD WORK

In Looking After Cases of Need in the City.

"The churches and organiaztions are all doing good work, but the big question the poor are endeavoring to solve, is the rent," said Adjutant McElheney to a Review representative this morning, during a conversation regarding the condition of the poor of the city.

Adjutant McElheney, who has had considerable experience with the poor of Peterboro, pointed out to the reporter how the savings of some of the people had made in the summer, had dwindled down until nothing was left. Some were probably newcomers to the city or else too proud to ask for relief. Some deserving cases were hard to find for the above reasons.

"How are the church organizations in assisting the poor?"

"Well, they are all doing good work."

The section men removed the carcasses to a nearby field and it is alleged the three men in question skinned them and kept the hides.

NO PAIN IN PURGATORY

In the Opinion of Rev. Dr. Hincks.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—At Trinity Methodist Church last night Rev. Dr. Hincks preached the last of a series of sermons on human destiny. His subject last night was "Purgatory and the Intermediate State."

His remarks were not in accord with the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church or the Church of England, and he said that he did not believe in the offering of prayers for the dead, or in disciplinary pains after death. There was in his mind some intermediate state, but there was no pain in connection with it, and the only term of atonement was one of soul communication with God, that association being congenial. While disagreeing with other beliefs, Dr. Hincks said he wished to make no attacks on either of the churches referred to.

WOULD ABOLISH HIGH SCHOOL FEES

Cobourg Council Believe Interests of Education Would be Furthered.

At a meeting of the Cobourg Council Coun. Quinn offered a motion that the clerk instruct the trustees of the Collegiate Institute that it was the opinion of the council that the interests of education would be furthered by the dropping of the fee for entrance to that institution and that the secretary, in submitting his request for appropriation, increase the amount sufficient to do away with the fees after the first half of the year. He stated he had made inquiries and he found the amount would approximate $1000 which was much smaller than he had thought it. There were 105 high schools and 43 Collegiates in Ontario and of these 52 High Schools and 12 Collegiates were free; of these were Colborne, Brighton, Picton, Napanee, Deseronto, and others, towns which are in no better financial condition than Cobourg. He knew of families sending two or more children to the Collegiate which was a burden to them financially, some were unable to send more than one. By the practice of economy he believed the matter could be handled by the council with only slight increase in taxes.

THEATRICAL

"A Butterfly on the Wheel" was the metaphorical title of the play given at the Grand on Saturday. The story is that of a pretty, indiscreet young woman, who aroused her husband's jealousy, which was increased by the plotting of other interested parties. A suit for divorce follows in which the case is not proven and husband and wife have a clearer understanding of each other and a belief in their mutual devotion. The important scene is, of course, the trial for divorce.

Charlotte Lillard, as Peggy Admaston, is the woman in the case. The opening seems a little weak—the impression is that the play is going to be neither powerful nor interesting. In the second act, Alexander Loftus, as the urbane diplomatist, Lord Ellerdine, gives the play a decided boost by his natural unconscious humor. This heightening effect is carried still further in the third act. Miss Lillard, who performs her part with skill, entirely dispels the feeling of weakness that the beginning of her role conveys. Frederick Arnold, as the prosecuting attorney, is good and certainly does much to redeem the insipidness of the first act, and this is effectively accomplished. No doubt the trial scene is overdone—perhaps it had to be on the stage. We have seen better plays, but the healthy tone of the story, the simplicity of the plot, and the powerful work of the two leading people in the Trial Scene make the play well worth seeing.

I'LL GIVE YOU THE $7,500,000," SAYS THE BARON TO THE EARL

EARL OF DERBY
BARON MAURICE ARNOLD DE FOREST

Baron Maurice Arnold de Forest has agreed to pay to the Earl of Derby $7,500,000 for the latter's estate in Bootle, a suburb of Liverpool.

Behind this announcement lies an interesting bit of history. In making a speech in Liverpool recently the Earl of Derby referred contemptuously to "an alien gentleman owning no land in this country—Baron de Forest."

"I have no love for him," said Lord Derby. "He has stated that the most conservative estimate of the revenue of my estate at Bootle might be safely put at $500,000. The capital value he places at fifteen or twenty millions. If he puts down $7,500,000 he can have it."

Now the Baron has accepted the offer and a big land deal is likely to be the result of a political controversy.

RELATION OF THE CHURCH TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

The Church Must Imbue All Organizations With the Christian Spirit

The Rev. R. Pogue in St. Paul's Church, last night, preached on "The Relation of the Church to Social Problems." In the beginning of his remarks he referred to the change which has come over the church in her attitude to economic and social problems within the last few years. He quoted the Bishop of London as saying: "There is a strong new wine working in the hearts and brains of thousands today. Thousands believe today that there is a possibility of equality of opportunity for all. Thousands believe that this grinding poverty which some of us have seen in the great cities before our eyes, is unnecessary and should come to an end. Thousands look forward with hope to a day when each child shall have a chance and no one shall be—to use a terrible phrase—damned into the world."

He also quoted the deliverance of Prof. John Ryan of the Roman Catholic Church in the States on social problems. He has put forth a far reaching program of reform which has been approved by many Catholic professors of ethics, and would probably have the endorsement of the majority of the priests. He demands a legal minimum wage, an eight-hour law, relief for the unemployed, provision against accident, illness, and old age, the housing of the working people, public ownership of public utilities, adequate control of monopolies, taxation of the future increase of land values, the prohibition of speculation on the exchange.

The speaker pointed out that every great church on the continent in the last three or four years has made an important pronouncement, on the new attitude of the church to the social problem. He mentioned the fact that there are one hundred and fifty ministers of religion in the States who attend the meetings of labor unions, with more or less regularity, and who have the right to the floor, and who are often called upon, and, in some cases, are winning marked popularity and influence. He then went on to point out the true work of the church in the world.

To Save Men

First of all, it is the business of the church to save men from the fact and consequences of sin. The most fundamental thing in human life is a man's religious nature. Its longings and desires are as real a part of man as are the desires and hungers and needs of his physical nature. He said: "I utterly and with all my nature repudiate the doctrine that better wages, better hours, better homes, more leisure, and the cultivation of the intellectual side of a man's life, is a sufficient program for the needs of immortal men. I refuse to allow my higher nature to be atrophied by any such program. Life is not life to me without religion, without a knowledge of God, and without that experience of fellowship with Him which is mine from day to day. The church, therefore, must labor to keep alive in men the sense of God. She must continue her work of making bad men good. As Herbert Spencer has said: 'There is no political alchemy by which you can get golden conduct out of leaden instincts.' The church's first duty is to make men better, is to change their hearts. The ideal social state can only be built up out of ideal men."

To Save Society

The second duty of the church is to save society. In former generations the individual was supreme, attention was concentrated on the individual, rather than society. The belief existed that the most effective way of saving society was by saving the individuals who composed it. "To save the individual whose worth was beyond all earthly computation—to educate him if ignorant, to uplift him if degraded, to civilize him if barbarous, to moralize him if sinful, to redeem him if lost—this has been the work of the church from the day when Jesus was first called Saviour down even to this present moment." But we are now coming to see that man the individual can only rightly be understood from the standpoint of his social relations, that we must save his environment as well as his soul. Hence, arises the duty of the saved men of adjusting his new life to his environment and his environment to his life. The doctrine for example, of the brotherhood of man which Jesus taught, is opposed to a false individualism. It emphasises the solidarity of the race, the fact that man is a social being, and hence that all that concerns my brother man should concern me as it concerns him. It teaches that I should feel his poverty as if it were my own; that I can never rest so long as my brother man suffers an industrial, an economic or a social wrong, any more than I could rest if I were suffering these wrongs myself; it teaches me to fight the injustice of child labor as if that child were my own, the tyranny which a woman working sixteen or eighteen hours a day for starvation wages as if that woman were my mother, or my sister, or my wife; it condemns the sinful extravagance of the rich, while the poor cry at their door for the necessaries of life, it condemns the selfishness which, in its lust for gold, crushes the helpless, fleeces the poor and exploits the labor of others. This principle of the brotherhood of man justifies the presence of the church as a spiritual institution in any department of life or of society. It justifies the presence of the church at political primaries to see that godly men are chosen to go to Parliament and make the laws under which men are to live; it justifies her efforts for the suppression of the liquor traffic as one of the greatest enemies of the moral progress and social well being of the race; it justifies her work, whether preventative, punative, or redemptive for the overthrow of the white slave traffic; it justifies her study of social and industrial problems at first hand and her best efforts for the bringing about of right and just social relations. The church must imbue the school, the municipality, the state, and all other organizations and relations within these, industry, economics, capital and labor with the Christian spirit. Only as she does this can we have the ideal social order and ideal and happy human relations.

Mrs. Plumptre, Recording Secretary, Addressed Conservation Committee.

Mrs. Plumptre, the recording secretary, addressed the Conservation Commission.

The annual meeting of the conservation commission, held in Ottawa last week, was attended by invitation by the recording secretary. Mrs. Plumptre, as representing the national council, took part in the program. Of her address, the Daily Press in Ottawa afterwards said:

"For the first time in its history, the commission of conservation was addressed by a woman, this morning. Mrs. Plumptre, recording secretary of the national council of women of Canada, and wife of Canon Plumptre of Toronto, was the speaker, and in an admirable address, outlined briefly and succinctly what is being done by the National Council to better living conditions throughout Canada.

In all, the council works through eighteen standing committees, the last formed of which was one on conservation. The National Council has a total membership of 150,000 women and the new committee desired to acquire and disseminate the principles that the commission of conservation stand for. She referred to the work that has been undertaken by the council to bettr immigration methods and to provide not only suitable houses, but suitable homes for those coming to Canada.

She pointed out the great need that exists in the smaller towns and villages for knowledge respecting town planning, housing, sanitation, etc., and promised the commission the full assistance of the council in spreading such information.

The co-operation of such important ladies as the National Council, and the Commission of Conservation, will doubtlessly mean much for the conservation movement in Canada.

SYMPATHY FOR THE BEREAVED

The Passing of Two Lives Referred to by Canon Davidson

The death of Maud Elizabeth Darcy was referred to in sympathetic terms by Rev. Canon Davidson at St. John's church on Sunday. The little girl he said, had been a regular attendant at Sunday school and had been in her class the previous Sunday. The congregation would extend deep sympathy to the bereaved parents. Canon Davidson also paid a high tribute to the late Thos. Stevenson, who met his death at Omemee last week. The late Mr. Stevenson, the preacher said, was a leader in the Anglican congregation at Omemee. He was a public spirited man and a splendid example of robust Christianity.

LONE WOMAN FIGHTS BURGLAR AND BRINGS ABOUT HIS CAPTURE

Pluck and Grit Displayed When Intruder Is Discovered.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick Fenton is prostrated in her home, corner of Bloor and Church streets, as a result of a terrifying encounter with a desperate burglar on Saturday night and the story of the plucky fight put up by her is the feature of conversation in police circles.

As a result of Mrs. Fenton's grit her assailant is now in the police cells, she having detained the desperado single-handed until the alarm had been spread and a posse of neighbors and pedestrians ultimately ran the culprit to earth after a break-neck chase over fences and through several yards.

Mrs. Fenton was quite ill and confined to her room yesterday. She has a badly discolored eye and several bruises about her head, the effect of the ruffian's heavy blows.

Jack Gowans, no home, a person who is well-known to the police, is the prisoner, and he is charged with an attempt at burglary, and owing to his peculiar appearance the police feel that they can connect him up with other recent occurrences.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Saturday evening Mrs. Fenton heard heavy footsteps in a room on the second floor of her home, and knowing that her husband was absent went to the room to investigate. She opened the door and found Gowans ransacking the drawers of a dresser. Mrs. Fenton demanded an explanation.

Gowans, seeing that the only avenue of escape from the room was blocked by Mrs. Fenton, who stood in her doorway, made an effort to brush Mrs. Fenton aside. When Gowans reached the doorway Mrs. Fenton seized him and shouted for assistance. Gowans tried to throw the plucky woman off, but she clung to him and finding that she would not release her hold he dealt her several heavy blows on the head.

The sound of the struggle in the hallway above brought children who were in the house. The children quickly realised what had happened, but before they had brought assistance from Bloor street Gowans had escaped into the back yard and had scaled a six-foot fence to Church street. He was seen racing down Church street by several pedestrians, who followed him. Gowans took to back yards on Charles street in an effort to escape. His pursuers, however, were equal to the occasion and caught him in a lane near the corner of Charles and Church streets. He was then handed over to Constable Lowery

PRESENTATION TO MRS. GREY

Y. W. C. A. Girls Are Sorry to Lose the General Secretary.

On the eve of her departure for New York, Mrs. Jean W. Gray, General Secretary of the Y.W.C.A., for the past two years, was presented with some very beautiful pieces of Crown Derby China, by the girls of the boarding home.

Mrs. Gray has endeared herself to the girls by her sweet and sympathetic manner, and in losing her, they feel they have lost a dear friend and wise counsellor.

Their best wishes will assuredly follow her to her new home.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY FEB. 16, 1914.

PUBLISH THE BY-LAWS.

IT WILL BE generally admitted that publicity is the best safeguard against private corruption. Light is good, darkness is only sought by people who have something to hide, a love of darkness is usually a sign of evil deeds and strategems. The publication of the Assessment Roll will only be objected to by people who have been shirking their fair share of the burdens of civic responsibility and upkeep. It will tend to disarm unjust criticism and slander, and it will place every citizen in an equal light for judgment.

The idea might well be extended to other departments of civic government. It has been suggested that the city by-laws should be printed for the benefit of those who take an interest in the proper government of the city. At present there are no handy copies of the city by-laws in existence, and anyone who wants to know just what the law is has to wade through musty manuscripts.

The Local Council of Women are interesting themselves in this subject and they find it difficult to take any intelligent action and to enforce the present law as in many cases they do not know the law. As an instance, there are certain things in connection with the conduct of the Market Hall, which need remedying. Many customers object to the men loitering and smoking around the stove and spitting about the floors. This is a grievance which ought to be attended to but there does not seem to be any law against it. These men, who are mostly farmers, ought to be provided with a waiting room, if necessary. Customers object to their butter being contaminated with tobacco fumes and their skirts soiled with the remains of chewed tobacco on the floor.

There must be by-laws in existence for dealing with cases of offering stale or bad food for sale, complaints have been made by customers who have had stale eggs palmed upon them without any means of redress. As a precaution a list of market by-laws should be printed and posted up in conspicuous places in the Market Hall so that both vendor and buyer may know what their rights are.

We are not suggesting that the newspapers should print these by-laws in their columns, this would be a prodigious task. A separate list of by-laws relating to each department of city life might be published. A beginning might be made with the Market Hall, and such new laws as may seem necessary might be added.

GOOD OLD DAYS OF LAURIER.

SPRING CLEANING is the order of the day. It is a little in advance of the season, but better early than too late. The passing of the divine dispensation of Liberalism in Canada has left much to be done in the way of cleaning up the rubbish under the counters, in the top attics and dark cellars. This causes a great deal of upset and the air is full of dust and odour of scandal and denunciation.

It is a healthy sign when the conscience of the nation is being awakened, we have been too easy with the "grafter" and too busy to notice him. Busyness is often bad business, we have to learn this lesson on this continent yet. We boast of the amount of work we can get through, the Yankee colloquialisms such as "hustle" and "going some," are not the best of mottos for the building up of a nation that is going to endure the vicissitudes of time.

The hustle and bustle of American political life is the light-fingerer's opportunity, the pickpocket always works in crowds where people are pre-occupied with the things that are going on at the fair. We are in a hurry for fear we should miss something, and the result is we miss nearly everything. When we have time to reflect, as we have been doing during this recent slack season, we discover that we have missed a good deal. When we thought we were getting rich quick we were making other people rich, and we were living beyond our income.

The disclosures of the N.T.R. Commission is only one case in point which illustrates the extravagant and wreckless rate at which we have been living under the Laurier regime. The Laurier Government had many friends and followers, who now speak of "the good old days of the Laurier administration." We understand them now. A spendthrift who comes into a fortune has a host of sponging friends who fatten on his prodigality.

Here is a concrete example of what was possible under the Laurier stewardship:—Eleven contractors were given work on the new railroad, and these eleven men divided this work among 100 sub-contractors, who did the work at a considerably lower rate, and made a good profit. After all was paid the eleven first contractors scooped $8,000,000 for their share in this work. What was their share in the work? practically nil. The Globe argues that these eleven men were "responsible" for the carrying out of the work; but what did this responsibility amount to? Most contractors have a habit of going bankrupt in case of failure, and if those sub-contractors had failed to carry out the work the only party that would have suffered would have been the Government. Seeing that the real responsibile party is the Government, the Government and not the sleeping contractor should have the benefit of any balance in the legitimate cost of railroad construction. Here was an instance where eight million dollars might have been saved for the country under an efficient administration. The mildest thing that can be said about this business is that it was CRASS INCOMPETENCE.

The Mail and Empire says:—The $8,800,000 in excess of that remuneration ought to have been saved for the people of Canada and not handed over to the lucky main contractors. It seems that one firm was so fortunate as to receive $740,000 "for doing nothing." Improper classification is held accountable for another excess of expenditure which, according to the commissioners, amounts to $3,300,000. In one case ploughable clay was, it seems, classified as loose rock, the result being a loss to the country of $750,000. In the cases of three sections whose cost was estimated at $20,000,000 the investigating commissioners find that the contracts were not let to those making the lowest tender, and in regard to at least two or three cases they believe that advance information as to estimated quantities was made use of by the successful tenderers. It appears to have been the ule to follow the most expensive methods, even where, in the judgment of the investigating commissioners, much better results could have been obtained by cheaper methods. They find that "those having charge of the construction of the railway did not consider it desirable or necessary to practice or encourage economy," and that "the Government at no time suggested to the commission to be careful in its expenditures, although the Opposition was continually pointing out that the road was being extravagantly built."

The disclosures of the commission, despite all the excuses of Liberal journals, reveal a disgraceful waste of money at a time when we need every penny of capital that we can get. There is no need of looking further afield for causes of hard times, the cause is here. Such waste would sink most young countries and it yet remains to be seen how we are going to stand against it. Forty or fifty millions in our national treasury at this moment would tide us over any difficulty, but as it is we are suffering from the effects of the most incompetent government that ever had the confidence of the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

FORTY MILLION on useless railways is all right, 35 million on efficient naval defence is all wrong—this is Liberal philosophy!

THERE ARE RUMORS from Ottawa of dissention in the Liberal camp, and it is said that free food nearly resulted in a free fight in the Liberal caucus last week.

THE DAILY ONTARIO calls attention to an incident which occurred in a St. Catharines playhouse described as follows:—

John Griffin, the Toronto man who runs a long string of theatres, came over here the other day and last night dropped into his own vaudeville house. A pair of vaudevillians, a man and woman, as a climax did a rather vulgar turn. Mr. Griffin went behind the scenes.

"Say," he said to the man, "you've got to can that climax."

"Why?" queried the entertainer. "Because it's not decent, and I won't stand for it, that's all," said Mr. Griffin.

The man wouldn't cut out the climax so Mr. Griffin discharged him. Forthwith he wrote out a list of instructions for all his houses, which expressly stated that certain words must not be used on any of his stages; neither must there be anything suggestive said or acted, any manager being given permission to immediately discharge any actor who is guilty of such a thing.

There has been a good deal of complaint against vulgarity and indecency on the stage here and in other places, and it has been very often remarked that the vaudeville should be censored as well as the moving-picture.

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

Sour Grapes.

Kingston British Whig.

The Toronto Star raises an important question. Granted that the Minister of Militia's jaunt, with his selected colonels, to England last year cost only $24,262. What benefit did Canada get from it? Was it a prize outing for personal pleasure, and personal pleasure only?

Exhibit K.

From the London Chronicle.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling, who was 48 recently, is probably the only living man of letters who has been "done" as one of the sights of London. Soon after his first settlement here he was visited by a hustling American and his two sons. Bursting in, the visitor asked briskly: "You are Rudyard Kipling?" On being answered, he turned to his sons with, "Boys, this is Rudyard Kipling." "And this is where you write?" "Boys, this is where he writes." "And before I could so much as ask his name," says Mr. Kipling, "they were gone."

Cancer in the Clay.

Exchange.

John J. Cahill's first and only experience with a clay pipe resulted in his death from cancer yesterday. Ten years ago Cahill, accustomed to a briar pipe, tried a clay one at the urging of a friend. With the stem between his teeth he was grasping the bowl with his hand, when a noise startled him and he suddenly jerked the pipe from his mouth. He had not moistened the stem as is customary and a piece of flesh from the upper lip was torn off. No attention was paid to the incident until months later, when the sore, which had refused to heal, became extremely painful. Despite efforts of physicians, cancer developed, causing death.

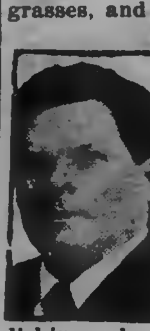
The White Future.

British Weekly.

"Though deep the mire, wring not your hands and weep;
I lend my arm to all who say, 'I can.'
No shamefaced outcast ever sank so deep
But yet might rise and be again a man.
Dost thou behold thy lost youth all aghast?
Dost reel from righteous retribution's blow?
Then turn from blotted archives of the past,
And find the future's pages white as snow."

FISHING

By Walt Mason



The winter wanes and soon the rains of Spring will start the grasses, and trees will bud and streams in flood will thunder down the passes. Oh, Spring, sweet Spring, you dear old thing, for which all men are wishing, when we can drill o'er vale and hill, to spend the long day fishing! Spring comes apace and soon the face of earth will smile and chuckle, and dames will say to husbands gay, "To work get down and buckle!" We greet with roars the grist of chores, with pshawing and with pishing! We take a pole to some deep hole and spend the long day fishing! Spring is the time when people climb from age clear back to childhood, when each heart burns and throbs and yearns for open air and wildwood. Spring is the joy without alloy, the best the gods are dishing, when we can sneak down to the creek and spend the long day fishing!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

PUBLIC BUILDING SITE

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—As you will see by the letter and report submitted by me to the city council, re new public building site, the lot chosen by the expert, is the northeast corner of Sherbrooke and George Streets. I may say that to my surprise the expert considers this the only good site of the large number available. That point must be borne carefully in mind in criticising. Whatever criticism is to be offered, should be handed out to the city council, which with the Mayor, can alone speak officially for the public. What that body decides upon will be adopted by me in consenting or otherwise. The expert would not discuss any other site offered, and as I have said is prepared to give this his hearty recommendation.

DIED AS HE SAT IN CHAIR

W. R. Dempsey Passed Suddenly at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 16.—W. R. Dempsey, ex-M.P.P. for Prince Edward County, died suddenly Friday night while sitting in a chair. Heart failure was the cause of death. Mr. Dempsey, who was eighty-two years of age, was born in Ameliasburg Township, where he resided all his life. He had been a councillor, reeve of the township and warden of the county. In 1898 he was elected member of the Legislature for the county in the Conservative interest, and filled that position most acceptably to his party. He was a veteran of the Fenian raid.

Mr. Dempsey was a member of the Methodist Church. An aged widow and family survive him.

Beck Will Stay.

OTTAWA, Feb. 14.—Hon. Adam Beck was in Ottawa yesterday. He saw the Premier and other leading Parliamentarians. There was nothing significant about his visit he said. It was merely a friendly call, and definitely denied that he had any intention of giving up the Hydro-Electric work in Ontario.

BRITISH LEGATION ARMS.

Threats Made That It Will Be Centre of Attack In Mexico.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The despatch of a small legation guard of marines and machine guns from a British cruiser at Vera Cruz to the legation in Mexico City, was ordered only after the State Department had been advised of the plan through the American embassy in London.

Threats that the British legation would be made a particular object of attack in the event of a public uprising led to the precautionary measure and it was intimated at the State Department yesterday that Mexican authorities were not only willing but anxious that other diplomatic representatives in Mexico take similar measures.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr Wm. J. McCrann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children; scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

Mabel's Chitchat

The Long Drawnout Goodbye at the Station

Dear Elsa—The goodbys of women are funny things, aren't they? I went to the station recently to see Dick off on a trip, and there were two girls at the train making perfect spectacles of themselves and almost holding up the express with a lot of senseless "don't forget" conversation.

For such a little word, "goodby" sometimes takes a long time to say.

These girls could not make up their minds to part even after the conductor's "All aboard!" rang warningly in their ears. They had said all there was to say, but the girl on the platform still kept adjuring her friend at the car window to write, and the latter shrieked her promises as long as the flutter of her handkerchief could be seen.

How much better it is to accept the fact of the traveler's departure, say your goodby and leave the station before the train is actually in motion!

Then there is the woman visitor who insists upon lingering in the hall at the door and halfway down the front steps (letting in the winter winds or the summer mosquitoes) to prolong her conversation and to say what she might have said and probably did say two and a half hours before.

No, dear; there's nothing like saying goodby and meaning it and acting upon the meaning. I know only one woman who does it. Not myself, oh, no! I'm not half so emancipated, more's the pity.

I must tell you, Elsa, an amusing story about a friend of mine, a young matron, who has an Irish laundress, a good and capable sort of person. Mary's spouse is also from the "ould country," but neither good natured nor capable, and he is too fond of looking upon the beer, if nothing stronger, when it's foamy. Likewise when he has satisfied his thirst, from an outsider's viewpoint, he is ready to work off some of the nastiness of his disposition. After the last few "celebrations" Mary arrived for the day's washing at the apartment of my friend with a badly swollen eye. Upon being told the cause of the injury the young housekeeper indignantly exclaimed: "Why, Mary, it's an outrage! Why do you stand it? You can earn your own living. In fact, you work for the whole family."

Mary pinned up her apron preparatory for the tubs and casually replied, "Oh, sure he don't mean no harm at all, at all! Men is queer. If it isn't one thing that is the matter with them it's another." The young matron raged inwardly and the subject was dropped.

Now the husband of my friend has a position which requires working at home. A few minutes after the conversation with Mary and her mistress the young husband called out to his wife: "Edith, dear, would you mind bringing me a glass of water? I can't get up without upsetting all my work."

"All right, just a minute," called back his wife and turned to get a glass. Then she beheld Mary, eyes flashing fire and arms akimbo. "The idea! That big man expecting a little woman like you to wait on him! He ought to be ashamed! I wouldn't stand for it!"

The young wife ran into her husband's study, where she sank on the couch and laughed hysterically.

"What is so laughable?" very naturally demanded the astonished man, and when she could speak his wife answered, "Her point of view."

Now for a little fashion gossip. Have you a sautoire? I know that you possess such a modish accessory, but you are probably still calling it a lorgnette chain. Be up to date and speak of your new ribbon, which is a quarter inch wide band of black grosgrain ribbon a yard long, as your "sautoire."

The smart sautoire is fitted with slides in brilliants or pearls, and I have a charming one with butterfly slides done in enamel. I gave mother a sautoire with slides in cut jet for a birthday present. I think it is most appropriate for an elderly woman.

But the very latest wrinkle in neck adornment is the silk cord of yard length and of a vivid shade of green or blue or red, supposed by the initiated to match the wearer's hosiery. In some cases it may. At all events it gives a dashing touch of color to the costume and also serves to display one of the new pear shaped pendants which come in pearl, amber, jet or brilliants, whichever one can afford.

Mme. Poiret, wife of the famous Parisian dressmaker, wore these cords with her gowns while in this country recently with her aristocratic husband.

Well, it's time to show up at a club meeting, so fare thee well until the next budget of news reaches you from yours devotedly, MABEL.

NEW ZEALAND BUYS MORE.

Canada's Trade Commissioner There Reports Increased Imports.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—During the past year, writes the Canadian trade commissioner in New Zealand, there has been a substantial increase in New Zealand's imports from Canada. In 1912 the total was $1,969,050, which increased to $2,262,595 in 1913. The Niagara, which is on her way from Auckland to Vancouver, is bringing 20,026 boxes of butter, 1,371 quarters of beef, 877 carcasses of veal, 1,000 carcases of lamb, 1,000 carcases of mutton, and 200 boxes of gum.

If the demand for beef and butter is maintained, says Mr. Beddoe, it will exceed the supply.

The demand for these commodities is very heavy. In the month of December last, no live cattle were imported by Great Britain from either Canada or the United States. The supplies imported from Canada last year were 74 per cent. less than in 1912.

Canada's shipment of cheese to Great Britain in 1913 decreased to 73,769 cwt. from 84,978 cwt. in 1912. Canada sent no eggs or butter.

PROFESSOR'S BEQUEST.

Dr. Doerfler of Vienna Gives Eye, Heart and Brain to Science.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—Prof. Doerfler of Vienna has bequeathed one of his eyes, his heart and brain to the Phyletic Museum at Jena as a contribution to the foundation which will be established to-day on the occasion of the eightieth birthday of Prof. Ernst Haeckel. Prof. Doerfler, who edits a magazine devoted to Haeckel's theories, writes that he is so poor that he cannot give anything except his corpse to the museum founded by Haeckel, "and not even all of that," adds Prof. Doerfler, "as my native town has secured my promise to let it preserve my ashes in a memorial urn, but there's nothing preventing the transfer of one eye, my heart and my brain to the museum, which urgently requires anatomical exhibits for the purpose of establishing the truth of your great principles."

Official Kills Himself.

BUFFALO, Feb. 16.—John J. Kennedy, state treasurer, committed suicide shortly after noon yesterday at the Markeen Hotel, where he had lived with his family for about a year. He was found in a small lavatory off the hotel ballroom, with his throat cut and an open razor lying on the floor beside him. Hi jugular vein had been severed and death occurred before a doctor arrived.

A flash of temporary insanity induced by worry over his impeding appearance before a New York grand jury, where District Attorney C. S. Whitman has been conducting a John Doe graft inquiry, is said to be the cause.

ARCHBISHOP IS DEFIED

Bishop of Zanzibar Charges Prejudice on Part of Primate

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Bishop of Zanzibar has given new seriousness to the Kikuyu (East African) religious controversy by addressing a remarkable letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, in which he criticizes the archbishop's reference of the matter to the Committee of Bishops at Lambeth.

Bishop Weston argues that the archbishop's use of the phrase "branches of the Church of Christ," as applied to the non-conformist bodies, indicates that the primate has prejudged the case. He declares that the archbishop, consulting the Lambeth committee will be taking the advice of those representing bishops and synods who have already compromised themselves on the question. He asserts that the archbishop's questions have been framed so as to tend to indicate the direction from which an answer will be expected.

The Bishop of Zanzibar concludes that unless the Bishops of Mombosa and Uganda are found not to be at fault he will still have to determine whether he can remain in communion with them, asserting: "As the spiritual father of my Africans I am bound to protect them from what falls little short of religious persecution." Bishop Weston says that under the present circumstances his own position is intolerable, and hope for a united church in Africa is rendered vain.

BLACK HUNDRED ROUSED.

Another Orgy of Jew-Baiting Is Imminent In Russia.

KIEV, Feb. 16.—The murder of the boy at Fastoff, which it is alleged was committed for ritualistic purposes, is assuming the dimension of the Beiliss case. As in the earlier tragedy, stories of mysterious characters have been introduced, such as "a red-headed man" and "a lamplighter," both of whom have disappeared. The Black Hundred and the Union of Russian People are showing their old-time anti-Semite activity.

The Minister of Justice and other judicial officials have arrived at Kiev and are sifting the evidence. On their arrival they were acclaimed by deputations from the Union of Russian People and the Two-Headed Eagle organization.

The leaders of the Black Hundred, after first asserting that the victim was a Christian, subsequently declared that he was a Jew, and that he had been murdered by Jews in connection with the Beiliss case for the purpose of disproving the allegations that in the so-called ritual murders Christians were invariably selected.

CROSSED BEHRING STRAITS.

And Charles Brouard Is Planning Second Arctic Trip.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16. — Claiming to be the only white man who has crossed the Behring Straits, between Asia and America, on foot, Charles Brouard, of Southsea, England, is in Montreal arranging for an 18-months' exploration trip in Ungava.

The hazardous trips across the straights, he says, took him two days, on Nov. 26 and 27, 1899. He was accompanied by two Eskimos and a dog team of five.

This trip was attempted by Harry De Windt, the globe trotter, who was compelled to remain on the Siberian coast and was rescued.

The distance across the straits is 38 nautical miles, and the temperature at the time of Mr. Brouard's trip was 35 below zero.

Coulthurst Is Remanded.

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., Feb. 16.—Edwin Coulthurst, the deputy returning officer, who was arrested in connection with the vote on the Scott Act in Welland County, was again remanded yesterday, when the case was called. The lawyers on both sides agreed that it was advisable to wait for the result of the recount. The case comes up again on Thursday.

FRENCH LINER IS IN TROUBLE

Steamer Niagara Is Forced To Put Back When Disabled In Storm.

LONDON, Feb. 16. — The French Line steamship Niagara, from Havre to New York, is in distress about 135 miles off Ushant, the westernmost of the islands off the coast of Brittany, according to a Havre despatch to Lloyds reporting the receipt of a wireless message from the steamship.

The wireless says the Niagara has lost her starboard propeller and one blade from the propellor on the port side. Much anxiety is felt for the safety of the liner and a steamer has gone to her assistance.

Returning to Port.

HAVRE, Feb. 16—The French liner, which is returning to port disabled, has on board 147 passengers, of whom 46 are in the first cabin. The steamer Bordeaux has been sent to the Niagara.

It is believed the captain of the Niagara found it impossible with his broken propellors to make headway against the high seas. The Niagara sailed from Havre on Feb. 7 for New York with 147 passengers.

Esmeraldas Bombarded In Vain.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, Feb. 16.—Notwithstanding the bombardment by Federal gunboats and heavy artillery of Esmeraldas, the capital of the province of the same name, the city still remains in the hands of the rebels. Government forces have been landed to the north and to the south of the city, with the intention of again surrounding the insurgents. It is believed that a decisive battle will occur next week.

OPPORTUNITY PERIOD IN THE BIG REVIEW CONTEST STARTS TO-DAY

Here is Your Opportunity, Candidates The Largest Amount of Votes During the Remainder of the Contest Now is the Time for New Entries

In a blaze of glory the biggest and best vote offer known as "Booster Period" in the Review Prize Contest, ended Saturday night at 8 o'clock and the second largest vote offer, known as "Opportunity Period" starts today.

"Opportunity Period" starts today and will end Saturday February 28, at 8 o'clock, and is put on for the purpose of introducing new entries. It also affords an excellent opportunity for those who are already in the race, but were unable to get as early a start in "Booster Period" as they should. The late start has seriously hampered some of the candidates, and it was at their request that this vote proposition was put on.

A Million Votes Easy

While "Opportunity Period" is not as good as "Booster Period," candidates should make the best of the offer. It is still possible for a new candidate to enter and carry off one of the large prizes, if he or she takes advantage of this offer. Stop, take out your pencil, and do a little figuring and see what you can do on this offer in the way of getting a good reserve vote. First, you should go over the list of your friends and nearest relatives. After this is done an effort should be made to procure the subscription of those who have not as yet given a subscription to The Review. Show them what it means to you to secure their subscriptions. The Review is well liked by all in this part of Ontario. It is possible that one single subscription may mean the winning of an automobile for you.

Vote Schedule to Feb. 28.

Total number of votes including regular and extra votes:

Six months	22,500
One year	45,000
Two years	120,000

This is absolutely the largest number that ever will be given on subscriptions during the remainder of the campaign.

Don't Hesitate

If candidates show these figures to their friends they will rally to their support with a two years' subscription instead of a six months'. The friends of all candidates take some paper, why not The Review? Whatever paper they take they must pay for some time, and by taking it during this campaign for a certain period they will not be bothered about paying the collector each month, and when they help some hard working candidate with a subscription, they may be responsible for that candidate winning the first and greatest victory in their life. It is not the value of the prizes that a great many candidates are working for, it is the honor and the distinction of being the only one in this part of Ontario who has friends and energy to win first prize in this great proposition.

No Offer Like Opportunity Period

This offer will not be extended. It will not be repeated. This is positively the last chance to get as many votes for a subscription. The result of the Contest Department depends upon the efforts of candidates during "Opportunity Period." Candidates during "Booster Pedlod" cannot afford to pass up this offer. If they do they may find when the votes are counted that they will win one of the smaller prizes instead of a fine automobile as they now anticipate. A great many of the very best candidates are just getting started. The next few weeks will show who are the real workers. It will show who has the nerve and courage to stick in the race to the end.

Don't Listen to Knockers

Don't listen to the fellow that comes up to you and tells you that so and so has several million votes. Don't pay any attention to the many stories that are brought to you, if you expect to win the Grand Prize. In a proposition of this kind there are always people that like to discourage the person that is trying to earn a little honest fame and fortune. Why do these people do it? Look at it in a business way for a moment. Is it because they feel that you are not able to look after yourself and need their assistance. Is it from experience that they speak? Have they ever taken such an interest in you before. And a thousand other questions could be asked, but the fair-minded candidate that looks about will find that the very one that has been giving him advice generally has somewhere about him an axe to grind. It is not because you are so and so that they are so much interested in your welfare. It is because you are going to hurt them or their friends, and, as a general rule, the class of people that are always telling you what to do in a proposition of this kind, are not noted for their enthusiasm or for being public spirited. Look on the bright side of life and go out the beginning of this week with a determination and make up your mind that you are going to win, no matter who says you can not, and you will find that success will crown your efforts. It is the things that look impossible that stir the true Canadian blood. If winning the Grand Prize was an easy matter, we would not have such a high class list of candidates. It is for this very fact that so many are looking on with jealous eyes and are trying to discourage the strongest candidates. Make up your mind you will win and you will. It is better to fail trying than not to try.

BRITISH RIFLEMEN APPROVE THE STAND TAKEN BY COL. HUGHES

Stormy Meeting of Marksmen is Held in London, When Present Crisis in Bisley Affairs is Discussed and War Office is Condemned For Recent Action and Postponement of Operation of Rules Urged.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Members of the National Rifle Association mustered in great force for the general winter meeting, held Saturday.

Primarily the meeting was called together to adopt the past year's report and to elect new members to the council board. A great deal of discussion, however, took place later upon the new rules of the army council, several of those present expressing their feelings towards the War Office and the proposed regulations in no vague terms. Even Lord Cheylesmere, the chairman, wasn't spared a certain amount of criticism. One member openly accused him of having done his best for some time past to bring about the present crash.

Major Pixley, Major Fletcher, Mr. Tippins and a number of others hoped it would go from that meeting to Col. Hughes that the N. R. A. hadn't created the present difficulty in reference to the Ross rifle, but that it was entirely the work of "a jumping Jinnie showman" at the War Office. They commended Col Hughes for the bold attitude he had taken.

Lord Cheylesmere read a letter he had received from King George expressing the hope that Canadians wouldn't be prevented from attending Bisley. Thereupon a member jumped to his feet.

"Have you, sir," he asked, "explained the real position of things to his Majesty?"

"No," said Lord Cheylesmere, a reply that was received with a chorus of disapproval.

Lord Cheylesmere went on to give a brief account of the serious situation, and said that the N. R. A. had received in April an ultimatum from the War Office.

They appointed a committee to go into relations between the N. R. A. and the War Office.

Two members of the N. R. A., including Lord Cheylesmere, attended the meeting, at the army council's request, and though he did his best to put the position of the association before them, he could see that they would ultimately be left with Hobson's choice.

The War Office practically issued an ultimatum that unless they conformed with their suggestions about the King's Prize and other territorial competitions, they should not give them any assitance in the shape of camp equipment, ammunition, etc.

The council was put into a difficult position, indeed.

After serious consideration they decided there were only two courses open to them, one being absolutely to refuse the conditions of the War Office. The council, however, unanimously came to the opinion that without the assistance of the War Office at Bisley it would be perfectly impossible for them to keep up the reputation of the association. The second course was that they should accept these conditions and get the best concessions they possibly could from the War Office, and he (Lord Cheylesmere) could not help thinking they would agree that the council could not take any other course.

The following motion carried unanimously: "That this meeting hopes that means can be found whereby the War Office conditions, as now understood, do not take effect until the Bisley meeting of 1915, in order that their effect on a number of competitors from our overseas dominions may be fully realised."

MAN DIES AND WHERE IS HE ? NO HOPE FOR THE WICKED

Evangelist Compton Speaks on the State of the Soul After Death—Two Places in the Under-world—Going Down and Going up

"Revivals are not passed," said Rev. E. E. Johnson, last evening: "they may be in the minds of some men, but not in the mind of God. God still desires to visit His people in spiritual awakening."

Bethany Tabernacle has had one week of revival services under the direction of Rev. L. B. Compton, the "Mountaineer Evangelist," and last evening Mr. Compton spoke on the subject: "The State of the Soul After Death."

The Tabernacle was well filled and many strangers were doubtless attracted by the announcement of what is perhaps a novel subject in the pulpits of these days. There are still a great many people who are curious if not anxious, about what awaits them on departing this life.

Mr. Compton had nothing new to say upon the subject; he had no new revelation; he had not visited the higher or the lower regions and brought back startling news or new light upon the mystery of death. But he nevertheless made the old news new and interesting for many who gathered to hear him. He drew his message, his illustrations and proofs wholly from scripture. He read for a lesson the story of King Saul's visit to the witch of Endor, and took for his text a passage from the Book of Job 14:10; "But man dieth and wasteth away, yea man giveth up the ghost and where is he?"

The evangelist said that we did not need the Bible to prove that men died and wasted away, that was a common fact of every day. Men were dying all about us—but where were they? Volumes had been written upon this question. Great philosophers had lived and died in perplexity about it. He said he had been taught by his old Baptist pastor from his youth that there was a consciousness after this life in which men were either in peace or pain. He said there should be no doubt in the pulpit on the life after death, the Word of God was very definite in its answer to that question.

He went on to define the difference between the words "grave" and "Sheol" and showed that the latter referred to a place or compartment where the dead waited in the heart of the earth. He said that we never read of an Old Testament saint "going up" but always "down." He gave a vivid description of the witch of Endor calling up the spirit of Samuel, and referred to Jacob's words: "I shall go down unto my son mourning." Christ had descended into Sheol and had been in the heart of the earth three days. There were two places, as shown in the parable of Dives and Lazarus, and it was possible for the souls in both places to have communication one with one another. But that was the old dispensation; since Jesus rose from the dead we never read of a saint "going down," they all go up. "He ascended up on high and led captivity captive." He delivered all the saints from Sheol. Paul spoke of being "caught up. When Stephen was being stoned he "looked up."

Mr. Compton is emphatic in his belief as to the state of the unredeemed sinner after death. He said that there was not one passage of Scripture which gave a sinner hope once he passes the bounds of the present life.

THE SIXTH ARTICLE OF THE APOSTLES' CREED

At the evening service in Charlotte Street Methodist Church yesterday, Rev. T. J. Mansell preached on the Sixth Article of the Apostles' Creed, omitting the fifth, which he would discuss at a near and more fitting occasion. At first he dealt with objections. Some considered the ressurection and ascension as a myth, that is, having a basis in truth, but enlarged in the writing or telling of it until the story was in many respects improbable. Others tried to show that the Christ of the Gospels was not the same as the actual Christ that lived.

Turning to the Bible, the speaker said that truth cannot be slain, and hence he welcomed criticism when it established the truth and when it failed truth received only greater emphasis. He then considered the references from the prophets, the 68th Psalm, and in the New Testament. St. Mark and St. Luke simply stated the fact. They wrote down not details to prove, but a simple statement of what they knew to be true.

The Old Testament gave in the life of Joseph in Egypt, a type of Christ. Joseph sitting on the king's right hand and ruling Egypt signifies strength, honor and blessed felicity which Christ possessed in his relation to God. Obedience was due Christ, but in this particular a denomination should carefully guard against an assumption of power that would lead to ecclesiastical tyranny. The Salvation Army might be subject to this danger and Protestantism was a result of such tyranny. Christ gave every man his rights and under Him people are assured of protection.

In conclusion, the speaker said that growing out of this article was our hope of immortality. Secondly, the exhaltation of the affections came from a belief in it, and lastly, the missionary movement from the command to preach the gospel to every creature.

Miss Richardson sang at the morning service. The announcements were as usual.

THE SAILORS ON THE GREAT LAKES

Rev. H. B. Horne Speaks at Two Churches.

St. Paul's congregation were afforded a very interesting discourse yesterday morning, when the pulpit was occupied by the Rev. H. B. Horne, B.A., L.L.B., of Toronto, and the Upper Canada Tract Association. Mr. Horne delivered a very appropriate sermon. During the course of the sermon the speaker referred to the Great Lakes' disaster, of last fall. Mr. Horne, having had considerable experience amongst the sailors of the Great Lakes, was able to vividly describe some of the great dangers they had to contend with. At the time of the disaster he was in Port Arthur. A few days before the sad affair, several sailors from the new home for the sailors were taken from this institution to sail on the lakes, and they were among those men who lost their lives.

Rev. Mr. Horne occupied the pulpit of the George Street Methodist Church in the evening.

DELIVER COAL ON THE SABBATH

Toronto's Mayor Waives the Lord's Day Act.

FUEL FOR THE NEEDY.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Mayor Hocken yesterday allowed the Elias Rogers Coal Co. to deliver nearly 300 tons of furnace coal to householders whose supply had become exhausted by the extreme zero weather.

Last week's spell of frigidity kept the people heaving the black nuggets into the hungry maw of the cast-iron monster in such quantities that Saturday night found hundreds of citizens without enough in the cellar to last over Sunday. Accordingly, Alfred Rogers was besieged by so many appeals for tons and half-tons that he was forced to invoke the mayor's aid to relieve the situation. The permission being forthcoming, men and wagons worked from 10 a.m. until 4 in the afternoon and delivered supplies to more than 200 residences, receiving double pay for their time.

Mayor Hocken said last night that the permission had been granted on the strict understanding that the privilege was only to be used in cases of actual necessity or where suffering was likely to ensue.

SENT TO PRISON WHILE IN THE THROES OF FEVER

Action of Authorities is Condemned by Jury.

PRISONER DIED.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—Sentenced to Central Prison and incarcerated therein while suffering from typhoid fever, Victor Pointon of Niagara Falls, Ont., died in the institution on Friday, and at an inquest held by Coroner Lynd Saturday night, the jury condemned the action of the crown authorities in not having placed the man in a hospital.

Pointon was brought to Toronto on Jan. 27, apparently then afflicted with the fever.

The jury's verdict directed the crown attorney to draw the Attorney-General's attention to the matter, deeming that a hospital would have been the proper place to send the man.

That everything possible was done for the man by the authorities at the Central Prison was brought out in the evidence, as soon as he was handed over to the prison authorities and it was seen that he was not in good health.

Dr. William Algie examined him, and diagnosed his case as typhoid fever. Pointon was in a bad condition, apparently, as his temperature was 105. He was at once sent to the prison hospital and received every attention possible.

AFTERMATH OF GAME BETWEEN ORILLIA AND THE LOCALS

Sporting Editor, The Review.

Sir,—Owing to a report that is being circulated and gaining some ground that Mr. Janes received seven hundred dollars as a bribe to lose the game of Friday night to Orillia, I wish as a citizen of Orillia, who has been on business to some extent, for the last three months in Peterboro to defend Mr. Janes, who played a star game in the nets for Peterboro, and deserves only the highest praise from every citizen of Peterboro. Now if the parties that are circulating such unreasonable reports, would just place themselves in the nets for one game, they will see that it is not all gold that glitters. Now while Orillia accepts with pleasure any laurels that they win from the O.H.A., or other sporting organizations, it is willing to congratulate any others in their success. But Orillia does no buying or selling, it stands for clean sport, every time. Now Orillia can do nothing but praise in the highest terms the treatment that they got at Peterboro. While Peterboro played a strenuous game to defend their rights, they were exceptionally clean and manly, and Orillia can do nothing else but be thankful for the impartial write-up of the Peterboro dailies of Saturday. As a citizen of Orillia, and a lover of clean sport, would say to the Peterboro boys, always play the game, but do not win any game before it is played, and do not allow smoking during the game, especially on the ladies side of the rink, for everything should be done to encourage the best of our citizens to support the honest sports of our young men. Too often the sport rises no higher than the support it gets.

Thanking you, I remain,
Yours, etc.,
W. H. MERRILL.

PUCKERINGS FROM PUCK

After considerable hesitation the "Midnight Sons" have accepted the challenge of the "Never Do Wells," and the game will be staged some time this week. Owing to the former team introducing a few ringers, the Never Do Wells have altered their line-up considerably, resulting in a few old-timers coming back to the limelight in order to erase the would-be hockey aspirants from the scene. Any one capable of wearing a substantial armour may qualify for the position of referee for the fracas, which is a benefit game for injured ones after the first half.

BASKETBALL

The P.C.I. girls' basketball team displayed their ability to come back strong when they took the young ladies of the Lindsay Collegiate into camp, at the Y.M.C.A. on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 40-22, after being defeated in Lindsay a week previously.

At 2 o'clock the fair gladiators lined up under the leadership of Captains Helen Metheral of the P.C.I., and Bessie Halpin, of Lindsay. Miss Jean Harstone refereed, while Misses G. Reazin, I. Ryler, A. Peever and K. Moore, acted as linesmen or rather linesladies. Miss G. Brownscombe officiated with the watch.

Both teams played fast basketball but the locals gradually forged ahead. The Lindsay girls fought hard to attain the offensive, but the speed of the winners' forward forced them to play defensively.

The game was very fast and was marked by a very small number of delays.

Although it would hardly be fair to select the stars, as all the players worked hard, the forwards and wings of the locals should be mentioned in particular. The ability of Miss Phyllis Cumberland to drop the ball into the covetted ring, drew great applause from the many spectators. The line-up:

P.C.I.—Forwards, P. Cumberland, G. Rountree; centre, Captain H. Metheral; defence, P. Young, Ailleen Wade, J. Rollins and A. Halpin.

L.C.I.—Forwards, M. Anderson, J. McCulloch; centre, E. Sutcliffe; defence, M. Ward, E. Sproule, L. Balfour and Captain B. Hopkins.

Miss Jean Harstone, under whose coaching the local girls developed so rapidly, deserves credit for her work which had such good results.

C.P.R. To Rejoin Pool?

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Vossiche Zeitung understands that a conference of all companies which formerly constituted the Atlantic pool will be held in London at the end of the present month, for the purpose of renewing the pool. The paper says "the Canadian Pacific will also rejoin it."

Tube System for Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—Over $12,000,000 will be required for tackling Montreal's transportation problem, if the city engineer's department has its way. The report, presented to the Board of Control Saturday, does not express any opinion upon the demand of the Tramways Company for a new 40-year franchise.

The immediate construction is recommended of two subways, one under St. James and the other under St. Catharine street, providing for quick east and west transit along the two busiest streets.

Potomac Well Provisioned.

BONNE BAY, Nfld., Feb. 16.—Officers of the United States naval tug Potomac, icebound off here, said yesterday that they had on board 20 tons of coal and food enough for fifteen days. Additional supplies were taken over the ice to the Potomac Saturday.

Mariners familiar with ice movements in the Gulf of St. Lawrence believe it will be necessary to abandon the tug, as the ice is rough and heavy, and the chances of saving the vessel are considered uncertain.

MR. LAWRENCE IRVING'S TRIUMPH IN MONTREAL

House Thrilled by Magnificent Performance of "The Unwritten Law."

House Thrilled by Magnificent Performance of "The Unwritten Law"

On Monday night, Mr. Laurence Irving opened his all-Canadian tour at His Majesty's Theatre, Montreal, with a performance of "The Unwritten Law," which socially and artistically must be ranked as among the greatest events that have occurred for many years. It was a veritable triumph. The house was packed to suffocation and included some of the most distinguished and brilliant people in the Dominion. At the fall of each curtain the vast audience seemed to take a deep breath and then when the full significance of what they had seen dawned upon them, they burst forth into prolonged applause. When the curtain descended upon the last act, the whole house rose to its feet and for almost a quarter of an hour, continued cheering.

Speaking in the Montreal Star, Mr. Morgan Powell says: "Mr. Irving presented a study which held his audience in its grip, and which, in its strength, its virility, and its intellectual intensity, must be ranked as among the really great creations of the modern stage. . . . I know of no such terrible scene in modern drama as that in which Bezak, the examining judge, reconstructs the crime before Raskolnikoff's eyes. It is compelling tragedy. It fascinates, it enthralls, it appals. It is hypnotic in its gripping power, in its sheer terror, its tremendous psychological significance. . . . He literally sculptures upon the flesh the emotions of the mind, the sufferings of the spirit, the agony of the soul in torment. And he does it all with subtlety, with intensity, with restraint."

The Montreal Herald and the Telegraph is equally enthusiastic in its praise. "Mr. Laurence Irving," it says:

"In the tense moments when waking after the fatal night when as the avenging guardian, he struck down Gromoff, the licentious oppressor of Sonia Mertinova, he realized that his soul was dyed with the blood of a fellow man, he swept the crowded assemblage with an answering thrill of anguished horror. . . His high art stood out in its almost flawless greatness. . . . The spell of insanity hovered over him in these periods, and his racked and quivering restraint as he recovered was a marvellous piece of stagecraft."

In the Montreal Daily Mail, Mr. Hanratty acclaims Mr. Irving's performance as a masterpiece. "He rapidly runs the gamut from comedy into tragedy and from the second scene until the final fall of the curtain he gives an exhibition of the storm of human passions as is rarely seen. It is a torturing spectacle in some respects; yet there is something so thrilling about it all that curiosity is on the qui vive to know what is coming next. It is little wonder that the verdict of London was that this play had given the English stage a new actor of the first rank and this verdict was fully emphasized here last night."

Mr. Irving will shortly visit Peterboro, and theatregoers here will have an opportunity of endorsing the opinion of Montreal.

DESTROYED BALLOT BOX

Riotous Japanese Parliamentarians Tried To Prevent Business Tax.

TOKIO, Feb. 16.—The lower House was the scene of unprecedented disorder Friday night, and adjourned after midnight. The members of the Opposition destroyed the ballot box in order to prevent the adoption of the business tax, which the mass wish abolished. Riotous scenes on the floor of the House continued throughout the session, which extended over many hours, the obstructionists blocking the Government at every turn.

According to the Tokio papers the naval commission has found one naval officer guilty of bribery, and will order a court-martial.

Lose Life Saving Girl.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 16. — One man lost his life and several others were seriously injured in a fire that yesterday destroyed the six-storey building occupied by the Northern Manufacturing Co. To save the life of a girl employed in his department Wm. P. Howe, aged 70, a shipping clerk, after having himself been assisted out of the building, plunged back and was burned to death. Rose Schultz, for whom Howe lost his life, was carried down the stairs from the third floor, only slightly hurt.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. The loss is estimated at $110,000.

As Inventoried in the Will of the Late Senator Cox

When the late Senator George A. Cox drafted his last will and testament he had a clause inserted which stipulated that any of the beneficiaries disputing the terms of the will, would forfeit all claims. It reads as follows:

"I direct that any and every person obtaining any benefits under this, my will, shall, therewith, accept all the terms thereof and should any such person take any step to set aside or alter my said will or any terms thereof such person shall thereby forfeit all benefit thereunder. Any such step shall of itself make void any and every beneficial provision for such person herein contained."

Changed His Mind.

"The idea which I had of tying up my estate for the term of twenty-one years is not now considered to be practicable or advisable," states in part one clause of the will referring to certain trust estates set apart "for the happening of certain contingencies," in an indenture dated 22nd April, 1910. The Senator's will in force at date was revoked, and now neither the trust estates nor the bulk of the estate will be tied up for the twenty-one years previously enjoined.

Following is the real estate, in Peterboro, inventoried in the well of the late Senator Cox, with the amounts set down as "fair market value of the property":

PARCEL POST OF GREAT CONVENIENCE

Mr. Wm. Shera of Bay City, Mich., has been visiting his brother, Mr. Robt. Shera, 615 George St.

Mr. Shera considers the parcel post system to be a great thing. It will take the people of Canada some time to realize this, as it did the people of the United States, but he says that when the system has been thoroughly tried out, the people will find it of great convenience.

Mr. Shera is a veteran of '66. He went to Cobourg today.

THE PUBLIC BUILDING SITE

An Undesirable Change

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—I notice in your columns a faint reflection of the 'feelings of deep regret and indignation which are being freely expressed apparently on all sides, in regard to the proposed removal of the post office. Of course it is difficult to write letters to the papers which not all can do, but the feelings are there.

It seems evident from Mr. Burnham's letter that a large responsibility rests on the Mayor and council, and we look ot them to consider the interests and convenience of citizens of 1914 for whom they were elected to act as well as those of 1954, who may be looked to, to take care of themselves, according to the needs of that time, which we can hardly anticipate.

Citizens have become thoroughly accustomed to the present site which is central to the business portion of the city, where people naturally congregate from all parts, enabling them to do post office business in connection with their shopping. Moveover it is understood that the present carefully chosen site was the result of an understanding with residents of Ashburnham, instead of giving them a separate post office. Why should it be necessary to combine the post office and Custom House? If so, it is said that the adjoining property can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

It must be remembered that business and professional men have the greatest interest in being near to the post office, and the proposed site next to a factory and the river, will bring it nearer to few more people while taking it away from the beaten track of many.

It is urged that whatever site be chosen there is bound to be criticism. Will there not be least dissatisfaction if the present site be retained or (that being impracticable), if one in the vicinity be secured?

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—I noticed by The Times that to have the new post office and Customs House built on the proposed site, corner George and Sherbrooke streets, would inconvenience the merchants in connection with the money order branch of the post office.

I took the trouble to call at the post office, and found out that a large percentage of the money order business is done with my own people—the English men.

I then canvassed a large number of my own people with regard to the building on this site, and found they were all in favor of the proposed site.

The general opinion of the citizens seemed to be that objections were being raised by those who had an axe to grind, or for political reasons.

Yours truly,
GEORGE HINSKILL.

To the Editor of The Review.
Dear Sir,—

Why all this agitation over the combined Post Office and Customs house? It is amusing to see the great interest the proprietor of The Times is taking in this great question.

Can Mr. Robertson truthfully say he is taking this matter up in the interest of the general public, or self interest, and in the interest of a few in the immediate vicinity of the post office?

If the post office and Customs House are to be erected in the interest of the city at large, then the most suitable place is the site chosen. Easy of access to the main line of the C.P.R., and in close proximity to the G.T.R. Who ever heard of a bonded warehouse being erected to suit a few property holders or politicians who are ready to sacrifice the city for party purposes.

As for convenience of merchants for money orders, if there are many business men running their business on the money order basis, why, I think they had better get down to the 20th Century business methods.

NORTH ENDER.

To the Editor of The Review.
Dear Sir,—

I cannot see that it will make any difference to the merchants to have the post office and customs house erected on the proposed site Of course, build it wherever you may, you will find knockers who have an axe to grind. How much better it would be to have these fine buildings in the section of the city where visitors are coming into the city from the trains, and then the manufacturers, such as the C.G.E., who, I understand, receive car loads of goods in bond, must have some consideration.

It seems to me that the proposed site is the best available from an economic and business standpoint.

Yours truly,
NORTH WARD.

To the Editor of The Review.
Dear Sir,—

Let's stop this fighting. We want that customs house and post office at the corner of George and Sherbrooke streets, in spite of a few of the self-interested parties. Then, we want a new bridge. We East City residents do not mind the little extra walk. What better site could be chosen when you take into consideration the railway accommodation that a customs house must have

We need this large amount of money spent in Peterboro, and are grateful to Mr Burnham for his efforts I say, build the post office and customs house where our worthy Mayor sees best, and let the rascals fight

Yours,
EAST CITY.

NARROW ESCAPE

Bobs Crashed Into Horse and Cutter

Coasters and Occupants of Cutter Thrown to the Road

A serious accident was narrowly averted last evening about 9 o'clock near Jackson Park hill, well known to coasters.

Two bobs hitched together, taking the down grade at full speed, crashed into a cutter proceeding around the corner, resulting in the occupants, a man, woman and child, of the cutter, being thrown out, and the bob riders scattered over the road. Skaters on the rink rushed to give aid, and the badly frightened horse was quieted.

Fortunately none of the participants in the accident were hurt. The bob sleigh was badly damaged. A similar occurrence to this one is reported to have happened a week or so ago.

COTTAGERS TAKE ACTION

Will Ask for Better Transportation Facilities

Want Open Season for Fishing to Start July 1st

Magistrate D W. Dumble presided at the meeting of the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association held last evening, for the purpose of dealing with several important questions relative to Stoney Lake.

In explaining the purpose of the meeting, Magistrate Dumble pointed out that there were about 300 cottages on the islands and shores of Stoney Lake. Fully 35,000 visitors frequented the shores and cottages every year. The Railway Board were to be asked for an order to provide better accommodation at Lakefield, in connection with the G. T.R., and the steam boat wharf.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams expressed his opinion that an Association should be organized for this purpose. The matter was settled by appointing Messrs. Dumble, Hall and Peck as a committee to present the petition for better service.

Mr. John Nugent complained that the mail system was not perfect. The regular passenger boats objected taking the mail for the amount of $200. No action was taken in regard to this matter.

A petition to have the open fishing season changed from the 16th to the 1st of July, will also be presented to the Government. Many of the bass are caught in June when the lakes are full of spawn.

Mr. Ben Shortly remarked that he had been fishing in Stoney Lake for about forty years. The American visitors commenced fishing as soon as the season opened in June. They catch the bass full of spawn and because of this, he advocated a change of date for the opening.

Mr. J. D. Collins' remarks were to the effect that fishing was a bad job in the lakes now, and that he had given up trying to catch fish there.

Favor a Hatchery

The chairman introduced the subject of starting a hatchery in Stoney Lake He said that Rainbow trout would be good, as they can be raised where brown and speckled trout cannot. Mr. Dumble was strongly in favor of a hatchery, and advocated that Mr. J. H. Burnham M.P., be communictaed with in connection with the matter.

Mr. Rogers claimed that there was something more than line fishing destroying the fish at Stoney Lake.

The meeting was brought to a close with Mr. George Cochrane giving a few facts regarding the fish at Stoney Lake.

GUARDIANS OF THE LAW WERE PHOTOGRAPHED

Seeing a local cop speeding along the street this afternoon at a greakneck pace, a reporter joined in the pursuit anxious for the affray, whatever it might be. The officer proceeded on the double quick to the station. The scribe followed. Inside the station such commotion has not been seen for some time. Chief Thompson and his men were struggling into fur gauntlets, overcoats and brushing up generally.

Two men were standing in the aisle with a large camera.

"What's the mater Chief, have you got a counterfeiter's job on your hands?" he was asked.

"Nothing like it, we are gong to have our picture taken," responded the Chief.

A few minutes later the force repairs to the front of the station and were photographed.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS

The Police Commissioners will meet on Friday afternoon.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL TO DEAL WITH PUBLIC BUILDING SITE

Mayor Buller has called a special meeting of the city council for Saturday night, to deal with the letter from Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., relative to the new public building, and decide whether the site recommended is satisfactory. This site is at the north-east corner of Sherbrooke and George Streets. The price of this property is $18,000.

Mr. Burnham's letter to the city council is accompanied by the report of the expert who inspected several properties. The letter and the report follow:

Ottawa, Feb. 12, 1914.

The Corporation of the City of Peterboro, the Mayor and Council.

Gentlemen,—Permit me to submit the following for your immediate consideration:

1. The congested condition of the Customs House and Post Office in Peterboro necessitate some action by the Department in that respect.

2. The Minister of Public Works concurred in this view and announced also that Public Offices should be so far as possible, in public buildings, which is not the case with respect to some departments of Peterboro.

3. After discussing at some length the whole matter in the light of public interest and conveniences with the Minister of Public Works, Customs, Inland Revenue, Railways and Canals, and the Postmaster General, I asked the Minister of Public Works to have an appropriation made which he did have made, and with a view to erecting one building for all departments as in his opinion, was required.

4. A special expert agent of the Department of Public Works was detailed to visit Peterboro for the purpose of looking into the requirements of the various services and the possible sites reported upon to the Department by the valuators appointed for that purpose.

5. The agent has looked into the whole situation carefully, and I enclose his report for the consideration of the Mayor and council, because they represent the citizens and what the council approves must therefore be considered as acceptable to the city.

6. The report shows that the agent considers the site to which he refers to be the only really acceptable site. This will be his report to the Minister, as you see. He has taken into consideration not only the present, but the future requirements of the whole city.

7. It is most essential that the public interest in general should alone be considered and the agent having expressed his settled conviction in the matter, I am anxious to close the matter up with your approval.

8. It is desirable, however, that the citizens of Peterboro as a whole, should be satisfied, and with that end in view, I will ask you to let me know your official decision by February 21st instant, so that options may be taken up and the work provided for

I have the honor to remain,

J. H. BURNHAM.

The Agent's Report

Ottawa, Feb. 12, 1914.

J. H. Burnham, Esq., M.P.,
House of Commons,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir,—

I visited Peterboro on Monday, the 9th inst., and inspected several properties in different parts of the city, with a view to the selection of a suitable site for the proposed new public building for the accommodation of the Post Office, Customs, Inland Revenue, Superintendent and Engineer's of the Trent Valley Canal, and all other Dominion Government officials and employees

In my judgment the most suitable site is that on the northeast corner of Sherbrooke and George streets, having a frontage of 100 feet on George street, a depth along Sherbrooke street of 165 feet 8 inches, to Water Street, and a base of 100 feet on Water street

Considering the convenience of the large population in the south of the city, and the convenience of the manufacturers and wholsale merchants as well as that of the retail merchants, the site is central.

It is on the main street of the city, and yet enjoys exceptional railway siding across Water street from the site from which a spur could be run to the site when needed.

The price is $18,000, which I consider fair and reasonable, for so eligible a property.

I am disposed to recommend the purchase of this site for the purpose mentioned Please inform me, do you approve?

Yours faithfully,
George Dawson.

PEACE AND QUIETNESS

Law and Order Prevails Throughout the County

High County Constable Cochrane is authority for the statement that peace and quietness reigns throughout the county, to a very large extent. Conditions are also improved, Mr. Cochrane says.

A Review reporter had asked him what was stirring in the back country, but Mr. Cochrane had nothing to report. He said that local option had brought about a big change.

"But the argument is that they get the liquor just the same," said the reporter.

"All rot," was the answer.

Mr. Cochrane went on to explain also that very few children had to be taken from homes in the back country, by the Children's Aid Society.

FARMERS ARE ASKING FOR HELP

Many Applications Made to the Immigration Agent

The farmers are preparing for their event this spring, judging from the large number of applications for help being received daily by Immigration Agent Finch Miller.

Some time ago partial arrangements were made for about three hundred men for the spring rush, and from the present view of affairs, this number will be increased considerably

"Do you anticipate a big rush?" enquired the reporter

"I certainly do," responded Mr. Miller.

CONSUMPTION DECREASES IN ENGLAND

The Scourge is Dying Out in the Great Centres

At a recent meeting of the city council, Dr. Neal made the statement that England had the lowest death rate from consumption, with the possible exception of Australia, because of the educational campaign.

In view of this statement, the following will be of interest:

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A wonderful hope that some time the terrible plague of consumption will be vanquished in England, is held out by the report of the local Government Board. Careful reading of this report—it is over 400 pages long—makes it quite clear that tuberculosis is decreasing in the country. Even in those great centres of tuberculosis disease—Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham and Sheffield—the scourge is dying. Modern sanitation may possibly account for it, but it can only account for a very little.

Tuberculosis kills men in preference to women. The report says: "For males at most ages, Liverpool has the highest death rate, Manchester coming next. For females, Liverpool again has the highest death rate, the death rates in Manchester and Birmingham having a similar course that of Sheffield being somewhat lower. It is not unlikely that some of the excess of both Manchester and Liverpool is caused by the immigration of casual laborers. This would include the immigration of natives of Ireland, among whom the average tuberculosis death rate is high. The total share of migration in producing these high phthisis death rate cannot be determined at present The tuberculosis death rate of these cities has shown great reduction."

C.M.B.A. OBSERVE THEIR THIRTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Address to Bishop O'Brien is Accompanied by Gifts for a New Church and St. Vincent's Orphanage

St. Alphonsus Lyceum was the scene of a very pleasing and enjoyable function last evening, it being the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of St. Peter's branch, No. 30, of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association. The Sacred Heart Branch No. 509 which is affiliated with St. Peter's branch, assisted in the reception.

The large auditorium in the Lyceum was well filled when the chairman, Mr. M. H. Quinlan, opened the program, by a short address of welcome. In conjunction with this, Mr. Quinlan also gave a brief sketch of the society and its work since its founding in this city.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien D.D., who was present, was then tendered the following address by Mr. J. J. Lynch, on behalf of both branches: To The Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien D.D.

My Lord,—

On this the thirtieth anniversary of the inception of St. Peter's branch No. 30, of the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, directly connected with St. Peter's Parish, together with the membership of the recently formed branch No. 509, in the Sacred Heart Parish.

We, as members of said Association, unitedly deem it a fitting opportunity to extend to your Lordship our fraternal greetings and further, convey our most hearty congratulations on your recent elevation and consecration as Bishop of the Dioceses of Peterboro.

We also at the present time, beg to recall to your memory, a brief outline of your ministry in behalf of the Catholic citizens in the above respective parishes.

In taking a retrospective glance, it seems but a brief period of time since your Lordship knelt before the altar in St. Peter's Cathedral, to be ordained a priest of our Holy Mother Church.

Immediately following your ordination, you became an Associate Priest to St. Peter's Cathedral. During this period of several years of ministry, teaching and preaching, your several duties were faithfully fulfilled. Your life has been one of self denial Christian practice, zeal in the interests of God and His Holy Church, ever ready in storm and sunshine, in the midnight, darkness or noon day light, to speed to the bedside of the dying to administer the last rites of the Church.

Your hand outstretched and purse ever open to the poor and needy, willing at all times to help by advice, or otherwise any one coming to you for assistance, and living always a truly Christian life as befits a priest of God. You have been ever alert in looking after the welfare of the youthful in order that they might receive a good sound religious and secular education.

My Lord, there are many individuals and households in St. Peter's parish as well as the Sacred Heart, that have just cause to thank you for your foresight and perseverance in bringing to such a successful issue the cause of Total Abstinence. It speaks out from various surroundings with a mighty sound and an echo from afar as a magnificent work efficiently and faithfully done.

Owing to increased population, the Church of the Sacred Heart was erected in the southern portion of our city. And to this new parish you were appointed Parish Priest. Here you applied yourself with energy, thereby displaying your tireless efforts for the good of the people placed under your spiritual care. By your many kindly acts you endeared yourself in a special manner to all classes. Here also were your efforts successful in greatly reducing the debt in a very agreeable manner.

We might be permitted to say that here in the surroundings of the Cathedral see, there are several institutions that come under your Lordship's direct care, viz.: St. Joseph's Hospital, where the sick and afflicted are properly treated; the House of Providence, where the old, infirm and unfortunate, receive necessary care and attention, and the dear St. Vincent's Orphanage, where the sweet innocence of the orphan and the tender years of childhood are trained, cared for, and looked after, so that they later on, prove good and useful members of society.

We herewith desire to pass to your Lordship a cheque for the sum of $50.00 to be applied as you think best.

My Lord, apparently your mission to the Sacred Heart was of a temporary nature, for there was awaiting you a higher Call in God's Holy Work, and the glad tidings arrived from the Holy See, naming and appointing you as Bishop, whence your higher ideas and administrative abilities might be applied in a more judicious manner.

We may say that your life has been a series of good works. We know and feel that your many services to the Church should receive its just reward Your learning and talents have received worthy recognition. The distinguished honor whereby you have received the mitre is well deserved and will be ably and worthily worn.

We beg that you accept from us our good will in memory of this C.M.B.A. anniversary and trust and hope that the God Whom you have so well served, will shower His blessings upon you and the various duties pertaining to your mission as Bishop.

Signed on behalf of our Associations

M. H. Quinlan,
Henry McDonald,
J. Christopher,
Geo. Ahearn,
H. Carveth,

M. Lynch,
J. J. Lynch.

Two Checks Presented

His Lordship was then presented two substantial checks, $50 for St. Vincent's Orphanage, and $100 to go toward the building fund of the new church in East City. In replying Bishop O'Brien heartily thanked the officers and members of the associations, and complimented them on their very fitting celebration. He spoke very highly of insurance and its benefits, and in closing, incidentally remarked that he had a policy with the C.M.B.A. himself.

Very Rev. Dean McColl and Rev. J. V. McCauley also gave short addresses.

The musical program, which formed part of the entertainment, was rendered by Messrs. W. Wilson, violinist, W. Collins, vocal, J. Minecola, vocal and E. Hanrahan, vocal. Mr. Asa Huycke accompanist.

A banquet was then held in the spacious card room, and it is estimated that over 350 partook of the delightful repast. Arranged for under the careful eye of Mr. John Trombley.

Immediately after the banquet, dancing was the order, and it continued till 12.30. The music was supplied by Mr. Asa Huycke, piano, and Mr. W. Wilson, violin. These two musicians of note, brought rounds of applause and every selection was encored. Between two dances, Mr. Huycke further entertained those present by singing a solo. In addition to those already mentioned, the following clergymen were also present: Rev J. J. O'Brien, Rev. C. J. Phelan, Rev. Fr. Meagher, Rev. Fr. Cote, and Rev. Father T. Crowley of Copper Cliff.

The committee who were indefatigible in discharge of their duties were:

Messrs. Geo. Ball, chairman; M. H. Quinlan, John Trombley, Geo. Ahearn, Henry McDonald, Claude Brady, V. O'Keefe, J. Chistopher, M. Lynch, H. Carveth and J. J. Lynch, secretary.

ONLY FOUR CASES OF DIPHTHERIA

In conversation with Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., today, it was learned that mumps were still prevalent in the city.

"You have a slight epidemic of diphtheria," remarked the reporter.

"Well, it depends upon what you call an epidemic. If you claim four or five cases is an epidemic, then we have a small one," said the M. H.O., who further pointed out that at the present time there were only four cases of diphtheria.

Owing to the season, this number is by no means alarming compared to other years, according to the M.H.O.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR FIRE IN HAMILTON

McKay Co's Building and Stock Badly Damaged

Canadian Press Despatch

HAMILTON, Feb. 17.—Fire this morning which started in a workroom on the top floor of R. McKay & Co's drygoods block, damaged the building and stock, aided by floods of water, which the firemen poured in to the extent of one hundred thousand dollars. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The watchman went through the building soon after 7 o'clock and saw no signs of fire, but shortly afterwards workmen in the Wood-Vallance Co., saw flames shooting through the roof, and turned in an alarm. A few minutes later the work room was reported to be crowded with girls. Several firemen had narrow escapes when the roof collapsed,

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEB. 17, 1914.

MONTREAL AND POLICEWOMEN.

MONTREAL is having a Policewoman period just now. The prime movers in the question, as was the case in Peterborough, is the Local Council of Women. Following the recent request of a deputation received by the Board of Commissioners, of Montreal, asking that the city study the question of appointing policewomen, a letter signed by Mrs. G. A. Kohl, for the Local Council of Women, has been received by the Commissioners. This letter makes a definite request on the city to establish a force of policewomen as an adjunct to the present Police Department.

Mrs. Kohl suggests that the duties of policewomen would be to advise, have the oversight, care, and direction of girls and women on the streets; and that their presence would be extremely useful at all dance halls and picture shows. She would not have any of the present force of policemen displaced, but would have policewomen supplement their work and relieve them of certain duties rather difficult for men to successfully perform. In conclusion Mrs. Kohl writes: "Finally the proposition is one of economic value, as every girl kept off the street and led into the path of virtue becomes an economic asset as a respectable citizen and wage earner instead of a derelict draining the city's finance." The Commissioners had previously expressed sympathetic consideration of the request and on this latter occasion referred the matter to Chief Campeau asking for his views on the matter.

It would therefore appear that the Montreal women have received a more sympathetic hearing for their scheme than was accorded to the Women's Council in Peterborough. There is every probability of the suggestion being adopted by the Montreal Commissioners, and it is possible that before long the city will have a full staff of policewomen. There is no doubt but that such a staff would do no harm in that great city with its many traps for young people, and what is good for a large city is, in a lesser degree, good for a smaller one. There are divergent views upon the question as to whether we ought to have a Policewoman in Peterborough. Perhaps one of the chief objections is the name itself. There is a positive dislike in the minds of many people of anything in the nature of women ursurping the offices of men. The idea of a policewoman is as repugnant as the idea of an amazon, or a militiawoman. The name "Police" is associated with running in "drunks," batoning rioters and carrying screaming suffragettes, so that it has an odd sound when applied to a woman. It may be that if the Local Women were to give a more feminine name to the woman of their desire they might be more successful with the men-commissioners, who seem to be very jealous of their male titles and of the propriety of our women folk.

THE ASSESSMENT ROLL.

THE CIVIC SURVEYORS of Toronto in their report of the assessment department have urged too important things. First, that the department have more publicity and, secondly, that a special investigation on income assessments be made. In the first connection the surveyors think that the publication of land value maps which would be changed annually to meet existing conditions, and the publication of the assessment rolls would materially assist both the citizens and the department in arriving at a fair value of the land. The publication of the assessment rolls would be an almost gigantic task, but the surveyors say that it would be worth the money. "From the standpoint of administrative methods and results," they say, "the most serious failure of the department has been lack of adequate publicity. It is only through continuous publicity that it is possible to focus the attention of those who are familiar with property valuations on the work of the department in assessing property for purposes of taxation; it is only through publicity that official attention can be called to efficiency on the part of the individual assessors.

"Publicity, and publicity alone, will ensure equity and fair play in making assessment. The Assessment Act provides adequate and sufficient means for handling complaints and adjusting errors in the assessment roll, but the Court of Revision can do nothing on cases not brought to its attention. To do this the property owner and the general public must be informed. Under the present procedure, the only requirement in the assessment act in the matter of publishing the assessment rolls is that the roll must be on file for public inspection in the office of the city clerk. This provision is meagre, and wholly incompetent to bring to the attention of the great mass of property owners and tenants the true situation in the assessment of property." Such publicity would not only be valuable in obtaining accurate information, but it would eventually increase the revenue of the city and would certainly well warrant the expenditure entailed.

Nothing is to be lost, but everything is to be gained by transparent civic government. The public press has brought freedom and education to the people, and it will bring purity and efficiency into our public life. The Review has staked much expense of money and labor on its conviction that the publication of the full assessment role is the best possible thing for the good government of Peterborough. Privacy in these matters, or partial reports tend to misunderstanding and slander, and encourages dishonesty. The assessment roll, as it is being published in The Review, will protect both the tax-payer and the tax collector; it will give everyone an opportunity of securing a square deal, and it will go a long way in creating a public conscience and an intelligent interest in civic ffairs, which is so much needed in these days.

BACK TO THE TIGHTS.

THE FROCK-COAT seems to be doomed, at least the Cutters' Association are plotting to cut it out. The Montreal Gazette says that Congressmen and statesmen from the secluded parts of both the United States and Canada will henceforth have to dress like ordinary people. That is, if they follow fashion's dictates. "There are hundreds of frock coats laid away, however, waiting an opportunity to shine at governor's receptions and at funerals of prominent citizens, not to speak of daughter's weddings. These will surely appear periodically, no matter what the arbitrary experts rule. The frock coat is invulnerable. But it is not only the elder statesmen who are to be hit by the master cutters' 1914 commands. Insignificant chaps not expected to attend eminent gentlemen's funerals are ordered to alter their immediate surroundings." The order seems to be for narrow shoulders, tight waists and tight trousers. If these latter come into general popularity we shall see some strange sights on our streets. Those who cannot boast of Herculean thews could no doubt be fixed up with pads for calves, just as easily as the tailor can provide broad shoulders of wadding and buckram. On the other hand, the obese man will be equally exposed to the jibes of his more delicate and shapely fellows. At the same time it is a pity that our fine built men should hide their figures under a bushel—or rather under a frock-coat and baggy nether funnels. It may be that with the tightening up of men's attire the women will put a little more material into their garments for this was certainly the case in the days of our grandfathers, when they wore tight clothing our grandmothers encircled themselves in the crinoline.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THOMAS HARDY, the great English novelist, has married his typist. He is in his 74th year. But, as he is a poet as well as a novelist, he believes in immortal youth.

COL. SAM HUGHES seems to have got his hands full of "veterans" of the Fenian raid. It would appear that there were more who took part in the Fenian raid than those who came over in the Mayflower.

THE WEARING of the "toothbrush" moustache was forbidden to the soldiers of the Emperor William's body guard regiment by an order issued last week. The reason given was that it was non-German. What nationality is the toothbrush moustache? Does not Mr. Roosevelt sport one?

JOHN BULL seems to have tamed one of his shrews in the person of Christabel Pankhurst who is reported to have left her militant mother and is going in for a policy of persuasion—now there is some danger of the ladies getting the vote! Mr. Asquith, or any other man, could never be wooed with a brick, but when the ladies smile sweetly and use their subtle powers of feminine wizardy, even the staidest and most stern-browed premier must give way and say:—"Certainly my dear Christabel!" Coleridge's mystical poem is most appropriate in this connection.

A KING is to cross the Atlantic, King Ferdinand will visit the United States at an early date He will be accompanied by Queen Eltanore and their daughter, the Princess Eudoxia. King Ferdinand is convinced that Bulgaria could learn more from the United States that from any other country on the best methods to develop the industries of his kingdom, and therefore purposes to take with him, in addition to the Queen and the Princess, a number of able men who, on their return to Bulgaria, will apply the lessons they have learned to the teaching of others. The effect of this visit may be that the King will go back Yankeeized, and he will be known in history as "Ferdinand the Hustler."

Vocation and Vacation.

Orillia Packet.

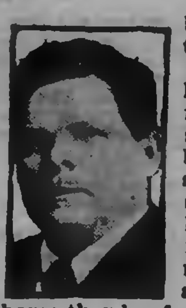
"Like As a Thrush."

(By Edmond Holmes.)

Like as a thrush in winter, when the skies
  Are drear and dark and all the woods are bare,
Sings undismayed, till from his melodies
  Odors of spring float through the frozen air—
So in my heart, when sorrow's icy breath
  Is bleak and bitter, and its frost is strong,
Leaps up, defiant of despair and death,
  A sunlit fountain of triumphant song.
Sing on, sweet singer, till the violets come
  And south winds blow; sing on, prophetic bird!
Oh, if my lips, which are for ever dumb,
  Could sing to men what my sad heart has heard—
Life's darkest hour with songs of joy would ring;
  Life's blackest frost would blossom into spring.

SUFFRAGISTS

By Walt Mason



The suffrage dames who play their games just like the whiskered fellers, who bravely stand and make demand for votes, are city dwellers. The squawky ones behind the guns have homes that need attention; they run outdoors, neglecting chores too numerous to mention. The city wife on idle life of ease and sloth is leading; no more she makes the ginger cakes, no more the dough she's kneading; she pulls with vim her husband's limb for rhino for her spending, and spends her days in useless ways, in foolish schemes unending. The farmers' fraus have hens and cows to keep them sane and busy; they fix the coops nor give three whoops for movements vain and dizzy. They sell their ducks and earn some bucks to buy ten yards of gingham; they henfruit sell and husband well the money it will bring 'em. The farmers' wives lead useful lives, and not an hour is wasted; the city ways, the slothful days, they have not learned or tasted. They drive to town in modest gown behind old Prince and Polly, with cash to spare, and do not care for votes or other folly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ENFORCE THE LAW

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—Regarding your publication of Mr. Kelso's letter, re the curfew law, and your remarks on the same, kindly let me say to the members of the Women's Council and the clergy, that Mr. Kelso points out the only practical way to remedy present conditions.

Since the majority of parents neglect their natural duty towards children and mere "pulpit thunderings" are very little heeded, the law will have to be enforced. Children must be kept off the streets. The Government has provided a law for this purpose, and for its enforcement, neither a police woman nor extra policemen are needed.

Yours,
DOER.

FARMERS, BEWARE!

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—Immense quantities of butter, cheese and beef and lamb are being shipped from New Zealand and Australia to Canada. In spite of the duty against the foreign article, the home market is slipping away from the Canadian farmer. The Ontario and Quebec farmers are not organized. They leave no central association to speak for them. But they must look into this matter quickly, or it will inevitably happen, that the price of their goods must drop and with it the price of their land.

Yours,
READER.

CHEAP OXYGEN IN SIGHT.

We May Yet Afford to Burn Coal in It Instead of in Air.

Oxygen has suddenly become one of the most likely means of improving people's comfort. It is predicted even that it is about to follow the history of petroleum, jumping suddenly from a rarity and curiosity to general use, on sale everywhere by the can. Petroleum came into general use when it was discovered that there were vast supplies of it that could easily be tapped. Of late years it is being found easier and easier to tap the vast supplies of oxygen in the air. Frederick Soddy, the noted authority on radium, is inclined to believe the time is coming when coal will be burned in oxygen instead of in air in order to get more heat at less expense, so that when a man orders twenty tons of coal for the winter supply of his furnaces he will order a number of tanks of oxygen to go with it.

The rapid improvement of machines to take oxygen from the air and water is responsible for the attention that is being given now to this subject by scientists and inventors. The modern methods of getting oxygen are to make liquid air and then turn the liquid air into oxygen and nitrogen or by using electricity to turn water into oxygen and hydrogen. So much hydrogen is now being used in various industries to harden oils that great quantities of oxygen are being formed as a byproduct. At present there is no use for most of this oxygen, so it is wasted. This in itself is serving to turn attention to the utilization of oxygen.

Mr. Soddy has pointed out that even at the present price of oxygen made in the big liquid air plants it is almost economical to burn coal in pure oxygen, for the burning of coal in air means the loss of much heat from the unnecessary heating of the nitrogen, which goes with the oxygen in the air, but does not help the burning. Large plants making liquid air can now produce oxygen at a cost of about a third of a cent per cubic yard, and the process will probably be greatly cheapened in the course of time as it is developed by study and experience. Cheap oxygen is likely to find other uses not thought of now, for there are many men busy making experiments along this line.—Saturday Evening Post.

Federation of Printers.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—Reference was made at the annual banquet of the Montreal Printers' Board of Trade Saturday night to the proposed organization of a Canadian Federation of Printers, and to the fact that the Government had voted a sum of $10,000 to establish a school of printing. The speaker was Mr. F. W. Lapointe of Le Canada, who presided over the gathering.

Birthdays of Note

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY SEVENTEENTH

His Honor George Hedley Vicars Bulyea, lieutenant-governor of Alberta, is observing his fifty-fifth birthday in the splendid new Government House, which has recently been completed in Edmonton. He is now nearing the close of his second term as governor of the province and next year will probably step back into private life. Like many of Canada's public men he was originally a school teacher, having acted as principal of a school in his native province of New Brunswick thirty-five years ago. For the past thirty years he has been residing in Western Canada, engaging first in business and later devoting his attention to government. He held office in the government of the North West Territories and in 1898 was appointed commissioner of the Yukon Territory. He became lieutenant-governor of Alberta on its erection into a province in 1905.

Borans Wipe Out Village.

NAIROBI, British East African Protectorate, Feb. 16.—Boran tribesmen exterminated recently an entire village composed of 200 men, women and children of the Rendile tribe in the Lorian Swamp in the northern part of the protectorate, according to an explorer just returned here.

The Borans, who are a peaceful people engaged in pastoral occupations, had been incessantly harassed by the Rendiles. This so greatly exasperated the Borans that they retaliated by killing every one of the Rendile tribe they could find.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE NEW STYLES

The smartest hat brought out in Paris just now is very small and very smart. It is entirely different from anything seen before in the millinery line ; not so different as to shape but it is entirely covered with small porcelain beads. On one hat the beads were rust-red in three shades and quite an elaborate brocaded effect was secured. Two pompoms of rust-red trimmed the hat coquettishly.

It is predicted that the bead hats will be extremely popular and should be adopted at once by smart dressers as later they will become entirely too common. Cut jet is smart for restaurant wear ; metallic blue beads and spring glass aigrettes is another combination. Still another is in dull white beads with wings or butterfly bows of black taffeta or velvet.

The newest Monte Carlo Casino hat is queer. Viewed from the side it looks like some insect with huge wings sheathed close to the body and extending far behind in sharp posts. The climax is reached by placing the spiky tail-like aigrette directly in front at the tip of the brim and at right angles to the brim.

The newest toques have torpedo crowns instead of the bowl crown so popular all winter. The brims turn up and small velvet multi-colored flowers lie flat among conventional leaves or ivy.

The newest tailor suits have pockets let into the side seams but the style is too ugly to persist with women who appreciate the trim-smartness of a tailor-made. Womankind has become wedded to reticules in one form or another and will probably prefer her pockets stitched on and more for ornament than use.

The Year's Immigration.

The total emigration to Canada during the first nine months, April to December, of the current fiscal year, was 350,521, made up of 134,317 British, 90,540 American and 125,664 from all other countries.

During the corresponding nine months of last fiscal year the total number was 334,083, composed of 127,875 British, 113,789 American and 92,410 from all other countries. The increase is 5 per cent.

During the calendar year 1913, the total emigration to Canada was 418,870, made up of 156,984 British, 115,751 American and 146,135 from all other countries.

During the calendar year 1912, the total number was 395,804, composed of 145,859 British, 140,143 American and 109,802 from all other countries. The increase was 6 per cent.

Cookery Points

WELL TESTED RECIPES.

Flank Steak With Dressing.

Select a nice, thick flank and have the butcher remove all skin and score it on both sides. Ask for a small piece of suet. Ingredients for dressing: Two cupfuls of soaked bread crumbs, one small onion, one tablespoonful of butter, one egg, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, a little powdered sage, several shakings of pepper. Pour water on the stale bread. When soft press dry in both hands, then reject any hard or dark parts. Beat the egg well and stir in, also the seasoning; mince the onion, put in frying pan with the butter, let it cook a little, but not brown; add the bread, turn a few times, then take from stove. Rub the flank well with salt and pepper, place dressing on, then roll tightly, tie with white cord, cut suet up finely, place in pan and lay in the roast, cover and cook in steady heat; it must be well done, but not dried out.

Virginia Smothered Chicken.

Split a tender chicken down the back, season it with a teaspoonful of salt and pepper to taste. Put it into a dripping pan with a cupful of hot water and let it remain in the oven until tender. As soon as it begins to brown make a paste of two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and spread over the chicken and baste it every ten minutes with the drippings in the pan until brown. Set the pan containing the drippings over the fire, pour into it a cupful of rich milk, stir until it boils, season with a saltspoonful of salt and one-half saltspoonful of pepper. Pour this gravy over the chicken and serve it hot.

Orange Jelly.

Orange jelly is a pleasing variation on orange marmalade, and is thus prepared by Scotch housewives: Press out the juice from Seville oranges and set it aside while the rinds are being boiled with a good quantity of water. Add water as it boils down, and when the rinds are thoroughly soft press through a bag. Add the uncooked juice and measure. For every pint add a pound and a half of lump sugar. Boil for half an hour and put a teaspoonful of the mixture on a saucer. If it curls before the finger when it has become cold it is done. Put into jelly glasses and when it has stood overnight seal.

Rich Brown Cake.

Ingredients: One cupful of lard and butter (equal parts), one cupful of granulated sugar, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of seeded raisins, one cupful of milk, five cupfuls of sifted pastry flour, one teaspoonful of soda. Method: Cream butter and sugar, add soda to molasses, stir up well, then beat into the creamed mass, mix raisins and flour and add that, alternating with milk; beat well, then bake in oblong or round loaf mold in slow, steady heat. This is rather a large cake, but will keep for a long while. Ice with plain white icing or can be used just as baked.

Coffee Sherbet.

To a pint of strong coffee add a pint of cream, six ounces of sugar and six drops of vanilla essence. Use a tablespoonful and a half of finely ground coffee to a half pint of water. Put coffee, cream, sugar and extract in a freezer surrounded with salted ice. Keep the sides free as fast as the ice begins to cling. When congealed serve in glasses.

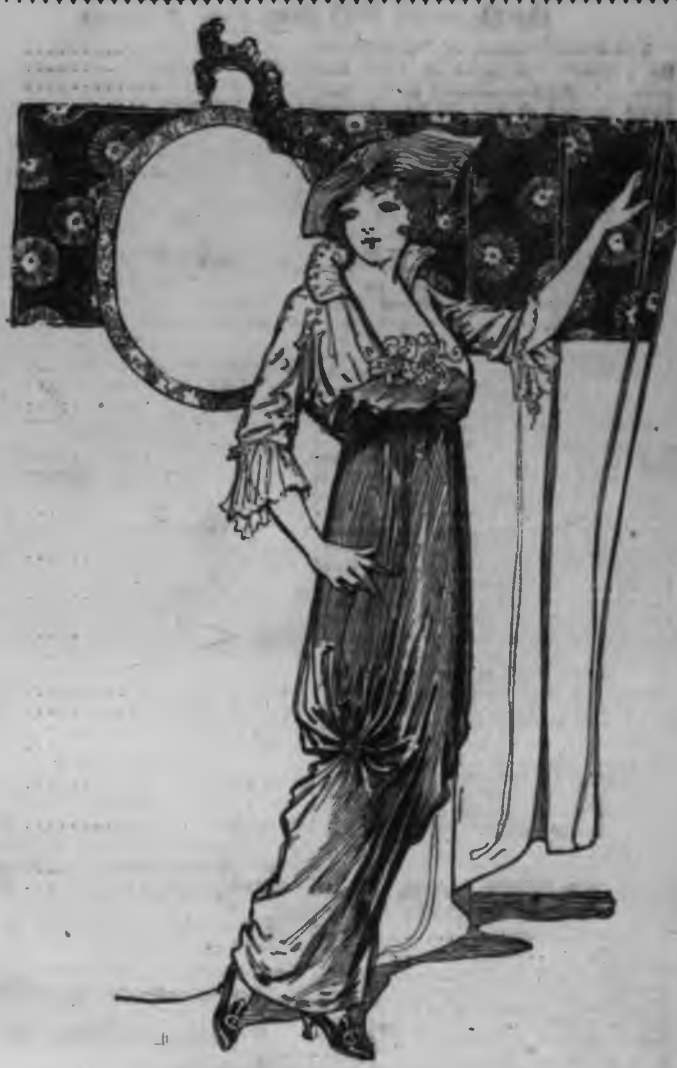
THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



SIDE DRAPERIES AND SHEER FRILLS.

In a recently imported bridal trousseau came this frock in grace brown satin and chiffon, revealing the latest ideas of Callot in the matter of her ever delightful draperies. Here she has caught the fullness in about the hips, holding it with tassels and cutting it away below. A new idea is found in the filmy frills of sheerest batiste machine embroidery, dyed the some color as the chiffon.

New Things In the Shops.

A new broom sweeps clean, but there is a newer one with a long handle and the brush part of fiber, which sweeps clean and does away with backache, tired arms and blistered hands as well as no dust.

There is a small fire extinguishing appliance that inspires confidence in a householder's breast and gives her the assurance that a small blaze could be quickly and effectively overcome. It is a small nickel plated affair that holds a quart of fire extinguishing liquid and works on the same principle as a youngster's popgun, spraying a blaze quite a distance away.

This device costs $7, but is well worth it in the feeling of security it gives dwellers in suburban places and apartments.

From fire to water is but a step, and for those who dislike overshoes in wet weather there comes a waterproofing fluid which when poured on, spread evenly and allowed to dry on a pair of shoes renders them waterproof. Applied two or three times during a season, this preparation makes the owner of the shoes wonderfully indifferent to dampness and overshoes. The price is 25 cents for a full sized can of the liquid.

Scallops Are Fine Now.

Fried scallops are usually the only choice on the average bill of fare, notwithstanding the fact that there are many delightful ways of preparing these little shellfish. The following may reveal some of their possibilities to the housewife who is seeking new ways.

To one pint of scallops (washed and drained) use two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one beaten egg, one pint of hot milk, pepper and salt to taste. Melt the butter in a saucepan, take from the fire and add flour, stir until smooth and return to the stove and cook until it bubbles, then add the hot milk, salt and pepper and egg and let the mixture cook fifteen minutes. Then add the scallops and cook fifteen minutes longer. Serve on buttered toast and garnish the dish with watercress. This is an excellent way to cook scallops, as it brings out their delicate flavor.

Another appetizing way to cook scallops is as follows: Wash and drain the scallops, make a smooth, rich cream sauce flavored with pepper, salt and onion juice. Let the sauce cook for ten or fifteen minutes, otherwise it will taste pasty, then add the scallops and cook slowly for ten minutes. While this is cooking, prepare some peppers (as many as required) by washing, remove the stems, cutting a piece from the top and taking out the seeds. Stand the peppers in a baking pan and fill them with the creamed scallops, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown. Serve at once.

To Peel Oranges.

There is for sale a little knife that costs 13 cents. It is not really a knife, but it is a small piece of metal with a hook on one end that hooks under the orange skin and tears it open and pulls it from the orange. It is a great convenience, for it skins the orange without piercing the transparent inner skin that holds the pulp and juice in shape.

JAUNTY COSTUME.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING IN REVIEW'S PRIZE CONTEST

Those Who Are Wise and Have a Right Appreciation of the Occasion Will Reap Rich Rewards

The announcement of "Opportunity Period" was received with the approval of all interested in the big Prize Contest of The Review. Those who have already entered and many others who have signified their intentions of becoming active, can now do so, as the persons who have been making all the noise about what they were going to do will silently and gradually have themselves forgotten as candidates in the big campaign of The Review. The schedule of votes has been so arranged that any live person who has not turned in a single subscription can by a little hustling, place himself or herself at the head of the list when the votes are counted at the end of this period. Opportunity is spelled in large flaming letters for the persons with the average amount of effort.

A word to those who have not yet entered the campaign of The Daily Review. No candidate has done enough business to warrant the offering of the valuable prizes. "Bear in mind," The Daily Review is going to keep its word and live up to all the agreements made in the announcement issue. SCHEDULE OF COMPENSATION

For Dependents of Sailors Lost in Great Lakes

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—The special board appointed to distribute compensation to the dependents of sailors lost in the late gale of last autumn, are wasting no time in their preparation of a schedule. It was learned last evening that the families who lost breadwinners will be aided by monthly instalments extending over a period of five years.

Owing to the immense amount of detail involved, it will be some time yet before the first amounts are issued. These, however, will be distributed as nearly as possible in proportion to the earning capacity of the victims. It is understood that the amounts paid out in this way will average from $10 to $70 monthly. In striking a balance of remuneration an attempt will be made to make the sums approach half the wages of the drowned breadwinners.

Proximity of relationship and the financial prosperity of dependents will be taken into consideration before any remuneration is allowed.

REFORMS IN BELGIAN CONGO

PANAMA, Feb. 17.—Late advices from Esmeraldas, Ecuador, report that the city is still in the hands of the rebels under Col. Carlos Concha, who have succeeded in repulsing the Federals after heavy fighting, in which the losses on both sides were large.

The greater part of the city has been burned, but the cable office escaped destruction. It is guarded, however, by a rebel detachment, and has suspended business.

Esmeraldas is still under blockade and communication is closed.

WE HAVE DETERMINED TO MAKE THIS SALE
our season's Clearance Sale, the banner sale of our short entire history, and we know the extraordinary offerings we have prepared will accomplish it. The spring lines are beginning to come in and we are crowded for room.
While it would be a difficult task to adequately describe the great possibilities for advantageous buying that this sale offers you, the following quotations will convince you that this is an unusual sale,—that the bargains offered are more than ordinary sale offerings.
We could not make any money during January and February, even if we sold everything at regular prices, because business would be so light. So if we can double our cash receipts by reducing our prices, and help you buy wanted merchandise at a big saving to you, we not only loose nothing, but gain the advantage of cleaning up our stock, and winning the good-will of scores of people who will remember the goods they got here. Read over the prices here quoted and don't forget to-morrow begins the sale.

CANADA A COUNTRY OF YOUNG PEOPLE

Out of Every 1,000 of Population 813 Are Under 45 Years.

MALES IN MAJORITY.

Interesting Facts Disclosed in Census Bulletin Just Issued.

That Canada is pre-eminently a country of young people is evidenced by the fact that 813 persons in every 1,000 of the population are under 45 years of age. It is also a fact that males overrule, since the number of males exceeds the number of females by about half a million. The influence of immigration on the relative standing of the sexes is shown by the fact that in 1911 there were 113 men to every 100 women as compared with 105 to 100 in 1901. The disproportion between the sexes is especially noticeable in Western Canada. In the eastern cities the female population practically in every case outnumbers the male.

These are some of the interesting facts disclosed by a census bulletin dealing with the ages and the years of people just issued. The proportion of the population under 14 years of age is 32.91 per cent. The largest number of children is in Quebec, where 273.5 out of every 1,000 of the population are under 10 years, as compared with 200.3 in Ontario, 166.3 in British Columbia, 245 in New Brunswick and 231.9 in Nova Scotia. The western provinces are the regions of young men and women as is shown by the large precentage of population between the ages of 20 and 40.

In Saskatchewan it is 450.7 per thousand of the population, in Alberta 457.8, Manitoba 417.3, and in British Columbia 532.8. The provinces showing the largest proportion over 70 years of age are the maritime and Ontario, with 46.6 for Nova Scotia, 38.1 for New Brunswick, and 34.7 for Ontario respectively per thousand. In Alberta the proportion is only 8.2, in Saskatchewan 8.8, and Manitoba 13.3. For all of Canada the proportion of the population over 70 years is 28.1 per thousand.

Percentage Under Five Years

Of the total population 12.3 per cent. were under five years of age, in 1911, as against 19.97 per cent. in 1901, while those who had reached the allotted span of life represented only 2.81 per cent. in the last census, as compared with 3.04 in the preceding census. At the age of 70 the ratio of males to females is about even. From 80 years of age and upwards the female proportion exhibits a greater life than does the male. The proportion of divorces for both sexes is about 6 in every 10,000. Of the total male population 62 per cent. are single, 34.85 per cent. are married and 2.33 per cent. widowed. Of the total female population 57.37 per cent. are single, 36.97 per cent. married and 5.31 per cent. widowed.

The records of the last census show that one male and 30 females under the age of 15 had assumed the cares of married life. The one adventurous male was a foreigner in Alberta.

Marriage Statistics

Of the total male and female population of marriageable age, between 20 and 40, 45.8 per cent. of the females were married. The rate of mortality is greater among married males than among married females, since the percentage of the widowed is greater for females at every age period. The total number of divorced persons in Canada is given at 4,400. The larger proportion, according to nativity, are among those of foreign born. When the census was taken there were 919 persons in Canada between the ages of 95 and 99 years, and 120 of a hundred years or over. There were 37 centenarians in Ontario and 21 in Quebec.

WAS READ A THIRD TIME

Meaford's Local Option By-law Passes the Council.

MEAFORD, Feb. 17.—Local option is now an accomplished fact here, so far as the Town Council is concerned. The council held a special session here yesterday to give the required third reading to the bylaw. Had it not been passed yesterday much trouble would probably have ensued, as the six weeks' time limit for the final passing terminated last night.

Every member of the council was present in the chamber, which was crowded, chiefly by supporters of the measure. The opposition, through Mr. J. P. Barlow, urged that the measure be not passed pending the settlement of the appeal against the recently decided case by Mr. Justice Hodgins in Toronto. It was stated that the council had nothing to lose by deferring the matter.

The town clerk explained the proceedings and the outcome of the recent trial, and made reference to the notice of appeal lodged by the plaintiff against the decision to set aside the injunction restraining the council from giving the third reading.

Most of the discussion was heard while the council was in committee of the whole, but when the matter was finally submitted to council it was passed by a large majority.

BELIEVE DOCTOR IS INNOCENT.

Another of Sparling Family at Ubly, Mich., Dying of Same Malady.

UBLY, Mich., Feb. 17.—An illness mysterious and defying every diagnosis of Michigan doctors, may mean the liberation of Dr. Robert MacGregor, the London, Ont., physician serving a life sentence for the alleged murder of Scyril Sparling.

Ray Sparling, brother of the young man, for whose death Dr. MacGregor was sentenced, is slowly wasting away. His mother, who was charged with being implicated in Scyril's death and who only recently made the dramatic plea to be allowed to be tried again in order that Dr. MacGregor's chances for a new trial, denied by the Michigan courts, might be enhanced, has tried several times to take her only remaining child to Port Huron for treatment. Each time she has been forced to give up the trip because of his weakened condition.

The father and brothers died after a long illness—slowly fading away

STEAMER IS FLOATED.

Fabre Line Roma Was In Peril With Over 500 Passengers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Fabre Line steamship Roma, which was ashore with more than 500 persons on board on No Man's Land, an island off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., has been floated and is on her way to Providence, according to a wireless message received here last night by the company's agents. The message was timed 10.20 p.m., and was from the Roma's captain. It read:

"We are floated and are taking the route to Providence."

The line's agents said they did not question the authenticity of the message, and they closed their offices here late last night, satisfied that their vessel was safe.

When the Roma went aground wireless calls for assistance were sent out and grave anxiety caused for several hours.

Rearrange Furniture Often.

In some houses one enters the arrangement of the furniture never varies from year to year. In other houses the furniture is changed about every week or two. It may be easily judged which practice is the more agreeable and refreshing for all concerned. One woman is on record who actually stuck pins in the carpet on sweeping days to indicate for the maid the exact spots where feet of tables and chairs must be set again when the room was finished.

This was going to extremes, but there are many people who are just as narrow and prejudiced in their ideas. It is a good thing to change furniture about. It gives the relief of variety and often increases our appreciation of the beauty of some particular piece. Furthermore, the rearrangement of furniture helps to develop the quality of resourcefulness and discourages narrow prejudice.

Very Latest in Negligees.

One of the latest fashions in negligees is the one that is made with a deep yoke of lace that extends in the old "Mother Hubbard" fashion to below arm depth. To this the lower part of the négligee is draped so that the folds fall in long, graceful festoons. The sleeves are in one with the yoke, which is lined with mousseline de soie.

BENNETT LASHES OPPOSITION MEMBERS AS FRIENDS OF PRIVILEGE

Heated Episode Occurs in House When Calgary Man Asserts That Reactionaries Rushed to Committee to Secure Extension of Time For Construction.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17—The afternoon sitting of the House yesterday was enlivened by a triangular conflict between R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, on the one hand, and E. M. Macdonald, of Pictou, and E. W. Nesbitt, of North Oxford, on the other. The subject before the House was a bill renewing a charter for branch lines from the C. P. R.'s Calgary and Edmonton line into the newly-discovered oil fields of Alberta. The railway committee last Tuesday amended this particular bill by cutting down the time in which construction should be commenced and completed, but reversed itself on Thursday when, according to Mr. Bennett, all the reactionaries and railway attorneys rushed to the rescue of the corporations.

When the bill was reported, Hon. H. R. Emmerson complained that fish was being made of one railway company and fowl of another.

Hon. Frank Cochrane said that the western people were protesting against the great flood of railway charters which were granted and renewed without any railway construction resulting therefrom, but Mr. Nesbitt (North Oxford) opined that cutting down the time for construction would not cause the railway companies to build any faster.

When E. M Macdonald (Lib., Pictou) asked what happened in the railway committee on Tuesday regarding the bill, R. B. Bennett (Con., Calgary) said he should have been present instead of waiting until he was "sent for on Thursday, when all the reactionaries and friends of privilege combined to have the committee reverse what it had done two days before."

Mr. Macdonald demanded that the remark be withdrawn, and Mr. Bennett refused. E. W. Nesbitt (Lib., N. Oxford) said the statement was a lie, and Chairman Blain sought to secure order. Dr. Michael Clark (Lib., Red Deer) charged that the oil interests could have railway construction hastened when settlers could not, and D. B. Neely (Lib., Humboldt) declared that the Government was a mere servant in the matter of granting extension of railway charters.

After nearly an hour of heated debate, the bill stood over for further consideration.

Col. Sam Hughes answered a number of question yesterday about his trip to Europe and the cost of Sir Ian Hamilton's inspection tour through Canada. On the European trip the Minister and his party were compelled to go about a good deal in automobiles and their expenses in this behalf aggregated $6,904. The total expense of Sir Ian Hamilton's trip, defrayed by the Dominion Government, was $20,740.

Hon. J. D. Hazen introduced a bill to revise the Fisheries Act, which has not been codified since 1868. Some new features are introduced. The Governor-General-in-Council is empowered to prohibit the sale and export of fish. Something of the kind has been attempted by Provincial Governments, but their action, Mr. Hazen said, was ultra vires.

It is made an offence for anyone to have fish in his possession during the closed season for that fish. Where a fisherman is found with fish out of season, the onus will be upon him to prove that he did not catch them unlawfully.

Hon. George H. Perley introduced a bill respecting trust companies. The bill is designed to bear the same relation to trust companies as the Insurance Act does to the insurance companies, and the Bank Act to the chartered banks. Every trust company hereafter chartered would be subject to the general act introduced yesterday, which is to be explained in the House by Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, upon the second reading of the bill.

Compulsory audit and full report each year to the Finance Minister are among the salient features of the proposed legislation.

Upon the orders of the day, Hon. G. P. Graham complained that Opposition members had no opportunity to examine the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton upon the National Transcontinental Railway, and asked that the same be printed and distributed also without waiting for the evidence to be printed. The Prime Minister said that the report was in the hands of the printer.

King Gustave's Own Cabinet.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 17. — King Gustave yesterday approved the selections of D. Knut Hammarskjoeld for the new Cabinet, in which he himself will be Premier and Minister of War. K. A. Wallenberg has been chosen for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs; M. Brostroem, Marine; and M. Vennersten, Finance.

The Cabinet is regarded as representing the King rather than any political party, and its chief aim will be to carry out the King's policies.

Another Main Bursts.

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—The citizens' fears concerning the civic water were set on edge again yesterday afternoon, when a burst occurred in the 36-inch main at Lagauchtier and St. Urbain street, flooding these and neighboring thoroughfares to a depth of five feet. Office buildings and stores on Craig street were isolated, for over an hour and much damage was done to goods in the basements. A flaw in the pipe is once more advanced as the cause.

Alleges "Third Degree."

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—In the police court yesterday Joseph Lovery, under arrest for the murder of Tony Menetti, proprietor of a restaurant on Vitre street, on Feb. 1, was committed for trial. Lovery protested his innocence and asked to be let go. The police, he said, on the night of the murder insisted that he knew who had committed the crime. They said if he did not tell they would charge him.

Judge Leet replied that he could not take the responsibility of discharging the accused, although the evidence he had introduced might be favorable.

Hog Cholera Epidemic Spreads.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The hog cholera situation in Middlesex County is assuming more serious proportions, and daily the Government inspectors are condemning a large number of the animals. The first outbreak was discovered a week ago, and has spread rapidly. It is thought that the feeding to the animals of restaurant refuse may have brought on the epidemic. The Government experts are making a thorough investigation. Animals on two farms were ordered destroyed yesterday morning.

Ignores Labor Resolutions.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Morning Post has a cable from Sydney, which says that Premier Cook has refused to forward to the Imperial Government resolutions from Australian trades unions protesting against South African deportations.

COAL HOIST IS DESTROYED

Point Edward Is Visited by Fire With $40,000 Loss.

SARNIA, Feb. 17.—The mammoth coal hoist at Point Edward Grand Trunk dock, the property of the Northern Navigation Co., caught fire about noon yesterday and was almost totally destroyed, entailing a loss to the company of something like $40,000. The fire originated in the boiler house and quickly spread until the entire structure was a mass of flames. From the coal house it was carried to a large pile of coal, and this is still burning. The Grand Trunk fire engine and two tugs of the Reid Wrecking Co. were called and did good work. The Sarnia fire department did much to prevent the spread of the fire to the large freight sheds of the Grank Trunk, which adjoin the burned coal hoist.

Austria Imposes Extraordinary Terms on Atlantic Shipping Pool.

LONDON, Feb. 17. — The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Mail says that Herr Ballin, head of the Hamburg-American Line, and M. Heinenken, head of the North German Lloyd, are on their way to London to attend the international shipping conference for the purpose of concluding peace in the Atlantic rate war and prolonging the "pool" arrangement for five years. They left Berlin with some secrecy after dining with the Kaiser at the castle last evening.

He also announces the extraordinary terms which the Austro-Hungarian Government has dictated to the members of the "pool." They are required to pledge themselves henceforth not to transport any male Austro-Hungarian emigrants between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five. This is the direct outcome of the disclosures that Emperor Francis Joseph's army had been robbed of thousands of recruits by wholesale emigration to Canada and the United States.

You can argue a woman out of a thing only by making her feel that she's pleasing you immensely by giving in.

Train Wrecked at Open Switch.

CALGARY, Feb. 17.—What is said by C.P.R. officials to be the work of train wreckers caused a railroad smashup at Bellevue at 2.10 yesterday morning, when two engines were derailed, with the result that a man was killed. A double-header freight train, westbound, ran into an open switch, the engines jumping the rails and crashing into the ditch, both turning over.

Engineer Harry Thompson, formerly of Belleville, Ont., who lived at Macleod and who is well known among trainmen in Calgary, was thrown under one of the engines and killed.

POOR SHOULD HAVE FAIR CHANCE WITH RICH, SAYS W. B. NORTHUP

Member For East Hastings Raises Question of Divorce in Commons and After Discussion Premier Borden Moves Adjournment, With Suggestion That Conference be Held—Catholic Members Opposed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—A resolution calling for reform in Canadian divorce procedure, so as to give the poor people a better chance, was presented to the House of Commons last evening by W. B. Northrup, the Conservative member for East Hastings.

Mr. Northrup, in opening, said that Canada and Ireland were the only civilized countries in the world which granted divorces by act of Parliament. It had once been the practice in England to grant divorces in that way. But nearly 70 years ago divorce courts had been established and their procedure would be greatly cheapened and simplified as a result of the report of the royal commission of 1910. He did not advocate increasing the grounds for divorce or maintain that divorces should be granted at all, but there should either be no divorces or there should be divorces for rich and poor alike. As it was only people of considerable means could obtain a divorce in Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. In the other four provinces there were divorce courts.

"When a poor man comes to me and says that his wife has abandoned him and her children, and is living with another man in Watertown or Oswego, I can only advise him to get rich. The poor cannot get divorces in Canada."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said that as a Roman Catholic he was opposed to all divorce legislation. The deplorable condition of affairs in the United States should serve as a warning to Canada. In France the low birth rate was in part attributable to the divorce law of 1884, and there was a strong agitation for its modification or repeal.

F. B. Carvell (Carlton, N.B.) supported Mr. Northrup's motion.

Judge Doherty, Minister of Justice, reminded the House that the law of Canada did not recognise divorce at all. It was beside the question to talk of reforming our divorce procedure, or of conferring jurisdiction upon the judges. How could the judge grant divorces, unless Parliament first passed a law establishing the right to a divorce upon certain conditions therein prescribed? There was no inequality in the present system, because no person in the provinces of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta had any legal right whatever to obtain a divorce. True, Parliament did at times pass private bills which had the effect of divorces, but they constituted exceptions to a universal rule to which he would be glad to have no exceptions hereafter.

Mr. Barnard (Victoria, B.C.) said the divorce courts of British Columbia worked satisfactorily. He moved an amendment that the whole subject be referred to a select committee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the effort seemed to be to make divorce easier. To this he was opposed. He thought the fewer divorces we had in this country the better.

Upon motion of the Prime Minister the debate was adjourned. Mr. Borden said that he could not quite agree with the Minister of Justice that Canada had no divorce procedure. People came here to get divorces from Parliament, just as in other countries they went to the courts. He thought that the proceedings were unnecessarily expensive and that many reforms might be introduced into our Parliamentary procedure, especially in the way of preventing collusion between the parties. However, all divorce bills originated in the Senate and the Senate committee was practically the divorce court. He therefore suggested a conference with the Senate and the appointment hereafter of a joint committee to investigate the whole question, not with the idea of establishing divorce courts but for the purpose of improving the Parliamentary procedure.

TARIFF REFORM BEATEN---LIBERALS OUTVOTE UNIONISTS IN BRITAIN BY 74

Amendment to Address in Reply to Speech From Throne Favors Ad Valorem Duty Up to 10 Per Cent. on Foreign Manufactures in Order to Give Imperial Preference—Government Sees Disruption.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The tariff reform amendment to the address was defeated in the House of Commons yesterday by a majority of 74. Capt. Tryon advocated Imperial preference so far as practicable without imposing fresh duties on imported foodstuffs, and by admitting colonial imports at a lower rate than foreign imports. He would impose an ad valorem duty up to ten per cent. on foreign manufactures.

On behalf of the Government the Solicitor-General, Sir Stanley Buckmaster, said the policy of Imperial preference was one that could not exist. If the Opposition desired colonial preference they must tax food. Did the Opposition intend to include raw material? He denied that such a preference would tend to bind the colonies to the Mother Country. It was likely to carry with it seeds that would lead to results which many would be unwilling to contemplate. If they desired to accomplish Imperial preference they must put a tax on food and also put a tax on raw material. He denied that it was impossible to give effective preference to the colonies.

"Canada," he said, "is rapidly becoming an industrial country. There costs of production are not much lower in many industries than ours to-day. I think it quite possible that if this system of preference were once adopted we would gradually find, probably in the lifetime of most of us, a position in which the Canadian manufacturers would be willing to content themselves with protection, which is a natural one, owing to the cost of carriage, and when we might have complete free trade between Canada and the United Kingdom. That is the ideal everyone will consider worth striving for. Those who are the best judges in the colonies think there is something in it. We will give them precisely what they ask for and we will give them everything that they have asked for when we get the power."

WILL VETO BILL

Wilson Thinks Literacy is no Test of Good Citizenship

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — President Wilson will veto the Burnett immigration bill if it comes to him for signature with the so-called literacy test contained in it.

This became known from an authoritative quarter last night after Chairman Smith of the Senate Immigration Committee had announced that the bill, virtually as it passed the House, including the literacy test, would be favorably reported to the Senate soon. Prospects are that the bill will pass the Senate as reported from the committee, but the measure never will become law, according to close friends of the President. The President does not consider literacy a test of character and believes some other means should be devised to prevent undesirable aliens from entering the United States.

Dog Had Family En Route.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 17. — Because a blooded British setter bought by Eugene Simpson of this city at Nanaimo, B.C., gave birth to six puppies while en route to Portland, the animal and her family have been held by Seattle customs officials.

Gypsy Girl is the mother dog's name. Mr. Simpson paid $150 for her. A manifest accompanyign her called for "one English setter dog," and the customs men declared they could not pass seven dogs on it, even though six of them were only day-old babies.

Mr. Simpson says he may have to appeal to Washington to get his canine family.

BLOODY BATTLE IN ECUADOR

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 17.—Another step toward the realization of the belated reforms promised to be introduced in the Belgian Congo was taken yesterday when the Belgian Minister for the Colonies summoned all the district presidents of the Congo to attend a general assembly on June 29 at Stanleyville. Governor-General Fuchs will on that occasion preside over the assembly, which will discuss administrative, economic and political questions affecting the colony.

ENGLISH LACROSSE TEAM IS COMING TO CANADA

VANCOUVER, Feb. 17.—Cabling from London, Eng., Con. Jones, the Vancouver lacrosse official, says all arrangements have been completed for the Canadian tour by an English team this summer. The British team will be a representative one, and will be accompanied to Canada by H. H. Allingham, who will represent the British association. The tour will extend over ten weeks, the players arriving in Canada in May. Con. Jones will outline the itinerary for the Britishers and arrange the eastern schedule upon his arrival in Montreal [illegible] March [illegible] from the Old Country. F. O. [illegible] Hawes, secretary of the English association, will also make the trip. The tour will be financed by the Vancouver magnates.

Mr. Jones adds that the English Football Association officials have assured him that they will permit the English Cup finalists to tour America next year.

TOOLROOM PILED UP BIG SCORE AGAINST THE TEST

Winners Had the Better of the Argument Throughout

SCORE WAS 9-1

Three Teams Now Tied for the Mercantile League Championship

Tool Room 9, Test 1. That's the way the figures stood after the big game in the Mercantile League played last night in Brock street rink. The Nelson-Meharry Cup would have been the property of the Test team had they won last night's game but the unexpected happened and as a result there are three teams tied for the championship. It was a great victory for the last year champions, and as both teams are from the C.G.E. the rivalry and interest was very great.

It was clear that the intention of the Test team was to "get Barrie" right off the start and they roughed it as soon as the puck was faced. Referee Dobson is equal to occasions of that description, however, and as a result, the penalty box was constantly adorned. The forward line of the Tool Makers was continually breaking away in lightning fast rushes and time after time the four combined beautifully. Joe Dwyer in the nets for the Test, was the only objection and for a while he stayed off the attack of the kids, but soon he became a mark and slowly did the Tool Room run up the score. They drew Dwyer out and at one time had him half way up the ice. "Red" grew excited and then it was all Tool Room. Barrie, Primeau, Jackson and Cranfield all found Joseph quite easy. The Test broke away on a few nice rushes and had it not been for the back-checking of the speedy boys, goals might have resulted. Yet there was always the goal minder to beat and when it came to beating Cassidy, they were facing a tough proposition. "Dinnie" was on to perfection and he stopped them from all sides. Long shots proved a little light lunch for him. The half-time score was 5—0 in favor of the Tool Room.

Munro Scores Lone Tally.

The players had hardly hit the ice after the resting period when the forward line of the winners were away again and inside of two minutes they registered. Then the Test via Munro, tallied their only goal on a long shot from the side, but—bingo—and the Tool Makers were scoring again. Kelly and McGrath were sent to the box for tripping and to the surprise of the large number of fans present the Tool Makers scored while playing five men to seven.

The teams:

Tool Room.		Test
	Goal
Cassidy		Dwyer
	Right Defence
McGrath		Breckenried
	Left Defence
Kelly		McKenan
	Rover
Barrie		McDougall
	Centre
Jackson		Carter
	Left Wing
Primeau		Boone
	Right Wing
Cranfield		Munro

Gave It a Setback.

"You have mortally offended the mother of the baby."

"How could I? Didn't I praise the shapeless bundle and say it looked just like its father."

"Sure. That was where you made your mistake. A rich uncle was standing by whom the mother wanted the child to make a good impression on."

The local skips whose rinks are playing the final round for the Fitzgerald-Buttom shield in Bobcaygeon to-day are:—Messrs. W. G. Morrow, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, T. F. Mathews, and T. Brightman.

Owing to the absence of Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald last night it was possible to play but one of the semi-finals of the inter-rink competition. The rink of J. H. Connal defeated the rink of J. W. McDermid by 14—9.

PUCKERINGS FROM PUCK

There will be a meeting of the Mercantile League executive tonight at 7.30 in the Review office.

Dick Boone had an opportunity to see the original "Dick Boon" play, last night on Barrie.

Fred McGrath is rapidly developing into a fast man. A few more years and Fred will give some of them a go for the Junior team. Have a heart.

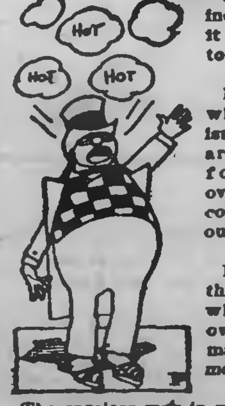
Peter Spratt's De Laval team with the assistance of Dwyer, in goal, defeated the Bankers in a preliminary, by a score of 3—1.

As a referee, "Dobbie" keeps the game well under control.

The banquet in the Dominion Cafe after the game, was some event. Referee, timekeepers, officers of the league, trainers, Hurtubise, and Dillon, the team, and even the scribes, were the guests of Messrs. Kenneally and Harris.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

WE can always find something to be dissatisfied with if we set about it carefully and with malice aforethought.



It is easy to be indolent, though it seldom leads to ease.

People for whom the best isn't good enough are generally found hanging over the bargain counter sorting out the seconds.

It is hard to think ill of a man who boosts your own game, no matter what his motives may be.

The careless way in which some people spill and slop language around almost warrants the belief that they were reared aboard ship.

Accident may land a man at the head, but it is an uncertain guy rope to hold him there.

Not So Pathetic.

Lo, the poor Indian!
Poor did you say?
Once on his uppers,
Not there today.
With his allotment
Fertile and large,
Quite independent,
Nobody's charge.

Into a cottage,
Out of his tent.
Can he afford it?
Look at his rent.
Maybe an oil well
Spouts on his land,
Royalties bringing into his hand.

There with the check book
Ready to buy
White man for daughter,
Though they come high.
Dressing his woman,
Gay Mrs. Lo.
Out in the latest
Paris can show.

Lagging not dumbly
Back in the rear,
Isn't he coming?
Well, he is here.
Feeling no longer
Poverty's pinch.
Lo, the poor Indian!
Oh, what a cinch!

Getting Wise.

A story is going the rounds of an American heiress who invited a duke or a prince with an imposing title and debts to match to chase himself.

Some bright girls are willing to learn by the experience of others. Some girls can see the point when it is illustrated with a diagram and copious footnotes.

To the romantic young girl a prince looks like the real thing. He knows how to wear clothes that are not paid for and can hand out a line of small talk that would do credit to a ribbon salesman, but when it comes to bringing home a pay envelope on Saturday night he falls down like an amateur flying machine.

The fall styles in husbands are not running to dukes, and it is a hopeful sign.

Worked Both Ways.

"One cannot be too careful about marrying. This falling in love is all nonsense. A man should pick his life partner with as much intelligence as he would select a horse or an automobile."

"I fear you will never marry."

"Why not? Isn't that a common sense plan?"

"Yes, but that kind of a girl might be as particular herself."

Even a girl's heartache is forgotten when she has the toothache.

Stronger Test.

George Washington, the records say,
Cut down a cherry tree one day.
His father said, "Who cut this, say?"
But George did not deceive him.
Had he sought out the northern goal
And hacked a sliver from the pole,
Though he had sworn upon his soul,
Would any one believe him?

Had to Be Sat On.

"That Molly Flighty is such a flirt."

"But I hear you are not so slow at that game yourself."

"Why, I never flirted in my life."

"Sure of that?"

"Well, at least she is a dozen laps ahead of me."

Nearer Home.

"Senator, in regard to our foreign relations."

"Well, what about them?"

"How do you stand?"

"They don't bother me any. It is my wife's relations I have to stand for."

Time to Stop.

"He has been given up by the doctors."

"I suppose they exhausted all of their resources?"

"Not exactly. They exhausted all of his."

St. Railway Rink

Last night the sketch company of Knox Church presented the playlet "The New Minister", to a large and well pleased audience.

It was one of the best amateur performances ever given in Peterboro The choruses were given with a vim, precision and vigor worthy of professionals It was well staged and well costumed.

Mr. R. Hillier as the Rev. Homer Alexander Brown, represented the character of the thoughtful, studious clergyman, true to life, while Miss Bartley, as "Daisy Lovejoy," the new school teacher, was as sweet as the flower for which she was named. Miss M. Crocker, as Mrs. DeLancey, president of the ladies' aid, was a typical match-making mother with marriageable daughters. Mr. J. Smith, as Uncle Alex, the sexton, was a fine specimen of a braw Scotchman.

The chorus "Shovelin' the Coal", "A Pretty Little Flower Is a Daisy," "The Kind of a Preacher I Like," and "Hurrah for the Minister Brown!" were splendidly sung, as indeed was every number given

The following is the caste of characters:

Mr. R. Hillier, Rev. Homer A. Brown, the New Minister.

Mr. W. Galley, Professor Topnote, leader of the choir.

Mr. Geo. Kenyon, Crescendo B. Flat, Mr. L. Petty, Hezekiah F. Sharp, Mr. S. Preston, Doctor Hoosick, members of the music committee.

Mr. V. Morphet, Ralphy Hunter, A Baritone in the choir.

Mr. A. Parker, Seth Perkins, a joke.

Miss E. Bartley, Daisy Lovejoy, the new school teacher.

Miss C. Rose, Odelia Hesbin, organiser of the Old Maid's Club.

Miss R. Carr, Petunia Pimples, a milliner.

Mr. J. Smith, Uncle Alex, a sexton.

Miss E. Shepherd, Augusta Wind, everybody's friend.

Miss M. Crocker, Mrs. Delancy, president of the Ladies' Aid.

Mr. Geo. Kenyon, musical director.

Mr. C. H. Williamson, manager.

The New Minister will be repeated tonight.

St. Paul's choir were most delightfully entertained last night, by Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Keyes, 773 Water St.

The house was charmingly decorated, and everything possible was done to render the evening a thoroughly enjoyable one by Mr. and Mrs. Keyes and their attentive helpers.

After several novel competitions, games, songs and stories, an exceptionally dainty supper was served by the hostess, after which Mr. John Allan, the organist and choirmaster, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Keyes most heartily for so hospitably entertaining the choir, and said he doubted if it was known how much choirs were encouraged in their work by such kindly appreciation as had been shown them that evening.

After the singing fortissimo of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne," the happy crowd wended their several ways homeward.

Miss McGivern, who has been visiting in Picton for the last month, went to Toronto last Monday with her brother-in-law, Mr. R. A. Yorman, M.L.A., and Mrs. Yorman, to attend the opening of the Legislature on the 18th.

Miss Alice Logan left this morning for Brooklyn, N.Y., where she enters St. John's Hospital as nurse in training. Her many friends will wish her success in her new field of labor.

Mr. C. Nicholls has returned to Toronto, after spending the week-end, the guest of his parents.

Mr. J. S. Middleton of Frobisher, Sask., left for his home yesterday after spending an extended vacation with his sister, Mrs. J. Thirnbeck, 525 McDonnel St.

Mr. Walter Cameron of Zealandia, and Miss Ida Clements of Warsaw, spent the week-end with their uncle, Mr. A. F. Calder, East City.

Mr. H. Cyril Hill of Calgary, Alta., is in the city on a visit.

Mr. W. H. Claxton, of Bobcaygeon, is spending a few days in the city.

Mrs. C. B. McAllister of New Westminster B.C., is visiting with Mrs. W. A. Sanderson, and will receive with her Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Mamie Crowley entertained a number of her friends at her home in Brownton, last evening, to a progressive euchre party. Miss Myra Parker of East City, won the first prize for ladies, and Mr. Norman Patterson won first prize for gentlemen. To Miss Georgie Long, fell the honor of winning the booby prize. Mr. Keenan, of Toronto, added to the enjoyment of the evening with piano selections. All the young people report a fine time.

Apple Pudding.

Peel, core and slice sufficient apples to fill a baking dish, butter the dish thickly and put in the apples in layers, alternating them with stale cake crumbs and a little butter, using two tablespoonfuls of the butter, melted, to a pint of apples. Let the last layer be a thick one of cake crumbs; put in a moderately hot oven until the apples are tender, then beat together two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar (more if the apples are tart), add one cupful of milk and pour over the apples Bake a rich golden color and serve with cream.

Oysters on Brochette.

In spite of its formidable name this is nothing more than large oysters and small pieces of bacon strung along a skewer alternately, allowing one skewer to each person. They can be put between the wires of a greased broiler and cooked quickly over hot coals, or the ends of the skewers may be rested on opposite sides of a baking pan while the oysters and bacon cook in the oven.

Welsh Rabbit.

This is a very fine recipe and quite inexpensive. Melt two tablespoonfuls butter and add one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt mixed together. Then add one cupful of milk. When hot add one cupful cheese cut thin. Stir until melted. Just before leaving the fire add one beaten egg. This quantity will serve four people. Serve hot.

TWO OF FIRST MEMBERS LEFT

Messrs M. McFadden and Mr. H. Quinlan, C.M.B.A. Members for Thirty Years

The founding of a local branch of the C.M.B.A. thirty years ago, found some thirteen or fourteen members enrolled. As the anniversary was celebrated last night, it is interesting to note that of these just two remain. They are Mr. Martin McFadden and Mr. H. Quinlan, both of this city.

The local division of the society now embraces some one hundred and fifteen members in Branch 30, and fifty members in Branch 509.

SHADE TREES SUFFER

Municipalities Careless of an Important Asset.

Dr. Fernow says that in walking along the streets of any city one will find at least from twenty-five to fifty per cent. of trees in a damaged condition." In the small towns of eastern Canada, it is safe to say that at least seventy-five per cent. of the shade-trees need attention, for, unlike the cities, these trees employ no "tree doctors" to guard the health of the trees, and even trimming is done but irregularly, and often carelessly. Yet if the shade-trees in many of these towns were destroyed one of their chief attractions would be gone.

There are several reasons why the trees in these old towns require special attention. The chief is probably due to defective crown development, the result of overcrowding. Misshapen and weakened crowns result in excessive windbreak, and ragged breaks, if left untrimmed, provide the best possible entrance for fungi and insect pests, so that a great number of these fine old shade-trees, which because of their very age are unable, unassisted, to shake off these foes, are slowly dying through neglect.

Mature trees of whatever species should be at least thirty feet apart and the municipal act empowers municipal councils to remove trees within this limit without the owner's consent. If this provision were judiciously acted upon in the old towns of eastern Canada, the remaining shade-trees would be given a new lease of life. The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, has on its staff a skilled silviculturist whose services are available to woodlot owners. Municipal shade-trees are not, strictly speaking, woodlots, but municipalities so desiring could doubtless secure the advice of this expert regarding the trees requiring removal.

A Novelist's Career.

As a writer of exciting romance Mr. Bernard Capes enjoys a high reputation, and most readers have had the pleasure of sampling his literary wares. Like many other writers Mr. Capes tried various things before he found his true career, and he has viewed life from many standpoints.

He was born in unromantic Brixton, and was educated at Beaumont College. He desired to enter the army and began to study for the Royal Engineers, but by an error was prevented from sitting for the examination. He then spent three dreary years in a broker's office, and then deserted the city to study at the Slade School of Art, which, curiously enough, has turned out many well-known writers.

Mr. Capes gained his first big success in 1896, when he won a prize of $3,000 offered by an American firm for stories of mystery. This set him on the road to fame, and his subsequent work has gained the encomiums of the foremost literary critics.

MR. LAURENCE IRVING'S VISIT TO THIS CITY

Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabel Hackney, who will appear here at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday next, under the auspices of the British-Canadian Theatre Organization Society, within the space of three years have reached a position of exceptional prominence on the London stage. Their productions have not only appealed to those who regard the drama as a source of intellectual edification, but they have also enjoyed a popularity which has been attested by the length of their runs in London. Of the four London productions made under their own management, there is only one that has not secured the instantaneous approval of the press and the unstinted support of the public. The three productions in question are: "The Unwritten Law" founded on one of the most famous works of modern Russian fiction, Dostoeffski's "Crime and Punishment," "The Lily," which is perhaps the most remarkable comedy-drama of modern French literature and Melchior Lengyel's "Typhoon," which for the first time has made use of the tremendous dramatic theme of race collision. And these three plays which have in each case created a critical sensation in London, Mr. Laurence Irving and Miss Mabey Hackney have selected to place before Canadian audiences. Mr. Irving and Miss Hackney's artistic associations began under the foremost actor and producer of the modern English stage, Sir Henry Irving, whose younger son, Laurence Irving is. At the time they met Miss Mabel Hackney had suddenly revealed to Sir Henry a hitherto unsuspected emotional power when at three days' notice she took up and played the part of "Olivia" which many years before had set the stamp upon Ellen Terry's fame as an actress, and so greatly was Sir Henry impressed by her performance in that most exacting part, that when Miss Terry's withdrawal from his management obliged him to find a successor, he immediately entrusted "Portia" in "The Merchant of Venice," 'Rosamund' in Lord Tennyson's "Becket" and 'Margaret' in Goethe's immortal "Faust" to his newly discovered actress. It was during this rapid rise to fame that Mr. Irving and Miss Hackney decided not only to cast their artistic lot with one another, but also their lives—in other words, they got married. Previously to this they had both had the sound rough-and-tumble schooling without which no actor or actress has ever attained and kept a prominent position in the esteem of the English public; and it is this thorough grounding that has enabled Mr. and Mrs. Irving to astonish the public by the versatility of their acting—a versatility which becomes more and more rare and remarkable as in these days actors and actresses grow ever more hedged into what is professionally called "a line of business" Consider the three plays in which Mr Irving is soliciting the favor of the Canadian audiences— in "The Unwritten Law" Mr. Irving plays the part of a Russian student aglow with boundless humanitarian sympathy, the emotional fervor and the rhapsodic iconoclasm of the intellectual Russian, against which in the part of 'Sonia' Miss Mabel Hackney portrays the submissive unquestioning faith and meek obstinacy typical of the peasantry of Russia.

Hearing of the big times which were about to take place at Chemong three little children living in Harvey, the oldest about 6 years, and unknown to their parents, after a short consultation, came to the conclusion that they would go and participate They hitched up the faithful dog "Rover" to a little hand sleigh. After a few moments' thought the dog understood that the three were planning for a runaway. The trio started out towards the village across the ice, the distance is about four miles, the dog cautiously picking its way for the safety of its living freight, and arriving at the village, Rover landed its passengers at one of the well known houses where they were found huddled together in their sleigh, shivering with cold and fright. Of course a few hours after the parents having found out that their little family had deserted their shore, pursued them and found them comfortably situated at George McCue's house.

Prophecies on Completion of G.T.P. Railway

Third Avenue: The Business Section of Prince Rupert, B.C.

Linking Up The New Transcontinental

In Prince Rupert they are already talking about the golden spike which is to be driven into the Grand Trunk Pacific within three months, at the latest, to link up that system so as to make it operative from ocean to ocean. The new system, whether ready in the time stated or not, is to revolutionize the North Country through which it is to pass. Every inch of it is in Canada. The excellence of the roadbed, the leveliness of the gradient and the permanence of every physical feature are matters upon which the Grand Trunk officials plume themselves. The important consideration is that the railway opens up exhaustless resources about which the people of Eastern Canada know nothing: minerals of unknown extent and richness; timber limits without end; soil unequalled in the world; a climate which grows anything that the temperate zones can produce—all these are assets from which the people of the Dominion will begin to realize once the system is complete. The local papers in Prince Rupert are predicting the great things that will happen when the road is linked up. They point out that the Dominion and the Provincial Governments, in conjunction with the company, are creating a drydock and repairing plant costing $3,000,000, which would be worthy of any large maritime centre in the world. Indeed, it is suspected that the British Admiralty have a hand in this gigantic undertaking; for, although the British war ships have been temporarily withdrawn from the Pacific there is to be a redistribution of sea power: and in that case Prince Rupert will, in all likelihood play a distinguished part, for it has a harbor in which the whole British navy could ride at anchor. In addition to this there is a big hotel, fifteen storeys high, going up. If it be said that this must surely be in advance of need, the answer is that once the system is linked up, the Grand Trunk Pacific will put on a fleet of Pacific steamers, and in that case the visitors from the Orient will want the most comfortable and luxurious accommodation which wealthy people could desire. That being the case, the hotel is not premature. It is necessary. It is part of the great enterprise of the system itself. It is congruous to it. It is not a day too soon—it is claimed. This hotel, for which the foundations are being excavated, will have a frontage of 310 feet, according to the "Empire," one of the local papers of Prince Rupert. There is not a new city in Western Canada which starts the new year with such bright prospects as Prince Rupert, which has 5,000 people and which will have 10,000 in three years, while in a decade from now it will be a large and important metropolis, doing an immense business and occupying a delightful situation, which will attract travellers, who will prefer to go east by the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is claimed, owing to the diversity of its scenery, the ease of its grades and the more exhilarating temperature in summer.

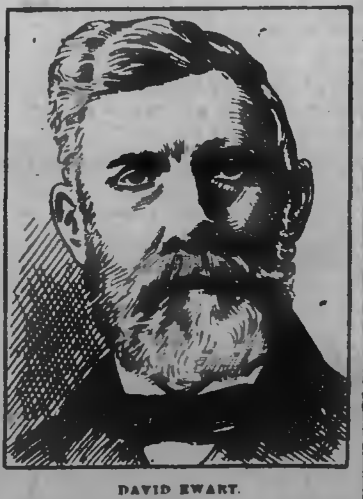
DAVID EWART RETIRES FROM PUBLIC SERVICE

DOMINION ARCHITECT HAS BEEN 42 YEARS IN HARNESS.

Public Works Official Who Has Been Canada's Designer of Public Buildings Since 1897, Has Been Decorated by British and French Governments — Is Councillor of Royal Institute of Architects.

David Ewart, chief architect of the Public Works Department of Canada, has asked to be retired and as a result of his request he will be superannuated.

Mr. Ewart has been at the head of this branch of the public service since 1897 and has designed the majority of the public buildings erected in Ottawa since that time. He first entered the public service in 1871 as an assistant to the assistant engineer and architect of the Public Works Department and has been 42 years in the service of the Government of Canada.



DAVID EWART.

It was he who directed the construction of the Canadian buildings at the Paris exposition, and among the works that have been completed under his direction is the main tower of the Parliament Buildings in the Dominion Capital. In 1903 he received the decoration of the Imperial Service Order. He was born in Scotland, at Penicuick, in 1843 and received his early education in that town. He studied for his profession in the Edinburgh School of Arts.

After coming to Canada and joining the public service staff he rose rapidly and was appointed chief Dominion architect on the retirement of the late Thomas Fuller, on Nov. 2, 1897. He received a decoration from the French Government and is a councillor of the Royal Institute of Architects of Canada. He is one of the best known and most highly esteemed citizens of the capital and resides in Ottawa South.

A Fortune for a Pot of Porter.

A curious story attaches to the recent announcement of the death of Mr. W. Wilkinson, who for thirty-five years kept the a la mode beef shop at 73 Fleet street, London, until recently, when the widening operations compelled him to move into Salisbury Court. The dish, the preparation of which is a closely-guarded secret, has made several fortunes for members of the Wilkinson family. The recipe, it is said, was sold by a soldier cook soon after Waterloo for a pot of porter to Mr. John Balls, the great-uncle of Mr. Wilkinson. He started an eating-house in 1820 in Butcher's Hall Lane, a thoroughfare near Smithfield, which has disappeared. Mr. Wilkinson's father and four of his uncles had eating-houses in various parts of the City, and were enabled to retire from business.

A la mode beef, printed on the original plates "al-a-mode," consists of tenderly-done pieces of meat in a thick brown gravy. The secret lies in the method of preparing the beef for the table. The gravy is made of the pure meat extract and three kinds of herbs. The names of the herbs are the firm's secret.

Doesn't Say So.

"She has her husband trained so he will eat out of her hand."

"Yes, but he does it with a mental reservation."

"On what point?"

"That his mother's cooking was better."

Hadn't Heard of the Earth.

"What is the baby crying for?"

"He wants the moon."

"Is that all? His father will be ashamed of him when he hears about it."

Can Use a Dozen.

When you stand in need of backing
And the talk is loud,
Then it is that you discover
There is not a crowd.

A Shrewd Smuggler.

A Greek smuggler was captured some days ago by an Egyptian coastguard in the act of smuggling hashish. He was then handed over in the ordinary course to the Greek consulate, from whose clutches he escaped. He was recently recaptured, and has just been tried by the Greek Consular Court, which sentenced him to three months' imprisonment for smuggling and three months' imprisonment for escaping; but, in view of the fact that he pleaded that he had escaped in order to fight for his country in the Balkan War, he has received a complete pardon.

BOWSER, PALMIST

Our Hero Hurls Himself Into the Midst of New Adventures.

By M. Qaud

THE Bowser cat sat on the hearth winking and blinking.

The Bowser cricket had crept under the piano to chirp.

Mrs. Bowser sat reading a book.

Mr. Bowser sat reading his paper and smoking.

It was as peaceful a household as could be found in the state.

Suddenly—

The cat ceased winking and blinking.

The cricket came off his chirp.

Mrs. Bowser looked up.

The cook fell down the cellar stairs with a yell.

Mr. Bowser hitched to the right—then to the left—then said:

"Must be a mighty interesting book."

"Fairly so," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Wouldn't want to lay it aside for a few minutes' talk with me?"

"Why, of course. I was wondering what made you so quiet. How is the Mexican situation?"

"It doesn't interest me in the slightest. As a woman you spend half your time at bargain sales, but perhaps you may have read or heard of the science called palmistry?"

"Yes," she answered.

"And do you believe in it?"

"I thought you'd bring home a new fad soon. So you have turned to palmistry?"

The Customary Abuse.

"There you go, woman! If I was to bring home a gospel hymn book found in the road you'd call it a fad. It's mighty singular that I can't move without you twitting and taunting me with being a half idiot!"

"Well, what is it about palmistry?" she asked.

"I had my palm read about a week ago, and the palmist told things so straight that I got him to give me a few lessons. As far as I know, you never had your palm read."

"And I don't think I ever will. It's too much like fortune telling."

"But just let me take your hand and look at what they call the life line. I want to see whether you are to live to a good old age or not."

Mrs. Bowser complied, and after a moment's study he scratched his head and muttered:

"Well, that's a mighty singular thing, and I can't account for it. You are going to live to be at least ninety years old!"

"Yes, I hope to."

"And according to my life line so am I."

"All the better."

"But according to that crisscross line there you are to be a widow before you are forty."

"Well?"

"And according to my crisscross line I'm to be a widower before I'm fifty."

"Then it seems that there's something out of gear with the crisscross. You'd better look at the lines on the soles of your feet and see if they won't help you out."

An Unavailing Soft Answer.

"Woman, remember who you are talking to!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he flushed up and flung her hand away.

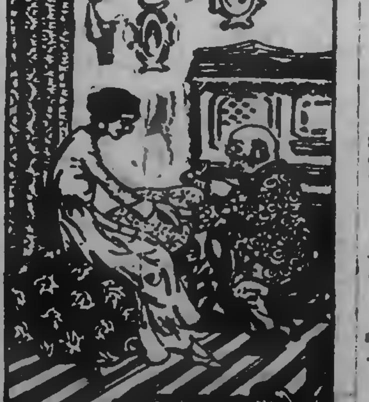
"But you have got such silly notions into your head! Let us drop palmistry this evening and have a game of cards or run into Green's. I didn't mean to hurt your feelings. Here—look at my hand again if you wish."

"But I do not wish," he stiffly replied. "There are some folks so blamed mean that their palms tell nothing more than a gridiron would. I took up palmistry for a diversion, and I propose to carry it along in spite of your would be sarcasm. I'll go down and read the cook's future for her."

The cook felt it her duty to hold out her hand as requested, and after a look at it Mr. Bowser sagely said:

"This line here indicates a short life and a violent death. This other line indicates a lack of ambition. This line tells me that you will never marry. This other line indicates that you"—

"That's enough, sir!" she said as she pulled her hand away. "Do you see that line there? Well, that indicates that if you are to come fooling around this kitchen with your nonsense I'll pack me trunk and be off in the morning!"



"A MIGHTY SINGULAR THING."

"But, my dear woman, this is palmistry," he mildly protested. "Nature has engraven certain lines on your palm as an index"—

Not to Be Trifled With.

"I am no index, sir, and if you are not satisfied with my cooking I'll go! All the lines on me palm come from rubbing the washboard and handling the flatiron, and that's all there is to 't. Am I to go?"

Mr. Bowser went instead. He was piqued and chagrined at his failure, and the sight of a half suppressed smile on Mrs. Bowser's face set his ears to working.

Mrs. Bowser discreetly held her tongue, and the cat took a walk under the piano and toned down her purr. For five minutes Mr. Bowser paraded up and down and then marched down the hall, clapped his hat on his head and passed out on the steps. He was just in time to meet a person ascending, and the person saluted him with:

"Could you help a man with a dying wife and six starving children?"

"Have you ever heard about palmistry?" queried Mr. Bowser, in reply, after a minute.

"I have, sir. It's the lines in your hands."

"Then I'm glad to meet you. Have you had your hand read?"

"I have, sir, and not half an hour ago. That's why I came here. I was told that you'd give me a quarter."

"But that isn't palmistry."

"The straightest kind, sir. It's right there in one of the lines that you'd give me a quarter and perhaps an old suit of clothes."

"Then they lied to you. I'm not giving quarters to tramps. I've seen you hanging around this street for a year."

"Then I'll get nothing from you?"

"No, sir."

Unexpected Developments.

"Then I'll tell you of another line in my hand. The feller who read it said I'd bump up against the meanest old skinflint in town before my good luck came, and I've bumped!"

"What, what! You clear out of this!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he grabbed the man by the collar.

"Yes, sir, and the next line indicates that I'm a peaceful man till I'm aroused, but that when anybody takes me by the collar"—

"You won't go, eh?" shouted Mr. Bowser as they mixed it up.

Five minutes later Mrs. Bowser and the cat went to the door to look out. Mr. Bowser sat there bareheaded, with a handkerchief to his left eye, and at the bottom of the steps an old goat that had wandered into the yard was eating up his hat.

Mr. Bowser softly dabbed the handkerchief against his aching optic and heaved a sigh, and the stars twinkled, the big white moon looked down in gentleness, and Mrs. Bowser slid into the house and hunted up the arnica and a bundle of soft rags.

Ice Jam Feared at Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 14.—An ice jam in the lower Niagara River, similar to that of 1909, which did thousands of dollars' damage, is feared to-day. The greatest ice bridge of the winter extends from the outlet of the Niagara Falls Power Co.'s tunnel to the foot of horseshoe falls, and the surface of the river is a solid mass of ice between the ice bridge and the head of the whirlpool rapids and between Lewiston and Youngstown. Conditions in the upper river are unchanged to-day, but a few meagre streams of water are passing over the American falls.

Another Local Option Aftermath.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 14.—As an aftermath of the recent local option campaign in Kemptville, A. N. Percival and W. A. Johnston appeared before Justices of the Peace Beckett and Blakely charged with swearing falsely previous to obtaining ballots on polling day. At the conclusion of the evidence the defendants were committed to stand their trial. Bail of $2,000 each was accepted.

The defendants were both strong local option supporters, and the informations were sworn to by J. Carr Anderson.

When beauty presides at this rite
And pours out the fragrant Bohea

To join in your five o'clock tea?
Though sugar and cream can excite
Some envy and malice, maybe,
And cynics cry out with delight,
"So this is your five o'clock tea!"
Still I'll be in my element quite
While you prattle in garrulous glee,
For I know all you say must be right
If you say it at five o'clock tea.

Care of Delicate Children.

Many children's ailments, especially frequent colds, are due to lack of exercise and fresh air, but delicate children will not exercise by themselves. Still it is important to encourage the play spirit, and when there is no suitable playmate the nurse or parent should take the place. Such games should be selected as will bring into action all the muscles of the body and not one set at the expense of another. There is no sensible reason for having one shoulder higher than another or why the left arm should not be built up as well as the right arm or why any child should be flat chested, says the Pictorial Review. The bones of the chest in young children are very pliable and will easily yield to exercise. Teach the child to take long breaths so that every part of the lungs, especially the top of the lungs where consumption usually begins, is filled with fresh air, which is slowly expelled in such a way as to empty the lungs entirely. This is done by raising the arms above the head while breathing in through the nose and then slowly lowering the arms down to the side of the body while exhaling or breathing out through the mouth. Faulty positions in standing or sitting should be carefully avoided or corrected. A stooping position when at meals interferes with digestion. For the proper working of the different organisms of the human body an upright position is very important; otherwise the lungs, heart, stomach, liver and other vital organs will be crowded together, and they will not perform their allotted tasks properly. All exercise should cease as soon as children show signs of being tired, and any approach to exhaustion should be carefully avoided. But for a child to tire himself with exercise or play in the fresh air is a sure way to promote health.

The diet in winter should be profuse in fats, avoiding such as experience has taught you are not readily digested. Three meals a day, with a glass of milk and a piece of bread and butter the last thing before retiring, will usually be sufficient. The child may have one quart of milk daily—not always to drink plain, but some of it with puddings and cereals. All cereals should be boiled three hours the day before they are required. Butter is perhaps the most serviceable fat and should be spread liberally on thin, stale bread. The regular diet should include two or three eggs daily, according to the child's age, baked or boiled potato, some green vegetable, beef or mutton once a day and stewed or raw fruits in season.

Getting a Child to Study.

There are some children who need no incentive to study and who by something in their natures will try to do their best at school and study their lessons with the same keen zest that they exhibit at play. These, however, are comparatively rare, while almost every parent and certainly every teacher is familiar with the children who are always finding an excuse to remain away from school or who when compelled to attend do not get high marks in their studies.

However, in these latter cases it is well for parents to devise some plan besides forcing a child to work. One mother, the parent of three children, found this carelessness toward school work rapidly overcoming her children and thought out this plan, which in her case has certainly worked wonders:

There were two girls and one boy in the family, and the mother was most anxious for them to succeed in their school work, for she well knew that it is in the schoolroom that the foundations of a successful future are laid. Accordingly she announced that whoever could show the highest marks at the end of the month would receive a prize. There was no second prize; the winner in this case took everything, and so if a child wanted to get anything at all out of its month's work it had to beat both the others. But here was the secret of her success—she made the monthly prizes well worth having. It was no cheap affair to be purchased for a few pennies, but it was always something the children wanted very much, and it always cost several dollars. And these children worked hard. It was partly the value of the prize itself and partly the spirit of competition that urged them on.

Housekeeping by Means of Play.

Finding that the playroom was almost always in disorder, one mother tried to teach her little girls more careful ways by inventing a game. She divided the room into three parts by means of three small rugs, making a bedroom, dining room and living room. On these rugs she placed appropriate dolls' furniture, leaving it to the children to add their articles of decoration. She advised them to keep the "rooms" as simple as possible so as to make the care of them easier. She showed them how to clean and dust the rooms, how to make the beds up neatly and how to set the table. This play they enjoyed so much that now that they are a little older they are a real help to their mother. They make their own beds, dust and help set the table and do all neatly and well.

BIG CATS AND CATNIP.

Leopard and Tiger Fairly Reveled in the Oderous Plant.

Some one at the Washington zoological park obtained the permission of the authorities to try the effect of catnip on the animals there. So far as known catnip does not grow in the native homes of these animals, and this was the first time they had ever smelled it.

The scent of the plant filled the whole place, and as soon as it reached the parrots' corner the two gaudily attired macaws set up a note that told fearfully on the nerves of all and made for that side of their cage, poking their beaks and claws through it. When the catnip was brought near them they became nearly frantic. They were given some and devoured it, stem, leaf and blossom, with an eagerness that equaled the noise of their cries.

Next trial was made on an African leopard. Before the keepers had reached the front of the cage he had bounded from the shelf whereon he lay, apparently asleep, and stood expectant. A double handful of catnip was passed through to the floor of the den.

Never was the prey of this spotted African in his wild state pounced upon more savagely or with such absolute enjoyment. First the leopard ate a mouthful of the stuff, then lay flat on his back and wiggled through the green mass until his black spotted yellow hide was filled with the odor, just as you have seen a cat act when it receives some catnip.

Then he sat on a bunch of the catnip, caught a leaf laden stem up in either paw and rubbed his cheeks, chin, nose, eyes and head. He ate an additional mouthful or two and then jumped back to his shelf, where he lay the rest of the afternoon, the very picture of contentment.

In one tiger's cage there is a very young but full grown animal. When this great, surly beast inhaled the first sniff of the catnip he began to mew like a kitten. Up to this time the softest note of his voice had been one which put the roar of the big maned lion near him to shame.

That vicious tiger fairly reveled in the liberal allowance of the plant which was thrust into his cage. He rolled about in it and played like a six-weeks-old kitten. He mewed and purred, tossed it about, ate of it and, after getting about as liberal a dose as the leopard had, likewise jumped to his shelf and blinked lazily the rest of the day.—New York Herald.

HIS MOST ANXIOUS MOMENT.

When Dewey Feared He Might Be Branded as a Coward.

Admiral Dewey tells in his autobiography the story of his most anxious moment. It was when he was executive officer of the warship Mississippi. After passing the forts at New Orleans his ship was about to sink under fire, and the crew had to be taken off in boats. There were not enough boats, and the danger of a magazine explosion became so great that the crews showed increasing hesitation in returning for another load. On a sudden impulse Dewey jumped into one of the boats to go after the rowers and compel them to return. He continues:

"Not until we were free of the ship did I have a second thought in realization of what I had done. I had left my ship in distress when it is the rule that the last man to leave her should be the captain, and I as executive officer should be next to the last.

"That was the most anxious moment of my career. What if a shot should sink the boat? What if a rifle bullet should get me? All the world would say that I had been guilty of about as craven an act as can be placed at the door of an officer. This would not be pleasant reading for my father up in Vermont. He would no longer think that I had done the 'rest' reasonably well. If the ship should blow up while I was away and I should appear on the reports as saved probably people would smile over my explanation."

As it turned out, however, the magazine did not explode, and Dewey's presence was needed to bring the boat crews back and save the men still on the sinking ship.

A Famous Year.

It is contended that the year 1809 gave more celebrities and persons of genius to the world than any other year of the nineteenth century. Among those who were born in that memorable year were Abraham Lincoln, Edgar Allan Poe, Oliver Wendell Holmes, William Ewart Gladstone, Charles Darwin, Lord Houghton, Alfred Tennyson, Edward Fitzgerald, Professor Blackie, Mary Cowden Clarke and Felix Mendelssohn.

Alike.

A convivial correspondent wrote to an eastern paper complaining of the condition of the village streets, closing with the statement that "the water lies in the ditch for days at a time."

The editor printed the letter, with the following "Ed. Note:" "So does our esteemed correspondent."—Omaha World-Herald.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Sty on the Eye.

A sty is caused by inflammation of a sebaceous gland of the eyelid. Frequent bathing with camomile water is a good preventive. When a little head forms it should be opened carefully with a sterilized needle and the contents gently pressed out. Then bathe the lid gently with a solution of boric acid, fifteen grains of the acid to the ounce of distilled water. The diet should be nourishing but plain. No highly seasoned or spiced foods should be eaten.

WE DO LOVE DIAMONDS!

Half of the World's Known Product Is Owned in This Country.

Diamond importations into the United States made their highest record in the calendar year 1913. The value of diamonds and other precious stones imported during the current year will approximate $57,000,000, this being the first occasion on which the total has crossed the $50,000,000 line. Twenty years ago, according to the official figures of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, department of commerce, the total imports of diamonds and other precious stones were but $11,000,000, in 1903 $28,000,000 and in 1913 approximately $57,000,000, this estimate being based upon the known figures for the nine months ended with September, which are 30 per cent in excess of the highest record heretofore made. These totals necessarily include imitations of precious stones, which now form about 2 per cent of the total, but were not separately shown prior to 1912.

The people of the United States are the world's largest importers of diamonds for permanent ownership, and they, according to a statement by George F. Kunz in the "Encyclopedia Americana," own practically half the diamonds of the world. The statement in question, published in 1903, estimated the value of all diamonds known to exist in the world at that time at $1,000,000,000 and added that about $500,000,000 worth was then owned in the United States and that "therefore it may safely be said that one-half of all the diamonds known are owned in the United States." The importations of diamonds into the United States subsequent to that date amount to over $300,000,000, making the total stock of diamonds in the United States at the present time approximately $750,000,000.

TWO WOMEN TESTIFY

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Their Health—Their own Statements Follow.

Halliburton, P.E.I.:—"I had a doctor examine me and he said I had falling of the womb, so I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. All the bearing-down pains have vanished. I have gained ten pounds in weight, the discharge is all gone, and I feel better than I have for a long time. I think any woman is foolish to suffer as I did for the sake of a few dollars.

"You can use my letter as a testimonial. It may encourage other poor women who suffer as I did to use your Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. GEO. COLLICUTT, Haliburton, Lot 7, P.E.I.

New Moorefield, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in thanking you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had bearing down pains, was dizzy and weak, had pains in lower back and could not be upon my feet long enough to get a meal. As long as I laid on my back I would feel better, but when I would get up those bearing down pains would come back, and the doctor said I had female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the only medicine that helped me and I have been growing stronger ever since I commenced to take it. I hope it will help other suffering women as it has me. PARTICIPATING vs. NON-PARTICIPATING Life Assurance

Fifteen years ago a prominent merchant on George Street took out a 10 pay 15 year endowment policy No. 69879, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a non-par policy his premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

PARTICIPATING RESULTS.		NON-PAR RESULTS.
$2637.75	Total cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total prems. paid	1725.00

Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over prem paid	almost 16 p.c.

Now, this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, call at or 'phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

CANADA'S FIRST GOVERNMENT DIFFERS FROM THE PRESENT

The Advisers of the Governor-General Did Not Care Much About Elections in Those Days, But Worried More Concerning Their Superiors and Standing at Court

Under the political institutions enjoyed by the people of Canada, it has been found possible to carry on a government that insures to the governed the greatest measure of liberty that is consistent with order, that guarantees to each citizen the enjoyment of the fruits of his industry, and encourages national development and progress. For these great blessings the Canadian people must thank their heritage in the British Constitution, which, under a government monarchical in form, gives to the people responsible and elastic democratic rule.

These thoughts are suggested by the session of our Federal Parliament which has just begun, says a writer in The Montreal Standard, and that, too, tends to cause one to look backwards to the beginning of government in this country, and to contrast the institutions of long ago with those under which it is our good fortune to live. This backward glance enables us to see how far the world has moved in the matter of government since white men came to the valley of the St. Lawrence and planted here the seeds of civilization.

Canada's earliest rulers were trading companies that, in consideration of monopolies granted them in the fur trade and the fisheries, undertook to rule the country for the King of France and develop it as a colony. Among these early mercantile rulers were the Company of Merchants of Rouen and St. Malo, the Company of Canada, the West Indies Company, and lastly the largest and best-known of them all, the Company of One Hundred Associates.

The companies did something to colonize and to protect the colonists, but on the whole they did more to prosecute the fur trade and enrich themselves. Corporation-rule did not prove a success, and finally in 1663 it was brought to an end, and royal government was set up. That year is a starting point in what may be called the history of government and laws in Canada, for the consequences of many things done by that first of Canadian royal governments influenced the course of Canadian history, and are felt to this day, especially in the Province of Quebec.

The beginning of royal government and local legislation in Canada takes us back to the year 1663, when Quebec City was only fifty-five years old, and Montreal only twenty-one, and when the great Western wilderness of the Ottawa, the Upper St. Lawrence, and the Great Lakes reached down to the very walls of the little fort that Maisonneuve had built on what is now part of the business quarter of Montreal.

The seat of that first of Canadian royal governments was Quebec, which to-day is well and truly called the "Ancient Capital."

At the head of the Government was a Governor-General, appointed by the King of France, whom the Governor-General represented and a small part of whose glory the Governor-General was permitted to reflect in the miniature court that in the rather rude palace on the heights of Cape Diamond mimicked the pomp of Versailles.

Judging from his title and from a considerable part of his commission, the Governor-General of Canada was the all-powerful local head of the administration whereas, in fact, he was not so. His powers were limited and confused by the very wording of his commission and of his instructions, and they were further limited by the powers of another high officer, who was generally considered to be subordinate to the Governor, and yet who, with respect to some matters, seemed to have outranked him. That second high official was the Intendant.

The Intendant was virtually a spy on the Governor, and every year he sent to the Minister of Marine, whose department administered colonial affairs, letters, often forty pages in length filled with the secrets of the colony, political and personal, great and small. The Governor also wrote letters, and each was jealous of the letters of the other.

To assist the Governor and the Intendant there was a body known as the Sovereign Council, composed of the Governor, the Intendant, the Bishop, and at first of five other councillors, but whose number was subsequently increased to twelve.

This remarkable Council combined some of the advisory and executive functions of the Cabinet of to-day, with some of the legislative functions of Parliament, and the functions both of a trial court and a court of appeal. The law that it enforced and, therefore, introduced into Canada, was what was known in France as the "Coutume de Paris"—the Customs of Paris, based on the ancient Roman law.

The rule of the Governor, the Intendant, and the Sovereign, or Superior Council, continued to the end of the French regime. It had its qualities, especially with respect to military affairs, for it made New France the strongest fighting unit on the continent.

With respect to civil matters, the system did not work remarkably well, in fact, it seems to have worked remarkably ill, for a French writer in describing the state of Canada in 1758—two years before its surrender—says that it is the "country of abuses."

Such, in outline, was the first royal government in this country—a system that came to an end with the surrender by Vaudreuil at Montreal in September, 1760, after on hundred years of existence.

HOME FOR A WEEK END.

Clarence was home from college,
Was home for a whole week end,
With double reefed, close hauled pants,
He smoked his popper's best cigars,
And he brought new drinks to the village bars,
And he shunned his old maid aunts.

He's got some 'orrid 'abits now,
He cusses when he talks,
And every afternoon for sure
He calls upon his manicure
And takes her longish walks.

He's freezing of his bloomin' ears
With wearing collech lids,
And every day at noon or later
He rises just to touch the pater
And then goes out—and skids.
What ho! A jolly lad I'll swear
Is Clarence home from college,
And father grins and pays the bills
And stands for Clarence and his frills.

Because—

He did the same thing when he was in college, and Clarence found it out, and now the old man is Up Against It good and plenty, and the Moral is, Don't send your young hopefuls to your old Alma Mater if you want to keep your drag with the Missus.—F. Dana Burnet in New York Evening Sun.

Unmistakable Sign.

The Blanks of East Cleveland have an astonishingly pretty maidservant. She is also astonishingly clever, as this anecdote may show.

The youngest Miss Blank is nineteen years of age, and she is already allowed by the careful parents to go out with young men in the evening. And this new maid opens the door for her, with knowing winks and nods. The other day the servant said to her young mistress:

"Pardon me, but young Mr. Dash is going to propose to you soon."

"You silly girl! What makes you think so?"

"He's so familiar around this house. He kisses me every time he meets me in the hall!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Establishing a Precedent.

"Yes, our engagement is broken. She seemed to have an idea that she could treat me in any old way and make me stand for it. But I told her last night that I was through and that she could look for some one else to be imposed upon."

"Handed it to her just like that, did you?"

"Yes, and she gave me the biggest surprise of my life."

"How?"

"She didn't say 'I should worry.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

HER LITTLE SON WAS DYING

Gave Him "Fruit-a-tives" And Saved His Life.

CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th. 1913.
"Our little boy, Lawrence, was sorely affected with Chronic Indigestion, and the doctor did not think he would recover. He started with a sore mouth and it developed into this other trouble. Everything he ate just passed right through the system without change. He cried incessantly and life was a misery to him. My husband had been using "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion, getting much benefit from them, and I thought what did him good, might help our boy. We tried "Fruit-a-tives" giving Lawrence ½ a tablet at a dose, and the result was marvellous. Today, he is the picture of health, and he is perfectly well".

COST OF THE BIG CANAL.

The Great Work Played Havoc With the Original Estimate.

When the Panama canal is complete it will have cost Uncle Sam a total of $375,000,000.

De Lesseps reckoned in 1879 that a tide level canal twenty-eight feet deep would cost only $114,000,000 and could be built in seven or eight years, including a ship tunnel through the mountains which were supposed to exist, but in 1887 his estimate was $351,000,000 and twenty years for a fifteen foot lock canal. By the end of 1888 the work was scarcely two-fifths done and nearly $400,000,000 had been spent, wasted and stolen. The new technical committee after the crash estimated that the canal could be finished in ten years for $100,000,000.

American estimates have also varied. The third canal commission in 1900 thought a canal could be built for $142,342,579—admirable exactitude!—apart from the cost of securing the land, which would be so great as to be prohibitive. The Spooner bill, under which the canal is being constructed, appropriated not more than $145,000,000 for the entire work.

The Panama canal, as now completed, is of course vastly deeper, wider, more commodious and more substantial than was ever dreamed of when the work was begun. When this enlargement of its plan is considered the increase in cost does not seem excessive, and the financial aspects of the enterprise may be compared favorably with its engineering achievements.—New York Tribune.

An Extravagant Dog.

M. Clemenceau, the French statesman, owns a large and fierce mastiff whose habit it is from time to time to make long excursions into outlying parts of Paris. When he is tired the dog will jump into a horse cab and sit there growling and showing his teeth if the cabman attempts to remove him. Seeing the name and address of M. Clemenceau engraved on the dog's collar, the cabman finally drives the dog home. In this way M. Clemenceau has had several long fares to pay.—London Tit-Bits.

Models of Wedding Presents.

A new custom has been introduced at recent weddings in Paris. Miniature reproductions of the presents that are too big to be shown at the reception are placed among the other gifts. At a recent reception there were thus a tiny motorcar, an accurate model of a villa, which had been presented to the bride and bridegroom, and a delicate reproduction of a grand piano.

The Passing Elms.

Old England will sympathise with New England in the latter's sorrow over the deterioration of the elm. In England the elm, which is as old as the Roman, is dying of senile decay, and it is being urged that seed be imported and nurslings started from the more vigorous foreign stock.—Chicago Tribune.

Sidestepped Them.

"Yes, pretty fair. I was hit only three times by eggs, etc."

SAMPLES FOR ROYALTY.

Every Year the King and Queen Receive Thousands of Them.

None of their Majesties' subjects receive anything like the quantity of sample goods which are sent to the King and Queen. They keep coming to Buckingham Palace throughout the whole year, but they arrive in enormous quantities some weeks before Christmas, says Answers.

A special room at Buckingham Palace is set aside for the reception of these sample goods, and at Christmastide so numerous are the samples that arrive that usually two men from the private Court Postoffice have to be employed to deal with them.

The rule concerning unsolicited sample goods sent to their Majesties is very simple. All such goods of considerable value are to be returned to the senders; ordinary samples of little value can be retained and divided among any of the royal servants who wish to keep them.

Many of the sample goods sent to the King are of considerable value, and they came from tradesmen all over the world, who hope by this means to secure the patronage of the British monarch. For example, a Paris cigar merchant sent the King shortly after his accession a sample of fifty cigars in a magnificent gold box, worth at least fifty pounds. Both the box and cigars were, of course, returned to the sender.

Last Christmas, among the samples received by the King were enough cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, and pipes to keep the most inveterate smoker well supplied for many years. Five thousand sample boxes of all sorts of cigars arrived in one week from hundreds of different cigar manufacturers, and most of the samples were in silver boxes. They were all returned to the senders.

At Christmas time, when sample goods begin to arrive in very large quantities, a clerk enters in a book particulars of all the valuable articles received, and opposite each item a note is subsequently made giving the date upon which the sample has been sent back; it is but very occasionally that the King or Queen care to retain some of these valuable samples, but if either of their Majesties do so the goods so retained are paid for.

The total value of the various sample goods sent to their Majesties in the year is certainly not less than $150,000, but the bulk of the goods arrive, of course, some weeks before Christmas.

Queen Mary receives most marvellous assortments of exquisite dress fabrics, examples of beautiful laces, embroidery work, and shawls, whilst specially prepared catalogues, never seen by the ordinary public, of various goods arrive in a perfect avalanche at Buckingham Palace at this time of year.

Many of these catalogues cost a very considerable sum of money to produce. A well-known firm that specializes in children's toys has a special catalogue prepared every year for their royal customers, which costs them about $2,500 to turn out.

It is printed on the best class of cream glazed art paper, and is most elaborately and profusely illustrated from drawings and photographs. It is bound in vellum, and bears the royal crown on the cover stamped in gold. A copy of the catalogue is sent to every crowned head in Europe.

An Old Crocodile.

One of the most interesting specimens in the British Museum is a crocodile more than 2,000 years old. It is a big, well preserved specimen, and on its back there is a whole family of little crocodiles.

Years before the Christian era the Egyptians worshipped crocodiles among their animal deities, and many specimens were kept at great expense in their parks and royal gardens, where they were attended by priests and given all sorts of dainty morsels for food. When these crocodile gods died they were emblamed and placed in the tombs along with the mummies of other sacred animals. This particular crocodile was prepared by dipping it in wax and pitch, which rendered it hard and shiny, and it lay in one of the pyramids century after century, until the Egyptian Government dug it out and presented it to the museum.

Printed While You Wait.

The London County Council is experimenting with an ingenious automatic printing apparatus on the Enfield-Euston tramway route.

The machine, which weighs 4 pounds, is hung on a strap worn by the conductor, and by a turn of the handle the ticket is produced clearly printed, containing the number, date (morning or afternoon), where available to and from, time issued, changing point where necessary, amount of fare, and some of the usual regulations.

The machine also automatically calculates the number of tickets of each denomination issued during the day and the amount to be paid in by the conductor, thus doing away with way-bills and checking.

Cannot Stop Marriage.

Bank clerks and matrimony has been the subject of legislation by the Australian Parliament. The Assembly has approved of a new clause in the Criminal Code Bill, by which any person or corporation, prohibiting, under threat of dismissal, the marrying of any employe over twenty-one years of age, will be liable to a fine of $2,500, or three months' imprisonment. The clause is the outcome of evidence in the Arbitration Court that the Western Australian banks prohibit the marriage of clerks receiving under $1,000 per annum.

Ridiculea Ulster Army.

So much talk has come out of Ireland about the Ulster movement and the "determination to adopt desperate measures for armed resistance against home rule" that the experiences of a former sergeant of the Royal Artillery, who offered his services as drill instructor to the Ulster volunteer force, is interesting.

The officer returned to London disgusted and full of ridicule. He says he found absolutely no excitement in Belfast and went to Bangor, where, he says, "I saw about sixty men on parade, with wooden guns of no use to anybody. Some of these extraordinary weapons had wooden stocks, iron barrels and tin trigger guards, while others were all wood, stock, barrel, trigger guard and everything.

"The men were about as well drilled as the average schoolboy and knew nothing of extended or company formations. I saw fifty members of a ladies' ambulance corps give a much smarter drill than the men."

Undeserved Honors.

"I was rather embarrassed," the amateur hunter confessed.

"Why so?"

WORKMENS COMPENSATION BILL AND RE-ARRANGEMENT OF REPRESENTATION

Only Two Measures Referred to in Speech From the Throne

Brilliant Scene at the Opening of Ontario Legislature

Canadian Press Despatch

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—With Sir James Whitney in the hospital, and Hon Mr. Foy in New York, on a brief holiday, Hon Dr. Pyne is leading the Assembly for a few days. The reading of the speech from the throne by the Lieut. Governor, Sir John Gibson, and the introduction of four new members, were the chief business of the day.

The weather was perfect and the scene at the opening was as usual, a brilliant society event.

The debate in the reply to the speech begins tomorrow. The only bills foreshadowed in the speech were the Workmen's Compensation and the re-arrangement of representation. The need of increased revenue and the methods of raising the same were referred to. The illness of Sir James Whitney and the return of the Duke of Connaught to Canada were mentioned. For the rest, the speech was a mere recital of the year's progress, neither recalling any notable event, nor hinting at anything sensational to come.

PROF. SHORTT. TO SPEAK TO-NIGHT

Canadian Club Dinner Commences at 6.30 at the Savoy.

Dr. Adam Shortt of Ottawa, chairman of the Civil Service Commission of Canada, will address the Canadian Club this evening, Feb. 18th, at the Savoy Coleman's. Dr. Shortt was for years professor of political economy at Queen's University. It was while there that he won for himself a place among the foremost in the ranks of political economists. He has contributed largely to magazines and periodicals in both Canada and the United States on current events and topics of reform. He is a recognized authority on labor questions and disputes and has on different occasions been appointed by the Government to act as arbitrator in times of strike and lock-outs.

His subject is taxation, and one is quite safe in saying that he will treat this present day vexed topic in a manner that will be at one and the same time a delightful and an instruction to those who hear him, for be will bring to bear upon it the fruits of years of study and a facility of expression that is the result of clear thinking.

It is to be hoped that there will be a large turn-out of the members of the club to welcome Prof. Shortt and to hear what will be one of the best addresses of the season.

Dinner at 6.30 p.m. sharp.

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND SAW THE NEW MINISTER

Sketch Will be Presented Again on Friday Night

Knox lecture hall was again crowded to the doors to greet "The New Minister," and judging from the applause which was almost continuous, the audience thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment.

It is estimated that upwards of one thousand people witnessed the two presentations. The New Minister is one of the best sketches ever given before a local audience. It is possible that the sequel "The Minister's Honeymoon," will be presented by the young people at a future date.

As on the previous night, sparkling music and ludicrous situations kept intense interest aroused and allowed of no dragging. The solos and chorus work were especially good and reflect great credit on Mr. Geo. Kenyon for the quite apparent great pains he has taken to achieve such success.

It was announced last night that in order to protect all those who have tickets and were unable to gain admission, that the production would be repeated again on Friday evening, 20th.

RELIGION OF THE FIRST TWO BOYS

Evangelist Compton Draws Large Audiences to the Tabernacle.

HIS LIFE STORY.

The revival meetings in Bethany Tabernacle continue with increasing interest and attendance. The Mountaineer Evangelist spoke last night on the subject of "The Religion of the First Two Boys of the Human Family." He said both boys were very religious. Both came presenting their offerings to God. Cain's was rejected, Abel's was accepted. And why?

In Cain's offering there was no confession of need, no repentance, no perspective hope of anything great. He considered his own efforts sufficient. Abel came with a confession of guilt bringing a blood sacrifice, which alone could atone for sin. His offering was accepted because he came God's way.

Many people want their own way. They want a bloodless religion. Satan is trying to put down the blood and is exalting good works and substituting the same for a righteous life and a living contact with the Holy God.

All dispensations have ended in judgment because of Cain (bloodless) religion.

To-morrow (Thursday) night Mr. Compton will relate the story of his life. "From the poverty ignorance, and isolation of the Appalachian Mountains he has been delivered by the hand of God and has since travelled more than 250,000 miles preaching the everlasting Gospel of the grace of God."

Probably there has never been a man in Peterborough with a story to tell like the life story of Mr. Compton.

Service to-night at 8 o'clock and each day this week at 3 and 8 p.m. A cordial welcome to all.

SASKATCHEWAN'S POTATO CROP

Average Yield Per Acre Was Less Than Previous Year.

REGINA, Feb. 18.—The total value of the potato crop of Saskatchewan for 1913 was slightly over $2,000,000 according to the final crop reports that have just been compiled by the statistics department of the provincial government. The average yield per acre was 158 bushels, considerably less than 1912, when the yield was 200. This is offset, however, by a much higher average price, 54 cents this year, as compared with 39 1-2 cents in the previous year. The total number of bushels produced was 4,634,000. The entire acreage of the province was 650,000.

Fifteen thousand acres in the province were devoted to the raising of corn, fodder and miscellaneous crops and slightly over 9,340 acres to the production of roots, turnips, and similar products.

GRAIN GROWERS AND THE NAVY

Moose Jaw Farmers Vote Against Disarmament—Wild Applause for the Navy.

The following is an account of a meeting of the grain growers, held at Moose Jaw on Feb. 13th, and it shows that the western farmers are not all anti-naval men, but very much the opposite:

Amid wild applause the grain growers assembled here to-day demonstrated that they were in favor of maintaining an adequate naval force, until such time as universal disarmament should be possible. A resolution was introduced advocating universal disarmament and settlement of international disputes by arbitration, and deprecating "the spending of any money in increasing navies and armaments." The last clause excited immediate objections all over the hall, and an amendment striking out the words quoted above passed at once, the delegates cheering and clapping enthusiastically.

The passage of the various resolutions on the printed lists excited some discussion, but little feeling, until that referring to disarmament was reached. The original text of this, the last on the list, ran as follows: "Resolved that this convention places itself on record as being in favor of the adoption of universal disarmament and the settlement of international dispute by arbitration, and that we deprecate the spending of any money in increasing navies and armaments." Hardly had the chairman finished reading the resolution when delegates sprang up everywhere to protest against the last clause. J. J. Aitcheson, in moving as an amendment that all the words after "arbitration" should be struck out, said, "if we don't have universal peace we have got to have a navy." The passage of the amendment by an overwhelming majority was the signal for a remarkable outburst of enthusiasm throughout the hall.

GOOD TIME AT THE ARMOURIES

Regimental Smoker Was Well Attended by the Men.

The members of the 57th Regiment had a fine time at the Armouries last night, the occasion being the annual regimental smoker. The program was made up of musical numbers, dancing and cards. Col. Clegg gave a short address in which he spoke of several matters of interest to the regiment. Canon Davidson, chaplain, gave a recitation.

The committee are very much indebted to Mr. Clayton, of the Royal Theatre, who so kindly placed the artists at their disposal.

THE PUBLIC BUILDING SITE

To the Editor of The Review.

Sir,—Owing to my having for a great many years been a merchant on George Street, I have been following with interest, the various opinions that have been expressed by the merchants and other citizens on the question of building the new post office, Customs House, Inland Revenue Office and Trent Valley Offices, at the corner of George and Sherbrooke Street. It certainly appeals to me that it would be in the interest of Peterboro to have these new Dominion Government buildings erected there.

It will have a wholesome effect on the business interests of Peterboro. At the present time the stores and office buildings on George Street and on the streets immediately connected with George Street, are practically owned or controlled by two landlords who enjoy complete monopoly. The merchants and those who rent offices in this district are practically under the control of these two landlords, who arbitrarily fix their rents and who will only make repairs or improvements on onerous terms and conditions, which the tenant has practically to submit to.

There are a number of stores on George Street which are old and out of date, and are nothing more or less than fire traps and death traps in their present condition. Instead of these old buildings being repaired, they should be rebuilt from the ground up. The collapse of the building last fall, during the time it was undergoing extensive repairs, amply demonstrates that it is time for this city to get away from absentee landlordism and its economizing patchwork.

If the new Government buildings are built further down George St., encouragement will be given to owners of property in that vicinity to put up new and modern stores and office buildings, and the result will be that tenants will be able to rent their stores on more reasonable terms and conditions. The two landlords will be more anxious to make necessary repairs and improvements to retain their tenants. They may also see the necessity of building new and modern buildings in the place of those now existing.

By all means, let this city rid itself of this monopoly and have the new Government buildings erected where the Dominion Government engineer has selected.

To meet the greater convenience of East City, a branch post office could be established there at a central point.

Yours etc.,
ADAM HALL.

To the Editor of The Review.
Dear Sir,—

Permit me through the columns of your paper, to make a few remarks about the new site for the proposed new Post Office.

In the first place we should feel very grateful indeed to our worthy member, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., who is ever watching the interests of this riding, and the city of Peterboro, and also to the expert sent here by the Department at Ottawa, for his good judgment in selecting so admirable a site. In my opinion he could not have chosen a better one, as it is more central than the present one, and in view of all the new factories locating in the south end, and only a matter of a short time when all south of the Exhibition grounds and Byersville will form part of the city, it will be most central.

I am informed sir, that more mail is collected and distributed south of Sherbrooke Street, than all the rest of the city combined. If you doubt this, go and enquire from the Post Office authorities and you will find I am correct. I am surprised at the George Street residents and business men making such a howl about the removal of the Post Office. I venture to say that between Charlotte and Brock Streets there are not more than a dozen people who get their mail in boxes at the Post Office.

Then, sir, in my opinion, there is still a more important reason why the Post Office should be moved to the corner of George and Sherbrooke Streets. Everyone knows that the stores and business places on George Street are controlled by practically two concerns. If you want a store or office, you take it at the rent mentioned, or do without it, and I am informed rents are pretty high. This would not be the case were the Post Office moved to the proposed new site. Good buildings would be put up, rents would be cheaper, and taxes would be lowered by the vast improvements which would take place in this section of the city.

I trust, sir, the Mayor and Aldermen of our city, (especially the Ward One al~~derman), will do all in~~ their power to see that the wishes of the department and the people of the city generally, are carried out, and decide to have the Post Office on the proposed site at George and Sherbrooke Street.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours truly,
WARD ONE.

Peterboro, February 18, 1914.

LOCAL PEOPLE IN WRECK NEAR SMITH'S FALLS

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lenton Were on ill Fated Train

ENGINEER KILLED

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lenton had an unpleasant experience yesterday when returning from Montreal, they were passengers on the C.P.R. express train that was wrecked near Smith Falls. The train struck a broken rail and all the coaches left the track. The engineer was killed.

Mr. and Mrs. Lenton escaped injury.

Another train was made up and it arrived at the local depot shortly after seven o'clock.

The despatch from Smith Falls follows:

SMITH'S FALLS, Feb. 18.—Engineer Robert Grant of Montreal was instantly killed, Fireman Ernest Anderson, of Smith's Falls, sustained a fracture of the leg, and nearly a dozen others were slightly injured in a wreck on the C. P. R. between Mountain and Inkerman, about 1.30 yesterday afternoon. The Montreal-Toronto flyer, running at a speed of 40 miles an hour, struck a broken rail, the engine being ditched and the entire train leaving the track. Engineed Grant was buried beneath the locomotive, and his firemen was hurled some distance into an adjoining field.

The escape from death of many of the other passengers and trainmen is considered miraculous, as two of the coaches were badly smashed by coming in contact with the overturned engine. There were, however, not more than 50 passengers on the train and comparatively few in the cars which bore the brunt of the shock.

The train was a heavy one, consisting of the baggage, mail and express cars, six day coaches, two Pullmans and diner. Had not the engine overturned, it is probable that no great damage would have occurred. Several of the cars ran past the engine safely, but two of the coaches fouled it and were wrecked. The other cars were not overturned.

The wreck is believed to have been due to the action of frost heaving and breaking a rail.

REBEKAHS ENTERTAINED.

It is understood that the City Trust Commissioners are considering the feasibility of building two stores in the market arcade. This will necessitate the use of the entrance from Charlotte street.

DECISION FOR THE NEGATIVE

Another Interesting Debate at St. Andrew's Hall.

In the debate, "Resolved that the high cost of living is not retarding the growth of Canada," at St. Andrew's lecture hall last night, the decision was given to the negative side, composed of Messrs. Breckenridge Turner and Taylor, from St. Paul's Young Men's Bible Class. Messrs. Mills, Connor and Campbell of St. Andrew's Utopia Bible Class were the affirmative.

The debate was heard by a large audience.

MORE POLICEWOMEN

Chicago's experience with police women has proved so successful that Major M. L. O. Funkhouser, second deputy superintendent of police, announced on January 13, that he will ask the city council for funds to employ 15 more women police.

"The women 'bluecoats' have done a wonderful amount of good," said Major Funkhouser. "The ten we have on the force have been assigned to dance halls, and the curbing they have done there has been conducive to much good. We need more policewomen."

WEDDED BUT PARTED.

He was fined the customary $2, after vouching the information that a few weeks ago he suffered injuries to the extent of having acouple of his toes crushed. Asked if he had a wife, he remarked that he had, but, he was not residing with her or assisting her in her up-keep.

SEWERAGE DISPOSAL.

The City Engineer is still waiting for the plans of the sewerage disposal plant, which he forwarded to the Provincial Board of Health.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT ON COLONIZATION ROADS

Mr. G. W. Bennett Reports 1250 Miles of Highway Constructed or Improved

George W. Bennet, Superintendent of Colonization Roads, in his report to the Minister of Public Works, states that during the past year 1,250 miles of highway, at a cost of $406,341, have been constructed or improved. The roads in the northern part of Ontario have been found to cost considerably more than similar work in older Ontario by reason of the Government having to maintain camps for the workers.

In the district comprising Fort Frances, Rainy River, Kenora, Fort William, Port Arthur, Algoma, Sudbury, and Manitoulin Island, 292 miles of colonization roads were completed, and 205 miles of roads under the by-law system. The total cost of the latter was $59,000, of which the province bore $45,000.

In the western district, Parry Sound, Muskoka, Simcoe, Bruce, Sturgeon Falls and Nipissing, the colonization road mileage is 116; by-law roads 80 miles. The cost of the latter was $15,000, the province paying $11,000.

The eastern division, which includes the remainder of the northern part of old Ontario, has now 292 miles of new colonization roads. The by-law roads, new and improved, amount to 344 miles. The expenditure for this section was $52,000, of which $32,000 was granted by the Government.

In the Temiskaming district 113 miles of by-law roads were built at a cost of $17,000, of which the Government paid $10,000. The Soo-Sudbury road was pushed ahead for a considerable distance, and 18 miles of this now remains to be completed.

A FINE STORY FOR REVIEW READERS

Tarzon of the Apes Will Start To-morrow.

Not like any other story you ever read before is "Tarzan of the Apes." While you are reading it you would like to pause to ask yourself "Is it possible?" but you can't because the story is so fascinating that pausing is impossible. It's a yarn of the you-can't-stop-until-you-finish-it kind

It may have happened in the wilds of Africa just as the author relates it, or it may not—we do not know whether or not he has a basis of fact for his story—but you are not a scientist while you are reading it. You are just an ordinary human being, with a love for a story that is absorbing in its interest and swiftness. Tarzan of the Apes will commence in The Review with Thursday's issue.

THE KIKUYU CONTROVERSY

676 Clergymen Support the Heretic Bishop of Zanzibar

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Six hundred and seventy-six clergymen of the Diocese of London presented a memorial to the Upper House of Convocation at Canterbury yesterday afternoon, expressing grave anxiety as to the future of the Church of England, in view of the Kikuyu controversy.

This action indicates that the Bishop of Zanzibar has a strong body of supporters and much increases the difficulty of settlement and the possibility of a schism.

Mr. Clarry's resignation has been anticipated for some time, as it has been well understood that he would before long become master-in-chambers at Calgary. It is anticipated that formal notice of Mr. Clarry's appointment will be given within a few days, which will give both Calgary and Edmonton a master-in-chambers.

ARE TAKING NO CHANCES

Australia Not Willing to Wait Until Danger Arrives.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Speaking at a civic reception at Sydney yesterday, Sir Ian Hamilton declared that the nation's powers were arising now that it had got within the range of potential interference, and it might be that the next phase of great military struggles would be in the Pacific.

"Cast your eyes west, northwest and east," he said, "and you will see a ring of armed men and armed nations, with Australia sitting in the middle of that ring. It appears to me that some of those nations are looking in formidable manner at Australia. It is important that the people of Great Britain, South Africa, Canada and India should know and feel that in what I may call the hub of the Pacific, the people are not waiting until danger absolutely arrives, but are taking time by the forelock."

Slayer of Fragson Dies.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Victor Pott, who shot and killed his son, Harry Fragson, the comedian, last December, after a trivial dispute, died in prison yesterday. He was to have been tried on a charge of homicide. Pott was 84 years of age, and, as there are no relatives living, so far as known, and Pott left no will, a large part of Fragson's fortune, which is estimated at $400,000, will go to the French Treasury.

Local Branch of W.C.T.U. Hold Memorial Service and Meeting

A specially interesting meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Knapman, 604 George street, on Tuesday afternoon.

It is customary to hold a day of loving memory on the home-going anniversary of the beloved worldwide leader, Frances E. Willard.

The unusually large number at the meeting proved that many are interested in white-ribbon work.

Early in the afternoon the ladies met to make comfort bags to be sent to the lumbermen in the northern camps. While the work was going on Mrs Shields read a very interesting account of the history of the comfort bags, their construction and the good they had done in providing for the needs of the men in the camps. They were made of brown and green denim, with four pockets which were filled with many comforts, such as marked testaments, hymn books, leaflets, a letter from the Union, paper and envelopes, pencils, pins, needles, thimbles, handbags, mending yarn and pieces of cloth, surgical needles and thread and many other useful things.

Prison Labor.

It was decided to send a letter from the Union to the local member of the Dominion Parliament asking him to give his vote and influence to the Bill for Remuneration of Prison Labor and the State use of Prison Products, as the W.C.T.U. believes the prisoner should earn his own maintenance, and be made to support those dependent on him, that they may not become a public charge.

Delegates were appointed to the Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance to be held in Toronto next week as follows:—Mrs. Knapman and Mrs. Armstrong, with Mrs. Thornton and Mrs. Taylor as alternates.

A most interesting address was that of Mrs. Whalley, on the life and work of Frances E. Willard, in which she told of attending a world's White Ribbon Convention held in Toronto a number of years ago, where she heard Miss Willard speak. Among the many inspiring things she heard from Miss Willard were these:—"To be good—that one's simple will might be the good angel of millions, that is the supreme dream of my intellect."

Although the sun was shining brightly all the afternoon, it was still brighter in Mrs. Knapman's beautiful home. The music was much enjoyed, which consisted of solos from Mrs. Freeman and Mrs. Davidson, a piano solo by Miss Knapman and a piano duett by Mrs. Hicks and Mrs. Lewis. Ernest prayer was offered by Mrs. Campbell and Miss Munro. Ten new members were added to the roll.

Dainty refreshments were served, after which a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Knapman for her kind hospitality.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 18, 1914.

FAIR TRADE BEFORE FREE TRADE.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM has given notice of a tariff resolution in the Commons which presents one phase of the protectionist argument, and will probably provoke considerable debate if it is ever reached on the order paper this session. Mr. Burnham asks the House to declare that "it is desirable that manufactured goods and natural products coming into Canada from any other country where the rate of wages of those employed in the making or raising of such goods is below that prevailing in Canada be subjected to a tariff duty sufficient to preserve the standard or rate of wages of those in Canada employed in, making or producing like goods and products." This is an interesting suggestion and one that ought to receive the unanimous support of all trades-unions and labor men, as well as the manufacturers. Let us have fair trade before free trade. It is not fair that manufacturers who are paying starvation wages in one country should be patronized and allowed to compete on the same basis with the man who pays a living wage at home. The people who purchase the products of sweated labor and demand a decent wage for the work they do themselves are not merely unconsistent, but they are aiding and abetting the sweater in his crime. Such legislation, as is proposed by Mr. Burnham, would be protectionist in the highest and largest sense. It will protect our home industries and protect the workers of other countries as well; it might well have a salutary effect upon the whole labor world.

AN APPEAL TO HANSARD.

HON. ROBT. ROGERS turned down Hon. F. Oliver the other night in the House in a truly Rogersian way. Mr. Oliver accused Mr. Rogers of deliberately lying when he said that Mr. Oliver had, when Minister, approved in a speech of the participation in elections of Western governmental employees. When challenged Mr. Rogers said he had not got his authority at hand. This inflamed Mr. Oliver "who fairly raised the devil." Next day however when Mr. Oliver reviewed his demand fiercely, Mr. Rogers produced Hansard of 1906 which recorded the most vicious statements of Mr. Oliver in this respect and cowed and silenced Oliver. It was a strange denouement.

KIKUYU ?

KIKUYU is the centre of a great ecclesiastical controversy in England just now. The Anglican Church has been stirred to its depths by strife within and without over the action of the Missionary Bishop of Kikuyu in admitting a Presbyterian brother missionary to the Sacrament of Holy Communion. Among the Low Church Anglicans general sympathy is expressed with the erring Bishop. Canon Henson is among the supporters of the heretic, and of course the Nonconformist Churches of Great Britain are taking advantage of the opportunity of bringing home to their Anglican brothers the folly of ecclesiastical exclusiveness. They argue that the sharp divisions between the different sects of Christianity are detrimental to the propagation of the Gospel among heathen races such as the Knkuyu—but where is Kikuyu, and what is it like ? A writer in the British Weekly answers this question in a very interesting manner :—

"As I was there a few months ago I can tell you something about it. But a more pertinent question is : Who are the Knkuyu ? The Kikuyu are the chief tribe in the locality of Nairobi, the modern capital of British East Africa, which is a hustling town of mushgrown growth, full of motors and smartly dressed people, with many pretentious buildings and pleasure grounds—racecourse, theatre, churches, Young Men's Christian Association, etc.—the last-named, by the way, far ahead of any such establishments I have seen in England. In the midst of all this twentieth century bustle is the seething mass of the Kikuyu, one of the most barbaric-looking tribes I have ever come across, and at present hardly touched by the civilization with which they are in contact. If report be true, as I believe it is, they leave it to the hyenas to dispose of their dead—or, worse, their dying—and they have other, to us, revolting customs, tempered, nevertheless, by many virtues and offering a vast field for missionary enterprise.

"A year ago I was wandering through Uganda, 400 miles from Kikuyu, with an inland sea, called Lake Victoria, but as big as Scotland, in between. I had with me three British comrades and 100 black men, the latter changing as we passed from tribe to tribe, but all happy, merry children to the sun, and mostly Christians. When I was young that land was sunk in utter barbarism, and until about a quarter of a century ago it was the scene of deeds too devilish to describe. To-day, judged by ordinary standards, it is a Christian land, with native churches on hill tops and in banana groves. To some of these churches I went, and I always found them full. Whenever I went into Uganda it was much about the same, and these two societies—the C.M.S. and the White Fathers—have done it all, two conquering armies who have rescued thousands upon thousands from the horrors of heathenism, yet who are separated from each other by theological barriers far stronger than those that have caused the Kikuyu fight, and I venture to assert that the average layman, be he Churchman or Nonconformist, while he respects the strong convictions of the combatants, views that fight with entire unconcern."

Thus it would appear that the divisions are not such an hindrance as might be supposed. The "natives" are as much attracted by variety as by uniformity ; and while it does seem ridiculous for one Christian to refuse to sit at the same table with another, there is not much in the thing after all. Still, a little controversy on the subject may lead us to a true estimate of the intrinsic value of these distinctions of creed. The danger is in our not appreciating the difference between Christianity and Churchianity.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE CROWN PRINCE of Germany, the future Kaiser, is reported to be suffering from the "mumps." He will doubtless survive this along with the other child's complaints from which he suffers occasionally.

THE LONDON DAILY MAIL has offered a prize of $50,000 for the first successful flight across the Atlantic in an air craft. Rodman Wanamaker has entered for the competition, and it would appear that there will be some fun and excitement on the Atlantic yet.

BILINUALISM seems likely to range the French and Irish races on opposite sides. They have certainly worked themselves up into a countrywide fury. The Irish are obeying their Church while the French oppose it. English-speaking Protestants are siding with the Church which will doubtless crush out the antagonism of its wayward followers.

THE MONTREAL DAILY MAIL says : "The world is waiting for an invention that will shake down the furnace and put on more coal, bring in the frozen milk and put on the kettle, after making the fire." This would certainly help to solve the servant problem.

MR. E. N. LEWIS, West Huron, has given notice of a resolution in the House of Commons declaring for the restriction of immigration to the "producing classes of the Northern European countries, and barring, as far as possible, all Asiatics and all natives of the South of Europe, of the Slav countries," those living south of 44 degrees of north latitude and east of 20 degrees of east longitude. Mr. Lewis refers in his resolution to the necessity for maintaining in Canada the national characteristics of the sturdy settlers; to the evils of indiscriminate immigration; to the large amount of unemployment now in Canada, especially among the foreign element, due in considerable extent to the cessation of railway construction on a large scale; and, finally, to the under-production of fod because so few of the vast number of immigrants of recent years go on the land.

The New Jerusalem.

Ottawa Journal.

A French company intends building and operating a tram line in Jerusalem running to the top of Mt. Olivet. Another company will establish a sardine canning factory on the shores of Lake Galilee. While this may benefit some people one would think that Christian nations would join to prevent any such desecration of spots occupying such a venerable place in the Christian belief. Imagine, for instance, a cigar store in Westminster Abbey or soda fountain in St. Peter's in Rome. It wouldn't be any worse than tram cars running up Mt. Olivet and sardine canneries surrounding the shores of Galilee.

God's Will.

By Mildred Howells.

God meant me to be hungry,
So I should seek to find
Wisdom, and truth, and beauty,
To satisfy my mind.

God meant me to be lonely,
Lest I should wish to stay
In some green earthly Eden
Too long from heaven away.

God meant me to be weary,
That I should learn to rest
This feeble, aching body
Deep in the earth's dark breast.

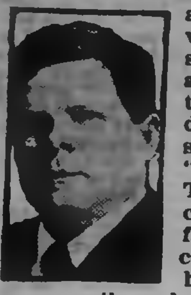
Go West, Young Woman.

The Globe.

A census bulletin recently issued proves that this was sound advice. In 1901 throughout the Dominion there were 105 men to 100 women. In 1911 there were 113 men to every 100 women. Between the ages of 20 and 45 the men outnumber the women by 24 in every hundred. But the startling feature is that in all Eastern cities except Montreal, where the balance of the sexes is fairly well preserved, women exceed men in almost as great a proportion as men exceed women in the West. Put into plain English, this means that in the East tens of thousands of young women can never be married because there are not men enough to go around, while in the West tens of thousands of young men can never be married because there are not women enough to provide wives for all.

SPRING POETRY

By Walt Mason



The Spring is coming—let her come ! The bees will soon begin to hum and buzz around on gauzy wings, and jolt us with their redhot stings. The boy who is too tired and worn to help the old man plant some corn, will shovel for a fortnight straight to get good supply of bait. The women will once more arise, the light of battle in their eyes, and clean the house, from room to room, with mop and duster, rag and broom, while patient husbands seek the barn, and say such words as "Gee" and "Darn." The Spring is coming—let her come ! The hobo leaves the city slum, to roam through country fields and bogs, and dodge the same old farmers' dogs. The agent, rested, full of zeal, comes forth with his impassioned spiel, and sells his patent safety churn. And now, by almost every mail, seed catalogues come by the bale, and men whodeal in rust-proof oats come forth and bear away our goats. Such ills the vernal months will bring, and yet we're honing for the Spring ! For sunny skies and budding flowers, soft winds and plain and fancy showers ! For warbling birds and growing grass, and heaps of nice fresh garden sass !

THE CHART

I journey over a desert wide,
Where never a foot print marks the way,
But wildering wastes on every side,
Stretch dangerous far dull bleak, and grey.
Through tracts unknown, where the crafty snare
And pitfalls lurk, 'neath a starless dome,
O'er rude barren sands, sun-scorched and bare,
But my Chart will guide me safely home.
I voyage lone on a surging tide,
'Mid foaming billows, wild winds, that rave
O'er sunken rocks that treacherous hide,
In ambush under the tranquil wave.
I know not if near or distant far,
The longed-for haven of rest may be,
But I steer straight by the bright pole star,
And my Chart will guide safe o'er the sea.
So I still press onward toward the goal,
Tho' gathering tempests chilling rise,
Grim perils and doubts affright my soul,
Still I shall win the glorious prize.
Thus no faithless fears dismay my heart,
Even when dark clouds the sky o'er cast,
For the Blessed Gospel is the Chart
That will guide me safe to port at last.

SECURITIES FOUND.

Valuable Bag Was Stolen From Ottawa Post Box.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Some $50,000 in checks, drafts, and money orders, some negotiable, belonging to the Union Bank of Canada and the Union St. Joseph Society, stolen from the Ottawa Postoffice on Jan. 8, were found yesterday in a bag hidden in a lavatory of the Canada Life Building.

On the night of Jan. 7, one of the bank messengers left his bag in the postoffice, intending to get the mail from the bank's private box in the morning. When he returned the bag was gone and the mail box empty. It was also discovered that the Union St. Joseph box was also empty. One of the Union Bank checks was a certified one for $25,000. The police are working on a clue, implicating a boy in the theft.

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Feb. 18.—The accident to the Roma will result in efforts being made by shipowners to have the Government place a light on No Man's Land, in the opinion of pilots. While this is a powerful beacon, mariners say that in a thick blizzard like Monday night's a ship would be on No Man's Land before her navigator could make out the light.

Natural History

Something About Bulls, and One Bull in Particular.

By M. Quad.

A SPOTTED bull in a meadow dwelt,
And mighty fine that critter felt.
A lion's roar the bull he had,
And he was always ripping mad.

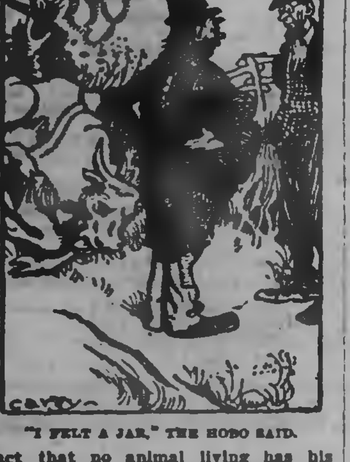
Much has been written about the ferocity of the African buffalo and the rhinoceros, but right here at home we have an animal almost, if not fully, as dangerous to human life and limb—the bull. The rhino will charge the hunter whether provoked or not, but the bull may go along for days acting as meek as a cat and then turn on his owner without excuse and gore him to death.

An Ohio newspaper has gathered statistics to show that during the year 1912 the bulls of that state caused the death of twenty-one persons and inflicted serious injuries on about thirty more. Such a thing as a good tempered bull is hardly known.

This spotted bull he ripped and tore,
While all around him cussed and swore.
He horned a horse to death one day
And on the next a cow did slay.

He tossed a haystack ten feet high;
The wagon shed was made to fly;
He leveled fences by the mile;
He killed a colt with joyous smile.

While the elephant and the rhino have larger necks than the bull, it is a fact that no animal living has his strength of neck and shoulders, according to his weight. In fighting a bull will push a weight of 5,000 pounds, though he himself may not weigh 2,000 pounds.



"I FELT A JAR," THE HOBO SAID.

A Betting Favorite.

There is no record of a fight between an American bull and an elephant, but if such an affair ever takes place there will be men who will bet their money on the former.

A fine big mule in sportive play
He nipped, that spotted bull, one day.
The farmer heard a crash, a crack—
The mule lay dead upon his back!

A country schoolhouse caught his eye
As he walked out so gay and fly.
When he got through his little fun
That country school was on the run.

An Indiana farmer owned a particular bull for five years. During that time, although he was not called an extra vicious animal, the bull gored the farmer twice, his wife once and caused the death of a son and of a hired man. He killed two horses, three calves and a steer. He destroyed property for others amounting to over $200. The law finally got after him and said he must be shot. The sheriff went into the field to do it and was charged and gored to death. The bull then jumped the fence and made off, and he went so far that he was not heard of again.

This spotted bull of which I write
All other bulls did promptly fight.
When he had broken of their bones
And listened to their dying groans

He turned him to the railroad track
To give the old bullgine a whack.
The engineer he said, "Oh, no!"
And back to town that train did go.

Of course the feed of a bull is the same as that of an ox or cow, but here and there an animal has developed an appetite for something not down in the books. It is recorded that one in Michigan ate up 300 pounds of maple sugar in two days, that one in Canada gulped down a barrel of turpentine, that one in Virginia ate seventy-five pounds of butter, thirty-five pounds of tallow and ten dozen eggs; that one in Illinois chewed plug tobacco and broke into a cigar store to get it. However:

This spotted bull he got so gay
He took all things that came his way.
He'd charge into a wall or tree,
And dire disaster there would be.

He pawed the earth; he bellowed loud;
He issued challenges so proud—
"I'm cock-a-hoop of this 'ere town,
And what dares face me I will down!"

The Nebraska owner of a bad bull was told that the disposition of the animal would be completely changed if he was given whisky. It did not seem a likely thing, but as a last resort the bull was chained up and given two quarts of the stuff and left to go on a big drunk and sleep it off and awake with no more temper than a calf.

Upsetting Calculations.

The thing didn't work out as hoped for. The bull got drunk all right, but didn't go to sleep. On the contrary, he broke loose, and the damage he did on the farm before he was killed amounted to over $300. Let us follow our bull. His end is near:

One day as he was ripping mad
He saw a sight that made him glad.
Adown the hill a hobo came,
And he was short and fat and lame.

He saw the bull—he did not mind,
For he was used to all that kind.
Just one old bull—why should he care?
His whistle was a jolly air.

"He cometh onward," said the bull—
"He's either luny or a fool.
I'll paw the earth, and then I'll roar,
And that there ginx will be no more!"

It was a hobo of long years' standing. He had been thrown off the roofs of a hundred freight cars and been bitten by a hundred different dogs.

He knew where to let a cyclone or a farmer's pitchfork hit him.

He halted at the foot of the hill and made ready.

Two miles was heard that awful roar.
Ten rods of ground that bull pawed o'er,
Then like a cloudburst on he swept.
And angels they looked down and wept.

A Warning.

A farmer was at his gate, and when he saw the hobo, the bull and the situation he waved his arms and shouted:

"Oh, hobo, spread your wings and fly
Unless you quickly want to die!
The bull will surely break your neck,
And to such things I do object!"

Did the hobo see the bull? He did.

Did he hear the roaring? He had ears.

Did he realize that his last hour had come? He didn't.

With folded arms he waited there
In what did seem grim despair.
The farmer's feelings were intense—
The shock it came; it was immense.

Durn that hobo's hide, but didn't I holler to him to fade away! Now we've got to have an inquest and all that. It's mighty curious that"—

The bull lay there upon the ground—
The hobo he was safe and sound.
"By thunder, can I believe my eyes?"
The farmer cried in great surprise.
"I felt a jar," the hobo said,
"And then the bull was lying dead.
And as 'tis hungry that I am
Please hand me out some bread and ham."

VAN DYCK KITCHEN

Room In Old Farmhouse Remodeled Into Dutch Interior.

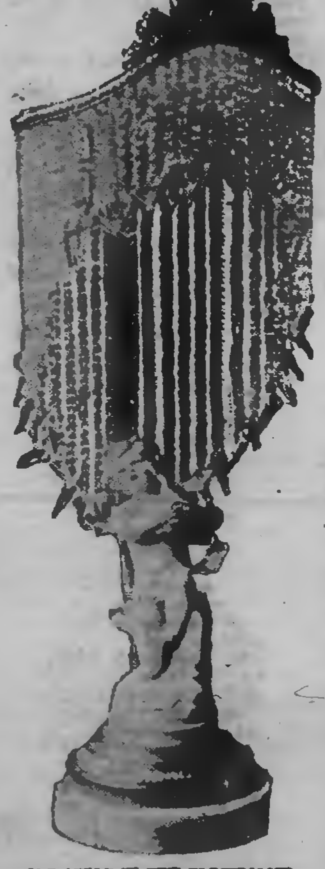
WALLS OF COBBLESTONES.

The Apartment Trim Painted Gray. Brick Red In Pottery—Chimney and Hearth Add to the Very Quaint Effect of the Arrangements.

A wealthy woman is remodeling an old farmhouse into a modern home. The old kitchen has walls made of cobbles or bowlders found in the region. It has a pointed ceiling about twenty feet high at the peak, with hand hewn beams fastened with pins in the old fashioned way.

In remodeling her kitchen she wished to keep as many of the old features as possible, so she has whitewashed the bowlders, allowed the high ceiling to remain and is having worked out for her a color scheme of white, gray and brick red which will be most picturesque.

The large five foot range will be brick set with a hearth of red brick on two sides. The old red brick chimney will also add its note of color, as will the immense copper boiler near the range.



OLD STYLE IN NEW ELECTROLIER.

The beams of the ceiling are to be painted terra cotta, and many articles of pottery, like casseroles and big jugs, will all be in harmony.

All the new trims will be painted gray, which, with the whitewashed walls showing the old cobbles and the brick red in pottery, chimney and hearth, will make a kitchen which reminds one of the pictures of some of the Dutch painters of interiors.

For rooms furnished in the old time effect the very modern electrolier pictured, carried out in colonial design with prism trimmings, is one of the latest novelties.

Kitchen Keynotes.

A very good way to save the coal bill will be found by dissolving half a teaspoonful of saltpeter in half a cupful of water; then pour over a scuttle of coal.

To bleach white goods that have become yellow dip them in strong blue water after washing, let them become very blue and then hang out to dry. When they are washed they will be thoroughly bleached.

After filling a rubber water bottle with hot water it is a good plan to press the side of the bottle before putting in the stopper. This allows all the steam to escape, and there is little danger of the seams coming undone, no matter how boiling hot the water may be.

To remove scorch from linen use the juice of an onion. Bake a large onion and squeeze out the juice through a piece of muslin; mix with an ounce of fuller's earth, a little finely shredded soap and a wineglassful of vinegar. Boil together till the soap has dissolved, leave till cold and then apply the preparation to the scorched linen. Let it dry and then wash in the usual way.

Large holes in the knees and heels of socks and stockings, if mended as follows, will be found to wear longer, look neater and be more comfortable than if mended in the usual way: Take some strong black net, rub out any stiffness with the hand, cut slightly larger than the hole and tack neatly on the wrong side. Then darn out and into the net on the right side until the hole is well covered. The darning will hardly be seen, and you will be delighted with the results.

Milady's Mirror

The Buttermilk Beauty Cure.

When Marie Antoinette and her ladies rolled up the sleeves of their flowered muslins and played with churns and cream bowls in the dairy of the Petit Trianon the buttermilk craze was at its height. It was almost a fetish in the hands of the beauties of the time, for they regarded its powers as almost supernatural. Unguents for the face as well as the potions in which they indulged were probably responsible for the lovely complexions which made poets compose odes to the bloom of their cheeks and painters almost implore on their knees that the disdainful beauties should relent so far as to have their charms immortalized. In baked buttermilk one of the strongholds of the complexion was said to lie. In a few days it worked wonders, while perseverance in its use would preserve the skin smooth and soft as a rose leaf.

The sour milk prophet of today errs in diluting the buttermilk insufficiently. In the genuine old recipes of the past the proportions were a gill of buttermilk to a pint of fresh milk. This was poured into a jar with a fitted lid and placed before the open range during the whole of a day.

By night the milk had turned to the consistency of clotted cream, in which state it was poured from a height from one vessel to another until by some magical means the contents had gone back once more to the smoothness of fresh milk. It was then sweetened with cane sugar and inclosed finally in a stone bottle, corked down tightly and placed before the fire, but not too near, for five or six hours. At first baked buttermilk does not always appear particularly pleasing, the mere fact that it is distinctly sour making it an acquired taste. However, if it were not acid it was not considered to have been perfectly made, while if it effervesced when the bottle was opened it formed not only a most refreshing drink, particularly when well iced, but was thought to be particularly efficacious for improving the complexion.

How to Treat Blackheads.

In the treatment of blackheads about the same course may be followed as for pimples. The steaming and scrubbing are done precisely the same, although the face may be scrubbed more vigorously. This is, in fact, absolutely necessary, because these little black pittings are nothing more than dirt embedded in the pores of the skin.

The terms "blackhead" and "flesh worms" are really not correct, but are so descriptive that they have become commonly accepted and as such universally known. The correct word for these obstructions is comedones.

Many women believe them to be alive. Such is not the case. The trouble results from white plugs of fat formed by accumulation of sebaceous secretions that block up the pores and prevent the glands from performing their functions and also collect dust and dirt, which latter makes them appear black.

The practice of pressing these black specks between the finger nails in order to remove them should be condemned, because more harm than good often results.

Where cases are extremely obstinate, after steaming the face it should be anointed with any good cold cream and so remain for at least fifteen minutes before being scrubbed. This will help very much to soften the particles, which, after being scrubbed, no doubt can be removed. Comedones often need a great deal of treatment before they yield, as some of the little black spots seem almost rooted, but persistence will win out, and when finally the skin clears, astringent lotions should be frequently used to contract the pores.

Milady's Complexion Veils.

The veil with beauty spots has come up again, but with a difference. The spots are kept in a box on the toilet table and stuck on after the veil has been adjusted.

The wearer selects her prettiest feature—or what she regards as such—takes up a spot and after having delicately moistened it places it in such a position as to attract the eye of the spectator to the feature in question. It may be a dainty nose. It may be a charming mouth or pretty teeth. But usually it is the eyes that are indicated as pre-eminently worthy of attention.

Most of us have noticed how very becoming foggy weather is to the complexion. This has given rise to the fog veil, gray tulle lined with palest flesh pink, and it is one of the successes of the season.

Calling on a friend one day, the wearer of one of these replied to the admiring remark of her friend: "Oh, it is my fog veil! I am not really looking a bit nice. See!" And she raised the veil.

The difference was so great that the friend was taken aback. She really did not know what to say, for the difference was indeed great. It was astounding. But then what beautiful sincerity and frankness on the part of the owner of the veil! These were better a thousand times than the most radiant of complexions.

A ruddy faced urchin stepped forward, dropped in his coin and observed:

Then another contributed a copper, saying:

LAURIER WANTS LINE ON THE REDISTRIBUTION BILL

Premier Borden Moves Second Reading of Bill, But Defers to Request From Leader of Opposition to Wait Until Thursday—Members Raise Question of Proportional Representation in Commons.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—In the House yesterday the Prime Minister moved the second reading of the redistribution bill, but after some discussion adjourned the debate until Thursday. This was due to the request of Sir Wilfrid Laurier that a membership of the select committee to which the bill is to be referred, be increased from seven to nine.

Several members, including W. F. Maclean, E. M. Macdonald, and Hon. G. P. Graham, endorsed the principle of proportional representation in order to give more voice to the minorities. The Premier, however, stated that the system would not be considered in the present measure.

Mr. Borden spoke briefly in moving the second reading of the redistribution bill. Referring to the contention that the representation of the Maritime Provinces should not be reduced, be said that no one was more willing to be convinced of that than himself, but that in his opinion no relief could be afforded unless the special committee to be appointed saw fit to assign four members to Prince Edward Island instead of three.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier contended that the committee had no jurisdiction in the matter, and neither had the Parliament of Canada. If the Government wished to give any relief to the Maritime Provinces, it would be necessary to have an address to the Imperial Parliament adopted praying for appropriate amendment to the B. N. A. Act.

Sir Wilfrid endorsed what had been said by Mr. Borden on the first reading of the mill, namely, that the unit of representation should be larger for urban than for rural constituencies, and that otherwise equality of representation should be aimed at together with the preservation of municipal boundaries and the riding should be compact with community of interest.

Mr. Hughes (Lib., King's P.E.I.) contended that Prince Edward Island had entered the union with the understanding that she was to have an irreducible minimum representation of six members. Unfortunately that had not been expressed in the written agreement, and the only hope for the province lay in an amendment to the B. N. A. Act.

E. M. Macdonald (Lib., Pictou) submitted that the Government should have been ready to give some direction to the committee upon the subject of proportional representation. He also contended that geographical units, like the Island of Cape Breton and Vancouver Island, should not be linked up with districts extending over the mainland.

W. F. Maclean (Con., South York) said that proportional representation involved a more important principle than municipal representation. The problem of fair representation for minorities and for large classes of people who thought alike on certain subjects of great importance to them, was a problem, said Mr. Maclean, which demanded solution, if the experiment of representative government was to be a success.

Hon. G. P. Graham said he was inclined to endorse the proposals for proportional representation.

Referring to Postmaster-General Pelletier's statement a few days ago to the effect that the Liberals had a large majority of the parliamentary delegation from Quebec, although they had a very slender popular majority in that province, Mr. Graham said the Liberals were under represented in the present House. The Government, he said, had a majority of 48 in the House, although its popular majority at the general elections of 1911 was only 44,491.

Mr. Borden, replying to Mr. Graham, said that in 1908, the Conservatives had a popular majority, but the Liberals did not hesitate to retain possession of the Government, having elected 48 more members of the House. It would be difficult to carry on the Government under our party system if the representation in the House was accurately based on the popular vote. He feared the present inequalities could not be corrected unless the Government was prepared to adopt the principle of proportionate representation. So far as the present redistribution bill was concerned, however, no effort would be made to carry the principle into effect.

FEAR FOR FUTURE.

English Church Clergymen Express Anxiety at Denial of Fundamentals.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A memorial signed by 676 priests of the diocese of London was presented to the upper house in convocation yesterday. It expresses grave anxiety (1) in consequence of the unrebuked denial of certain fundamental truths of faith by some who hold office in the church, and (2) in consequence of the widespread tendency to approach the problem of reunion among Christians in a way that is clearly inconsistent with the belief that Episcopal ordination is essential to the valid ministry of the world and sacraments.

The memorialists have asked for a repudiation of the claim of some clergy to reject the miracle of our Lord's virgin birth and the actual resurrection of His body from the tomb.

In submitting the petition, the Bishop of London said he would move at the next session that steps be taken to allay the widespread uneasiness in the Church.

Books are being published by some of the clergy which seemed to deny the great miracles spoken of. In three cases the authors have been removed or they have resigned their offices in the Church.

ONLY NINE DAYS MORE OF OPPORTUNITY OFFER

HOW MANY SUBSCRIPTIONS CAN YOU GET?

You Should get Every Subscription Possible During This Great Vote Offer as One Subscription Now is Equal to Many Later on Candidates and their friends have but a short time left in which to work on this great offer. This is positively the largest vote offer left during the contest, it behooves all candidates to secure every available subscription between now and Saturday Feb. 28, 8 p.m.

Test Your Metal.

Contestants and their friends should strain every effort to make their vote record as large as possible. Just a few more votes when resource is exhausted, may be the turning point in making you or your favorite contestant a winner of a prize worth hundreds of dollars.

The great value of the prizes, honor and public records for attaining success are important factors now being held worthy of consideration. Just nine more days from today in which to work for the prizes; and the destiny of the world has sometimes been changed within an hour. Empires have been made and unmade in a single faithful hour and so the result of this contest is likely to be decided by what is accomplished in the next nine days. The valuable prizes are hanging in the air, waiting to be plucked by those who have the energy and determination to win them.

Only those who run a race to the very end can ever hope to win a prize. The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong, but will be won by the stayer. A tortoise, you know, beat the hare because it kept going. It rested neither night nor day until the goal was reached. Victory is not for the spurter, but for the stayer, so the Review prizes are for the ladies and gentlemen who run the race to the very end. We are all of us nearing the home stretch, the place that tries the metal of anyone who enters any contest of any sort or nature, whether it be a boat race or a race in a contest for any prize.

A Great Chance to Win.

This is the greatest opportunity ever presented to win one of the valuable prizes, and the candidates who would not bestir themselves for a crown will be lost when it comes at the close of the contest. Read over the terms of the great offer.

REVIVAL IN THE FREE METHODIST CHURCH

The revival meetings in the Free Methodist Church on Aylmer Street, have been in progress one week, and are steadily increasing in interest and attendance.

Miss Babcock preached an interesting and profitable sermon last night on "Repentance." Her text was St. Luke 13:5, "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish."

She emphasized the fact that these were the words of Jesus, and therefore were very important. Repentance is just as essential now to the exercise of saving faith as it was in the days when these words were spoken. She urged upon all present the importance of the "New Birth" and a godly, victorious life.

Rev. W. B. Olmstead, who for several years was editor of the Sunday School literature of the said church, and is now Sunday School secretary and travelling evangelist, will preach tonight at 8 o'clock. The people of Peterboro are cordially invited to hear this able minister of the Gospel Meetings all this week and next.

NETHERSOLE'S TRIBUTE

At the conclusion of her week's run at the Orpheum Theatre, she wrote: 'Before leaving I would like to tell you how very comfortable I have been during my stay at your beautiful hotel. Your staff and service is perfect, and the cuisine excellent.'

LEGISLATURE OPENED WITH MILITARY POMP

Important Legislation Outlined in the Official Address.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—With all the pomp and ceremony of custom and with the flavor of military splendor the Lieutenant-Governor and attendants will sweep up the driveway of Queen's Park this afternoon, unwrap a long official scroll and proceed in formal style to declare the third session of the thirteenth assembly of the Ontario Legislature convened for business.

Chief item on the program of the first day stands the speech from the throne which will be delivered by Sir John Gibson immediately following his escort to the Speaker's chair by Hon. Dr. Pyne. In the absence of Hon. J. J. Foy, the Minister of Education will perform this function by reason of seniority. A few formal greetings will then occur and the chamber will be emptied until tomorrow afternoon when the debate will begin.

Some very important legislation will be outlined in the official address. The matter of redistribution among the Ontario seats will be made subject to a bill dealing with altered representation in the House rendered necessary by the recent census. The workmen's compensation bill will come down in due course and will probably provide one of the chief sources of debate. The address will make mention of the Government policy in connection with the road commission and perhaps hint at directions it may take.

The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission during the year will be dealt with and its progress commented upon. An intimation will be given that the Central Prison at Toronto will be moved to the new prison farm at Guelph early in the coming autumn and that a large section of the hospital for the insane at Whitby will also be ready for occupation at that time.

The notable business accomplished by the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway during the fiscal year and the receipt of the federal subsidy will constitute a paragraph and in the same connection the growth of the mineral industry of the north will be remarked. Other statements of the Lieutenant-Governor will refer to the return to Canada of the Governor-General and the Duchess of Connaught, the completion of the statute revision, the spread of industrial education and matters of general provincial interest.

Four new members will make their bow to the House for the first time. These are Colin Cameron, of North Grey; Geo. S. Henry, of East York; J. B. Fallis, of Peel, and John McFarlane, of East Middlesex.

SENATE MAY GO AHEAD

U. S. Upper House Anxious to Repeal Tolls Clause.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — That the Senate may not wait for initiative action in the House before taking under serious consideration the matter of repealing the tolls exemption of the Panama Canal Act became apparent yesterday. It was stated by several Senators who are anxious to have the matter settled to aid in clearing up foreign relations generally that some action toward a solution of the question was probable within a few days.

Thursday is set as the day for beginning discussion on the general arbitration treaties in executive session. The expired treaty with Great Britain, which awaits ratification for extension, will be taken up first, and it will be certain to open the floodgates of oratory on the Panama tolls question, as this was the stumbling block to ratification of the treaty last summer. Senator O'Gorman, who is opposed to the convention, and also opposed to the President's desire that the canal tolls exemption for American coastwise ships be removed, will lead the attack. That the matter yet would be sent to a Democratic caucus for determination is the view held by many Senators.

INDIAN RIVER AS THE DESERTED VILLAGE

Special Correspondence.

Indian River, Feb. 18.—Indian River might well have been called the "Deserted Village" on Friday night last. A supper and entertainment at the Warsaw Presbyterian church was attended by Messrs. D. M. Kidd, Albert Elmhurst, Gavin Shearer, Misses Nellie Borland and Myrtle Andrews, also Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker and James White, while a surprise party at the home of Mr. W. R. Cavanagh took away a large sleigh load and several single rigs. Then the ball at the Armouries at Norwood, drew some others.

JUMPED TO SAFETY.

Fireman Narrowly Escaped Suffocation In Hamilton Blaze.

HAMILTON, Feb. 18.—Fire, which did damage to the extent of between $200,000 to $375,000, broke out on the fourth floor of the R. Mackay Co.'s store on King street east yesterday morning, and before it was extinguished all the stock in the store was completely ruined, from the smoke and water-soaking through them. The estimated damage to the goods is $350,000, covered by insurance for $275,000. The extent of the damage to the building is not known.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is thought that a gas stove used for heating purposes in the workrooms on the fourth floor became overheated and set fire to some goods which were close by.

Fireman Wm. Stotts narrowly escaped suffocation. He, with Fireman Canary, was passing the store when the fire was at first discovered, and when the alarm was given they broke into the store and immediately went up to the fourth floor. The flames and smoke here were so bad that they had to retreat. Fireman Stotts noticed that he was becoming overcome from the smoke and rushed to one of the windows and shouted for help. The life-net was held for him and he jumped from the fourth storey window. The fresh air revived him.

TRAIN HIT BY FLYING DEBRIS

Dynamite Exploded Just as Train Hit the Spot.

QUEBEC, Feb. 18. — Through what appears to have been a blunder several passengers on the incoming G.T.R. express yesterday morning were endangered by a dynamite explosion at St. Romuald. While no fatalities occurred, some of the passengers on the first-class car were severely cut about the head and body and sustained nervous shock.

The G.T.R. express, due at Levis at 7 a.m., was two hours late. Construction work on I.C.R. double track is under way near St. Romuald, and a fuse for a dynamite blast was lighted just as the G.T.R. express was nearing St. Romuald. A line man was sent to flag the train, but was too late. The train was stopped and the blast went off. Every window in one side of the first-class car was shattered by the flying debris, and passengers were knocked down and cut about the head and body.

LEAGUE OF CRIME

South African Native Convicts Have Organized.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 18.—Astonishing facts were published yesterday by the Department of Justice showing that native convicts have been binding themselves together for criminal purposes. Their organizations comprise a king, a judge, a fighting general, a medical officer, warriors and younger natives. The organizations hold trials and decree punishments, sentencing to death in some cases by stabbing with sharpened nails through the shoulders, strangling with a wet towel, or putting powdered glass in the victim's food. More usual punishments are knocking out the front teeth, especially in the case of police informers. The organizations terrorize the natives to become members of the gangs.

Belgian King Hurt.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 18.—Albert I., King of the Belgians, broke his left arm yesterday when he was thrown from his horse while riding in the forest of Zignies, not far from the battlefield of Waterloo.

His Majesty's escape from even more serious injury was a narrow one, and the report of the accident caused much public concern in the Belgian capital. The King's physician, however, allayed anxiety by declaring that no graver consequences were likely to ensue from the accident, as the King's general health is good, and he is a young man, not yet thirty-nine years of age.

Olga Nethersole, the famous English emotional actress, who has played in nearly every civilized country, and travelled throughout the length and breadth of the globe, has paid a high tribute to hotel accommodation in Winnipeg, in a letter addressed to Chas. L. de Rouville, resident manager of the Fort Garry hotel. At the conclusion of her week's run at the Orpheum Theatre, she wrote: 'Before leaving I would like to tell you how very comfortable I have been during my stay at your beautiful hotel. Your staff and service is perfect, and the cuisine excellent.'

LEGISLATURE OPENED WITH MILITARY POMP

Important Legislation Outlined in the Official Address.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—With all the pomp and ceremony of custom and with the flavor of military splendor the Lieutenant-Governor and attendants will sweep up the driveway of Queen's Park this afternoon, unwrap a long official scroll and proceed in formal style to declare the third session of the thirteenth assembly of the Ontario Legislature convened for business.

Chief item on the program of the first day stands the speech from the throne which will be delivered by Sir John Gibson immediately following his escort to the Speaker's chair by Hon. Dr. Pyne. In the absence of Hon. J. J. Foy, the Minister of Education will perform this function by reason of seniority. A few formal greetings will then occur and the chamber will be emptied until tomorrow afternoon when the debate will begin.

Some very important legislation will be outlined in the official address. The matter of redistribution among the Ontario seats will be made subject to a bill dealing with altered representation in the House rendered necessary by the recent census. The workmen's compensation bill will come down in due course and will probably provide one of the chief sources of debate. The address will make mention of the Government policy in connection with the road commission and perhaps hint at directions it may take.

The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission during the year will be dealt with and its progress commented upon. An intimation will be given that the Central Prison at Toronto will be moved to the new prison farm at Guelph early in the coming autumn and that a large section of the hospital for the insane at Whitby will also be ready for occupation at that time.

The notable business accomplished by the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway during the fiscal year and the receipt of the federal subsidy will constitute a paragraph and in the same connection the growth of the mineral industry of the north will be remarked. Other statements of the Lieutenant-Governor will refer to the return to Canada of the Governor-General and the Duchess of Connaught, the completion of the statute revision, the spread of industrial education and matters of general provincial interest.

Four new members will make their bow to the House for the first time. These are Colin Cameron, of North Grey; Geo. S. Henry, of East York; J. B. Fallis, of Peel, and John McFarlane, of East Middlesex.

SENATE MAY GO AHEAD

U. S. Upper House Anxious to Repeal Tolls Clause.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — That the Senate may not wait for initiative action in the House before taking under serious consideration the matter of repealing the tolls exemption of the Panama Canal Act became apparent yesterday. It was stated by several Senators who are anxious to have the matter settled to aid in clearing up foreign relations generally that some action toward a solution of the question was probable within a few days.

Thursday is set as the day for beginning discussion on the general arbitration treaties in executive session. The expired treaty with Great Britain, which awaits ratification for extension, will be taken up first, and it will be certain to open the floodgates of oratory on the Panama tolls question, as this was the stumbling block to ratification of the treaty last summer. Senator O'Gorman, who is opposed to the convention, and also opposed to the President's desire that the canal tolls exemption for American coastwise ships be removed, will lead the attack. That the matter yet would be sent to a Democratic caucus for determination is the view held by many Senators.

INDIAN RIVER AS THE DESERTED VILLAGE

Special Correspondence.

Indian River, Feb. 18.—Indian River might well have been called the "Deserted Village" on Friday night last. A supper and entertainment at the Warsaw Presbyterian church was attended by Messrs. D. M. Kidd, Albert Elmhurst, Gavin Shearer, Misses Nellie Borland and Myrtle Andrews, also Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker and James White, while a surprise party at the home of Mr. W. R. Cavanagh took away a large sleigh load and several single rigs. Then the ball at the Armouries at Norwood, drew some others.

JUMPED TO SAFETY.

Fireman Narrowly Escaped Suffocation In Hamilton Blaze.

HAMILTON, Feb. 18.—Fire, which did damage to the extent of between $200,000 to $375,000, broke out on the fourth floor of the R. Mackay Co.'s store on King street east yesterday morning, and before it was extinguished all the stock in the store was completely ruined, from the smoke and water-soaking through them. The estimated damage to the goods is $350,000, covered by insurance for $275,000. The extent of the damage to the building is not known.

The origin of the fire is not known, but it is thought that a gas stove used for heating purposes in the workrooms on the fourth floor became overheated and set fire to some goods which were close by.

Fireman Wm. Stotts narrowly escaped suffocation. He, with Fireman Canary, was passing the store when the fire was at first discovered, and when the alarm was given they broke into the store and immediately went up to the fourth floor. The flames and smoke here were so bad that they had to retreat. Fireman Stotts noticed that he was becoming overcome from the smoke and rushed to one of the windows and shouted for help. The life-net was held for him and he jumped from the fourth storey window. The fresh air revived him.

TRAIN HIT BY FLYING DEBRIS

Dynamite Exploded Just as Train Hit the Spot.

QUEBEC, Feb. 18. — Through what appears to have been a blunder several passengers on the incoming G.T.R. express yesterday morning were endangered by a dynamite explosion at St. Romuald. While no fatalities occurred, some of the passengers on the first-class car were severely cut about the head and body and sustained nervous shock.

The G.T.R. express, due at Levis at 7 a.m., was two hours late. Construction work on I.C.R. double track is under way near St. Romuald, and a fuse for a dynamite blast was lighted just as the G.T.R. express was nearing St. Romuald. A line man was sent to flag the train, but was too late. The train was stopped and the blast went off. Every window in one side of the first-class car was shattered by the flying debris, and passengers were knocked down and cut about the head and body.

LEAGUE OF CRIME

South African Native Convicts Have Organized.

CAPE TOWN, Feb. 18.—Astonishing facts were published yesterday by the Department of Justice showing that native convicts have been binding themselves together for criminal purposes. Their organizations comprise a king, a judge, a fighting general, a medical officer, warriors and younger natives. The organizations hold trials and decree punishments, sentencing to death in some cases by stabbing with sharpened nails through the shoulders, strangling with a wet towel, or putting powdered glass in the victim's food. More usual punishments are knocking out the front teeth, especially in the case of police informers. The organizations terrorize the natives to become members of the gangs.

Belgian King Hurt.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 18.—Albert I., King of the Belgians, broke his left arm yesterday when he was thrown from his horse while riding in the forest of Zignies, not far from the battlefield of Waterloo.

His Majesty's escape from even more serious injury was a narrow one, and the report of the accident caused much public concern in the Belgian capital. The King's physician, however, allayed anxiety by declaring that no graver consequences were likely to ensue from the accident, as the King's general health is good, and he is a young man, not yet thirty-nine years of age.

INTERNATIONALS GET THE BEST DATES AT TORONTO

Maple Leafs Will Play at the Island on Three Holidays — Labor Day for Canuck League

A meeting of the Canadian League, to look after the schedule, will be held before the end of the month and as Toronto has been admitted to the Canuck circuit, the home games will be arranged so as not to conflict with the games of the International League.

The International League schedule is out and the Maple Leafs will be at home for ten Saturdays. The Leafs will also play at the Island on May 24th, July 1st and August 3rd, which will be Civic Holiday in the Queen City. The Canadian League gets the leavings, but then the week days should be better than some of the holiday dates in the circuit last season.

RUBE DENEAU HAS SOLE CONTROL OF THE RED SOX

(Brantford Expositor)

George ("Rube") Deneau, the newly appointed manager of the Red Sox, arrived in the city yesterday and immediately got into communication with President T. J. Nelson, with respect to the training of the club this year.

When interviewed this morning by a Courier reporter the "Rube" made the following statement: "I'm going to play ball with Brantford this year and I didn't apologize to the London directors either. I've got lines on some good material and you can assure the fans that Brantford will be up in the running when the curtain rings down at the close of the season."

The team will train here, providing Agricultural Park dries up early enough. In case it does not, Manager Deneau will take the team to Mt. Clemens, Mich., to undergo spring training.

Manager Deneau has strings on a number of first class players, including a whole new infield and a number of new pitchers. So far Manager Deneau has been unable to land a good left hander, but has his eyes on one or two good men whom he hopes to land in a few days. The team will report to him here on or about the 15th of April, and will immediately commence spring training.

President Nelson wore a sunny smile when seen this morning and gave out the following statement:

"Manager Deneau has sole charge of the Brantford Red Sox and has been given authority to sign or release such players as he sees fit. The only condition attached to this being that he provide the fans with a first class ball team."

"This isn't in the contract," said Mr. Nelson, "but nevertheless that is the understanding by which Deneau came here"

It will be remembered that that was the cause of all the trouble between Deneau and the London magnates They claimed he did not have full control of the team in this respect, while he claims he did, and thence the scrap ensued

The following is a list of the players Manager Deneau has lines on and these with the reserves, will report to him about the middle of April: Roy Latimer, an infielder; Fred Sandusky, outfielder; Albert Houeck, infielder; Raymond Connel, pitcher; L. Rickert, infielder; H. Rise, catcher, and utility man, and L. Woofel, pitcher.

Manager Deneau would not disclose the name of his shortstop, who will make the fans forget about Courtney, but stated that his name was in the above list. In all about sixteen or eighteen players will be given a trial by the Red Sox this year.

TOOLROOM AND BANKERS MEET IN FIRST GAME

Test Drew Bye in Final Contests for Mercantile League Honors.

At the meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League executive held last night in the Review office, the remaining games were arranged. The Test drew the bye hence the Tool Room and Bankers will clash next Monday night. The Test will play the winners on a later date.

Mr. G. Wilson of the Test, was present and wanted information re the eligibility of Cranfield to participate in the replaying of a tie game when he did not participate in the tie game. Although Mr. Wilson did not state definitely whether they would protest or not, it wouldn't be surprising if they did.

In reference to the above question, it is very evident from the constitution that a tie game is to be replayed and following O. H. A. procedure the Tool Room were perfectly within their rights. Instance the recent tie game between T.R.C. and T.R. and A.A., in the play-off the latter had their lineup changed.

Mr. Wilson seemed to think that the game Monday night was a continuation of the tie game, but if such was the case, the game would be decided by periods of ten minutes, five minutes each way.

EXPLOITS CAN CINCH LEAGUE

Win Will Practically Give Them The Championship.

The big game in the Junior City League tonight will practically decide the championship. The Exploits and Y.M.C.A. clash and a win for the former will put them out of danger. The other game between the Alerts and Wanderers has also aroused considerable excitement. The first game will start at 8 o'clock. Mr. Len Dobson will referee.

SEEKING ABATEMENT.

But Safety of Great Britain Comes First Declares Churchill.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Hon. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has sent the following message to Tonman Mosley, Radical candidate for South Bucks, where the poll takes place to-day:

"I am very glad to see the strong stand you are making for a sober and solid provision for our navy. We are not jingoes or scaremongers. We are working for the abatement of naval and military rivalries. Meanwhile what is necessary to maintain the safety of our country and of our empire will have to be done, and will be done and done thoroughly. Hearty wishes for your success."

Somebody has invented a poison bottle capped with a bell that will ring when the bottle is touched. But there are some blunderers who would refuse to believe a set of cathedral chimes.

Including bullion, the excess of American exports for twelve months ending November rose to $752,000,000, enough to pay the interest on the dowries of a large number of American duchesses.

The discovery of the north pole is compared by Admiral Peary with the completion of the Panama canal. There is a slight difference, however, in the practical usefulness of the two achievements.

STRIKING TEACHERS WIN.

British National Union Forces an Increase in Minimum Salary.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — The striking teachers of the elementary schools in the County of Hereford have won their fight for a minimum salary and the strike, which started on Feb. 2, was declared over yesterday.

The National Union of Teachers, which had guaranteed its members full salary for a period of five years, succeeded in forcing the education department of the county to grant substantial increases in the teachers' salaries. They had demanded a minimum salary of $500 per annum, instead of the $450 they had hitherto received. When they struck on Feb. 2 eighty of the 120 schools under the jurisdiction of the council were closed, and the educational work of the county was stopped, except in a few cases where headmasters, assisted by their families, made an effort to continue it.

James Corner, vice-chairman of the Herefordshire County Council, yesterday resigned his office owing to his utter opposition to what he terms the "surrender" to the teachers.

Power Plant Exploded.

BLAIRSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 18.—With a roar that was heard 25 miles away the mixing house of the West Penn., Powder Co., located at Tunnelton, six miles from here, was blown to pieces by an explosion yesterday. Robert Caugherty was killed and another workman mortally injured.

Collins Pays the Penalty.

CALGARY, Alta., Feb. 18. — William Jasper Collins, who confessed he killed John T. Benson, a farmer for whom he worked, but who later repudiated the confession and fought extradition from Kingston, Mo., where he was arrested, was hanged in the jail yard here early yesterday.

Passenger Trains Collide.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Feb. 18.—Eight persons were seriously injured and nearly 50 slightly hurt in the collision that occurred at midnight at Nichols Junction, four miles west of here, between two passenger trains on the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad.

Two Frozen To Death.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 18.—Two lumbermen, Jerry Sheehan and Joseph Kelly, were found frozen to death in a snowdrift on South Mountain Monday. They were within sight of the camp when they were overcome. Sheehan was found with his head under a tree stump, his last effort to gain shelter.

Kingston's Factory Sites.

KINGSTON, Feb. 18.—The council has decided to buy twenty-eight acres of land at Kingston Junction for manufacturing sites at a cost of $24.000.

Easy.

"Tell me what a man eats and I will tell you what he is like."

"Can you do it?"

"Sure."

"There's Jenkins, who eats free lunches."

"Like a sponge."

Rank Poison.

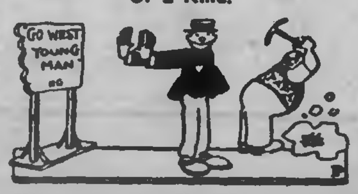
"Poor Nick has been convicted of arson."

"You don't say?"

"Yes."

"Then he is really arson Nick."

Of a Kind.



Some young men go west and go broke, while others more sophisticated stay at home and grow old on their dads' hands.

Comes Out Whole.

The kicker may not get his rights
Nor all his battles win.
But when they hand him a defeat
They do not rub it in.

In the Bank.

"Stunning, simply stunning!"

"What is?"

"That girl."

"I don't see it. She has such an ordinary face."

"But I have seen her bank book."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It takes a good magician to save money successfully when there is not a cent to save.

Puzzle—Find the successful lawyer who believes in the altruistic side of human nature.

When you find a "good time" be mighty careful that he is not playing you for one.

The poor we have always with us until they strike a gold mine. Then we can't find them with a search warrant.

The reason some men prefer their club is because they don't stay in the home long enough to find out what it's like.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence

OMEMEE, Feb. 18.—Last week's weather was overloaded with frost, the mercury descended to 35 degrees below zero here on Thursday morning. White River has us beaten with 56 below, but that is nothing to boast about!

The Farmers' Club held a meeting in Coronation Hall on Tuesday evening, and was addressed on subjects of agricultural interest by Mr. A. A. Knight B.S.A., of Lindsay.

The tragic death of Mr. T. C. Stephenson has cast a gloom over the village and surrounding community. His life was so interwoven with the business and social life of Omemee that one feels even now, his absence at every turn. The cause of the bursting of the chopper is problematical, the most possible theory is that the grain and accompanying sand and grit, which are almost certain to shift through the machine, had weakened a bolt or nut on one of the chopper wheels, or on the plate that secures one of these to the shaft and this loosened iron caused the explosion, at a time when one patron's work had been finished and another being let into the hopper. Messrs. George Balfour of Lindsay, J.B.L. Grout, of Oakville, a former resident of Omemee, James and Charles McCaffrey, of Toronto, attended the funeral on Thursday of the late Mr. T. C. Stephenson.

Miss Prudy Mallory, who has been residing in Brantford for the past year, has returned to visit her mother.

Rev. H. Earle of Christ Church, will remove to Port Credit at Eastertide. Though his prospects are bright and his many friends are expressing their good wishes, yet there is a tinge of regret and sorrow that one so universally admired, should decide to leave our town.

The ice was in excellent condition for the carnival which Proprietor Parsons put on Tuesday evening. There were contingents present from many of the surrounding villages, a good crowd being on the ice. The prizes were many and hotly contested. Watch for date of next carnival.

Our hockey boys have had but little practice, yet they sallied forth to contest the championship with a Lindsay septette that put them to sleep to the score of 7-0. Undaunted, these young puck chasers journeyed to Reaboro on Saturday, hoping to retrieve their lost prestige and former glory, but the ice was real slippery! They were again made to bite the dust by a score of 4—0. Don't give up boys; there's something somewhere you can beat and all your friends admire your grit!

Rev. Mr. Burtiss of Toronto, was the preacher at the Presbyterian Church, morning and evening, of last Sabbath, and at Mount Pleasant, in the afternoon. His discourse in the a.m. was a vigorous exposition of Divine Guidance as outlined in I. Kings, Chap. XVII. The pulpit was declared vacant by order of the clerk of the Presbytery of Peterboro. On March 10th, the Presbytery convenes at Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McLean of Mount Pleasant, were guests of his brother, the first of the week.

CRAZY MOTORIST MAKES TRIP.

He Forces Chauffeur at Pistols' Point to Run For Thirty Hours.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—An extraordinary escapade of Lee Bond, a wealthy man, living in Lyrdhurst, Hampshire, was reported to the police yesterday. Bond, who is 23 years old, hired a motor car and a chauffeur Saturday afternoon and compelled the driver to make a wild ride of 30 hours' duration throught the Counties of Wiltshire, Dorset and Hampshire and Somerset, holding pistols at the man's back and threatening to shoot if he dared to stop without permission. By similar threats he compelled various farmers in different towns to deliver petrol and other supplies for the motor car without paying for them.

Bond was found last night in the garden of his residence, holding a revolver in each hand. A posse of policemen who had been trailing Bond surrounded and arrested him.

DEFENDS WAR OFFICE.

Army and Navy Gazette Calls Col. Hughes' Statement Grotesque.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — The Army and Navy Gazette describes as grotesque to a degree Hon. Col. Hughes' statement that the War Office wants to force Canada to use Lee-Enfield rifles. The same journal reminds Col. Hughes that a new rifle having an aperature sight is now under consideration for use in this country.

The Gazette says: "It may certainly be argued that the War Office might have permitted Canadians, who in this respect are ahead of the rest of the Empire, to use aperture sights, but according to most people this would have given them a distinct advantage over other competitors, so we doubt whether many Canadians would appreciate such concession."

Great Art Gift to France.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Paul Jacquier, Under Secretary of State for Fine Arts, announced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that negotiations had been concluded with Auguste Rodin, whereby the French sculptor presents to France the whole of his collections of Greek, Roman and European art and also all of his works still in his possession. The gift is conditional on the French Government creating a Rodin museum in the residence now occupied by M. Rodin and appointing him custodian for life.

Mayor Buller has called a public meeting for Wednesday, February 25th, to decide what action will be taken in regard to the proposed celebration in Peterboro of the 100 years of peace with the United States. The celebration would be held next year.

The organizing secretary of the Canadian Peace Centenary Association will be present and outline the scheme.

It is particularly desirable that the meeting shall be thoroughly representative, and that members of the city council, Board of Trade, school board, Canadian Club, and other patriotic organizations, School principals and teachers, clergymen, members of the Trade and Labor organizations and ladies, should be present. The meeting will be held in the city council chamber.

REVIEW AD. DID IT

Lost Leather Suit Case Was Returned to Owner.

A brown leather suit case lost last Saturday evening near Lock No. 3, and belonging to Mrs. Gordon Nicholls, of Selwyn, was found and advertised in The Review. The ad. was seen at once and the suit case was identified by Mrs. W. A. Parker, city. It pays to advertise in The Review.

IMPORTANT TO LABOUR

The following item appears on the order paper of the House of Commons:—

February 16—Mr. Burnham—Proposed Resolution—That in the opinion of this House, it is desirable that manufactured goods and natural products coming into Canada from any other Country where the rate of wages of those employed in the making or raising of the same is below that prevailing in Canada, be subjected to a tariff duty sufficient to preserve the standard or rate of wages of those in Canada employed in making or producing like goods and products.

The idea is that if we ought to hold back Asiatic labor because it accepts low wages and depresses the rate of wages in Canada, we ought also to restrain their output at home where it is made under the low wage condition. One regulation is useless without the other.

THE PUBLIC BUILDING SITE

To the Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—

What the North End has:

Armouries, Normal School, Y. M. C. A., Carnegie Library, Collegiate Institute.

Now, Mr. Editor, surely it is not fair to be the whole hog. I am sure we, in the North End, or a large majority, are quite willing that the Post Office and all Government offices be confined to one building, and give our southern citizens some rights. A handsome building as proposed to be erected by the Government the the corner of Sherbrooke and George streets, will, no doubt, spread out the business section. More stores are bound to be erected and the self-interested few will no longer be able to cry about being over-burdened by rents imposed by the monied interests. The more stores the more moderate rental our merchants will have to pay, and thereby a greater reduction in our dry goods, boots and shoes, and grocery bills.

Did the South End citizens and merchants raise such a commotion when the council selected the site for the Carnegie Library?

Was there such a commotion when the Normal School was erected at the "North Pole" by the Ontario Government?

I am sure the southern portion of the city which is bound to become the business section inside of five years, is worthy of some consideration. Where would the North End be without the manufacturers of the South? Almost two-thirds of the entire population of Peterboro is south of Hunter Street. I consider that any person with a fair amount of judgment and having self interests on, would at once select the proposed site.

Peterboro has never had such an opportunity as offered by our worthy member. Although I do not hold the same views, politically, as Mr. Burnham, I have yet to know one man that can say he does not try to legislate in the city's interest.

NORTH END.

Several other letters have been received, all of which favor the site as recommended.

To the Editor of The Review.

Should be pleased if you will give space in your paper to the following:

I note that there is being worked up by petition and otherwise, a very strong opposition to the location of the Government buildings, such as Custom House and in the near future a new Post Office. While it is true that everyone has a right to work for his own interests and use what influence he can to have buildings placed where they will benefit valuations, it is also right for the general public to expect protection from the city council in their deliberation on such an important subject, as the placing of a new Custom House and Post Office, and in their deliberation, they should be governed by what will give the greatest good to the greatest number of people residing in the city or its suburbs.

It is only natural from a standpoint of beautifying the city, and from the standpoint of advertising the city, that public buildings should be placed as much as possible on the main thoroughfare, as it is the main thoroughfare of a city that gives first and lasting impressions upon visitors. So long as the Government has been good enough to grant appropriation for handsome new buildings for Post Office and Custom House, let us not fuss and fume, petition and knock, about the site which their own representatives have chosen, as being the proper site for the buildings lest they should become disgusted and lay the matter over for an indefinite period, which in reality would mean for a great many years to come.

It is to be hoped also that the council in their deliberation as regards the proper place for the Post Office and Custom House, will not lightly discountenance the choice made by the representatives of the Government, but will bear in mind that they are representatives of the whole people and that what they will probably approve of at the meeting on Saturday night will be for the benefit of the city, as it is ten or fifteen years from now and not a short sighted approval, based on present conditions.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
Yours truly,
PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

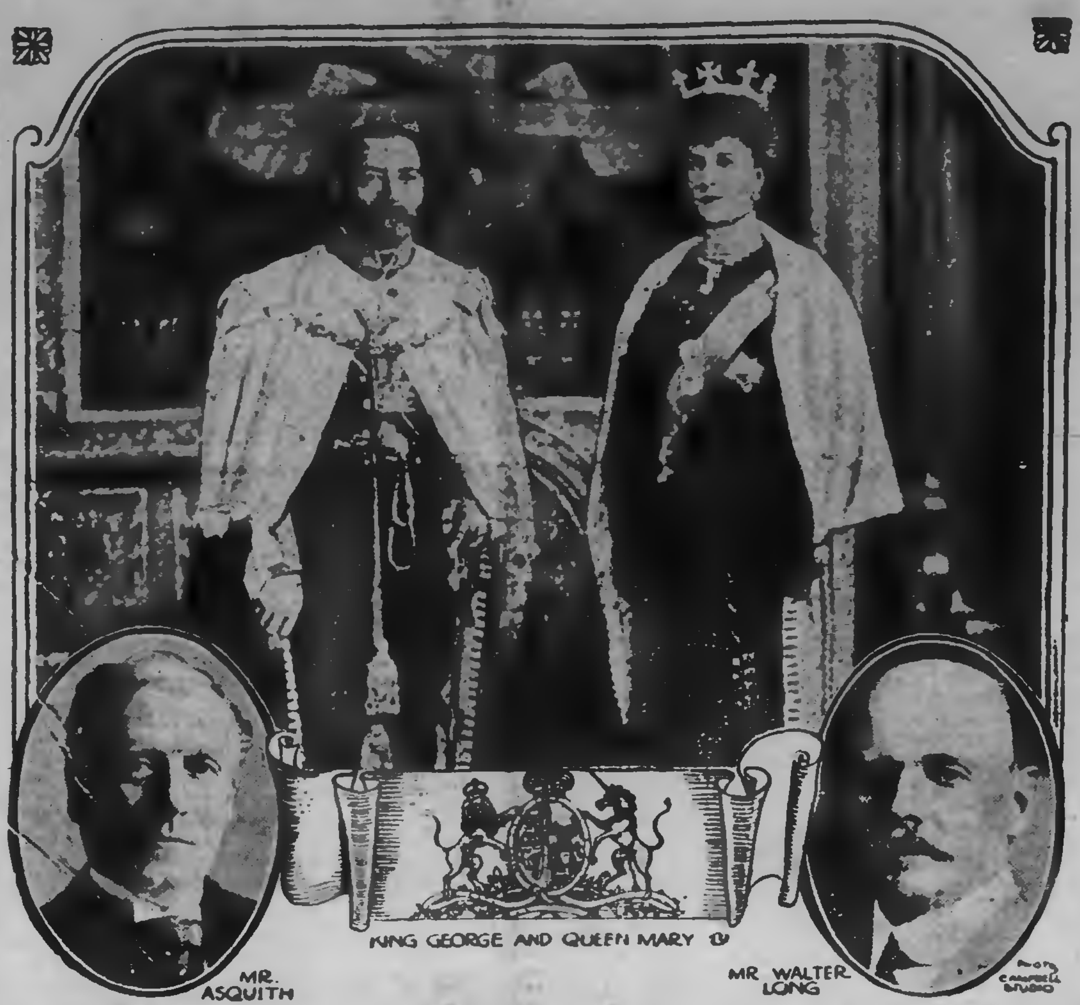
WARNS ASQUITH THERE IS PERIL OF CIVIL WAR.



The new battle over home rule for Ireland—main feature of a session programme which it is predicted will be history making and filled with danger lines—began promptly with the reopening of parliament by King George. Walter Long, formerly Unionist Chief Secretary for Ireland, fired the first gun, which he loaded with a challenge to Premier Asquith to submit the question to a vote of the people.

The uncompromising tenor of the Unionist position was shown in Long's declaration that if the government sought to put its home rule bill into effect it would succeed only by the use of bullets and bayonets. He declared the empire today is facing the peril of civil war.

He flung into the faces of the Cabinet Ministers the charge that their recent course in South Africa was pusillanimous and the taunt that they dared not risk conflict with the government there.

Long's bitter attack created a sensation, and aroused enthusiastic approval on the part of the Unionist members

Premier Asquith in his reply promised that the government would take the initiative in putting forward suggestions for a settlement by agreement of the Irish difficulty.

HIGH COST OF LIVING, MATTER OF OPINION; DR. SHORTT ON PRINCIPLES OF TAXATION

Community Value the Only Value—What the Public Wants—Baseball Twirlers Not Poets—Hot Air Artists in Land Speculation—Re-action Against Single Tax in the West.

Perhaps the most interesting of all the addresses that have been delivered at the Canadian Club this season was delivered last evening by Professor Adam Shortt on the subject of "Taxation." This was not a very promising subject from a popular point of view, but in the hands of the professor it was transformed into one of enthralling interest.

In the absence of the President, Mr. G. C. Wainwright, Principal Walker, of the Normal School, presided and there was a good gathering of gentlemen of the city.

Mr. Walker in introducing the speaker, said that we ought to be proud of being able to get so many representative men to come and address us upon the different questions of national and social life, and this question of taxation was one that was specially interesting at present, when we were thinking of building a customs house. "Perhaps the professor will tell us that we may not need a Custom House in ten years' time and if so, the Post Office could remain where it is. (Hear, hear.)"

What is Fair Basis?

Professor Shortt began by comparing the systems of taxation in Canada with those of the States. He said, in the States there was a mix-up which they were struggling to get out of. We in Canada had blundered into some kind of system and were a little better off than the States. In certain parts of America revenue was derived on the basis of exchange, whereas in Canada it was on a tax basis. For instance, education in Canada is on the tax basis; it is not a question whether you have children, everyone pays for education whether he uses the schools or not. It is the same with fire protection, etc., these are based upon the tax basis or "community principle." An exchange basis is where you pay just for what you receive, if you have five children going to school you pay taxes in proportion.

Some people argue that we ought to pay in proportion to what we get and that it is not fair to tax a person for something that he does not use. The question of collecting the tax is one of "ability to pay," whether a man has the property to get at in order to force him to pay. Some can make more profit than others and they are taxed according to their income. The tax collector has often great difficulty in making a just assessment upon various individuals, such as lawyers and doctors. "It is almost impossible to find out what a lawyer's income is, and the tax collector generally assesses the doctor on the basis of what he is able to collect from his patients, some doctors don't keep books and their income is mainly a matter of guesswork, and the doctor generally guesses on the right side!" said the professor dryly. Corporations are more easily got at as they have to keep books, these and individuals with a fixed salary, are classed as "definite incomes."

What the Public Want.

To prove that the tax basis, and not the exchange basis, is the fair one, he went on to show that there is no such thing as "individual value," that it is all "community value." If a man goes into the woods and lives alone he may work for his living there, but he creates no value. All values pertain to communities. If a carpenter makes a table, the table belongs to him, he can put the table on the market, but the question is whether it is of any value, and the value depends upon whether anyone wants that particular table. It is not the amount of labor you put into a thing that makes it valuable, it is whether the community want it. The starving poet produces a thing which may be very fine, but which no printer will pay for, no matter how much intellect the poet may have put into it. On the other hand, the baseball twirler will get a thousand dollars for doing something which is comparatively simple and on which he expends no intellect whatever—but the difference is, the community want the twirling of the baseballer, and they do not want the work of the poet sufficiently to pay for it.

Women's Fashions of To-day.

Dr. Shortt went on to speak of land values and said that those fluctuate like everything else. He said that land has a community value, that all community value was a matter of opinion and "opinion is the easiest thing to creat." The demagogue is the creator of land value. Fashion is the best illustration of this. "What would you give for a two-year-old fashion?" said Mr. Shortt, humorously. "The ladies will not wear today the millinery they wore two years ago—why? because opinion has changed. The frightful characatures that modern fashions make of women is enough to make one lose one's faith in the 'human form divine'—and yet it costs like everything." The high cost of living is entirely a matter of opinion, said the professor.

Hot Air Artists.

Speaking of the inflated values of western lands, Dr. Shortt said that these had been created by "hot air artists." These artists, or their imitators, had sold western town lots to farmers in Ontario by means of nothing but "hot air," they created opinion. The speaker gave a graphic sketch of the development of western cities and showed how many of these cities were the result of the efforts of one man who created opinion, that these cities thrived simply on borrowed money expended upon building themselves. Dr. Shortt said that cities ought to be built on a more permanent basis than that. He condemned the Henry George system, and commended the Lloyd George system. He said there was going to be a great reaction against single tax in the west. The fallacy of single tax arose all through a misapplication of community value. Single tax does not catch the real land speculator, he never pays; it is the man who stays with his purchase who suffers. The consequence of all the land booming is that the west has a huge debt piled up in London.

Professor Shortt covered so much ground and made so many interesting points that it was not possible to do any more than make the foregoing scrappy notes upon his address, which was followed with rapt attention and concluded amid loud and long applause.

LIQUOR IN THE MESSES

Minister of Militia May Take Privilege Away.

It came to the ears of Hon. Sam Hughes, minister of militia, that the use of liquor in certain officers' and sergeants' messes of the Canadian militia was being abused. Accordingly the following appeared in the divisional orders for this week, being part of a letter received from headquarters in Ottawa:

"A report has been received at headquarters to the effect that the privilege of having liquor in officers' and sergeants' messes and company armories of the active militia is in some cases being abused.

"The Honorable the Minister of Militia is considering the advisability of taking this privilege away altogether.

"You will please cause all concerned to be informed that if any further reports are received at headquarters to the effect that the privilege above mentioned is being abused, a decision will be reached and liquor will not be allowed in officers' and sergeants' messes and company armories of the active militia."

ABIDING BY RESOLUTION

Rev. J. N. Clarry, secretary of the Ministerial Association, explained today that the holding of concerts and other forms of entertainment in the city churches was not discordant with the resolution passed by the Ministerial Association.

This resolution aimed to do away with bazaars and other questionable means of raising money.

SOME CASES THAT ARE CHARGED UP TO THE CITY

One Patient in Hospital Claims that He has an Interest in British Columbia Mine.

At the Finance Committee meeting some time ago, one of the members remarked that the city was merely a collecting agency for the various hospitals and other institutions. The committee do not think the city should pay.

Since then several cases have come to notice. About one year ago a man returned from British Columbia. His feet were badly frozen and he was almost penniless. He worked around the city up till a few months ago, when he was unable to do so and had to be removed to the St. Joseph's Hospital. The patient who is about seventy-five years of age, claims he has an interest in a mine in British Columbia. The city is being held responsible for his up-keep.

Another case related is that of a local man fairly well off in this world's goods, whose wife was a patient of one of the hospitals for some time and the bill was sent to the city for payment.

Another resident earning in the neighborhood of $45 per month, is supposed to be unable to pay for the care of his step-son in a Toronto hospital, and the bill was sent to the city.

Cases can be mentioned where the city has been paying rent for people in the city for a number of years.

Recently a bill was sent to the Finance Committee claiming $27.00 for the expenses of a patient in the Muskoka Hospital. The bill in referring to the cot occupied by the patient stated that he was confined to the Misses Dickson endowed cot, but the city was charged with it all the same.

DEATH OF BILLY SLEE

Popular Rugby Official Succumbed to Throat Trouble.

Canadian Press Despatch

Throat trouble of long standing caused his death. He was about 35 and leaves a wife and four children. The funeral will be held on Saturday.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN SERIOUS

Employe of C.G.E. has Hand Severely Burned.

To receive a taste of 2300 volts was the experience of Mr. Kenneth Donohue, an employee of the C.G.E. Test Department this morning. Mr. Donohue was pursuing his usual duties when he rested his hand upon a switch through which the electricity was passing. The sudden shock caused him to sway and his hand dropped from the switch, thus the current did not pass through his body. As it is, his hand was severely burned, and it will be some time before he will be able to resume work.

When the accident occurred Mr. Donohue was standing on the wooden floor. Had he been standing on iron material, fatal results would have been inevitable.

J. H. BURNHAM ON DIVORCE

Condemns Loose Marriage Contracts—His Opinion as a Bachelor.

The following is the report of Mr. Burnham's contributions to the debate in the House of Commons, on Mr. Northrup's Bill for cheaper divorce:

"As a very unwilling member of the Divorce Commitee, I should like to say a word or two with regard to this resolution. It seems to me—and I think I am a fairly impartial observer, being an unmarried man—that it is very hard to reason sensibly about this matter, because we regard marriage as a contract, and if it be a legal contract it should be dissoluble as other contracts are; and therefore really not a marriage at all; by mutual consent the parties could go their way. But of course the contract means something more than this. There are two ways, it seems, of solving the situation. One is by divorce. Up to the time of the divorce the people are married; but where there is nullification of the marriage, it is found that they have never been married at all, and the woman is declared to have been a common prostitute from the beginning. That is what nullification means, and you can put me down as against nullification. And what is divorce? Suing for the privilege of marrying again, if you please. The parties concerned are at liberty to get an order of protection or separation from the courts, simply because they want to get married again, they appeal in this heartrending way to the people of this country. Therefore, I say there is no justification for divorce, and put me down as against divorce. My experience on the Divorce Committee, which reminds me of what I would call scavenging proceedings, has been unhappy in the extreme, and I would like to be liberated therefrom, and at once, if possible. I can see no justification for the perpetuation of any such mockeries of the marriage ceremony."

REV. LUCIUS B. COMPTON
The Mountaineer Evangelist at Bethany Tabernacle

BROUGHT UP IN THE MOUNTAINS

Rev. Lucius B. Compton Has an Interesting Story to Tell.

Rev. Lucius B. Compton, The Mountaineer Evangelist of Asheville, N.C., who is conducting revival meetings in Bethany Tabernacle will relate the story of his life tonight. Mr. Compton comes from a class known as "Southern Mountaineers," a people who, in the early history of the United States, fled to the mountains to escape the ravages of war. There are said to be 42 counties of western Virgiania, 35 of W. Virginia, 28 of Eastern Kentucky, 46 of East Tennessee, and the eastern part of middle Tennessee, 24 of Western North Carolina, 5 of Western South Carolina, 26 of Northern Georgia, and 17 of Northern Alabama, with a population of at least 4,000,000 Mountaineers. About 1,000,000 of these people live in such abject poverty and isolation that they are afforded practically no educational advantages. Mr. Compton was born and reared among this class of people. In his address tonight he will tell of how God delivered him from those conditions, and elevated him to his present station in life.

SPENT AN HOUR IN HOLY LAND

Last evening the mid-week service of Murray Street Baptist Church was addressed by Mr. T. F. Matthews, who used the stereoptican showing the views taken by himself while in the Orient. The meeting was largely attended and the views were particularly good. The tender references to the places made sacred by their association with the life of our Lord, were such as made the audience feel that the hour was one of worship as well as instruction. Mr. Matthews was particularly fortunate in securing with his own camera, most interesting scenes in the life of the Jewish and Mo-hammedan people.

INCIDENTS AT HEADQUARTERS OF RELIEF OFFICER

The place, the City Relief Officers' headquarters, this morning.

A dejected looking middle aged man entered with a formal good morning "Mr. Miller," "Good morning, Harry," he was answered.

"Say, do you think you could spare me a little more wood," asked the man, as he leaned on the counter with his head in his hands.

"Well, this thing should stop," cautioned Mr. Miller, who filled out the necessary paper to give to the man.

"Well, thank God, I've something to do now," responded the man.

After a few minutes' chat he departer to the street, where he met a friend, and shaking his hands with him, they went off and were soon lost to view

A woman poorly dressed, also entered and asked for groceries. Her request was granted.

"Do you have many like this?" Mr. Miller was asked.

"Why, yes, it's like this all day."

MORE WORK FOR THE HYDRO.

MILK STERILIZED by electricity, the microbes being killed by electric shocks, is being supplied from the Liverpool Corporation's milk depots to about 1,000 babies daily. The new process was devised by Ald. Anthony Shelmerdine, chairman of the local infant-life preservation sub-committee. One advantage claimed for the process over sterilization by steaming is that the milk tastes the same as when it leaves the cow. Strict tests show that any tubercular or other contamination is removed. A current of electricity of high voltage is passed through the milk. Dr. James M. Beattie, professor of bacteriology at Liverpool University, is closely watching the process. During the last ten years many thousands of infants have been fed from Liverpool's milk depots. The babies are visited by women inspectors, who report the results to headquarters.

This is certainly a novel process and one that ought to be considered in Canada, as from all account the present method of sterilization seems to affect the quality of the milk as a food and it has been asserted that milk sterilized by heat is injurious to infants and predisposes them to tubercular affection. If a germ can be annihilated by an electric shock we could give them all they wanted now we have the Hydro on hand. This is something that ought to interest Hydro-Johnson. The Council might go in for the milk business. The name, "Hydro-Milk," might cause some misconception but at least it would be honest.

ARE WE SO BAD ?

The following despatch from London, Ont., has appeared in the Canadian Press :—"Rev. Dr. Rainsford, one time rector of St. James' Church, Toronto, and later of St. George's, New York, declared that Canadians were not facing the question of bribery and corruption in the way they should.

"You are twenty years behind the times," he stated. "I came here, so help me God, to speak the truth ; you are twenty years behind the United States in dealing with this corruption."

Dr. Rainsford said that corruption was existent in Ontario, and he appealed to men to stand before the world and declare themselves on this subject. The curse of God would come upon the nation that tolerated it, and if men bought votes to get into Parliament they would sell their vote when they got there.

"What is the way to cure it ?" he asked. "Listen to me, boys ; the only way is to go into politics and stay there."

The fault lies with the people who are supposed to be above politics altogether. If the country is left to the devices of the purchaser and the man who can be purchased, what else can be expected ? There is a serious lapse from duty on somebody's part.

FARM LABOURERS.

WHAT LABOR THINKS of the Liberal Leader in the Senate is contained in the following caustic reference, in the annual report of the National Trades and Labor Council of Canada, to the reactionary forces now controlling the Liberal Party :

Senatorial Wisdom.—Lest we forget that Canada can boast of a genuine "Old Curiosity Shop," known as the Senate, with some of the relics stored carefully on its shelves dating back to the time of William of Normandy, the following excerpts taken from the speech of the Hon. Sir George Ross, on the Agricultural Bill, are submitted for your delectation :—

"What is wanted now, in my judgment—and I have reasonably wide information on the subject—is that the farm laboror should have a home on the farm as is the case in the Old Country in the land of estates where there are cottages for the farmers, and where they reside and bring up their families, where they are a permanent fixture as in the days of William Normandy when they were practically vassals on the farm. If that scheme were carried out and well managed I have no doubt in 20 years you would have many thousand cottages erected on the farms, provided you could give to the farmers cheap money, and what other condition ? You would have a farm laboror constantly working in the development of that property. He would be on the spot, he would be on the home and raise his family and increase the population, and there would be an advantage in the domestic service to the proportion of that farm. If there is any system of refined slavery, I shall call it in existence in Canada, it is in the domestic service on the farm. The wife and mother is taxed in the raising of her family and in the domestic service far beyond her strength, and also to the disadvantage of her children. In keeping upon the farm a laborer in a cottage which he could call his own, you would employ not only a laborer for the farm, but you would be producing domestic servants which is just as important as service in the outer field."

Without any idea of going back to the days of William of Normandy, we believe there is something in what Sir George Ross says. No one who knows anything about farm life in Ontario can get away from the fact that many farmers' wives are, to say the least, over-worked ; not to speak of the men. Farmers are perpetually crying out about the scarcity of labor, scores come to this country every year to go on farms, already farmers in Peterborough district have booked men in advance for the spring. But where are the men who came out last year and other years, are they still at farm work ? No, they are swelling the cities, they never will go on the farm again, and if you ask them why, they will tell you very shortly that they "have had some and don't want none !"

It may be that these men are in the first place unsuitable for farm life, but it must be admitted that the conditions are by no means encouraging. The men in many instances have to work all hours and are not regarded as beings with social instincts like their employers, they are so much necessary nuisance. If farmers desire to keep laborers and to get cheaper and more satisfactory labor they must encourage married men to settle amongst them. There are farmers who do this, and it would improve things all round if there were more of them.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MR. G. K. CHESTERTON says there were never any "good old times." That is because he was not a contractor on the Transcontinental Railroad.

PROFESSOR SHORTT speaking at the Canadian Club last evening on taxation, referred to "hot air artists" in land speculation and said that many of them had become millionaires. It might bring the temperature of these artists down a little if they were taxed according to the degrees Fahrenheit.

YOUNG WOMEN who are sighing for husbands in the East need sigh no more if they will only pack up and go west. The young men of the East have too many good-looking young women to choose from, and the consequence is they get saucy and spend their time in picking and choosing instead of getting married and living sensible and useful lives. Go west, young woman, and jilt that fickle youth.

IT WOULD APPEAR to be comparatively easy to fool the United States Police. A murderer has only got to concoct a different story every few weeks and upon each occasion the hounds of the law are sent scampering on a new scent. Hans Schmidt who was condemned to the electric chair recently is trying to divert the authorities from their purpose by a confession in which he accuses three others of being implicated in the crime..

M. BERTILLON, the man who invented the well known finger print system of detecting criminals, has died in France. This system has been the means of convicting prisoners, and upon such evidence alone criminals have been hanged for murder. It has also been instrumental in clearing innocent men of suspicion. Bertillon was also the author of many other methods of dealing with crime and criminals. May it not be said that imprints of the hands of crime ?

THE WEEKLY GRAPHIC, one of London's best-known illustrated issues, has a very attractive Canadian supplement in its current number. Each province has a double page of text with illustrations and one page shows the Houses of Parliament, Mr. Borden's photograph surmounting them. Another reproduces all the Canadian official representatives in London. Two striking drawings contributed by Charles Shelton show immigrants disembarking from the Empress at Quebec and an excursion of the Alpine Club of British Columbia. Special Commissioner Leo Scheff, in an introduction, tells of the progress seen on his recent trip and refutes the pessimistic tales.

The Course of True Love.

From "Midsummer Night's Dream."

For aught that ever I could read,
Could ever hear by tale or history,
The course of true love never did run smooth :
But, either it was different in blood,
Or else misgraffed in respect of years ;
Or else it stood upon the choice of friends ;
Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,
War, death, or sickness did lay siege to it,
Making it momentary as a sound,
Swift as a shadow, short as any dream ;
Brief as the lightning in the collied night,
That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,
And ere a man hath power to say,—Behold !
The jaws of darkness to devour it up :
So quick-bright things come to confusion.

FINDING FAULT

By Walt Mason

The kicking game will bring you fame unpleasant, grim and ghostly, so call a halt if finding fault is what your doing mostly.

Some men seem born distressed, forlorn, then nothing ever pleases; in every cause they find the flaws, the spavins and diseases. They kick at home and when they roam about the town they grumble, and every talk they make's a knock, and every step a stumble. They scare, they scowl, they hoot, they howl, at every forward movement; they hurt the town, and hold it down, and balk at each improvement. There is a trail of woe and wail where'er they've gallivanted; the booster hates such moldy skates and thinks they should be planted. They are a bore, the town grows sore beneath their ceaseless wiggings; the band will play some music gay when they have skipped the diggings. Just look around and note, cogs wound ! how much the grouch is hated, then make a vow to clear your brow, and keep your bile abated. So call a halt if finding fault is now your daily pastime; let out a roar just one time more, and let that be the last time !

BOMB AMONG FUEL.

Point Edward Home Thrown Into a Panic by Explosion In Stove.

SARNIA, Feb. 19.—The village of Point Edward was thrown into wild excitement Tuesday night following the explosion of a small bomb in the residence of Thomas Taylor. One boarder, an old man named Charles Webster, had a narrow escape from death. Made of a short piece of gas pipe, loaded with gunpowder and coated with tar, the bomb was concealed in the coal pile.

In the evening the kitchen stove was filled with fuel and Mr. Webster was sitting nearby when the explosion occurred. The range was wrecked, burning coals scattered over the floor, and pieces of iron hurled in all directions. Webster was struck on the chest by a flying fragment but not seriously hurt.

Provincial Detective Acton was summoned at once and hurried to the scene. He searched among the wreckage and found the exploded bomb along with two others. He was joined by County Constable Patterson and the two officers have been engaged on the case together.

BARON IS ATTACKED.

Suffragette Makes Violent Assault on Lord Weardale.

LONDON, Feb. 19. — A militant suffragette armed with a whip savagely attacked Baron Weardale while he was waiting yesterday, with 200 other guests, for a train to Althorp Park, Northampton, to attend the wedding of the Hon. Sidney Peel, son of Viscount Peel, and Lady Delia Spencer, daughter of Earl Spencer.

The woman apparently mistook the elderly peer for one of the Cabinet Ministers. Lord Weardale was walking with his wife along the platform, when he was approached from behind by the woman, who struck him a severe blow with a powerful dog whip, as the result of which he fell in a heap to the ground.

The incident caused a lively sensation among the big party of fashionable people, many of whom were members of the nobility. Their anxiety was relieved when it was found that Lord Weardale had not suffered serious injury. The woman was arrested.

WETS ARE GAINING.

Every Point In Scott Act Recount In Welland Favors Antis.

WELLAND, Feb. 19. — Every change made in the scrutiny yesterday in connection with the Canada Temperance Act election in Welland County was in favor of the wets. The wet majority, which stood at five on Tuesday night, was yesterday increased to twenty-five by a gain of nine in Fort Erie and eleven in Stamford. The effect of this is that if the temperance people succeed in getting the original count for Ward Two, Bridgeburg, declared the true count, there would still be a wet majority of ten in the county to overcome.

Numerous irregularities were discovered yesterday, such as numbered ballots and ballots not initialed. Witnesses are to be called and argument of counsel made before a final decision in these cases is given by Judge Livingstone. The judge pointed out that erasures were being found on both sides. There is a possibility of a large number of ballots being thrown out. Some of the conditions found have a very suspicious look and a more thorough investigation may materially affect the present standing. The scrutiny was adjourned last night until next Wednesday at 10 a.m.

Guelph Factories Close.

GUELPH, Feb. 19.—Notices have been posted in five factories, controlled by the proprietors of the Guleph Carpet Mills and Guelph Worsted Spinning Co., that all five will be closed down indefinitely on Saturday.

This move is said to be a result of the intention of the city to appeal against Judge Middleton's decision in the spring flood cases of 1912 and 1913, in which the two above-mentioned companies were awarded $25,000 damages and costs.

Approve Construction of Railway.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The administration Alaska railroad bill, authorising the President to construct a $35,000,000 railroad from Alaska's coast to its great coal fields, was passed by the House late yesterday by a vote of 230 to 87.

The bill has already passed the Senate and now goes to the President, who is expected to sign it.

CHAPTER I.

In the Wilds.

I HAD this story from one who had no business to tell it to me or to any other. I may credit the seductive influence of an old vintage upon the narrator for the beginning of it and my own skeptical incredulity during the days that followed for the balance of the strange tale.

I do not say the story is true, for I did not witness the happenings which it portrays.

The yellow, mildewed pages of the diary of a man long dead and the records of the colonial office dovetail perfectly with the narrative of my convivial host, and so I give you the story as I pieced it out from these several various agencies.

If you do not find it credible, you will at least be as one with me in acknowledging that it is unique, remarkable and interesting.

From the records of the colonial office and from the dead man's diary we learn that a certain young English nobleman, whom we shall call John Clayton, Lord Greystoke, was commissioned to undertake a peculiarly delicate investigation of conditions in a British west coast African colony from whose natives another European power was known to be recruiting soldiers for its army, which latter it used solely for the forcible collection of rubber and ivory from the savage tribes along the Kongo and the Aruwimi.

We learn also that on a bright May morning in 1888 John, Lord Greystoke, and his bride, Lady Alice, sailed from Dover on their way to Africa.

A month later they arrived at Freetown, where they chartered a small sailing vessel, the Fuwalda, which was to bear them to their final destination.

And here John, Lord Greystoke, and Lady Alice, his wife, vanished from the eyes and from the knowledge of men.

Two months after they weighed anchor and cleared from the port of Freetown, a half dozen British war vessels were scouring the south Atlantic for trace of them or their little vessel, and it was almost immediately that the wreckage was found upon the shores of St. Helena which convinced the world that the Fuwalda had gone down with all on board, and thus the search was stopped ere it had scarce begun.

We know now that the crew of the Fuwalda mutinied, slew her officers and spared John Clayton and his wife because of a favor done to the leader of the mutineers by Clayton. Later the crew, fearing discovery, set John Clayton and his wife ashore on the wild west coast of Africa, giving them sufficient arms and tools to enable them to maintain life with work.

Near the shore Clayton built a little cabin for himself and his wife. They endured much hardship, seeing no human creature, but watched often by the giant apes which infest that region. One day Clayton imprudently left his wife alone, and she was attacked and injured by one of the great apes. Clayton slew the beast and bore his wife back to the cabin.

That night a little son was born in the tiny cabin beside the primeval forest, while a great tiger screamed before the door and the deep notes of the lion's roar sounded from beyond the ridge.

Lady Greystoke never recovered from the shock of the great ape's attack, and, though she lived for a year after her baby was born, she was never again outside the cabin, nor did she ever fully realize that she was not in England.

In other ways she was quite rational, and the joy and happiness she took in the possession of her little son and the constant attentions of her husband made that year a very happy one for her, the happiest of her life.

Long since had Clayton given up any hope of rescue, except through accident. With unremitting zeal he had worked to beautify the interior of the cabin.

Skins of lion and tiger covered the floor. Cupboards and bookcases lined the walls. Odd vases made by his own hands from the clay of the region held beautiful tropical flowers. Curtains of grass and bamboo covered the windows, and, most arduous task of all with his meager assortment of tools, he had fashioned lumber to neatly seal the walls and ceiling and lay a smooth floor within the cabin.

During the year that followed Clayton was several times attacked by the great apes, which now seemed to infest the vicinity of the cabin, but as he never ventured out except with both rifle and revolvers he had little fear of the huge beasts.

He had strengthened the window protections and fitted a unique wooden lock to the cabin door, so that when he hunted for game and fruits he had no fear that any animal could break into the little home.

At first much of the game he shot from the cabin windows, but toward the end the animals learned to fear the strange lair whence issued the terrifying thunder of his rifle.

In his leisure Clayton read, often aloud to his wife, from the store of books he had brought for their new home. Among these were many for little children—picture books, primers, readers—for they had known that their little child would be old enough for such before they had hoped to return to England.

At other times Clayton wrote in his diary, which he had always been accustomed to keep in French and in which he recorded the details of their strange life. This book he kept locked in a little metal box.

A year from the day her little son was born Lady Alice passed quietly away in the night. So peaceful was her end that it was hours before Clayton could realize that his wife was dead.

The last entry in his diary was made the morning following her death. In it he recites the sad details in a matter of fact way that adds to the pathos of it, for it breathes an apathy born of long sorrow and hopelessness, which even this cruel blow could scarcely awake to further suffering:

FOR PURITY IN ELECTIONS

Committee Will Be Formed to Consider Reforms.

Hon. Judge Doherty Concurs In Proposals That Corrupt Practice Act Could Be Revised to Advantage and Promises That a Committee Be Appointed — Public Apathetic and Cynical, Says Burnham.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — The House spent the greater part of the day discussing a resolution offered by A. K. Maclean, of Halifax, calling for the appointment of a special committee to consider amendments to the Elections Act and the Corrupt Practice Act.

The resolution declared that it is desirable to enact more effective provisions to punish bribery and fraud at elections, to ensure thorough publicity as to expenditures by political organizations, to prevent the accumulation of campaign funds for corrupt purposes, and to prohibit contributions thereto by corporations, contractors and promoters, to expedite the hearing of election petitions, and to prevent collusive arrangements for the withdrawal or compromise thereof, or provide for a thorough investigation of corrupt practices, and, if necessary, to appoint an independent prosecuting officer charged with that duty, to simplify the procedure thereof, and to enforce the laws so amended.

Mr. Burnham (West Peterboro) protested against encumbering the statute book with any more amendments to the Election Act. Our trouble was "popular apathy and cynicism," which saw nothing wrong in electoral corruption.

Judge Doherty, Minister of Justice, thought Mr. Burnham was too pessimistic, but at the same time feared that the Dominion Election Act, by its very severity, defeated its own purpose. It put in the same category innocent acts with those which were inherently corrupt. Bribery, he submitted, should be prevented, and also personation, which was a growing evil in our large cities. He was not prepared to say that a public prosecutor should not be appointed and thought something might be said in favor of making all campaign contributions public.

He did not favor compulsory voting, but thought it might be wise to require every voter to attend and register at the polling subdivision on election.

In conclusion, he promised that the Government would have a committee appointed along the lines suggested by Mr. Maclean.

Sir Wilfrid thought the subject in hand should be addressed in a candid and non-partisan way. He was inclined to think with Judge Doherty that the Elections Act was unduly severe in some respects. A young friend of his returned to Parliament had been unseated and disqualified because he gave a hackman a $2 bill for his fare. On the other hand, in a riding where the most damnable practices had been resorted to the successful candidate prevented all investigation and punishment by simply resigning his seat. He opposed Mr. Maclean's suggestion that election day be made a public holiday as tending to promote public disorder.

Mr. Borden, in adjourning the debate, said the committee might accomplish something, although similar committees in the past has not. The great need for reform, in his opinion, would be in the trial of election cases and he was inclined to agree with Sir Wilfrid Laurier that election protests and election trials had become little better than a farce. They were too expensive and the delays were intolerable. Sawing-off election protests was a great evil, which the appointment of a public prosecutor might largely do away with. The House could rest assured that before the next election the Government would endeavor to improve the Eelections Act and provide cheaper and more summary procedure in controverted election cases.

O'BRIEN UNOPPOSED.

Irish Independent Nationalist Is Elected for Cork City.

CORK, Ireland, Feb. 19.—William O'Brien, leader of the Independent Irish Nationalists, was re-elected unopposed as member of Parliament for Cork City. He recently resigned in consequence of a speech by Augustine Roche, Nationalist member for North Louth, who declared that the independent leader had lost his hold on Cork. Mr. O'Brien accepted the implied challenge, and immediately vacated his seat, but the regular Nationalist party decided not to oppose him, John E. Redmond desiring to keep in the background as much as possible any differences between the two wings of the Nationalist party.

Close Season For Emigration.

LONDON, Feb. 19. — Sam Robinson, well known in Manchester among trade union and social workers, writes to The Manchester Guardian yesterday, after a visit to Canada, advocating a close season for emigration.

"It won't be my fault if I don't get back there," he says, "but the way emigrants are being dumped there just now from all quarters of Europe into big, overcrowded cities, is nothing short of a scandal."

No Peace Conference In 1915.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Francis Dyke Acland, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, informed the House of Commons yesterday that it would be impossible to hold the third Hague peace conference in 1915, as under the rules a committee must sit for two years in advance of the meeting preparing a program, and the committee has not yet been formed.

MRS. MANGES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Milkers and Springers.

There were not enough good to choice milkers and springers to supply the demand, consequently prices were very firm at $60 to $90 each.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—Offerings at the C. P. R. live stock market this morning mounted to 550 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 1420 hogs and 400 calves. There was no further change in the condition of the market for cattle today, prices being firm at the recent advance, owing to the somewhat limited offerings and the continued scarcity of choice steers and heifers. Good steers and heifers sold at $8.25 to $8.50; fairly good at $7.50 to $8, and the lower grades at from $6 to $7 per 100 pounds. Choice butchers' cows were also scarce, but there was a fairly good demand for the lower grades, and sales of the best were made at $6, and the common and inferior at from $4 to $5.50. A few extra choice bulls were on the market, which met with a ready sale at $7.50, while choice brought $6.50 to $7, and the commoner ones sold from that down to $4 per 100 pounds.

The trade in sheep and lambs was quiet on account of the small receipts and the tone of the market was firm.

Masterman Has Hard Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Great interest centres in the Bethnal Green election to-day, where Mr. Masterman, who seeks re-election through becoming a Cabinet Minister, has only a majority of 184.

Alleged unpopularity of the National Insurance Act with the poorer classes figures in the Unionist campaign much more largely than home rule. In three columns for instance, of a Unionist evening paper devoted to this election, last night, home rule received only the most casual reference.

HAD TO STOP WORK FROM THE PAIN

Suffered Ten Years Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

ST. THOMAS, ONT., May 22nd. 1913.

"I was troubled for ten years with the most distressing Constipation and Indigestion of the worst form.

No one could have been worse with these troubles than I was for this long time.

The pain from Indigestion was so severe that many times, I have had to stop work and lie down until the acute spasms passed away.

I took a lot of medicine—in fact, I guess I took about everything that was advertised—and gave them all a fair test—but got no relief. About a year ago, however, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives". I am mighty glad I did so for they seem to be made exactly for me.

They gave results in a very short time and I am now free from these diseases and enjoying perfect health.

My wife also used "Fruit-a-tives" and we both think they are the best medicine ever made."

BUT EIGHT MORE DAYS TO SECURE THE LARGEST AMOUNT OF VOTES DURING REMAINDER OF CONTEST

Opportunity Offer in Review Contest Closes a Week From Saturday Night.

Eight days from tonight at 8 o'clock is the last day of OPPORTUNITY OFFER. Candidates and their friends have but little over one week left in which to work on this great offer This is positively the largest vote offer left during the contest, it behooves all candidates to secure every available subscription between now and Saturday, Feb. 28, 8 p.m.

Test Your Metal.

Contestants and their friends should strain every effort to make their vote record as large as possible. Just a few more votes when resource is exhausted, may be the turning point in making you or your favorite contestant a winner of a prize worth hundreds of dollars.

The great value of the prizes, honor and public records for attaining success are important factors now being held worthy of consideration. Just eight more days from today in which to work for the prizes; and the destiny of the world has sometimes been changed within an hour. Empires have been made and unmade in a single faithful hour, and so the result of this contest is likely to be decided by what is accomplished in the next eight days. The valuable prizes are hanging in the air waiting to be plucked by those who have the energy and determination to win them.

Only those who run a race to the very end can ever hope to win a prize. The race is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong, but will be won by the stayer. A tortoise, you know, beat the hare because it kept going. It rested neither night or day until the goal was reached. Victory is not for the sparter, bu for the stayer, so The Daily Review prizes are for the ladies and gentlemen who run the race to the very end. We are all of us nearing the home stretch, the place that tries the metal of anyone who enters any contest of any sort or nature, whether it be a boat race, or a race in a contest for any prize.

A Great Chance to Win

This is the greatest opportunity ever presented to win one of the valuable prizes, and the candidates who would not bestir themseles for a crown will be lost when it comes at the close of the contest. Read over the terms of the great offer.

If you have not already received subscription books, send for them at once. All questions will be promptly answered by addressing the Contest Department of The Daily Review.

CREATION OF NEW MINISTER MARKS OPENING OF LEGISLATURE

After Conference of Whole Cabinet With Sir James Whitney in General Hospital, Eastern Ontario Man is Given Ministerial Rank Without Portfolio.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Since then the Ontario Legislature has settled down to business. The opening day passed off with the usual display of formality, booming of guns, parade of militia and the assembly in the chamber of a host of fashionably-dressed ladies and their male escorts.

Although Sir James Whitney and Hon. J. J. Foy, his senior Minister in the Cabinet, were absent, the machinery of the occasion passed off without a hitch, and the ceremonies of the afternoon, by their brevity, constituted a new record in the pages of the clerk.

During the morning the whole Cabinet visited Sir James in the General Hospital. The appointment of Dr. R. F. Preston, chief Conservative whip, to the position of Minister without portfolio in the Cabinet, was discussed, and shortly afterwards was formally announced. This arrangement fills a vacancy which has existed since the death of Hon. Col. Matheson, shortly over a year ago, and also grants a new Minister to eastern Ontario.

Following close upon the motion for adjournment, came a long series of question from Opposition members.

There will be no lull in the number of questions which will be put to the administration and some of the more recent affairs of public interest throughout the province have already appeared in the form of questions to the different Ministers. These were submitted to the Speaker and will appear upon the order paper of Thursday.

The speech from the throne, after referring to the abundant harvest; the return of the Duke of Connaught to Canada, the restoration of the Duchess to health; the recent road conferences, says:

"It is gratifying to observe the increased interest on the part of the farmers of the province in approved agricultural methods. An indication of this is found in the fact that the attendance at the Ontario Agricultural College is about double what it was ten years ago, while the number of new students registered at the opening of the present term shows a marked advance over that of the previous year. To meet these conditions an enlarged equipment has been provided, and plans for further extensions are now receiving attention.

"The number of district representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been increased and the work of the individual representatives has been made more effective.

"In consequence of the increased consumption of power the Hydro-Electric Power Commission has been enabled to make a further reduction in the price of electricity. The commission has under consideration the duplication of the main transmission line, and is constructing a high tension line to the western boundary of the province. Information regarding radial railway projects has been furnished to communities asking the assistance of the commission, while the efforts to interest agriculturists in the use of electricity have been continued with promising results. During the past year the commisison organized a department for the inspection of electrical installations and equipment in order to afford protection to life and property."

Northern Ontario roads, mineral production, industrial training are touched upon and the speech continues:

"Sufficient progress has been made in the work on the Central Prison farm at Guelph to warrant the anticipation that the Central Prison in Toronto will be vacated in November next. The plan of prison reform adopted in the new institution has passed the experimental stage and is proving satisfactory in every respect.

"The new hospital for the insane at Whitby is now well advanced, and it is believed that a large section of it will be completed and afford accommodation for 500 patients by the latter part of the present year.

"Legislation respecting compensation to workmen for injuries, representation in the Legislative Assembly and other matters of public importance will come before you for consideration."

Statute revision, T. & N. O. subsidy come in for mention and then the question of increased revenue is raised.

"The growing financial demands of the province, consequent upon its development and the extension of its public services and activities, call for increased expenditures from year to year. To meet these conditions a larger revenue will be necessary, which, with your approval, will be obtained from a number of available sources on an equitable and reasonable basis.

"A serious and protracted illness has befallen my Prime Minister, evoking the deep sorrow and sympathy of the whole community. It is very gratifying to know that the recovery of health and strength seems now to be assured."

Gave Life For Employers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. — William Lehman, a night watchman at a coal yard in Brooklyn, gave his life early yesterday in a vain effort to save $75 belonging to his employers. The money was taken by burglars, who blew up the office safe and left the watchman bound and gagged after giving him a beating, from which he died.

REPUBLICAN SENATOR OPENS FIGHT ON PANAMA ISSUE

Bristow of Kansas Declares That "Greed of Railroads and Audacious Claims of Great Britain" Are Responsible For President's Decision.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Accusing President Wilson of inconsistency in his views of the binding effect of the Democratic platform and charging that "greed of the railroads and the audacious claims of Great Britain seem far more potent with our President than the appeal of the womanhood of the nation," Senator Bristow, Republican, of Kansas, turned discussion of woman suffrage in the Senate yesterday into a vigorous debate on the proposed repeal of the free tolls of the provisions of the Panama Canal Act.

Senator Bristow's attack brought to the defence of the President several Republican as well as Democratic Senators, while it served also as the signal for opening the fight within the Democratic party against repeal of the tolls exemption provision. Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Democratic, dramatically declared that he would not "stultify" himself by telling his constituents that be had not kept his platform pledge on the toll question "because the President of the United States does not agree with me."

While Senators were thus engaged in the first open discussion of the approaching battle in Congress over the chief executive's desire for reversal of the Panama policy, the President was himself engaged with leaders of the House of Representatives who are opposed to repudiating the declaration of the party platform. He discussed the situation with Majority Leader Underwood and Representative Kitchin of North Carolina, but so far as could be learned did not convert them to his view that the provision granting free tolls to American vessels violates the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and embarrasses the administration in its foreign relations.

When Senator Bristow said that the transcontinental railroads had for years been behind the fight against free tolls for American ships, and intimated that they had influenced the President, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican member of the foreign relations committee, took the floor to declare that the President was actuated in his attitude on the toll question solely by his desire to restore the United States to its former prestige among nations. "The President does not like to see the United States an outlaw among nations," added the Massachusetts Senator.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma was the first to rise to the President's defence. He asserted that the conscience of no Democrat was bound by the Baltimore platform on the tolls question, because it did not represent the sober judgment of the party on that point.

OPPOSED TO DIVORCE.

Ontario Synod Will Consider Vigorous Resolution Against It.

KINGSTON, Feb. 19. — At yesterday morning's session of the Synod of Ontario a notice of motion was given by Rev. R. G. Glackgrave, of Belleville, seconded by Rev. Rural Dean Creegan, of Tyendinaga, as follows:

"That whereas there is a resolution before the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of considering the whole question of divorce proceedings in this country, be it resolved, that this Synod, in line with the belief of the Catholic Church of the ages, is unalterably opposed to the whole principal of divorce, and do accordingly urge and pray that great care be taken not to widen or popularize a practice which undoubtedly undermines the integrity of the social order, but rather to discourage by every means anything that may tend to cheapen or weaken the marriage tie."

MANOEUVRES DROPPED?

British Navy Can Learn No More From Them Is Statement.

LONDON, Feb. 19. — The London Daily Mail states "upon high authority" that there will be no British naval manoeuvres this year. An outlay of £500,000 will thus be economized. It is the first occasion since 1907 that the manoeuvres have been suppressed from motives of economy.

The reason for the abandonment is said to be that nothing new can be learned from fresh manoeuvres. The Government, it is stated, considers all that is necessary was learned from last year's exercises. The result of the 1913 manoeuvres was never made known to the public. The Daily Mail says that the decision is more extraordinary because last year the manoeuvres showed that the British plan for defence were faulty. Lord Roberts stated that they revealed the fact that a considerable force might be landed on the British coast.

Churchill Is Silent.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Several members tried to draw Winston Churchill in the Commons yesterday regarding the naval strength in view of the absence of any Canadian ships, but the Minister declined to anticipate his statement on the naval estimates.

Mr. Middlemore, Unionist member for Birmingham, declared that England two years hence would be three ships short without the expected Canadian ships, but Churchill refused to confirm or deny this statement.

Lower Niagara's Ice Jam.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 19 —While ice jam conditions in the upper river are slightly improved, they are growing more serious in the lower river. At Lewiston the level of the river was four feet above normal and still rising. It is expected that Pitz's dock will soon be under water, and a repetition of the ice jam conditions of 1909 is feared. The gerat blockade of ice that fills the river from Lewiston to Youngstown, moved downstream a distance of about 1,000 feet.

TO RESTRICT APPEALS

Senator David Would Have Upper House Committee Report.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—After a holiday of three weeks the Senate resumed its sittings yesterday. The chief item was a proposal to curtail appeals from the Canadian courts to the Privy Council.

Senator David moved the appointment of a committee "to consider the advisability of limiting the right of appeal to the Privy Council to certain classes of cases." He said a committee had considered the question last year, and while it had gained much valuable information, it had been unable to complete its work before prorogation. He wanted the committee to take up the subject and make a report.

Senator Belcourt introduced a bill respecting the pollution of navigable waters.

Senator Casgrain gave the Government notice that he would call attention to unsatisfactory conditions regulating the importation of pure-bred horses.

RHEUMA DRIVES OUT RHEUMATISM

After 25 Years of Misery, this Man Walks, Works and Feels Fine Again

Right away—the first day you start to take RHEUMA—the Uric Acid poison begins to dissolve and leave the sore joints and muscles. It's action is little less than magical.

RHEUMA works so speedily you actually can feel the Rheumatism leaving the body. A bottle costs but 50 cents, and if you are not satisfied, the Warne Drug Company wil return your money. Read this:

"I wish to state to you the facts and nothing but the facts. I bless the day a friend brought me a 50 cent bottle of RHEUMA. I used one-half of it and it did me more good than all the other medicines I ever tried. I had been afflicted with Rheumatism all over my body for more than 25 years, I could not walk, and was a broken-down man. During that time I spent a small fortune, trying to get rid of the horrible disease, but without help. However RHEUMA reached my case and I thank God I can again use my feet and do my work.

"Before taking your medicine I was staying with a daughter on her farm, and despite her loving efforts to tempt my appetite, I could not eat. After I had taken RHEUMA two days my appetite returned. Yours for prosperity."—Prof. H. H. Kolling, 7 S Ninth St., Richmond, Ind., Oct. 10, 1912.

Y.M.C.A. DEFEATED EXPLOITS IN OVERTIME BY TWO GOALS

Alerts Had One Goal Victory Over the Wanderers.

There was more speed and clever hockey connected with the games in the Junior City League last night than there has been displayed in any game staged on Brock Street Rink this season. In the first encounter the Wanderers and Alerts clashed and the latter won, though only by one goal. At half time the score stood 1—1, Primeau and Davidson having found the nets previous to the resting period.

Right after the face-off after half time, Brotherston shot from mid-ice and the rubber beat Legros. Things looked all Wanderers for a while and prospects of them winning their first game werevery bright when Revoy contrbuted a long rush and scored. This made it 3—1 in favor of the East City tribe.

"Buck" O'Connell, the husky wing man of the Alerts, started to dig in and for the remainder of the game he was the big noise. He secured one goal on a long shot from the side, and a few seconds afterwards he contributed a long rush and tied the score. Not content with scoring the two, O'Connel kept pressing and a few minutes before full time he took the puck from back near his own goal and contributed a long circling rush a la Denison. After passing the defence he bored the disc at Guerin but the latter never saw it. Legrendre came very near making it five when he beat both the defence men, but he shot wide. The final gong sounded immediately after Legrendre's rush.

The teams:

Alerts		Wanderers.
Legros	goal	Guerin
Lowes	left def.	Coughlin
Davidson	right def.	Revoy
Legrendre	rover	Stewart
Doughty	centre	Brown
Heath	left wing	Brotherston
O'Connell	right wing	Primeau

Exploits Defeated

The second agme not only surprised the fans with its result, but also with the class of hockey furnished. The Y. M. C. A. succeeded in defeating the Boston Exploits by 7—5, but it took twenty minutes' overtime to do it. It was anticipated that the Exploits would win, but they would be given a run on hard ice, and for a while it looked as though the dope was about correct. Three minutes after the play began Graham and Rose broke away on a nice rush and the latter scored. A few minutes afterwards Butcher and Phelan repeated the performance, this time Phelan did the needy on a nice shot from the side.

With the score 2—0 against them the Y.M.C.A. fought hard and time after time Knapman and Jackson contributed nifty rushes, only to be blocked by the Exploit's defence. Finally after eight minutes of real live hockey. Quinn and Jackson came through with a nice rush and the latter registered. Although the pace grew decidedly fast. there was no more scoring till half time.

Right after the resting period the Exploits were forced back on the defensive but Butcher and Rose relieved and after a long rush Rose beat Darling on a wicked shot from the side. Darling was given a warm reception for a few moments and the kid showed better class than he has any time this season. Regan put a cinched appearance on the game when he scored after a long rush but the "Y" came back strong and Jackson finally slammed one in from a scrimmage, thus making the score 4—2.

The many supporters of the "Y" brigade urged them on and after some nifty work around mid-ice Jackson secured a long lift which beat Latimer. With the score 4—3 and two minutes to play the pace grew furious. Quinn came down the boards on a nice rush but Phelan stepped into him and as a result the Exploit's defence man was sent to adorn the boards. That's where the Exploits lost the game. With one man short, the blue and white were working under a handicap and as a result the "Y" scored via Jackson. The roar that went up shook the rafters. A few seconds after the face-off full time sounded.

After a short rest the boys came back to play five minutes each way, in an effort to break the tie. Phelan returned to the ice before any scoring occurred, but Knapman, who had been showing up well all night, found the nets, and put his team to the front. The teams changed ends before any further scoring.

With the "Y" one ahead the Exploits fought hard and they were finally rewarded when Graham registered after a nice rush. The score remained 5-5 when the ten minutes were up.

Bing! and the "Y" were ahead again. The puck was dropped to start another overtime period and Jackson circled once from centre and shot right on the nets and beat Latimer. The rest of the five minutes were filled with speed and fury but no scoring occurred, although Darling was kept rather busy.

The teams reversed and shortly afterwards Knapman practically put the game on ice when he slammed one in from a scrimmage in front of the nets. Although the Exploits worked hard, they failed to register. The score stood 7—5.

The game grew a trifle rough at times but Referee Dobson kept it well under control. The fast pace necessitated an odd trivial offence, which would not warrant a penalty and "Dobie" let them go rather than hold up the game .

The teams:

Y.M.C.A.		Exploits
Darling	goal	Latimer
Smith	left def.	Regan
Cranfield	right def	Phelan
Knapman	rover	Graham
Jackson	centre	Butcher

FINALS IN VICE SKIPS BONSPIEL

Semi-finals Will Start at 7.30—Brightman Wins From Fitzgerald in Inter-rink Semi-finals.

In one of the semi-finals of the inter-rink matches, the rink of T. Brightman succeeded in defeating J. E. A. Fitzgerald yesterday afternoon by 15 to 12. The game was close all the way through. Brightman secured an early lead but Fitzgerald caught him and for the last few ends it was anybody's game. The last end found Brightman with a lead of one point and he succeeded in adding two more shots. The rinks:

Rev. J. Rollins	W. J. Padget
W. R. G. Higgins	W. McCracken
H. Martin	R. P. Best
T. Brightman	J. E. A. Fitzgerald
Skip—15	Skip—12

Vice Skips Bonspiel

The vice skips' bonspiel is gradually narrowing down to the winners. Two matches which were left over from Tuesday, were played last night at 7.30 with the following result:

H. Martin sk......12	R. Harstone . 3
A. L. F. Hall sk.. 8	A. Webb 6

The fine curling of the rink of H. Martin was the most striking event of the evening. All during the 'spiel this rink has been displaying great ability and the rink which puts them out will have to curl extra well. In the 8 o'clock draw, Martin defeated A. L. F. Hall by 13-6. The complete 8 o'clock results were:

W. G. Read sk....10	R. P. Best.... 8
H. Martin sk......13	A.L.F. Hall .. 6
George Hill sk...11	G. Benore ..10
A. Key sk..........12	J. Skinner 5

Semi-Finals Tonight

At 7.30 tonight the semi-finals will be played. The rinks competing are:

R. Dobie	W. H. Lytle
T. Hooper	I. Gollop
J. Read	W. Menzies
W. Read sk	A. Kay sk.

The winners will then compete in the finals which will begin at 9 o'clock. Unlike the rest of the games which have gone, but 10 ends the finals call for 14 ends.

Games in Toronto

Nine local rinks will invade Toronto next Tuesday. Five will play the return game with the Victorias for the Waddell-Capon trophy, while four will play a friendly game with the Granites.

The skips taking their rinks to play the Vics are: R. M. Waddell, J. H. Renwick, W. J. Thompson, R. Hicks, and S. T. Medd.

Those to play the Granites are: W. G. Ferguson, J. H. Ferguson, R. Neill, and W. H. Denham.

Friendly Games

There will be two rinks from Lakefield and three rinks from Keene here tomorrow night to play friendly games with the locals.

MATTHEWS AND RICHARDSON ON OLD BOYS' TEAM

Inadvertently the names of Harold Matthews and "Gusty" Richardson were omitted from the list of Old Boys, appearing on the poster, advertising the Charlie Ray benefit game on Saturday night. Both these players will be with the Old Boys' team.

Indications are that a big crowd will be on hand to witness the game which will be called at 8.30 o'clock. It will be a merry struggle.

BASEBALL

Two cities in the Canadian league Ottawa and Erie, are planning to have Sunday baseball this year. The Ottawa club has secured a park over in Hull on which to play its Sunday games, and while it is against the law to charge admission to Sunday games in the state of Pennsylvania, the Erie people have a way of overcoming that drawback.

A Youngstown exchange says: "Curley Blount, who will pilot the Peterboro club of the Canadian league the coming season, is the busy boy these days. Curly has set out to assemble a pennant winning team and so far he has not lost any time. Following the announcement Monday that he had signed Eddie Price, comes the information that Pitcher Louis Schettler has also signed with Curly. The astute little manager has his eye on several classy players in this vicinity and with the talent he already has on hand, Curly hopes to be very much in the running the coming season.

MALT WASONS

The following is a sample of the poetic genius of the Tool Room and Test fans:

A Test Spasm

Why weepest thou, so young, so fair?
And why lament in rhyme?
A Test defeat is somewhat rare;
Wait yet a little time.
You'll find the Test with vim and zest,
Still stalwart in the fray;
Your tears so pure are premature,
Wait for another day.

'TWAS 9 TO 1

Sad, Sad, my wail, and sad my tale,
Our bravest and our best,
In sad array most peacefully,
They're now laid down to rest.
In stately pace the puck they chased,
Before the game began,
But Tool Room steel soon made them kneel,
To a score of nine to one.

MEETS AWFUL DEATH.

Youth Is Dragged by Foot Behind a Train.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 19.—Boarding a train at Bloomfield, on the Intercolonial Railway, yesterday to come to the city, Frank Gilchrist, the 16-year-old son of James Gilchrist, superintendent of immigration for New Brunswick, was killed.

The train just started as he boarded it. He fell, hung by a foot, and was dragged half a mile. His father was on the train, but on boarding it had urged his son to wait for the next train. The boy evidently did not hear or understand his father. The finding of the lad's rubber on the car step was the first intimation of the tragedy.

RETAILERS SEEK NEW LAWS.

Legislation Penalizing False Advertising Will Be Asked.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—The ninth annual convention of the Dominion Board of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, assembled here on Tuesday and Wednesday, came to an end last night, when a banquet was given in the Chateau Laurier.

Some very important subjects were taken up at the convention during the two days' session. Among other subjects, they decided to press forward legislation during the present session, if possible, to make the false advertising of any article a criminal offence.

They will ask the Government to institute a department under the Minister of Trade and Commerce for the purposes of the retail trade similar to the departments that are now in operation for the protection of the laboring and agricultural classes. They propose starting a campaign for the purpose of educating the public regarding the necessity of the retailer.

REV. W. B. OLMSTEAD HAS GOOD MEETING

Rev. W. B. Olmstead preached last night in the Free Methodist church from the first verse of the second chapter of Hebrews. "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip." He observed that the text was an inference drawn from the truths contained in the preceding chapter, viz:—Jesus Christ being the "Son of God," and coming from heaven as He did, and revealing to us the Father's will, made his message of supreme importance. He showed the danger of letting these great truths slip away from us and the fearful consequences that would follow, as taught by the Saviour. The audience was powerfully and favorably impressed by his address, and several respondedal responded to the invialtar of prayer. Do not fail to hear Mr. Olmstead ao-night.

COST OF EDUCATION HIGH IN TORONTO

Toronto, Feb. 20.—The total amount spent on education in the city of Toronto is more than one-half of the total spent throughout the whole Province of Ontario.

Dean Pakenham, head of the Faculty of Education, Toronto University, in the course of an interview, declared this statement to be true.

Dr. Pakenham stated that the Government report issued in 1912, showed that $9,904,284 was spent on public and separate school education in Ontario during 1911. "You may add $2,000,000 more to this sum and you will have an idea of the approximate amount spent last year," said the Dean.

Messrs. Wilkinson, secretary-treasurer, and Mr. A. D. Waste, assistant superintendent of buildings, supplied statistics which showed a total expenditure upon education in high, commercial, technical, and public school education in Toronto during 1913, to be $5,809,014.

Although this sum is stupendous, and covers cost of maintenance, salaries, supplies and new buildings, the estimates for 1914 show that increases in salaries, increasing cost of fuel, supplies, etc., will augment this total by many thousand of dollars during 1914.

Mr. Brown was descending to the cellar when the top step gave way and he fell the rest of the way down in turn, came to find the cause of the trouble and missing the top step also fell down into the cellar. Mrs. Brown came to the stairway with a lamp in her hand and followed the others. All but Mr. Brown fortunately escaped any serious injury, but Mr. Brown, who has been in very poor health for some time, is in a serious condition.

DOURO FARMER LOSES HIS HOME THROUGH FIRE

The home of Mr. Patrick O'Brien, about half a mile east of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, was burned to to the ground yesterday afternoon. It is supposed that a spark from the chimney caused the blaze. Mr. O'Brien was away drawing ice at the time, and Mrs. O'Brien being busily engaged in her household duties, did not notice the fire till it had made great headway. Extra efforts on the part of the children and herself resulted in most of the furniture being saved.

Neighbors came to their assistance and although the house and shed were destroyed, the barns and other buildings were saved. The house was a frame building and valued in the neighborhood of $800.

SHOULD NOT HAVE TAKEN LAW IN HIS OWN HANDS

Magistrate Imposes Fine of $2 With Costs of $20

Magistrate Edmison rendered judgment this morning in the Lech vs. Profitt case. It will be remembered the defendant struck a hound belonging to the plaintiff, with an axe, while the animal was crossing his property, and inflicted a very serious wound which necessitated the attention of a veterinary. His Worship in giving his judgment, stated that he was in sympathy with Mr. Profitt, as he was continually bothered with dogs, but he should not have taken the law in his own hands. He fined him $2.00 and costs of $20.00, half of which will go to Mr. Lech, and the other $10 as costs of the court.

"STUTTERING CRIPPLE MOUNTAINEER" EVANGELIST TELLS STORY OF HIS LIFE

Born to Poverty and Hunger — His First Sight of a Cook-Stove — Ran Away From the Mountains — Miraculous Gift of Speech — Back to the Mountains and to Rescue Work.

"My earliest recollections are those of want and hunger," said the "Mountaineer Evangelist," last evening at Bethany Tabernacle, in telling the story of his life to an audience which overflowed the seating capacity of the building.

Rev. Lucius Compton spoke for over an hour and for that time his hearers were enthraled with the wonderful narrative of his life. He told how he was born among the mountains, of wild mountain stock, in a country where there was no newspaper and no schools. The home he was born in consisted of a log hut 12x18 and the father and mother and six children lived in one room. He told harrowing instances of poverty and misery. He was a cripple and stuttered in his speech and was ignorant of any sort of education. He told of how he first saw a cook-stove and he thought it was "one of the greatest pieces of machinery that was ever invented!" When his father borrowed a clock he and his brothers used to come into the house every hour to hear it strike—they thought it was music.

Away From the Mountains.

He ran away from the mountains when he was 15 years old and after much privation he burst out into a world of civilization for the first time. He was ignorant and had to accept the most menial labour. But he was fond of music and this attracted him into drinking places and he became a physical and moral wreck at the age of seventeen. He at this time contemplated suicide. He cried in the streets and thought that God was unjust for making him such an ignorant and stammering cripple, without hope of lifting himself from his degradation.

One night in the Cincinnati streets when he was walking along through the driving snow and in utter misery, he heard singing and made for a hall where services were being held, after attending these services for three nights and hearing the testimonies of others who had been lifted from a life of sin, he decided to accept the Gospel. The light came to him when he was in the street at mid-day, and he was so excited that he ran into the first door he came to and shook hands with a strange man there and cried:—"I'm saved! I'm saved!" The man thought he was mad.

The Gift of Tongues.

Mr. Compton told how in a marvelous manner he was cured of his stuttering. The mission people were holding open air meetings and they asked him to get up and give his testimony, he protested to them that he could not speak, but they insisted that he should get up on the goods-box and "stutter for the Lord,"—he got up and began to stutter and suddenly he forgot the crowd and without knowing it he spoke for thirty minutes as clearly as anyone, and from that time he never stuttered again.

He regarded this miracle as a direct call to preach and set himself to study the Bible. By dint of perseverence he struggled through poverty and discouragement and he eventually learned to read and write despite the fact that he never had six months at school in the whole of his life.

Back to the Mountains.

He went back to the mountains and preached to his own people and was so successful that the Baptist church ordained him. He worked so hard that his lungs became affected and he was pronounced a consumptive. He prayed that he might be healed, and was to-day as sound as ever, "not by the aid of a sanatorium, but by prayer." He also affirmed that by prayer his crippled limb was healed and he demonstrated his agility and soundness of limb by leaping up from the plat form.

Mr. Compton then went on to tell of his rescue work among his own people. How he had from very small beginnings established homes for children and for unfortunate women. All of this he says has been done by prayer, he has never asked anyone for money in the building. He believes in fasting and praying together, he fasts and prays for two days at a stretch and invariably finds that God answers his petition.

Mr. Compton is not an intellectual man and he is obviously unlearned in the manner of the schools, but he seems to be a man of deep emotions and unlimited faith and he takes the Bible literally. He disclaims the title of "self-made man,"—he says he is a "God-made man."

OTTAWA HAS TWO THOUSAND TYPHOID CLAIMS

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—A huge bundle of typhoid claims were received by City Auditor Cluff this morning, today being the last day for receiving.

The rush of letters has been so great that to keep any record as to the definite number received has been impossible, but it is expected that when they come to be counted there will be considerably over 2,000 claims.

The task of Judge MacTavish in making the awards will be a big one, and will likely take a considerable time.

MEN GET $4 FOR THEIR TROUBLE

Three Men Who Took Horse Hides Must Return $8

THEY RECEIVED $12

Magistrate Finds They Were Not Guilty of Theft

Frank Longdo, Wesley Crowter and Brock Wright appeared before Magistrate Edmison this morning on the charge of unlawfully taking the hides of four horses, the property of Mr. W. Bronson. The horses were killed by a C.P.R. train, near Indian River, and removed to a nearby field. It was alleged the three men skinned them and sold the hides of $12.00.

Mr. Bronson in the witness box, stated that he left the dead horses on the side of the track for two days and then they were removed to the farm of Mr. Price. On this farm is a bog and the horses were placed there so that in the spring when the ice would melt they would sink in the mire, thus saving the expense of burying them. Questioned by Mr. Gordon, who appeared for the defendants, Mr. Bronson stated that it was not the custom to skin horses as a general rule. They take them to some out-of-the-way place and leave them there.

"Much different in the city," remarked Mr. Gordon, "we have an incinerator, which does away with dead horses, also considerable of the people's money." Mr. Bronson said that Mr. Gollop, a man of that vicinity, asked him for the hides and he told him he could skin the animals and keep his wages out of the proceeds. When Gollop went for the hides they were gone, although he (Bronson) hadn't given any one permission to take them.

On evidence given by Mr. Price, upon whose farm the animals were deposited, it appeared that the men skinned the animals in daytime and didn't do it in any backhand manner. He was of the opinion that they thought the hides were not going to be touched. Mr. Price had told the boys when they spoke of skinning the horses, that it wouldn't be a very great crime.

His Worship found the three young men were not guilty of any offence and the case was dismissed. They will, however, have to pay Mr. Bronson eight dollars for the hides.

CHORISTERS AT MURRAY STREET CHURCH WERE ENTERTAINED

A very delightful function was held in the social room of the Murray Street Church last night, when the ushers of the church with their wives, tendered a reception to the choir. PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY, FEB. 20, 1914.

THE HIGH ART OF HANGING.

THEY DON'T SEEM to know how to hang a man properly in Calgary. It is said that the execution of Jasper Collins, who murdered John Benson, was one of the most bungling affairs of the kind ever occurring in the criminal annals of the Dominion. And yet they are always boasting of the West! Efficiency in hanging is the last test of civilization and culture. England or rather Great Britain (The Globe does not like the name "England"), Britain has developed hanging into a fine art. Some of the finest hangmen that ever lived have been Englishmen, possibly of Scotch origin. Once a man gets his head in the noose there is not a hundred-to-one chance that he will ever get it out again until he is "dead, dead, dead"; in which case his head would be no use to him whatever.

We notice that an investigation is to be made into the case of the Jasper Collins hanging. Jasper himself, notwithstanding the bungle, is dead enough and will not be able to appear as a witness at the enquiry; this is a pity for he was the one immediately concerned and could give invaluable evidence as to the weak spot in the process. The only thing now to be done is to appoint a commission on hanging. Let all the hangmen, including the hangers-on of the late Laurier Government, not omitting the hangman who got drunk in Montreal recently. Let these gentlemen-of-the-noose, and the booze, take a trip to the British Isles, or other countries where hanging is popular, and get first-hand information on the subject. They might well take lessons on the High Art of Hanging. Hanging is as much an art as any other. Some might think that it is on a par with wild-west lassooing, but it is a more delicate art than that. The Wild-west cow-boy could give the east a few lessons in swinging the noose and catching buffalos, but it requires a more delicate dexterity to lassoo a murderer.

The Art of Hanging might well be placed along side of the hanging of pictures at the Royal Academy; discrimination and an eye to effect are essential. The individual to be hung has everything to do with the conspicuousness or un-conspicuousness of the result. In England a murderer is picturesque, the newspapers of Great Britain would be at their wits' end if there was not a murder to dilate upon at least once a month. There is such a demand in this bloody business in some English cities that, when the current supply of good horrible outrages and slack-murders fail the editors dig up some horrors from the past; they will resuscitate Charles Peace, or describe the gory details of the "Ripper" murders, or arrange a re-trial of Mrs. Maybrick, and this keeps their bloodthirsty readers well supplied with "black-puddings," until such times as some poor fool, or some double-dyed villian supplies the real thing. The city of Liverpool has perhaps the finest art gallery in the world; we do not refer to the Walker Art Gallery or to the Autumn Exhibition run by Mr. Dibdin; with all due respect to that expert in pictures, his show is by no means to be compared with the lurid pictures hung in the gallery of the press of that "black-spot on the Mersey." Talk of color, there is color if you like! vermillion for the million!

It would be little use for such a commission to go into the States for lessons on this art, for most of the murderers of the United States, if they can grease their necks well, can wriggle out of the noose of the law. Calgary Hangmen, if they are to be worthy of their British lineage, must get culture—that's what we need in this country, culture, as Mr. Martin Harvey has said ART.

This is an inexhaustible subject and we could go on further, but, hang it! we must stop some place.

CONTRACTORS IN NAME.

SIR WILFRED LAURIER on one occasion admitted that he was "no business man," and time has borne out his words. It has also proved that those whom he employed to help him administer the business of the State were lacking in the same direction. The revelations of the T. C. R. Commission report will give the country an opportunity of judging as to the competence of Liberal statesmen. If those statesmen who were responsible for the carrying out of the work admit that they have blundered they will at the same tim eadmit that they were other block-heads and had no moral right to hold such high positions and take big salaries for getting things into such a mess.

But there is another way of looking at the picture. Sir Wilfrid may have been a bleating lamb, but were his officials so very simple, after all? Were those contracts given out blind-folded and impartially? It may be that we shall never get away from favoritism while party politics prevail, but even favoritism can be fair and kept within reasonable bounds. There is a great deal of difference between giving a man a contract to do work and giving him a contract to sublet to another. Why on earth did these contractors sub-let the work? Because they never intended to do it themselves; they were virtually nominees, or at least contractors in name only.

This is only one phase of the trans-Continental Railway scandal. The whole thing was a farce, from a business point of view, from beginning to end.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE MORNING CHRONICLE of Quebec, the leading journal of that city, laments in a long editorial the fact that the Burnham Bill to Abolish Titles was not carried. It cites the fact that Australia has abolished them and regards their present day status in Canada as both dangerous and ridiculous. It says that a step has been taken in the right direction and hopes for better results "next time."

THE BOWMANVILLE STATESMAN remarks: "Smoking at banquets should be abolished; that is, it should be prohibited in the banqueting room. Belleville Ontario tells of a big banquet in that aristocratic town at which there was suppression of the pestiferous cigar and the result was so generally agreeable that even the nicotine tine worshippers were pleased. Only those who have suffered and endured in badly ventilated dining halls in the past can appreciate the change from reeky effluvia to pure, clean air. We wish the innovation success and long life."

CALIFORNIA'S first Eugenic bride, Miss Laura Van Slyke, is the most perfect specimen of womanhood Dr. Bergalia Ferguson, who examined her, has ever seen. Dr. Ferguson issued a health certificate saying the bride-to-be passed a 100 per cent. test. Miss Van Slyke is to be married to Benjamin R. Bell, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who came to California with a certificate issued by the Indiana State Board of Health. The question is, who is to decide in the event of one of the members of the Board of Health desiring to take to himself a wife? Here s a loophole for the grafter!

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

Some Consolation.

Montreal Mail.

A woman advocate in an English court, spoke for nine hours, and concluded with the remark that she was keeping a lot back. The fact that her last statement went uncontradicted it not strange, in view of all the facts.

A Long Journey.

Herald and Telegraph.

G. K. Chesterton, the brilliant English master of paradox, now says there never were any "good old times." The reading of history would certainly bear out his claim. As long as England has been England it has always been "going to the dogs." But it hasn't got there yet.

A Spirituous Ghost.

Montreal Gazette.

Cobalt miners are being frightened by a ghost that prowls about at night and makes threatening motions at all who cross its path. Perhaps it is the spirit of some of the casks and bottles of delectable fluids that have been seized by the Government sleuths employed to scent the forbidden stuff that comes hidden in bags of cement, cases of tomatoes and carcases of hogs.

Canada in London.

Hamilton Spectator.

As Earl Grey, when Governor-General of Canada, was ever welcome to Hamilton, in the same spirit do we receive his representative, Baron Chelmsford, who comes to us to explain the scheme for the purchase of a commanding site and the erection of an imposing building for Canada's offices in the world's metropolis. We have already described the proposal, and expressed our conviction of its wisdom. As the matter is still under the consideration of the Dominion government, which perhaps would not like to take definite action without the evident backing of the public opinion throughout the Dominion, our distinguished visitor, on his present errand, is rendering a very timely and useful service.

DREAMS

(Westminster Gazette)

Mr. Birrell has been telling an interesting story of how in his dreams he is frequently accosted by the ghost of Isaac Newton insatiably demanding scientific information which he is quite unable to supply. But Mr. Birrell, excellent Johnsonian as he is, might console himself by reflecting how Johnson dealt with a rather similar case. He told Boswell that he dreamed that he met some person in a contest of wit, and was much mortified by his inability to answer his questioner satisfactorily, until he realised on reflection, that his opponent's superior wit was, after all, furnished by himself.

Among the curious dreams of this nature which have tortured men of letters, was one which terrified Macaulay. When he was wel advanced with his History he dreamed that one of his nieces came to him "with a penitential face" in order to make a serious confession, which was neither more nor less than that she had forged the whole of Pepy's Diary. "The dream," he says, writing to his friend Ellis, "was so vivid that I must tell it. I was in the greatest dismay."

"On the Down."

(English Review.)

So fair, so fair!
The wash of air,
The sea of sky,
With the great clouds sailing by,
Too fair—too fair.

We may not lift the veil,
We cannot look behind,
All nature here we find
Conspires to lull our fears,
And she would dull our ears
With tumult of the gale,
And she would close our eyes
With pageants of the skies,
With shadows as they pass
Among the whispering grass.

Oh world, thou art too fair,
An empty, hollow show,
Life spreads before the gaze
Of those whom to and fro
She drives in empty ways.

WILLING WORKERS

By Walt Mason

There are many Willing Workers down among the unemployed, and their lives are spent in trouble and in hardship unalloyed. And they cry, "It's rank injustice that we men of willing hands, must be classed with bums and hobos, with the non-productive bands. Here we stand and ask for labor, beg for work and beg in vain, and there's surely something rotten with the nation's heart or brain. We are little Willing Workers, and no labors would we shirk, but you make us down-and-outers, for you will not give us work." I have hired some Willing Workers, able-bodied men and strong, and they surely worked like blazes—but they always did things wrong. Oh, no odds what job they tackled, they would do it wapperjawed, whether they were herding chickens or just spading up the sod; whether they were fixing fences or repairing buggy-sheds, they were willing with their muscles, but they never used their heads. And I always had to follow, follow sadly in their track, doing all their labors over, with a green pain in my back. This is why the Willing Workers find this world so sad a joint; this is why the stern employers say to them, "Skidoo! Aroint!"

BURGLARS' SURPRISES.

Unexpected Shocks Which Have Come To Members of the "Perfesh."

A Grimsby burglar had a terrible shock lately. He broke into a house and secured his booty—an enticing little bag of small coins. Nobody heard him; all was plain sailing, and in his joy and gratitude he left a little note before taking a silent departure: "Sorry to disturb your peace of mind. Wish you a Merry Christmas.—Bill Sike's Gang." But, alas, not only was he captured, but he was compelled to make the humiliating confession that the bag, which he believed to contain sovereigns, held—farthings!

A gentleman, hearing suspicious noises below one night, crept softly down and discovered a couple of burglars at work upon his safe. The latter article was a good one, and the midnight visitors were busily engaged upon their task before the massive steel door swung open and revealed—an empty safe. The burglars were speechless with disappointment, and before they could recover their composure the master of the house stepped from his place of concealment and said: "I thank you, gentlemen, for the marvellous ability and patience which you have exhibited in opening my safe. I lost the key of it yesterday, and, had you not so opportunely called, I should have been obliged to call in a man (and pay him) to open it for me. Now, by your kindness, you have spared me that expense, and once more I thank you. This way to the front door. Mind you don't trip over the doormat. Good night."

The late Earl of Shaftesbury once lost his watch while walking in Whitechapel. He advertised his loss, as he valued his watch for certain associations. Within twenty-four hours his household was aroused by a violent ringing and knocking at the street door, and the wheels of a vehicle were heard hurrying away in the distance. On opening the front door a sack was found filled with something that moved. On examining the sack, a boy of the Artful Dodger class was found bound hand and foot and gagged. Round his neck was the missing watch, and underneath was a placard with the following words:—

"Lock' im up, mi lord; he's a disgrace to our profession; he orter known as how yer lordship was free of the wud; giv' im five years' 'ard. —Yer Friends.

The earl did not take the advice of his "friends." He dealt kindly with the boy, who afterwards became a light of the London Shoeblack Brigade.

A man entered a house at Beddington, near Croydon, a few days ago, and, among other articles, took a clock from the drawing-room. Coming down the front steps he met the owner, who, thinking that the man was taking away the timepiece for repair, told him that the dining-room clock also required a little attention, and that he might as well take that too. The stranger did as he was bidden, and has not since been seen or heard of by the owner.

Assistant Government Shop.

There is a little shop in Holborn which romantically illustrates the question of rent-free houses. In this case it is a small business, in its way a little gold mine. It belonged to a maiden lady, who managed it with the help of a young woman, who was half domestic servant and half shop-assistant. After many years the lady died. She left no will, her relatives were unknown, she had no friends. Her faithful servitor buried her, advertised for the deceased's relatives, and, waiting for their turning up, carried on the business as usual. Years passed, and no claimant ever appeared, so that without legal processes, but in the order of things, the business and its profits continued in the hands of the ex-assistant.—London Chronicle.

Elected in Belfry.

Following the old custom, Mr. Douglas Stone was re-elected Mayor of Brightlingsea, Essex, in the belfry in the parish church. Brightlingsea is "attached" to the Cinque port of Sandwich, and the mayor is officially known as "The Deputy of the Liberty," the office dating back to the fifteenth century. Six assistants were also elected and paid the customary fee of elevenpence. The mayor was invested with his chain of office, which contains gold oyster-shells and silver sprats, at Sandwich.

MAJOR WAS LIBELLED.

War Office's System of Secret Reports Costs It $10,000.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The British War Office system of confidential reports on which officers of army may be condemned and sentenced to professional ruin without being heard in their own defence, was severely censured by the judge of the King's Bench Court yesterday. A jury awarded Major W. Augustus Adam, formerly of the Royal Irish Lancers, the sum of $10,000 damages against Sir Edward Ward in his capacity as Permanent Secretary of the War Office.

Major Adam, who distinguished himself in the siege of Ladysmith, South Africa, and was at one time employed on special service in Japan, brought a suit for libel, alleged to be contained in a letter written and published by Sir Edward Ward, saying that Major Adam had had to retire from the army in consequence of adverse reports.

Major Adam contended that the letter suggested he had been guilty of dishonorable conduct and incompetence.

The letter was written in consequence of an attack made by Major Adam while he was a member of the House of Commons on the late Gen. Scobell, who had made the adverse reports.

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Suggestions of crop damage in Northern Texas, Western Oklahoma and parts of Kansas and Nebraska, tended somewhat to dispel heaviness today in the wheat market here. Provisions finished all the way from last night's level to 10c to 12½c.

MINISTER ARRESTED.

Rev. J. A. Cottam, of Detroit Suburb, Charged With Arson.

DETROIT, Feb. 20. — Rev. J. A. Cottam, pastor of the Methodist Church at Dearborn, a suburb, was arrested here late yesterday on a warrant charging arson. The minister had been detained at the county jail since Wednesday morning while county authorities and a deputy state fire marshal completed an investigation into the burning of Rev. Mr. Cottam's parsonage, which occurred on Jan. 15, has been released on bail to appear on March 5.

When Rev. Mr. Cottam learned the warrant had been issued he resigned as pastor of Dearborn. He declared he is innocent, and a number of his parishioners said they had confidence in him.

After the parsonage burned, the pastor gave out a statement which declared he had received threatening letters from persons of a different religious belief. He said they objected to sermons he had delivered, which dealt with the religion they professed.

HUERTA CELEBRATES.

Mexican Dictator Has Stayed One Year In Office.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 20. — Gen. Victoriano Huerta yesterday celebrated the anniversary of his accession to the Presidency with a review of the garrison and the formal decoration of the regimental colors of the 29th, the organization which, under command of Gen. Blanquet, placed Madero under arrest.

The ceremony was attended by the American charge d'affaires and the other members of diplomatic corps.

El Imparcial, in an editorial yesterday, referred to the events of the first year of Gen. Huerta's administration, bestowing upon him high praise for his efforts to restore peace.

Salvador Diaz Miron, editor of El Imparcial, against whose anti-American editorials Charge O'Shaughnessy has protested, is to be sent out of the country, according to President Huerta, who has assured Mr. O'Shaughnessy that Miron is to be given a mission abroad.

The Unuttered Oration.

Sir Mortimer Clark, former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, is noted for his tact and courtesy under all circumstances. Shortly after his appointment to succeed the late Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Mortimer accepted an invitation to attend the opening of a newly-established summer hotel near Owen Sound. A party of newspaper men were also on hand for the occasion, but in enjoying the hospitality of some kindred spirits from the local Board of Trade, the press men were diverted from their purpose of attending one of the functions at which Sir Mortimer was expected to speak. The representative of The Globe was unable to see Sir Mortimer afterward in order to learn what he had said, and so he took a chance and included in his despatch a nicely-worded paragraph in which he credited Sir Mortimer with the appropriate things that a public man would naturally say on such an occasion. A few days later the reported received from Sir Mortimer the following note:

"Dear Sir,—I desire to extend to you my sincere thanks for having so gracefully expressed what I would have said at Owen Sound had I said anything."

Tactful.

"Miss De Vere," said the lady who was entertaining the popular actress, "would you mind telling me what your real name is?"

POWER OF CANADA TO CURB TOLLS DISCUSSED IN COMMONS

Protracted Debate in Committee of Supply Turns on Vote For Canada's Share In Expenses of Imperial Trade Commission.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—Ocean freight rates and the power of Parliament to control transportation at sea engaged the attention of Parliament yesterday, there being a spirited and somewhat protracted debate in committee of supply, after a brief explanation by Hon. Mr. Foster of the work of the Imperial Trade Commission, upon which he represents the Dominion of Canada.

W. F. Maclean (Con., S. York) asked if the Imperial Trade Commission was seized of the question of ocean freight rates.

Mr. Foster, in reply, said that during the Parliamentary recess the Dominion Government had sent Chairman Drayton of the Railway Commission to England for the purpose of having a joint commission appointed by the United Kingdom and Canada to enquire into the question. The British Government had not received this proposal with favor, partly because the general subject of ocean freight rates had been already committed to the investigation of the Imperial Trade Commission.

As a member of that commission, he could assure the House that some investigations had already been made in England and in Australia, and the inquisition would be continued when the commission visited Canada. No nation, he said, could exert any control over ocean freight rates, but such control might be acquired by international agreement, or possibly by joint arrangement between Great Britain and Canada.

W. F. Maclean said that he could not endorse this view. The ocean combine was effective to-day, and levied the heaviest tax which the Canadian farmer had to pay. It would take a long time for the Imperial Royal Commission to make a report at all, and then many delays might follow before any agreement could be reached between the Dominion and the Imperial Government. The question was too vital to be surrendered to a royal commission, over which the Parliament of Canada had no control. Mr. Maclean went on to discuss the bearing of railway rates and lake shipping combines upon the question.

Hon. Mr. Foster suggested to the chairman that the discussion had gone far afield and should be checked.

Mr. Knowles (Moose Jaw) took issue with Mr. Foster on this point. The item before the committee, he said, was a vote for the Imperial Trade Commission, and one purpose of that commission was to enquire into ocean freight rates.

The situation in the west, he declared, was a critical one. The farmers were not allowed to sell to the United States, but were compelled to export their surplus wheat to England. This gave the monopoly to the Canadian transportation companies which they took advantage of to rob the farmer.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that the price of wheat in the world's market between 1907 and 1913 had fallen from $1.23 per bushel to 98 cents per bushel, while the cost of producing and marketing had largely increased. It cost a great deal more to produce the wheat, and 15 cents a bushel more to market it.

The rate by lake had risen per 1,000 bushels from $10 to $20, and on the ocean from $40 to $75. It was also to be noted that our Canadian wheat was largely going in American bottoms to American ports. The transportation combine will hurt the east as well as the west.

Hon. Mr. Foster said the question of ocean freight rates was not a new one. The late Chairman Mabee of the Railway Commission had suggested to the Laurier Government the formation of a joint commission. In 1910, the Laurier Government had communicated with the Colonial Office and the Imperial Government had indicated its willingness to join in the formation of such a tribunal, but there the matter had been allowed to drop.

Mr. W. H. Bennett (East Simcoe) challenged some of the statements made respecting the combine on the great lakes. The American vessels outnumbered the Canadian ten to one, so that a Canadian combine would be unable to control rates. The rate from Fort William to Georgian Bay ports could never be higher than from Fort William to Buffalo, otherwise all our grain would go through American channels.

Mr. McCrea (Sherbrooke), who is a practical lumber man, said that the farmers were not being held up by the ocean combine to the same extent as were the lumbermen. The rate upon lumber from Gaspe to Liverpool had been advanced from $4.50 to $8 per 1,000 feet board measure, and the rate upon square timber had been still more increased.

Fatally Injured By Tree.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 20.—Thomas Watkins, aged 63, of the second concession of Westminster Township, was fatally injured in the woods near his home yesterday, when a tree he was cutting down fell on him. A doctor who was summoned discovered that the man had sustained a fracture of the leg at the thigh, a triple fracture of one arm, and injuries to his head. An ambulance was summoned to bring him into the city to a hospital, but in the meantime he succumbed to his injuries.

WATER TANK BURNS.

New Structure at Agincourt Is Destroyed By Flames.

AGINCOURT, Feb. 20. — In the space of an hour Wednesday night the huge water tank here, which was in the course of construction by the C.P.R. to accommodate the increased traffic owing to the opening of the line along the Ontario shore, became a heap of ashes and scrap iron. About eight o'clock in the evening flames were seen issuing from the roof of the tank, but before help could be secured the situation was hopeless. How the fire originated is a mystery. There have been no fire in the building since it was begun last October, and everything was as usual when the workmen left their work at 5.30 last night. The loss is estimated at about $15,000.

For the Country.

"Larry" Wilson, of Montreal, at a recent dinner in Ottawa, told in amusing fashion of paying a visit to the Ottawa Parliament Buildings, and of being shown the Senate Chamber by his friend, Senator Casgrain.

"Here is the Senate Chamber, Larry, where I hope to see you sitting some day," said Senator Casgrain.

"Very fine," said Mr. Wilson; "but who is that old fellow in the black clothes? Is he a Senator?"

"Oh, no," was the reply; "he's the chaplain of the Senate."

"The chaplain, eh," said Mr. Wilson. "What does he do—pray for the Senate?"

"Heavens! no," replied the seasoned Senator. "He prays for the country."

ARE YOU IN THIS GREAT CAMPAIGN TO WIN OR LOSE?

It's up to You to get One of the Many Prizes in the Review's Contest—Have You Enough Votes to Win.

You are almost sure of winning a prize in the Review's great contest if you stay and work to the finish. The prizes are so numerous that every real worker will receive one. But there is a vast difference in the prizes, and there will be only a few votes difference at the finish between the candidate that wins the grand prize auto and the one that wins the gold watch. Which of these prizes you win depends upon yourself. You will have to have the votes, and it takes subscriptions to get votes; so it's up to the candidates that expect to win to do their best this week.

Only a few days and this vote offer will be a thing of the past—three-fourths of the allotted time has already gone. Have you done your best this first part? And will you have a goodly number of votes to your credit when this offer comes to a close? Think what it would be if when the votes are counted you would find that the winner of the grand prize only had a few more votes than you, and if you had taken advantage of this great offer.

How Many Votes to Win.

This is a question that comes to the contest department nearly every day. The only answer to this question is, just afew more than your strongest rival. That may be one and it may be more; all depends upon how much you have been doing since the contest was announced. One thing is certain and that is, a subscription now equals the value of four and one-half subscriptions at the end of the campaign. This is a little warning to those who are waiting for a better opportunity and think that some time later in the contest the votes will count more.

Success is Yours.

A candidate that keeps working is the one that is almost sure to be an auto winner. Like the tortoise and the hare, it is not the most fleet of foot that always wins the race, it is the one who works steadily that will be the winner of the grand prize. Now that the race is so near the end it is a shame that any one should fall by the wayside and be beaten when he or she is right on the threshold of success. Make a resolution that each day you will have one or more subscriptions to your credit and you will find that if you follow this advice when the final count is made you will never regret it. MAKE EVERY DAY COUNT DURING THIS OPPORTUNITY.

What it Takes to Win.

This is the question that is bothering nearly every candidate in the contest. The only answer to this question is, hard work and do this work in the next few days. It is only a few days and this last opportunity is gone. The votes will be cut down and it will take more subscriptions to get the same number of votes. What are you going to do? Answer this important question for yourself. You are the only one that is to judge whether or not you have enough subscriptions to win the prize that you may aspire to win. You are the one that is going to get all this honor. You are the one that will ride in this grand prize touring car and you are the one that will have to decide whether or not you are doing enough work at the present. THINK OF THESE THINGS TO-DAY— NOT TO-MORROW. DO IT NOW.

GOOD PIE CRUST.

Secret Lies in Having Pastry Cold and Oven Hot.

When making pie crust one must use the best lard, butter and sifted pastry flour. If possible have a marble slab for rolling out. Have the butter, lard and water as cold as possible, handle as little as possible, work quickly and keep the crust cold until it goes into the oven. All crust is greatly improved if mixed and placed in a bowl directly on the ice for five or six hours before using. The true secret of good crust is to have it icy cold and the oven very hot when the pie is first put into it.

For one ordinary pie with an upper and a lower crust, use six tablespoonfuls of sifted flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one generous tablespoonful of lard and a scant tablespoonful of butter, with sufficient ice water to hold the paste together. Sift the flour and salt together, and with a double chopping knife chop in the ice cold lard and butter. Do not mix with the fingers. Chop thoroughly until the flour resembles coarse meal; then very gradually add the ice water and mix with a wooden spoon to a paste that is not crumbly, but sticks together without adhering to the sides of the bowl. Now cover with a slightly damp napkin and set on the ice for four or five hours. When ready to make the pie divide the crust exactly in two with a sharp knife, dust the board and rolling pin lightly with flour to prevent sticking, but use no more flour than is absolutely necessary. Roll the crust out quickly into a very thin sheet, always rolling away from you, and be careful when you lay the paste in the well greased pie plate not to stretch it, but see that it covers the plate loosely. Always brush the lower crust over with a little white of egg to keep the liquid from the filling from penetrating it.

Then put in the filling, wet the paste around the edge of the pie, lay on the upper crust, press the edges together with the tines of a silver fork and make several vents in the upper crust for the steam to escape. Brush over the top of the pie with a little milk (to give a good brown color), trim off the superfluous paste and bake in a very hot oven. If a lower pie crust only is to be made, as for lemon meringue pie, use half the recipe and prick the paste shell across the bottom to keep it from puffing up.

Political Caricaturist.

The caricaturist of politicians has his chances and sometimes takes them. An ex-president of the Oxford Union, who knows the pictures of predecessors about the hall, has discovered that if you place a hand across the beard of Lord Salisbury you find a picture of Mr. Balfour. So far no caricaturist has accepted that chance, and Mr. Balfour has steadily refused to grow a beard.—London Daily Chronicle.

Oil Upon the Waters.

The modern world is rediscovering the device of pouring oil upon the waves, which, scholars tell us, was known to Aristotle and practiced by Pliny. Professor Ray Lankester says that so small a quantity as a pint an hour is sufficient to secure a zone of calm round a ship, so that boats can be launched in safety. It is not improbable that oil will be carried for this purpose hereafter.

AUTO HEARSE ABLAZE.

New York Street Is Scene of Sensational Episode.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The sight of an automobile hearse, containing a body, and ablaze from end to end, attracted 3,000 curious pedestrians on Lower Broadway yesterday. Harry Davis, the chauffeur, swathed in a big fur coat, also caught fire and was slightly burned before volunteers stripped off the garment.

The body, that of a woman being taken to the cemetery, was removed from the blazing hearse by the police. Firemen then put out the fire. It had caught from the motor.

This is the third murder of pedlars in recent years in this locality.

Seede left Brandon Jan. 13, and got to Sidney the following day when his pack was robbed. Then he set out to search for the missing goods and was never seen again.

LEGISLATURE LOSES NO TIME GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS

Mr. Rowell Makes Suggestions Regarding a Remedy For the Present Industrial Situation, But Strictures on "Liquor Alliance" Draws Pointed Reply From Hon. Mr. Hanna—New Members Heard.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—The Provincial Legislature got down to work without delay yesterday, and four speeches were contributed to the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Messrs. Colin Cameron and George S. Henry, the new members moved and seconded the adoption of the address and proved themselves fluent and convincing orators. Mr. Rowell opened the battle for the Opposition, taking for his text the omissions from the speech, and dwelt chiefly upon the industrial situation as worthy of more attention from the Government. A reference to "the alliance with the liquor interests" brought swift and certain retribution from Hon. Mr. Hanna, who did not, however, have a chance to speak on the speech from the throne itself.

Mr. Colin Cameron (Con., N. Grey), who moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne, referred in opening to the absence of Premier Whitney, and expressed a hope of his speedy return to the chamber.

There had been a general increase of prosperity in the province, said Mr. Campbell and conditions of farm life had shown steady improvement. He referred to the administration of the prisons and asylums, the achievements of the Hydro Electric Commission and to the approaching Workmen's Compensation Act.

Mr. George Henry (Con., E. York), took occasion in seconding the address to dispute the talk of rural depopulation. The statements were only partly true. The census of 1911 showed a large increase in the number holding five acres and upwards. He looked for a great improvement in conditions with the advent of better roads and Hydro-radials.

When Mr. Rowell took the floor his first remarks were by way of tribute to the absent Premier and to Hon. Dr. Pyne who had so patiently stood beside him in his illness.

After a reference to the completion of statute revision, which he said was quite unparallelled in its tardiness, he expressed his regret at the absence from the speech from the throne of any reference to assessment reform.

A proposal should have been brought down at least to show appreciation of the deep-seated desire of the people for this move. Anti-treating also had suffered from a gradual retreating. Had the Provincial Secretary blundered, or were his allies drawing the lines too tight?

Mr. Rowell then dealt with the industrial situation and the increase in unemployment. In both country and city was an increasing industrial unrest. By the 1911 census the rural population had decreased by 111,000 from that of forty years ago, and as the cities grew larger so did the social unrest increase. About 42,000 were directly affected by the conditions of Toronto, and the same state prevailed in London, Ottawa and Hamilton. A survey in London had shown that a family could not live on less than $597, and yet the average income of many was only $445. It was good to help men in prisons, but it was better to help them when out. The labor exchanges of the old land might work well here.

In conclusion, he moved that the Government consider steps to better the workmen's condition by uniting the bureau of labor and the factory inspection branch and that conditions be studied with a view to remedying the whole affair.

His amendment to the address also declared that existing conditions emphasized the need for a department of the Government presided over by a Minister to promote the betterment of the workers of the province.

Hon. Mr. Hanna, in opening his speech in reply, predicted that Sir James would yet return to serve the country from his position in the House, an announcement received with great acclaim. He at once took exception to Mr. Rowell's remarks on the temperance situation and the liquor alliances of the Government.

"If the hon. gentleman will take the pains to analyze the returns of the bye-elections he will find that the figures are directly contrary to the statement that the Conservative party and the liquor interests are in any way allied," he declared. In Middlesex the figures showed the county very strongly temperance, and the votes for the new member were almost identical with those of the local option vote. Every time Mr. Rowell spoke in that way he was doing a lasting injury to the temperance cause. They were making the question a party one.

He asked if there was a liquor alliance in North Grey, where once a Liberal member had been returned with a majority of 750, and that was now converted into a majority of 400 for the Government. It was not fair to suggest that 1,100 Liberals had entered a liquor alliance and gone to the polls, declared Mr. Hanna.

Inflammable Darts For Aeroplanes.

DUBUC, France, Feb. 20.—An inflammable dart for use by aeroplanes was tested yesterday in the presence of military air experts with satisfactory results. The dart carries a small reservoir containing gasoline which explodes on contract. Its purpose is to set fire to dirigible balloons or buildings. Three of the darts were dropped yesterday from an aeroplane at an altitude of 600 feet and found their mark.

PROGRESS WITH TREATIES.

Panama Toll Repeal Necessary to Give U. S. Caste, Says President.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—Extension of general arbitration treaties with foreign nations as the first move in the general policy of the administration to rehabilitate foreign relations of the United States assured last night, after the Senate had taken up consideration of expired treaties and had closely defined the issues involved in the situation confronting the nation.

Before the debate in the Senate began on treaties with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerlnd, President Wilson had conferred with Senators and representatives about the treaties, as well as the paramount issue of Panama Canal tolls. He was assured by leaders of both Houses that they would vote to repeal the toll exemption for American ships after the treaties had been ratified.

During his conferences, the President explained that it was the universal view of European nations that the United States had violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty by the exemption clause in the Panama Canal Act.

He said no official representations to that effect had been presented—in fact that there had been no protest from Great Britain during the present administration—but that he knew the impression was broadcast in Europe that the United States was becoming remiss in the keeping of treaty obligations.

Senator Was Vindicated.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 19.—A verdict in favor of U. S. Senator Thomas F. Gore was returned here yesterday in the suit of Mrs. Minnie Pond against him to recover $50,000 damages for an alleged attack made on her in a Washington hotel, last March. The jury was out only ten minutes.

The prettier the girl is the harder it is to coax her to sing.

POLICE CHIEF THOMPSON ASKS FOR FOUR EXTRA

by the Police until their parents could be located and notified.

In addition to our local work there were a number of arrests made for outside places, of which I will only mention the most important ones :—

2 for Hastings—shop-breaking and theft.

2 for Mimico Industrial School—running away from school.

1 for Gooderham—theft.

Outrages of Street Lights.

These were reported by the Police to the Inspector of Lights ; outrages to the number of 1185, of which 691 were reported out all night, and the remainder at different periods during the night.

Recommendations.

Our city is growing by leaps and bounds, in fact at the present time it is heading the list of all the cities of Ontario in this respect, which is undoubtedly due to the good work of the City Council to whom we cannot express ourselves sufficiently for their good work.

It covers an area of 2807 1-3 acres, being 2¾ miles in length and 2 miles in width, and is nearly half the size of London, Hamilton and Otawa.

It is also bounded on the south by the township of North Monaghan, which has about 3,000 population, and which is practically part of the city.

During the summer months petty complaints from the residential districts of the city are innumerable, and we frequently receive complaints as to ladies and young girls being molested in said districts, and I contend this is due to those districts being unpatrolled by the police.

The strength of the force is ten, all told. An officer has to be in attendance at the Police Station continuously. We cannot do without plainclothes men for their particular branch of work, and I may also state that in the majority of cases people scorn the idea of an uniform man calling at their homes while investigating an offence, which may from time to time arise, so I leave it to your Honourable Board to judge as to what men are left to patrol and keep the city in order throughout the 24 hours of each day.

Inadequate Protection.

There is another very important matter which I must mention and that is the safe-guarding of lives and property. It is evident that during the dead of night when people are asleep, that they would feel assured that should fire break out in any of their dwellings there would be some one to arouse them before their lives were endangered, and they themselves left homeless.

The above all goes to show as to the inadequate police protection, and it is an established fact that the presence of a Police Officer in any district has a telling effect in the prevention of crime.

I feel that the above reasons are sufficient to warrant the strengthening of the force and bringing it up to a higher state of efficiency. I therefore urge that four men be added to the force, thereby enabling me to install a Morality Officer whose sole time would be given to that particular branch of work, and even then the strength of the force will be inadequate compared with other cities of similar size in this province.

I would also recommend that a typewriting machine be purchased for my office.

My correspondence with other forces is becoming greater every year and I feel that a typewriter is a necessity. I have also a large amount of work in connection with the printing of circulars regarding stolen property, etc., which have to be circulated throughout the country, most of which could be done from my own office if a typewriter were installed.

Remarks.

P. C.'s Bullied, Gamble and Tucker sent in their resignations during the year. These vacancies were very favorably filled by the appointment of William Patterson, George Phinester and George Hayward.

I regret to report that two of the oldest members of the force have been incapacitated through severe illness, for a considerable time during the year, one of whom has been forced to retire.

I cannot express my appreciation sufficiently for the good work that has been done by Mr. George Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. J. E. L. Goodwill, Solicitor for the said Society, for looking after the needy and neglected children of our city, and assisting us in connection with our Juvenile Court.

I also desire to express my appreciation to the local press for their fairness in reporting all Police Court cases.

The Chief Constable's Association of Canada meets this year in the city of Winnipeg and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend, accompanied with the necessary appropriations. All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. Thompson,
Chief Constable.

THE NEW ARCTIC LAND.

There Is Not Enough Room For It to Be "as Large as Greenland."

It is scarcely possible that the newly discovered Nicholas II. Land is "as large as Greenland," for there is no such unknown area on the map. Greenland is about 1,000 miles long and 800 miles wide. The point at which the new land was reached is about sixty miles due north of Cape Chelluskin and extends, so far as surveyed, not more than 200 miles northward. To be as large as Greenland the island would have to stretch clear across the pole well over toward Point Barrow.

Nevertheless there is room in the Arctic ocean between the Taimur peninsula and the Alaskan coast for a large island or group of islands, and observations of tidal currents have long indicated that some such land existed. The reported discovery lies almost midway between Franz Josef Land and the New Siberia islands. Thence it can scarcely extend far to the westward, but it may reach eastward and north of east for some hundreds of miles without entering the region which has been explored by voyagers by the way of Bering strait.

The political and economic value of the new land will be nil. Its geographic and oceanographic interest to the scientific world will be great, and it will make to the polar map one of the most striking additions this generation has seen.—New York Tribune.

CANDY RECIPES.

Old and New Ways of Making Sweets For Children and Grownups.

No matter how much candy one is able to buy, there is a pleasure in making certain varieties of sweets at home. Besides, the home manufactured product is much cheaper and purer than the kinds purchased in the shops for small sums of money.

When making candy granulated sugar is preferable. Candy should not be stirred while boiling, and cream of tartar should not be added until the sirup begins to boil. Butter should be put in when the candy is almost done. Flavorings are more delicate when not boiled in candy, but added afterward.

Cocoanut cream candy is delicious made by this recipe: One cocoanut, one and one-half pounds of granulated sugar. Put sugar and milk of cocoanut together, heat slowly until the sugar is melted, then boil five minutes; add cocoanut (grated finely), boil ten minutes longer and stir constantly to prevent burning. Pour on buttered plates and cut in squares. The candy will take about two hours to harden. When cold cut into small squares.

Candied Popcorn.—Put into an iron kettle one tablespoonful of butter, three tablespoonfuls of water, one teacupful of white pulverized sugar, then throw in three quarts of nicely popped corn. Stir briskly until the candy is evenly distributed over the corn. Take the kettle from the fire and stir until it is cooled a little and each grain is crystallized with the sugar and separate. Be careful not to burn the corn.

Cream Candy.—One pound of granulated sugar, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one teaspoonful of extract of lemon, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add a little water to moisten the sugar and boil until brittle. Put in the extract and turn out quickly on buttered plates. When cool pull until white and cut into squares.

Ice Cream Candy.—Three cupfuls of sugar, crushed or cut loaf; a little less than one-half cupful of vinegar, one and one-half cupfuls of cold water, piece of butter the size of a walnut. Flavor with extract of vanilla. Boil until it hardens, then pull until white.

Good Dishwashing Machine.

Dishwashing is still the bugaboo of many women, so any device that can assist this part of the work deserves to be used and used extensively. A new washer is just on the market which has been tested with good results. The makers claim that it washes the dishes from the average family meal in three minutes. It washes the silver and glass as well as the dishes, and, as it uses boiling water, the dishes need not be dried. It is impossible to break a dish with this washer, which in itself is a wonderful recommendation. It occupies the same space as a kitchen chair and, as it is on rollers, can be moved easily from place to place.

Uncertain.

"Friend of that family?" asked the stranger of the man who was hanging around near a picnic party.

"I don't know that I could say that."

"You know them?"

"Slightly. You see, I am just the husband and father."

Too Many.

When counting moons at midnight
And four you plainly see
It's time to quit the habit
Of going on a spree.

TRIO SKIPPED BY GEO. HILL WON THE BONSPIEL

Finalists in Vice-skips Play Without Lead — Victory by Two Shots.

The result of the semi-finals last night in the vice skips' bonspiel resulted as follows:

W Read—14	H. Martin—9
Geo. Hill—10	A. Kay—7

The finals immediately afterwards between Geo. Hill and W. Read, brought out some of the finest curling that could be witnessed. Although there was no spectacular shots the closeness of the game and the beautiful curling of both skips kept the interest very keen all the way through. At the end of the third end, Read had a lead of five points and then Hill annexed two shots in the fourth. Read came back strong in the sixth and made two more while the best Hill could do in the next end was to obtain one. Read made two more counters, but in the eighth end Hill came strong and made three. Two shots came Read's way in the ninth, but from then on he failed to score. Hill cleaned up in all of the five ends. The curling of P. D. Fitzgerald in the latter part of the game was one of the direct reasons for Hill's win.

Both rinks were minus their lead.

The rinks:

T. H. Hooper	W.J.Padget
J. Read	P. D. Fitzgerald
W. Read	Geo. Hill

New Playing Cards.

Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer, society leader and author and leading authority on the history of playing cards, is soon to appear in the role of an inventor.

Mrs. Van Rensselaer has devised a pack of playing cards each one of which will bear the etching in black and white of a distinguished woman. Historical legends will appear below. There will be four suits, the emblems of which will be a crown, a serpent, a Maltese cross and the Liberty bell. The crown denotes royalty and appears on cards bearing the etchings of women of royalty. Upon those bearing the serpent, denoting immortality, appear noteworthy women, and upon cards bearing Maltese crosses will appear oppressed women and upon the Liberty bell American women. Each of the last named cards will bear the inscription, "Taxation Without Representation."

The cards were intended for educational purposes, and, although they may be used for certain games, they are so made that they will not appeal to the gambler. The idea is entirely novel.

Opposite Kinds.

"He has written one of the best sellers of the day."

"I suppose he wrote it in an attic."

"No; in a basement—in fact, one of the worst cellars of the day."

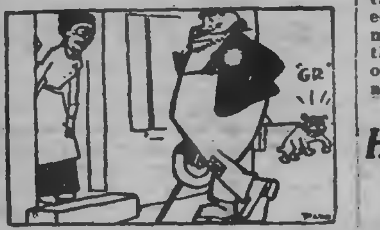
Any One Could.

"He always brings his pay home to his wife."

"That is nice of him. What is he getting?"

"He isn't working now."

Suited Him.



"Can you give me some work, lady?"

"I am afraid not."

"Just a little that I may get something to eat."

"I have very little work."

"Well, give me half of that."

Sure Cure.

"I just can't understand women."

"Why don't you marry one?"

"Will I understand them then?"

"No, but you will quit trying."

NEW GIANT RACE.

Missionary Relates Remarkable Incidents of Sudan Negroes.

Some interesting facts about a strange race of giants in the Sudan are given by the Rev. C. Lea-Wilson, who has been carrying on missionary work in a district of the White Nile, a thousand miles south of Khartum.

"It was only at the beginning of last year," he told a London newspaperman, "that a first attempt was made to penetrate to the west of the river into the Bahr-el-Ghazel. We traveled here for about 200 miles, and fixed on a large clearing in the forest for our station. In the neighborhood are about 8,000 people, known as Jieng, who are among the tallest tribes in the world. They are jet black, typical negroes, and do not practice either cannibalism or human sacrifices. They have admirable qualities, and I have never seen among them a case of cruelty to women and children.

"They have many curious habits. For some reason apparently unknown even to themselves, all adults have six of their lower teeth removed. This does not add to their personal charm, but they are great dandies. They employ a kind of native tooth brush with which they clean their teeth by means of wood ash. They take great pride and devote much time to the dressing of their hair, powder their faces and wear ostrich feathers.

"They have a habit when at rest of standing on one foot like storks. They believe in a Supreme Being to whom they sacrifice through their chiefs or witch doctors. Just before I left they made great preparations for a rain sacrifice, but the rain came the same afternoon before the sacrifice was offered."

Mr. Lea-Wilson states that surrounding country is like a zoological garden. Elephants, giraffes, rhinos, buffaloes, hippos, lions and leopards abound.

The Jieng people are remarkably brave, and they killed two man-eating lions with spears alone. This means that the first men attacking the animal are killed to a certainty before their companions are enabled to rush in and dispatch the wounded animal.

They also hunt elephants in the very primitive and dangerous fashion of dropping weighted spears upon the elephant from branches of trees. These spears remain fixed, and the elephant exists for days until it is exhausted by the increasing number of spears which are embedded in its hide. The country is full of ivory, large quantities of which are hidden or buried and will probably never be found.

In one little village the people killed 15 hippos in three days simply by throwing spears at the huge creatures from frail dugout canoes.

A Gipsy Burial.

Curious customs were observed at the funeral at Ilford, Eng., of the Russian gipsy child Mac Cedre. The boy was dressed in his best clothes, with a new red hat and shoes of the same color to match, the shoes being beautifully embroidered and ornamented with brightly colored beads. Each mourner placed silver and copper coins in the coffin, and the father put some bread and meat with the money. The father ceremoniously poured claret over the coffin before it was lowered into the grave. Afterwards more of the wine was sprinkled over the coffin. During the afternoon the ceremony of "triah" was observed, the mourners sitting round a fire making incantations for the spirit of the departed. The first of a series of funeral feasts was held six days after the ceremony.

The proceeds amounted to $18.70.

At the home of Mrs. H. G. Walker, president of the Welcome Bible Class, of George street church, a very pleasant time was spent yesterday afternoon, when about forty members of the class, of which Mrs. Carlisle is teacher, met for a social afternoon. Foreign Missions, the Subject at Free Methodist Church Tonight

Several preachers and evangelists and a number of laymen are to arrive in the city to-day to attend the district quarterly meeting and Sunday School Convention, now in session in the Free Methodist church on Aylmer street. Rev. M. S. Benn, of Toronto, will preach on "Foreign Missions" to-night at 8 o'clock. To-morrow (Saturday) at 2 p.m. nine speakers will give short addresses on live Sunday school subjects. AN ENTERTAINING BILL AT THE ROYAL

The week-end bill of the Royal Theatre this week is of the same high standard that the preceding shows have been. The vaudeville includes a big musical novelty by Rankin. He plays various tunes on bottles, steel bars, etc. His performance on bottles, partially filled with water, is not only amusing, but also enjoyable. Heefer and Alberts the German comedian and western girl, afford considerable ausement. Several other acts all go to make up an up-to-date show. The motion pictures are featured by the big comedy and drama film entitled, "The Mysterious Man."

CHIMNEY FIRE.

The firemen had a call to 289 Rubidge street last evening to attend to a chimney fire. Wm. Longas is the tenant and the house is owned by Mrs. J. Clancy.

OUR NEW TELESCOPE.

Canada's Astronomical Instrument Will Set World's Record.

Now that the contract for Canada's new telescope — the largest in the world—has been let more details are at hand with regard to the great scientific marvel which is to grace the observatory at Ottawa.

A rough idea of its size may be gained from noting that a full sized automobile could be readily driven through the tube. The company that will construct the telescape built the Lick telescope, finished in 1887, the object glass of which is thirty-six inches in diameter, and the Yerkes telescope, finished in 1893, which has a forty inch glass. These were the largest in the world.

"The great reflecting telescopes made by the English and by the French years ago," says Ambrose Swasey, a distinguished scientist, "served their purpose in the science of astronomy, but the development of astronomical photography introduced a new era.

"Progress, particularly in astrophysical and photographic lines, has been greatly advanced by the use of reflecting telescopes and especially by the work done with the sixty inch reflector at the Mount Wilson solar observatory.

"Notable results have been obtained by the use of reflecting telescopes in later years, and this has stimulated a great interest in this type of instrument, such as is evidenced by the present contract.

"Even greater impetus will now be given by the action of the Canadian Government in acquiring this splendid seventy-two inch instrument, which when finished will be the largest telescope yet constructed.

"This great engine of science, weighing fully fifty tons, resting upon massive piers of concrete, will have a tube thirty feet long and seven feet in diameter, which will weigh ten tons.

"At the lower end of the tube will be located the principal speculum, composed of a disk of glass seventy-three inches in diameter, ten inches in thickness and weighing approximately two tons.

"When used as a Cassegranian instrument a secondary convex reflector nineteen inches in diameter will be placed near the upper end of the tube for reflecting the rays back through a hole in the speculum to the great spectroscope attached to the lower end of the tube.

"As a Newtonian instrument a flat mirror will be provided for reflecting the cone of rays at right angles into the photographic apparatus at the upper edge of the tube.

"As a direct vision instrument both secondary mirrors will be removed, and appliances for visual, photographic and spectroscopic work will be attached at the prime focus.

"The tube and the declination and polar axes, with their attachments, weigh thirty-five tons, and so nicely is each part balanced and adjusted that the powerful driving clock revolves this immense weight with such accuracy and uniformity that the spider line in the eyepiece of the pointing telescope attached to the great tube can be kept exactly on the centre of the star under observation."

Use a funnel for filling hot-water bottles, and the bottles will last longer.

RAILWAY GHOSTS.

Many a Story Is Told at Wayside Stations.

The stillness of the night on the railway, except when the mail-train goes flashing by, the twinkling of the various lights, and the utter loneliness of its many miles of track, have been the cause of many a ghost story among railway men, says a London writer.

I remember a case where a ghost at a wayside station so scared the night signalman that, although he had a gun with him, he pulled down the blinds and did not dare to look out for fear of seeing it!

None of the local staff would work at night near the haunts of the ghost, and finally a "ghost proof" porter was brought down from another station. He found that a local thief had wrapped himself in a white sheet simply to scare the railway staff from being around while he was stealing goods from the wagons about the station!

Another ghost I came across was always conspicuous on wet and stormy nights. To make it more horrible a number of people swore that it always carried its head under its arms!

Strange to say, the night watchman never saw it, and was as much puzzled as anyone to know how a ghost could be on the line without him seeing it sometimes.

Late one stormy night, however, the watchman came up to my lodgings to inform me of a break-down on the line. When my landlady opened the door, in answer to his knock, she yelled, "The Ghost! The Ghost!"

I ran out to the rescue, and found that the "ghost" was the night watchman himself, with his hand-lamp tucked under his arm, and the cape of his yellow mackintosh over his head to shelter him from the rain.

At one engine-shed all the night-cleaners were scared out of their lives by the wail of the banshee! Night after night, as twelve o'clock approached, it would weep and wail, and people used to get in early so as to avoid meeting it.

A hard-headed inspector, who did not believe in banshees, made a thorough investigation, and found that the noise was caused by the valve in a large water-tank near the line not closing properly. Near midnight the tank would be filled up, and the pressure of the water made a loose piece of leather vibrate like a reed in a mouth-organ.

That was the wail of the banshee!

I remember one engine that was "bewitched by the fairies!" It was all right when the driver left it in the shed at night, but next morning when attached to a train, it refused to move. It would run by itself, but absolutely refused to take a load of any kind.

Expert drivers tested the engine and examined all the usual parts, but failed to find anything wrong. Local opinion was firm that the fairies had bewitched the engine, so it was sent to an out-station, only to come beak labelled as useless, thus confirming the fairy spell!

Finally it was sent to a shed and overhauled by a northern engineer who had never expressed a belief in fairies. He found that the internal copper steam-pipe had collapsed flat, and allowed just sufficient steam to pass through to move the engine, but not enough to work the train.

Wild Beasts Increase.

Wild animals are increasing at a surprising rate in the Hazaribagh district in India, and it is unsafe for people now to go far out of the station after dark, as tigers have been seen at different times by people motoring, cycling, as well as those traveling in "push-pushes" down the Hazaribagh and Burhi Roads. Not long ago, a gentleman coming in from Burhi on his motor bicycle saw a fairly large tiger cub frisking near the road, which just looked up at him as he passed and went on with its game. Recently it was reported to the "Sahibs" in the station that a leapard or tiger had been seen behind the jail, so a number of them went after the brute, but unfortunately were not able to locate it. Several Indians have been brought in mauled by leopards lately, and most of them have succumbed to their injuries. A man-eating tiger is doing a great deal of damage in the district, and has already killed about 40 people. This will probably induce "Shakaris" to try their luck in Hazaribagh.

Young Hero Saves Brother.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 20. — Wilfrid Dillabough, aged 13 years, performed a heroic act in rescuing his brother Percy, aged eight, who had fallen into an unprotected well. The lad was caught by one foot in the stones six feet from the surface. Wilfrid succeeded in catching the foot that was free and by loosening the other, held his brother above the surface of the water until assistance arrived.

Reinforce Law Against Trusts.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20. — President Wilson desires that the proposed bills dealing with the trust problem be so phrased and adapted to the decisions already rendered by the Supreme Court of the United States on the Sherman anti-trust law, that the efficiency of that statute shall be neither impaired nor compulsory, but properly supplemented.

Rural Acumen.

"Have you any dollar caps for 30 cents?" asked the bright city cuap, rushing into the crossroads store and waiting for some one to smile at his pleasantry.

"No," replied the easy going clerk, "but we have some thirty cent caps for a dollar. How many shall I wrap up for you?"

"See Us and See Better."

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

HALLOWEEN.

WHEN October's growing colder
And the days are getting colder,
When the leaves grow red and rustle,
When the weather makes us hustle,
Then we think of Halloween.

When the days are dark and dreary
And the evening fires are cheery,
When the frost begins to bite us
And the northern wind to smite us,
Then we think of Halloween.

When the pumpkins get so mellow
That it sort o' makes a fellow
Wish Thanksgiving time were nearer,
Wish the weather colder, clearer,
Then look out for Halloween.

When the turkey starts to fatten
And its feathers get like satin,
When the squirrel's in the thicket
And when home has gone the cricket,
Comes the spell of Halloween.

Then we gather round the fire
As the flames leap high and higher,
And we watch for ghosts and witches,
Stories tell of love and riches.
So we keep our Halloween.

Looked Bigger.

"How do you get away with the boldup game, Shorty?" asked Bill, the burglar, as the two friends were resting themselves at the Crooks' Retreat before starting out for the night's work.

"Oh, that's easy."

"But I should think that some big man would pick you up with one hand and carry you to the station or at least that he could identify you easily next day."

"That is where I have a complete alibi. They all report me to the police as a strapping big six footer."

Useful Information.

"He insulted a pugilist and made a great discovery."

"What was it?"

"That he had a solar plexus."

Easy.

If bound to get some trouble
By either hook or crook
You always know before you start
You won't have far to look.

ADMITS RED CROSS AID TENDS TO KEEP WAR SPIRIT ALIVE

MISS MABEL T BOARDMAN

Considerable discussion followed the remarkable assertion of Miss Mabel Boardman, president of the American Red Cross Society, that it had always been a question with her if the aid furnished by the Red Cross in time of war did not "really soften the horrors of war and so tend to make them less forbidding to those who engage in them."

Miss Boardman made her statement as a comment upon the statement of Miss Edith Durham, Balkan war correspondent, that the Red Cross directly prolongs war.

ESKIMOS UNMOVED BY STEFANSON'S WONDERS

When the Explorer Fired and Hit a Stick 200 Yards Away They Told Him of a Native Who Could Do the Same Thing—Could He See the Events of To-morrow With His Binoculars, They Asked.

Further details concerning the life and customs of the new Eskimo tribes, brought to light by the Canadian explorer, Vilhjalmar Stefansson, have been made available by the publication of his book, "My Life With the Eskimo."

This book is the record of Mr. Stefansson's second expedition to the Arctic, which began in the summer of 1908 and lasted until July of last year.

His journeyings during these four years, sometimes with Dr. Anderson, the naturalist of the expedition, more often with Eskimo for his only companions, covered thousands of miles along the Arctic coast of Alaska and Northwestern Canada, as far east as Coronation Gulf and Prince Albert Land. He met many different tribes of Eskimo, and was incessantly studying their language, the customs, their beliefs. "I have lived with the Eskimo until they have become as my own people. I pass my winters in their houses and my summers in their tents; I dress as they do, eat what they eat, and follow the game across the tundra to get my food exactly as they do, and I have come to feel that I understand them as well as I do my own people."

Of the year which Mr. Stefansson spent with the Dolphin and Union Straits Eskimo he has naturally a great deal to tell us, and it is all of vivid interest.

Mr. Stefansson had only to give a hint as to what interested him, and they put all their information on that subject at his disposal; on their part they showed the greatest delicacy in asking questions. They betrayed no surprise at their guest's blue eyes and light brown beard, because these features, they explained, were much like those of some of their neighbors to the north—the "Blond Eskimo," whom Mr. Stefansson visited and whose discovery has raised such important biological and historical problems.

Curiously enough these people were not much impressed by rifle shooting. When the white man, after hitting a stick 200 yards away, told them that he could kill a bear or caribou at even three times the distance, they merely asked whether he could kill game on the other side of the mountain. It appears that a "spaman" in a neighboring tribe had a magic arrow by which he could perform this feat. And when Mr. Stefansson looked through his binoculars and saw bands of caribou that were to them invisible they applauded, and asked, "Will you not also look for the caribou that are coming to-morrow, so that we can tell where to lie in ambush for them?" They were disappointed when told that this was impossible, for they knew that their own medicine men had charms and magic that enabled them to see things the morrow was to bring forth.

It was in Victoria Island that the "Blond Eskimo" were found. "When I saw before me these men, who looked like Europeans, in spite of their garb of furs, I knew that I had come upon either the last chapter and solution of one of the historical tragedies of the past, or else that I had added a new mystery for the future to solve the mystery of why these men are like Europeans if they be not of European descent."

Of something less than a thousand persons in this tribe ten or more have blue eyes; of the men who have beards a good many are light brown; the hair of the head is generally dark brown or rusty red, and perhaps half the entire population have eyebrows ranging from a dark brown to a light brown or nearly white.

There is no reason he thinks, for insisting that the "Blond Eskimo" are descended from the Scandinavian colonists of Greenland, but looking at historically or geographically, there is no reason why they might not be. It is possible, on the other hand, that for some so-called "accidental" reason blond individuals may have been born from time to time in the past from parents of pure Eskimo blood, and that these may have perpetuated themselves.

As to supposing that it is the climate that has made the Victoria Island Eskimo blond, the theory is hardly tenable, for they live on the same food and under the same climatic conditions as do the Eskimo east of them and west of them, none of whom show the same European-like traits.

Although it is not easy to get me to admit that the present day Eskimo are far better men than their forefathers, it is easy to get them themselves to admit it. In fact, they are of late years rather prone to assert that they are better men than their ancestors. My man Davinisk said to me one day: "The people of Kotzebue Sound were formerly very bad, but they are all good now. In my father's time and when I was young, they used to lie and to steal and to work on Sunday." "But," I asked him, "don't they, as a matter of fact, tell lies occasionally?" "Oh, yes, they sometimes do." "Well, don't they really, as a matter of fact, tell about as many lies now as they ever did?" "Well, yes, perhaps they do." And don't they, as a matter of fact, steal about as frequently as ever?" "Well, possibly. But they don't work on Sunday."

They were entirely friendly, possibly because Mr. Stefansson spoke in a dialect a little different from their own. As he observes, it cannot have happened often in the history of the world that the first white man to visit a primitive people was one who spoke their language.

She Investigated.

What Elsie's sister wanted to know was where Elsie got that beautiful silver mounted walking stick. But Elsie didn't want Elsie's sister to know, so Elsie's sister got Elsie's father to ask Elsie.

"I found it," Elsie poutingly informed her father, "floating like a schooner on the waves one day when I was bathing."

But two days later Elsie's sister said to Elsie:

"Come—tell me! What is his name?"

"Name!" repeated Elsie blankly. "What do you mean?"

"I mean, dear," said Elsie's sister, "that last night I tried to make that stick of yours float in the bath, and—well, darling, it sank!"

ASQUITH SUSTAINS A SEVERE BLOW

Unionist Defeats Newest Appointee to Liberal Cabinet by a Majority of 24 Votes — Jim Larkin Stumped Riding During Contest Which Was Fought on the Insurance Act—Another Seat.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The first bye-election necessitated by the record election necessitated by the recent changes in the Cabinet resulted in the defeat yesterday of C. F. G. Masterman in the southwest division of Bethnal Green by the narrow margin of 24 votes. The Unionist candidate, Major Sir M. Wilson, was elected, receiving 2,828 votes to 2,804 polled by Masterman. The Socialist, J. Scurr, polled 316 votes.

C. F. G. Masterman was appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster to succeed C. F. Hobhouse, who becomes Postmaster-General. In the last election he polled a vote of 2,745 to 2,561 polled by the Unionist candidate.

The Conservatives fought the election almost exclusively on "the vicious insurance act," home rule and tariff reform being little referred to. Hon. Mr. Masterman gave the premier place to home rule, the Parliament Act and church disestablishment.

The appearance of Jim Larkin in support of the Socialist candidate gave a distinct stimulus to the mild excitement which has pervaded outdoor gatherings. Regularly throughout the campaign Larkin denounced the Government and their "foul insurance," stigmatized Liberalism as a thing that had to be scotched and killed, and declared the downfall of Masterman would be the heaviest blow the Government has yet received.

In order to find a seat for Mr. Masterman, it is announced that Sir Thomas Roe, Liberal member for Derby, will immediately resign his seat. Derby is a two-member seat, and figures at the last election were: Sir Thomas Roe, 9,515; J. H. Thomas, Labor, 9,144; A. E. Beck, Unionist, 8,160.

Accounting for his defeat, Mr. Masterman said: "It was due to misrepresentations of the Insurance Act. It is by those misrepresentations that the fight has been lost and won, and by nothing else."

Scurr, Socialist, rejoices to have defeated the Government by taking away votes. "Now we will see the Insurance Act amended and the Government compelled to go ahead faster. We have also struck a blow for purer government."

Mr. Wilson says: "I regard the result of the election as a most emphatic condemnation, not of any one measure nor of any one plank in the Liberal platform, but of the whole policy of the present Government."

South Bucks Stays Unionist.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The South Buckingham bye-election resulted in a Unionist majority of 2,331, as follows: W. B. Dupre, Unionist, 9,044; Tonman Mosley, Radical, 6,713. The electorate numbers 18,286, and in last election the Unionist majority was 2,556. The constituency embraces several small towns, some of which contain the residences of a large number of London business men. It is understood a large proportion of this section of the electors did not vote.

COUSIN ON TRIAL.

Family of John McGibbon Testify to Years of Persecution.

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que., Feb. 20.—The father, mother and sister of young John McGibbon, sat in the witness box at the McGibbon murder trial yesterday and told how he met his death at the hands of his cousin, Leonard McGibbon, on Aug. 21 last. The aged father, John McGibbon, sr., told a graphic story of persecution on the part of his brother, Peter McGibbon, and the latter's two sons, covering a period of sixteen years and culminating in the violent death of his only son. The sister, Elizabeth McGibbon, a witness of the tragedy, was still being examined when court adjourned for the day.

Would End All Immodesty.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 20.—Delegate Snowden of Montgomery County, introduced in the House of Delegates yesterday, by request, a bill to prohibit the wearing by girls and women of high-heeled shoes and slit skirts, and of dancing such "immoral dances as the turkey trot, the bunny hug, the tango or the loop-the-loop.

The bill prescribes that money collected from fines for violating its provisions shall be used to "educate girls how to dress decently."

Long Sault Rapids Frozen.

OGDENSBURG, N.Y., Feb. 20.—Long Sault Rapids present an unusual appearance as a result of the extreme cold in this region. Normally forming one of the roughest stretches of the St. Lawrence river, they are to-day wholly tranquil, frozen smooth from bank to bank. At almost any point persons can cross on the ice, where ordinarily the current is so swift that a boat cannot traverse it.

First Sedition Trial.

CALGARY, Feb. 20.—The first man ever tried on a charge of sedition in the history of Canadian jurisdiction was found guilty by a jury at the Criminal Assises before Chief Justice Harvey. The convicted man is William McConnell, secretary of the Calgary branch of the I.W.W. He incited a crowd of unemployed to steal. Sentence will be passed at the end of the assises.

THE NEWEST STORM COAT.

The material used in this big, roomy ulster is melton cloth in a dark shade of navy blue. The hat is of cloth, as are the gaiters which protect milady's dainty little feet.

BAVARIA'S MAD KING.

Otto, the Deposed Monarch, Has Had a Melancholy Career.

Otto, king of Bavaria, who has been superseded by the succession of the prince regent, reigned over his kingdom for twenty-seven years. He came to the throne in June, 1886, when his brother, Ludwig II., in a paroxysm of madness drowned himself and the attendant who attempted to rescue him. Otto was then already mad, but the crown was his, though he has spent his reign in the necessary seclusion of Fuerstenried castle. His hair and beard have grown long and white, but his great limbs and body still retain all their gigantic strength. For nine days out of ten the king seems deaf, blind and dumb, lost in a brooding melancholy. Then occasionally his memory returns, only to be speedily lost again.

Otto suffered in his childhood from the unbalanced temperament of his brother, afterward Ludwig II., in a way that cannot have strengthened his naturally weak mind. Among many incidents the most serious was one at Berchtesgaden, in 1857, when Ludwig was twelve years old. A court official came upon the younger boy lying bound and gagged upon the grass, while Ludwig was tightly twisting with a piece of stick the ends of the pocket handkerchief tied around his throat.

Otto, who was in a fainting condition, was promptly rescued, though Ludwig violently resisted, furiously exclaiming: "This is no business of yours; this is my vassal, and he has dared to resist my will. He must be executed!"—Chicago News.

Taft's Gold Medal.

In Washington the state department custodian is keeping guard over a gold medal pending the time when former President Taft can receive it. The medal was presented to him by the Italian government for his zeal in sending help to the earthquake sufferers in 1909. The former president, although he is a professor at Yale university, is not in the government sense a private citizen, for he holds the chairmanship of the commission created by congress to adopt plans for the Lincoln memorial. When his work on the commission is ended he can write to the state department and receive the medal.—Chicago News.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe Fights Income Tax.

MISS ELSIE DE WOLFE.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe in her rather short career has played many parts—first society woman, then actress for a short time, then interior decorator with an enviable reputation on both sides of the Atlantic, and now she is the first woman to fight the new income tax.

Speaking of the injustice of this tax, Miss De Wolfe said recently, "I made my money, and I'll see if the government can take away a percentage of it that is not in proportion to that taken from those with larger incomes."

This is the defense of Miss De Wolfe to the United States. She has brought a test case in the federal courts which is expected to have a farreaching effect.

Miss De Wolfe says that she never inherited a dollar and all that she has has been spun by her own brain. "I think, then," said Miss De Wolfe, "that the great fortunes of the country should be taxed in proportion to that of the woman who makes her own fortune. I am simply questioning the legality of the government deducting from my purse."

Miss De Wolfe in her early work was associated with the late Stanford White in the decoration of the Colony club, the fashionable woman's club of Gotham. She has done work for Miss Anne Morgan and other well known people of wealth and cultivation.

Twenty years ago Miss De Wolfe and Miss Elizabeth Marbury, another successful business woman, began living together in the old Washington Irving house in New York city, which the former transformed into an ideal home. To this establishment they eventually added the Villa Trianon, at Versailles, France, which since Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan's death his daughter Anne has shared with Miss De Wolfe and Miss Marbury.

This is also a wonderfully beautiful home which has excited much interest and where the three ladies live as bachelor maids. The two acres of the Villa Trianon adjoin the park of Versailles. In the deed there is a very interesting clause reserving a right of way to the king. The old lease goes back to 1750.

The "salle de verdure," or outdoor drawing room, is Miss De Wolfe's especial joy, and she regards the trellis which surrounds it as her best piece of work. It is a bit of old world beauty in the shadow of the magnificent palace of the grand monarque

Richest Princess Lives In Cheap House.

The richest princess in the world is Princess Victoria Louise, the newly wed bride of Prince Ernst August. The kaiser presented his daughter with a dowry of about $2,000,000. This sum exceeds by $750,000 any marriage portion previously given to a princess of the house of Hohenzollern.

Prince Ernst August, until the death of his father, the Duke of Cumberland, will receive $1,000,000 per year, but after he succeeds to the dukedom his income will be more than $2,000,000 per year.

In spite of all this wealth, however, the young royal couple are starting out simply enough in their married life. They will live as tenants in a house at Rathenow, the rent of which is said to be only $750 per year.

Women In Action.

Wishing to be able to say truthfully that she was "over eighteen," a Fort Collins (Colo.) girl placed a slip of paper with the figures 18 on it in her shoe when she applied for a marriage license.

Miss Margaret Delmont of Chicago, finding her purse had been stolen at Menominee, Wis., walked to St. Paul, carrying her heavy suit case all the way, a distance of seventy-four miles.

Leaving behind them the irksome tasks of office life, the three Silverton sisters have spent a year on a fifteen acre ranch near Eureka, Cal., and have made a good living and prospered far beyond their expectations.

A CIVIL SERVICE KNIGHT.

Sir Joseph Pope Alone Has Achieved That Honor.

Among the civil servants of the Dominion there is only one who bears the title of Knight. That one is Sir Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State for External Affairs. Nor does he flaunt his title in the face of the public, says Francis A. Carman in Toronto Star Weekly. Look up his department in the telephone directory of Ottawa and you will find him down as plain "Joseph Pope." But just as a matter of simple historic fact, he does occupy this unique position, and he does not occupy it without justification. He is Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George for the very good reason that he has been able in a number of instances to perform outstanding services for the Dominion, and he has been able to perform these outstanding services because he possessed qualifications which are exceedingly rare on this side of the Atlantic.

The central fact of these special qualifications is a wide knowledge of the "savoir faire" of official life. He knows how to do things. He knows his way around Government offices, and he knows his way around royal courts. He is an authority on the etiquette of official and court circles—a branch of knowledge which is highly useful even in our democratic community. Of course, he did not pick this up in a day. He had a long apprenticeship under that master of statecraft and of the craft of managing men, Sir John A. Macdonald.

The first occasion on which Sir Joseph was chosen to represent the Canadian Government in the entertainment of guests of state was in 1901, when our present King and Queen visited us as the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. Everyone remembers how successful that tour was, and in its success Mr. Pope, as he then was, had a large part. It was for his services at that time he received his first mark of royal favor and entered the order of St. Michael and St. George as a Companion.

Five years later he accompanied Prince Arthur of Connaught on his tour through the Dominion, and in 1908 he was selected to receive Prince Fushimi of Japan on his visit to this country. In connection with the visit of Prince Arthur, Mr. Pope had bestowed upon him the Imperial Service Order, while the Japanese Government recognized his services to Prince Fushimi by conferring on him the order of the Sacred Treasure of the second class. In the same year as the latter, he was made a companion of the Victorian Order by the King because of his assistance in the organization of the tercentenary at Quebec. His elevation to knighthood came in the New Year's honors of 1912.

This tells the story of how Sir Joseph came to bear so many titles, but it does not by any means tell the story of the part he has played in the history of Canada. He has represented the Canadian people around the Council Board in a number of big diplomatic issues. He was attached to the staff of the British agent in the Behring Sea arbitration of 1893; and had a part in securing protection for the interests of Canadian sealers. He was agent of the Canadian Government in the Joint High Commission which sat in Quebec and Washington during the early years of the Administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He was associate secretary of the Alaskan Boundary tribunal. He accompanied Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux on his mission to Japan, which resulted in the limitation of Japanese immigration to the Dominion. And just two years ago he again represented Canada in the international conference on pelagic sealing, which advanced the work begun in the Behring Sea arbitration.

Sir Joseph is a native of Prince Edward Island, where he was born on August 16, 1854. His father was the Hon. William Henry Pope, who was one of the Fathers of Confederation, and his uncle, Hon. J. C. Pope, was Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the Cabinet of Sir John A. Macdonald.

The "Dope" on "Thais."

Miss Helen Stanley, one of the talented principals of the National Opera Co. of Montreal, narrates a conversation which she heard between a French and an Italian chorus woman in the wings at a performance of "Thais," the Massenet opera which was banned by Archbishop Bruchesi of Montreal. The conversation, barring the foreign accent of the participants, ran thus:

"Say, what's this opera about?"

"Well, there was a woman in Alexandra, and she was not a very good woman. And there was a monk who lived in his monastery, and he came and said, 'I'm going to convert you,' but he couldn't do it. Then he went away in the desert to pray for the woman, and he fell in love with her. So he came back, and found her living in her monastery, and he said, 'You come on to my monastery. I love you.' And she said, 'Nothing doing. I'm going away to Heaven!'"

Students Are Honest.

A novel way of transacting business has been devised by the students living in the north residence of Toronto University, in which there is no person connected with a purchase but the buyer himself. No clerk is needed, for the fellows are upon their honor to place in the cash box the exact price of the article they appropriate. When the box was opened at the beginning of the present term a great many I.O.U.'s were found inside it, testifying to the large number of undergrads who were suffering temporary financial embarrassments during the Christmas term. All the promises were fulfilled in the first few days of the term, and the small store is continuing to do business at the rate of from $5 to $10 a day.

NEW BOVINE SPECIES

BOBCAYGEON MAN SEES BIG FUTURE FOR CATTELO.

Wild Buffalo With Domestic Cattle of the Angus and Hereford Breeds—New Variety Has Splendid Hide and the Celebrated Hump of the Buffalo.

In these days of fox farming, mink farming and even skunk farming, it is interesting to know that in Canada we have perhaps the only farm in the world devoted to the breeding of an entirely new race of animals called cattelo.

Cattelo are the result of twenty years of experiment of crossing dometic cattle of various breeds with the American bison or buffalo, and to-day a new strain has been fairly established.

Mr. E. Mossom Boyd, of Bobcaygeon, is the originator of the idea, and has at the present time a large herd of cattelo. These animals are nearly as hardy as their wild forefathers, have a splendid hide, much more even than the buffalo, have the large hindquarters of the domestic animal, and the powerful shoulders and neck of the buffalo. The hide alone is more valuable for fur than an ordinary fatted steer, and in the case of cattelo the meat becomes the by-product, but as such is just as valuable, and weighs as much as that of a very large steer.

CROSS BETWEEN THE BUFFALO AND A HEREFORD.

Some twenty years ago Mr. Boyd, while in California, saw a small herd of buffaloes and immediately conceived the idea of developing from this fine animal, now almost extinct, a cross-bred race of cattle which he hoped would be valuable in many respects.

He was able to purchase a thoroughbred bull which had been captured as a calf on the prairies, some seven years before, and with this animal, he decided to at least give his idea, a thorough experimental trial.

For the purpose of the trial he crossed the buffalo with domestic cattle of the Polled Angus and Hereford breeds, and at the end of the first season, had obtained some 39 calves. Six of these were males, but only one survived, and he proved of no service in the experiment, and was disposed of later to the Toronto Zoo.

Of all the cows but nine would breed, and with these hybrid animals, the experiment was continued, until in less than ten years the herd had grown to about thirty animals, some being one-quarter bred buffalo, others three-quarters. Then hybrid would no longer describe them, and Mr. Boyd invented the name "cattelo."

In this country of cold winters, the problem of housing domestic cattle has always been a serious one, and cattlemen cannot afford to have larger herds than they can care for in the severest winter weather. The buffalo being a native of this country is much better able to stand extremes of cold, and it was hoped that by crossing with domestic cattle a hardy strain might be produced. In this respect the experiment has proved a great success.

The buffalo is a very good meat animal, and has much bigger shoulders than the domestic. The well-known hump on the buffalo is not fat, as in the case of the camel, but muscle. The cattelo has much of the buffalo's hump.

Bylaw Regarding Vehicles.

A bylaw providing that in any case where a vehicle breaks down with the result that traffic is obstructed, and the breakdown is due to the defective condition of the vehicle, or through being overloaded, the owner or the person who caused or allowed it to be used and the driver shall each be guilty of an offence, and be liable to a penalty not exceeding 40s., has been submitted to the Home Secretary by the London County Council. The defendant must satisfy the court that all possible means to keep the vehicle in proper condition, or to prevent it being overloaded, had been taken, or, in the driver's case, that he was unaware of the vehicle's defective or overloaded state, if he wishes to escape conviction.

Cinema In Australia.

Australia is well in the lead in the moving picture business. A complete film of the whole of the race for the Melbourne Cup was taken last month, and was on view in that city the same day as the Cup was won. The same films were shown simultaneously at Australian capitals 1,000 miles apart the following night. It is claimed that this is the first occasion on which an important race has been actually filmed from start to finish.

Scotland vs. Ireland.

Scotland's population is 15,411 greater than that of Ireland. She is also twice as rich.

Hat Spoiled Eyes.

Women should beware of the hat which shades the eyes.

"Hats which obstruct the vision of the wearer weaken the eyes," said a doctor recently.

"A girl of eighteen who wears the 'beehive' or other overhanging hat will find that by the time she is twenty her sight is almost as weak as that of an old woman."

Another doctor, when shown two models of the beehive hats which are so popular among women nowadays, said that such hats not only weaken the sight, but also induce baldness through being worn so close to the scalp.

COREAN CALLERS.

It Takes Them a Long Time to Learn Occidental Ways.

Life in Korea is so entirely different from the life led in Western lands that the social usages seems to Occidentals quite topsy-turvy. In writing of mission work in that remote part of the world, the Rev. Dr William E. Griffith speaks of matters that have to do with the morals of the people as well as with the family life.

After having been so long fitted to his environment, as hand is to glove, the native was so used in habit to a Korean domicile that to get inside a foreigner's house was like entering a new world.

As for the rustic, he was like a bull in a china shop, or a lunatic at large, and created consternation in his host, and more particularly in his hostess, while he put himself in imminent danger. Only by exercise of great caution could he get through a room without running against a door, upsetting a chair, or flattening his nose against a mirror which he imagined gave him a glimpse of another apartment, into which he attempted to pass.

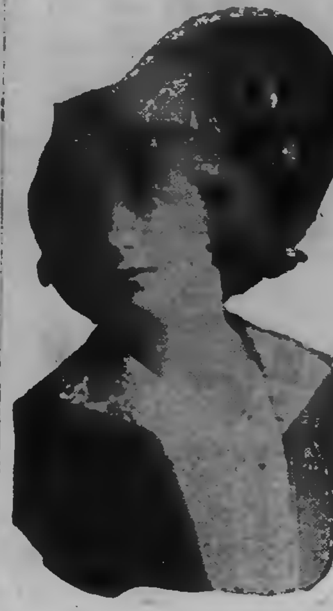
In training servants to get into harmony with their new environment, the house-mother must virtually set up a college, or at least a kindergarten, of domestic science. In time, however, even a mere man in Korea discerns the difference between a door and a window, a floor-cloth and a napkin. He even appraises critically the quality of scrubbing, washing and drinking water. Nevertheless, at first, cases of native mothers and sons drinking the starch water, indigo bluing and all, were known. Happily, results so far as I have heard, were not fatal.

The native women seemed at first sadly defective in that marvellous intuition that we ascribe to the daughters of Eve. Except in matters vitally feminine, they were no more acute than the males, in learning the fitness of things according to the strange civilisation of Western lands. They did not actually sit down on red-hot iron but cases of rapid rising from the suddenly felt heat of stove lids, mistaken for seats, have been known to occur.

The daughters of the land who were accustomed to sit on the floor in their own houses were especially confused when they first encountered chairs. The mistress hardly knew whether to laugh, to cry, or to scold, when a bevy of white-clad visitors perched themselves upon the high backs of the odd things called chairs, with their stockinged feet resting on the seats!

IT'S EARLY, BUT—

Advance Style In Spring Millinery.



BLACK HEMP SMARTNESS.

There is every reason to believe that the small, close fitting hat has come to spend another season with us All the advance spring models exploit this chic headgear. And, as to the height, the new hats exceed in altitude anything seen in this direction this winter. That's "going some!"

The new shapes, many of them, have what are called "revers"—that is, turned up flaps over high standing brims. This is the latest idea of a famous Parisian milliner.

The dainty creation pictured is of black hemp with a crushed straw crown and an exaggerated flare. The only trimming is a little bow of taffeta and two or three peonies attached to the flared brim.

Bedroom Daintiness.

In fitting up her dainty bedroom the bride will take stock of all the various draperies and hangings that have been relegated to her estate from time to time without end. She will not be fully delighted with any of them until some one whispers to her the newest idea in fittings and hangings that are most appropriate and, indeed, most pretty under any conditions, and then she will hang her windows, cover her dresser and her bed and her boudoir pillows, canopy her mirror with all over embroidery—yes, just machine embroidery—ruffled with an edging to match.

The bride will find that there are ever so many designs in all over embroideries that suggest appropriateness for hangings—little running sprays eyeleted effects and conventional patterns.

The daintiness of the all white will make a ready appeal, especially as these are the sort of materials that launder like new. If color is wanted it may be added in an underlining that will give a tint through the sheer fabric of the eyeleting.

Milady's Motorcar.

There are several innovations being made at present with regard to the fittings and upholstery of motorcars more especially in those designed for milady's use.

Some of the latest models, instead of being upholstered in the usual dark colored leather, are being lined with velvet or cloth in exquisite shades, calculated to harmonize well with the toilets of the fair owner.

One lovely model was upholstered in dull silver gray velvet with the fittings of oxidized silver, the latter being far prettier and less ostentatious than those made entirely of polished silver or plate.

The cushions, two square and one oblong, the latter nicely adjusted to fit into the small of the back when on a long and tiring drive, were covered in the same velvet, with the monogram embroidered in silver and gray thread in one corner.

The foot rest, with its tin lined interior making a comfortable warmer in the cold weather, was also covered in gray.

TREES FOR PRAIRIES.

Government Helps Prairie Farmers Establish Woodlots.

For several years over two and a half million tree-seedlings and cuttings have been distributed annually to the prairie farmers by the Dominion Government Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head. For the first eight months of the present year, almost twelve thousand letters of inquiry were received by this Nursery Station and the demand for seedlings this year has so taxed the capacity of the nursery that it has been found necessary to establish a branch nursery near Saskatoon.

The young trees are supplied only to bona fide farm-owners in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and then only in small lots not exceeding 500 seedlings in any one year. Applications must be made on suitable forms supplied by the Forest Nursery Station. A charge of $1 per hundred for conifers, made, no order for less than 100 of any one species being taken.

The success of western tree-plantations depends not so much on the climatic conditions, as is erroneously supposed, but rather on the care taken with the delicate young seedlings before and after planting. To show the farmers how best to obtain successful results with their plantations, nine inspectors of tree-planting are maintained by the Dominion Government in these provinces, and several bulletins bearing on this work has been issued by the Forestry Branch at Ottawa, and can be had on application.

The principal trees planted in the West are ash, maple, cottonwood, willow and Russian poplar. The first two do well together, and ash especially is much in favor with the farmers, having probably the lowest death rate of any. Willow and poplar are usually, supplied as cuttings and to well together. The Russian willow is growing in popularity with the farmers on account of its ease of propagation. Its quick-growing qualities, hardiness and freedom from disease. That spruce, larch (tamarack), and Scotch pine will also do well on the prairies is no longer questionable.

The best results are in all cases attained by planting the trees in the spring in belts at least twenty yards wide on well-prepared soil, such as summer-fallow, or garden land, the trees being spaced about four feet apart and planted in rows to permit machine cultivation in order to protect the soil from weeds and evaporation until the trees grow large enough for their branches to meet.

A Good Word for Lennox.

Before Justice Haughton Lennox ascended the Ontario Bench, and Mr. E. A. Little became Registrar of the Surrogate Court for Simcoe County, both were, it is almost needless to say, in politics, the former as Conservative member for the Federal riding of South Simcoe, and the latter as M.P.P. for the corresponding Provincial riding, then known as Cardwell, but now also called South Simcoe. A Dominion election was on, and Mr. Little, as in honor bound, was accompanying his Federal confrere on a canvassing tour of the riding. Meeting one yeoman whom they both recognized as a supporter in former contests, Mr. Little alighted from the buggy and, after greeting him, ventured the supposition that his vote could be counted upon for Mr. Lennox.

The farmer, however, did not give a ready assent. "I've been thinking, Mr. Little," he said, "that I'd sooner see South Simcoe represented by a practical man. I think we've been sending too many of these smart lawyers to Parliament."

Mr. Little looked round cautiously to see that Mr. Lennox was out of earshot, and then, lowering his voice, confidentially replied: "Well, if that's all that's worrying you, you needn't hesitate to vote for Lennox, for he's really not much of a lawyer anyway."

He Played Spare.

The younger generation of Canadians forget that Hon. Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, and James L. Hughes, ex-chief inspector of Toronto's schools, were famous lacrosse players in their youth. In his autobiography now appearing in serial form "Jim" Hughes tells of his last game:

"Four years after I gave up playing lacrosse, I received a telegram stating that I was to go to Montreal with Sam to a match with the Shamrocks. Sam and I were in Durham county. We drove sixteen miles to Bowmanville, and after the train had started and was going too fast for me to risk jumping off I was told that I was 'spare' man. It was really a dreadful trial.

"I saw our team beaten three straight games in fifteen short minutes. The papers in Montreal said next day that the victory would not have been won so easily if I had been playing. This gave a little relief to me."

Open Columbia River.

Dominion surveyors who have been engaged during the past season making an investigation of the Upper Columbia river to determine the feasibility of opening a shipping route to tide water, are compiling their findings to make a report to the Government. Canada is interested in opening an economical all water route as an outlet to the great wheat crop, and to open a market for the great coal deposits and to compete for the oil trade of the northwest when the industry reaches a producing basis.

Ship Without Under Water Propellers

Charles Bethune of Sydney, N.S., announces that he has completed a model of a ship without propellers or any kind of machinery under the water line. He says the invention is practical for ocean liners and that one so equipped could make the passage from St. Paul's Island to Lundy Island, England, in fifty hours.

MUCH GOOD ACCOMPLISHED BY HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Cases of Tuberculosis, Erysipelas, Cancer, Epilepsy and Pneumonia Receive Treatment — One Citizen Gives $50.

Amiel in his journal says:—"I heard a sermon this morning, but I was not helped by it. It was dignified, but it did not realize or portray the struggles of the weak. If we are to be at our best we must have the mellowing influence of such a vision.

The work of the Health Association ought to have the earnest attention of the public, not only for the sake of the poor, but that those who have no such struggles should contrive to develope the sympathetic side of their natures.

292 VISITS.

The past month shows that two hundred and ninety-two visits were made by the nurses, some of these in the small hours of the morning of the coldest days of recent weeks. Forty of these visits were paid for, the amount being very small but indicating the desire of the families served to help themselves as far as possible. Tuberculosis ,erysiplas, cancer, epilepcy, pneumonia are among the diseases that have called for the serveces of the association. Quilts, underclothes, overcoats stoves, stockings and other supplies, have been given away. In one case where bed linen was needed and supplied it was returned to the association perfectly laundered as soon as the mother recovered from her illness and with it came a small sum to pay for the services of the nurse. This was in a home where the need was most manifest as the husband was without employment, while the wife and mother of three small children was ill.

Aged Patient Relieved.

Another case was that of cancer where the extreme sufferings were relieved and the aged patient made comfortable until death came to the unfortunate person. Every case has its own interest and those who hear the details of the work of this worthy institution are loudest in its praise. One citizen hearing the story of one month's work of the nurses was so moved that he has gladly become responsible for the sum of fifty dollars to be divided between the nurses for the purpose of giving them each a rest and change at whatever time they can best be spared by the association. These ladies are no mere time servers, but are filled with the spirit which has brought this organization into being.

Thanks are due to many who have contributed supplies so generously during the especially trying days of the winter.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

All Officers Are Re-elected and Two Vice-Presidents Added — Reports From Affiliated Societies and Conveners of Committees — The President's Address.

Very encouraging reports were read at the annual meeting of the local Council of Women, held yesterday afternoon in the assembly hall of the Public Library. The reports showed that the members had not been idle and that the various committees had met with considerable progress.

All the officers, with the exception of the vice-president, were nominated for re-election and returned by acclamation. The explanation for the one exception, was that it was the desire to increase the number of vice-presidents. Mrs. (Dr.) Scott was re-elected, with Miss Charlotte Dickson and Miss Mary Erskine as the two new vice-presidents.

The officers are as follows:
—President—Mrs. J. C. Davidson.
Vice-Presidents—Mrs. Scott, Miss Dickson, Miss Erskine.
Treasurer—Mrs. Duncan Walker.
Rec.-Secretary—Miss McRae.
Cor. Secretary—Miss Weir.

The opening exercises were lead by Mrs. Davidson, after which the roll was called by Miss Weir. The minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence were read by Miss McRae and the president presented her first annual address.

On motion of Mrs. Ritchie and Mrs. McLean, it was decided to contribute $5 towards the expenses of Mrs. Torrington, who will attend the quinquennial meetings of the National Council of Women to be held in Rome.

Mrs. Walker read the statement of finances, showing receipts of $107.80, and a balance on hand of $18.05. One item was for $30, which was paid Mrs. Wells for her lecture at the Collegiate hall. Mrs. Wells also received railway fare at $2.30 and hotel expenses of $2.25.

Mrs. Travers and Mrs. Stevenson were appointed returning officers for the balloting on nominations for vice-presidents.

On motion of Mrs. Dunsford and Mrs. Hill, Mr. W. R. Morris was appointed auditor to audit the treasurer's statements.

Then followed the reports from the societies affiliated with the Council of Women. These reports told of the work being accomplished by each society. There are over thirty societies affiliated with the Council and the majority reported.

The Sanitorium.

At the invitation of the president, Dr. Cameron was present and he gave a short address, in which he told of the organization of the Peterborough Health Association and the work being done. The doctor made particular reference to the proposal to erect a sanitorium and he answered some of the arguments which had been heard against the sanitorium.

IMPROVE THE FAIR GROUNDS

Work to be Done if Expense is Not too Great.

EXHIBITION DATES

That something will be done along the lines of erecting new buildings and generally improving the fair grounds if too much expense is not entailed, is practically certain as a result of the meeting of the fair directors last night in the Council chamber.

After much discussion it was decided to ask Mr. L. Wilson, president of the Ontario Association of Fairs, if he could send to Peterborough a man capable of making plans for the work and giving estimates.

Mr. Wm. Collins and Mr. C. E. Moore, delegates to the Ontario Association of Fairs, gave their reports.

The Board of Directors will wait upon the City Council, in regard to the annual grant.

This year the local dates will be Sept. 17, 18 and 19.

A FISH STORY.

Recently Mr. David Johnston, of Otonabee, while cutting ice near Crawford's Grove, on the Otonabee river, found a bass frozen stiff in a block of ice. A minnow a few inches ahead of the bass assisted in forming a charming tableau, also representing a race in which the minnow was trying to escape from its pursuer. Mr. Johnston took the block of ice home and after debating on the matter a day or so, decided to melt the ice and see if the fish would come to life again. He did so, with the desired result.

THE McCLAY CASE.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS TURN DOWN REQUEST TO APPOINT WOMAN POLICE

More Heat Than Light and Their Knowledge is in Inverse Ratio To Their Zeal, Says Judge Huycke of the Local Advocates--Information Leads His Honor to the Conclusion That the Policewoman is more of a Fad Than a Necessity.

Also More Ornamental Than Useful — Coarse Abuse and Brazen Falsehood.

Appointed two additional officers to the police force.

Did not appoint a police woman.

Decided to appoint a matron to deal with cases when necessary.

Increased the salaries.

The above are some of the important features of yesterday's meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners, held in the Committee Rooms when Judge Huycke was reappointed chairman for the ensuing year.

After a lengthy address by Judge Huycke, on the issue which has caused considerable agitation in the city for the past few months, that of the appointment of a woman police, the Board decided that the appointment was unnecessary and the proposition was turned down. But in spite of this it was decided that the appointment of a matron for such cases which need the attention of a good Christian woman, to be necessary and a woman will shortly be appointed.

Judge Huycke said:

Some weeks ago we were waited on by a deputation, urging the appointment of a policewoman in Peterboro; since then an intermittent agitation has been kept up in the press and elsewhere. On that occasion I publicly informed the members of that deputation, (a Reverend gentleman to the contrary notwithstanding), that this Board would carefully consider the matter, adding that I myself would make investigations before coming to a conclusion, which conclusion I more than hinted must be mine, not theirs.

First, I wish to make clear the constitution of this Board and more particularly my own position on it. What I say too, regarding myself, applies largely to the Police Magistrate, though I do not in any way speak for Mr. Dumble, nor does he know what I am about to say.

It would appear as if certain persons assume that I represent the people of Peterboro in this matter, and that as one is reported to have said, they were my constituency. This is quite incorrect; I am not amenable to the people of the city in any way, nor am I responsible to them or any of them, for my acts or words. I am appointed by the Crown, to be judicially the representative of the Crown in this city and county, and am responsible only to the Crown and to the Department of Justice for Canada.

I have also been referred to as a "civic official", while I do not think any reflection is implied in the term, I certainly am in no sense a "civic official."

The Police Commission is Statutory in its formation; the Statute provides that in cities, police affairs shall be under the control of a Board of Commissioners, to consist of the Judge of the county, the Police Magistrate of the city, and its Mayor. It will thus be seen that the Mayor is the only member, even indirectly representing the public in the Board. I certainly do not. If the people of Peterboro want it otherwise, they must change the law. If they do this, I shall welcome it, be very glad to be relieved of a duty and responsibility I do not want, and do not like.

The Board is so constituted for the express reason that it may be independent, and not subject to public clamour, not be influenced by every wave of popularity or unpopularity, and deal with men and measures judicially and impartially, and without the slightest reference to popular prejudice.

My sole duty as Police Commissioner is the suppression and detection of crime, and of course, incidentally promote the best interests of the city. The long experience of the ages has convinced Britons at least, that administration of the criminal law is too sacred a thing to be left to the populace for adjudication. The logical result of that is lynch law.

I therefore am a member of this Board, solely and simply because I am the Judge, to act as a Judge, and independently and impartially to perform the duty, the sworn duty of a judicial officer.

At the present time a large section of the community favor the appointment of a police woman: another section, less noisy, but not less numerous, probably more so, are opposed to it. It is my duty, not to favor or listen to, or be influenced by, either one or the other of these factions. It is my duty to consider calmly, this, as all other questions, and to conclude in accord with facts and evidence as I see them, with my own eyes, not through other people's spectacles, more or less colored.

It is my duty to use my own best judgment in the same way as in the trial of an action, civil or criminal; a Judge should be absolutely independent, uninfluenced and uninfluenceable, should not regard or be subjected to, or even listen to any outside influence or interference. I tried to hint or even state this to the ladies' deputation, but it was certainly either misunderstood or ignored. This being my duty as judge and ex officio police commissioner, I propose doing my duty as I see it, and refuse to move even a hair's breadth from the line of duty, notwithstanding deputations and petitions, mass meetings and resolutions, innuendo and misrepresentation, coarse abuse and brazen falsehood, yellow pulpiteers and deeper yellow irresponsible scribblers—any or all of these do not move me one iota.

I try to make them of no effect, but if they have any effect at all, it must be to injure and destroy the object they so unwisely and illegally endeavor to promote and advance. I say illegally advisedly. The Code makes it a criminal offence to influence a juror on a case; it is not less so, and a contempt of Court, to endeavor to do so with a Judge, only it is, I trust, less rare, generally. I say generally; I wish I could say it was less rare in Peterboro. I regret so many people here either do not see or affect not to see the impropriety of seeing or addressing a Judge about a case pending for trial. Some years ago it became so frequent and intolerable that I made a public statement in court, and threatened to make a public example of some one. After that, it was better, but now it has broken out in a new place and with renewed violence. I always refuse to listen as soon as I know what is attempted, but I cannot prevent being approached or having letters or resolutions sent me. Sometimes it is undoubtedly done in ignorance; in other causes, I am not so sure. Only the other day a man tried to tell me of a great injury he had suffered, and about to come before me for trial. I refused to hear him and sent him away, evidently hurt, because I told him I would hear his woes and their cause at the trial and not before. I do not even know the name of his opponent, but should that opponent be active in the present propaganda, let me ask him how he would like it, had I listened to the man's complaint and prejudged the case, hearing only one side; and how much less he would like it had I heard a whole horde of his opponent's friends and sympathizers in his support. Yet this is the very thing the promoters of this idea have been doing for the past month, and doing it in the most extravagant and improper manner. If this were a case up for trial after what has transprired, I should refuse to try it, and send for another judge to come in and dispose of it. The law provides for that contingency, but in this commission I cannot do so. No other judge has the authority. But I do not desire to delegate my duty in spite of contemptuous attack and unkind references. These I resent and deplore, but not for my own sake—I can afford to ignore them or hold it in well-deserved contempt—but for the sake of

MR. IRVING PRESENTS AN OPPORTUNITY

The Typhoon Should Draw a Large Audience To-night.

Laurence Irving is great. Were his name Tom Jones he would still be a clever actor. He does not depend upon the fame of his illustrious father to win the favor of his audience. An opportunity to see him, should not be passed by. It is more like the reality.

There were times during the presentation of "The Unwritten Law" at the Grand Opera House last night when Mr. Irving looked the counterpart of Martin Harvey, of whom Peterboro theatregoers have pleasant memories. Mr. Irving, too, will be remembered .

Assisting Mr. Laurence Irving is Mable Hackney, his talented wife, and a strong company.

This afternoon and tonight Mr. Irving will present The Typhoon.

A "REFERENDUM."

A REFERENDUM was recently taken by the Grain Growers' Guide of its readers in the West. The questions submitted seem, from the result, to have been well chosen. The readers of The Guide cannot be said to be a negative quantity, for all of the questions were answered in the affirmative.

We do not suppose that The Guide pretends to have finally settled the problems its readers voted upon ; this referendum is not necessarily the last—by no means. There are other people with opinions and very emphatic opinions upon free-trade, suffrage, armaments, etc., beside the readers of the Grain Growers' Guide. While there was a majority in favor of all The Guide's principles the mass of its readers did not trouble about the referendum at all. So that this "referendum" proves nothing, except The Guide's readers' indifference to the fad politics of the editor.

A JUDICIAL STATEMENT

THE STRONG STATEMENT of His Honor Judge Huycke, which we publish today in another column, will be read with keen interest by those who have followed or taken part in the controversy regarding the moral condition of the city, and the ways and means of dealings with our social problems. We do not intend to deal at present with all the points raised by our worthy Judge, or to comment upon them at any length. The statement obviously contains many references which for some reply, especially His Honor's strictures upon the action of the press in the controversy, and particularly the press's attitude toward the Judge himself.

We hardly need assure Judge Huycke that so far as his office as administrator of justice, is concerned, no word has been uttered editorially in The Review, or so far as we know in any other local paper, in any way casting the least reflection upon him. It is true there have appeared in the local press a number of letters criticising the attitude of the Police Commissioners toward the Local Council of Women's deputation, and possibly some of these letters were a little too caustic in tone. But they were published because we believed they represented the feelings of a number of citizens and there was nothing of a personal nature behind the publication of those letters. We drew some slight distinction between our Judge as an administrator of justice and as a Police Commissioner. If any comment appeared in this column on the attitude of the Commissioners to the policewoman petition, it referred to the Commission as a body, not to any of its individual members, and our remarks were fair and good humoured.

On the policewoman question, The Review has already stated definitely that it does not favour the appointment of a policewoman. There has been much loose criticism and very little definite statement of opinion, even our ministers having contented themselves for the most part with condemning things merely, and only one of them has stated definitely in public that he is in favour of the appointment of a policewoman.

The suggestion which Judge Huycke makes as to a police matron has our entire support and is practically what was advocated in this column recently. The name "policewoman" is in itself, ridiculous, and while we commend the Women's Council upon its vigilance and active interest in social problems and in civic government, we think our local ladies have been misled in this policewoman business.

However, if their agitation brings about the enlargement of the police force and the appointment of a matron to take charge of delicate cases, it will not have been in vain, despite the misunderstanding, and possibly a little "bad blood," both sides may have reason to congratulate each other upon the result. This clash of opinion is inevitable, perhaps necessary, and all's well that ends well. Our readers should study well the straight-forward statement of our worthy Judge; there is some castigation in it, but there is also sound and sane judgment and wise counsel as well, to which we all might take heed.

IS THE WORLD GETTING BETTER OR WORSE !

IS THE WORLD getting better ? There are people who are optimistic enough to believe that it is. Dr. J. R. Mott, speaking on the subject says : "It has been my opportunity during the past 20 years to make three extended journeys around the world, and in addition to visit many nations more frequently. This has enabled me to observe changes and tendencies and also to get a line as it were on world situations. In the light of these repeated journeys and investigations I have no hesitation whatever in stating that on every hand signs are multiplying that show the world is getting better."

This is all very satisfactory so far as it goes, but a proper answer to the question as to whether the world is getting better or not, depends upon what you mean by the word "better." Is there less sin in the world today, less suffering, less selfishness? It is true we are passed the days of the thumb-screws," but is the thumb-screw spirit dead ? Are the Ten Commandments better kept ? It may be so but some people have their doubts on the subject. The world is undoubtedly cleverer in certain directions, although it is less clever in others.

Billy Sunday seems to have no doubts upon the subject. The "Baseball Evangelist" has been railing against the Devil and all his works in Pittsburg, Pa., and has been expressing himself, as is his wont, very emphatically as to the state of things on this planet.

"Some people say the world is growing better and better," he cries, "the Bible says it is growing worse and worse," and he goes on to say that he believes the Bible to be the Word of God from cover to cover. He is absolutely dogmatic on future punishment and says, "If there is no hell, I will quit preaching." The inference of such a statement might well be that hell and preachers are complementary. He goes on to declare that "People are going to hell so fast you can't see them for the dust." He condemns cards and dancing as greater enemies to the church than a saloon; "the dance," he says, "is simply a hugging match set to music." He has no time for the unorthodox preacher and says "the devil talks from their pulpits." He has not much faith in educationd and declares that if he had one million dollars he would give one dollar to education and the balance to orthodox Christianity.

This is the state of the world as it is seen by Rev. William Sunday, and it is a little different from what Rev. J. R. Mott thinks about it ; yet these men are both popular preachers. What is the difference between these two men ? We are not sure whether Dr. Mott believes in hell or not, he evidently does not preach it as strongly as Billy Sunday. There is something to be said for hell-fire ; Wesley, Whitfield, and General Booth used it pretty freely in purging the masses and frightening the classes.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

CHIEF THOMPSON is to be congratulated upon his annual report, eleven thousand and eighty-three arrests is not a bad showing for the staff—but it is nothing to boast about.

ON THE LIST of occupations of those arrested during the year, not one editor appears.

THE GLOBE seems to be annoyed at the way in which the Ontario Legislature is opened. It did not like the music, The Globe was always a little prosy.

THE SWANSEA Town Council, South Wales has negatived a recommendation of the education committee on the subject of compulsory teaching in Welsh schools. The Welsh districts appointed a committee to draft a workable scheme, as it was stated that there was a larger proportion of stammerers in Wales than in any other country on account of the bi-lingual teaching. This can be easily understood, for most Welshmen speak English as if they were translating their Cambrian thoughts into the English language. But Lloyd George does not suffer from stuttering.

THE COUNTESS OF WARWICK explained to an audience in London in which plumage for personal adornment figured as prominently as elsewhere, why she wore neither furs nor feathers "For twenty years," she said, "I have carefully avoided wearing any feathers or plumage of birds save the ostrich, and in recent years owing to all that has come to my knowledge of the hideous cruelty practised in the fur trade, I have not worn furs, but one sees on every side this fetish rampant—every woman's head adorned with the plumage of birds. Ladies who have taken to wearing little tails of fur around their necks are now not happy unless they have the whole beast spread out about them. My own pyschic aura objects to having dead birds and beasts hung all around as modes of decoration."

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

The Country First.

Toronto News.

It is satisfactory to find that there is stubborn resistance at Ottawa to further huge grants to railway corporations. If we must build railways let us own the railways. If we have inherited problems from the previous Government which absolutely require handling in order to maintain the credit and ensure the progress of the country let us use the opportunity to benefit and not to blunder the country.

Shakespeare Ploughed.

Westminster Gazette.

"If Shakespeare had gone up for the very meanest place in the Civil Service," said Mr. William Archer at the Authors' Club last night, "he would most certainly have been 'ploughed' in the preliminary examination because of his spelling." One author had stated that Shakespeare's spelling was good enough for him, but there was no Shakespeare's spelling, but only the spelling of Shakespeare's printers. Shakespeare had "quire" for choir, but Milton, Byron, and Shelley had spelt the word in the same way. In Scott's "Guy Mannering" he found the word "opake." No doubt many people would be shocked if they found it so spelt in a "Times" leading article, but as a matter of fact the spelling "opake" was quite general until the nineteenth century.

Sonnet From the Portuguese.

The face of all the world is changed, I think,
Since first I heard the footsteps of thy soul
Move still, O still, beside me, as they stole
Betwixt me and the dreadful outer brink
Of obvious death, where I, who thought to sink,
Was caught up into love, and taught the whole
Of life in a new rythme. The cup of dole
God gave for baptism, I am fain to drink,
And praise its sweetness, Sweet, with thee anear.
The names of country, heaven, are changed away
For where thou art or shall be, there or here ;
And this..this lute and song..loved yesterday,
(The singing angels know) are only dear,
Because thy name moves right in what they say.

THE GHOST

By Walt Mason

I saw a poor old phantom, so wapperjawed and thin, that if it tried to haunt 'em the folks would merely grin. All seedy and dejected its way it did pursue, as though it half expected a good swift kick or two. I've seen a heap of spectres since I broke in the game, and called in priests and rectors to exorcise the same, and they were stately always, and dignified and grand, with blue fire in their galways, and air of high command. Most shades that come to josh us have pride and self respect (of which they're duly cautious), and hold themselves erect; but this cheap ghost went sneaking toward the mundane dump, and when it heard me speaking it fairly seemed to jump. I cried : "Oh, ghostly brother, what are you now about ? And tell me, is your mother aware that you are out?" The spectre drew its garment about its trembling limbs, and cried : "Oh, mortal varmint, with pity in your glims, the dump is just before me, I'll vanish from its edge ! Then lay some burlap o'er me—I am the New Year pledge !"

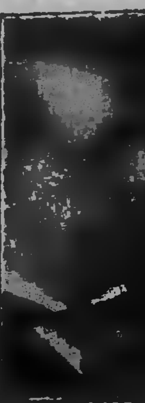
Birthdays of Note

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY TWENTY-FIRST

Major R. W. Leonard, chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, was born in Brantford, Ontario, fifty-four years ago to-day. Originally a civil engineer, he was for many years in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He was so fortunate as to get into Cobalt in the early stages of the camp's history and made a fortune there. Since then he has been living quietly in St. Catharines, looking after the interests of his mining property and latterly supervising the construction work on the N.T.R. He is quite generous with his money and has given to many causes but he invariably attaches conditions to every gift he makes. Major Leonard will probably go down to fame as the builder of the first Canadian hydro-electric power plant.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY TWENTY-SECOND

The Hon. James J. Foy, attorney general of Ontario, is sixty-seven years of age to-day. Born in Toronto he received part of his education in his native city and the rest of it in England. He was called to the bar forty two years ago since when he has practised continuously in Toronto, enjoying the confidence of a large number of clients. He entered politics in 1898 when he was elected to the Legislature for South Toronto. He at once took his place beside Mr. Whitney as chief lieutenant and on the return of the Conservatives to power in 1905 he was given a place in the cabinet. Mr. Foy is generally esteemed, being a man of genial manners, undoubted integrity and kindly disposition. He has been mentioned as a possible occupant of the Bench on several occasions.



Well Posted.

The old man who acts as postmaster in a small southern town likewise keeps a general merchant's shop. He is often accused of reading the postcards that pass through his hands, but this he strongly denies. A lady called at the shop and ordered, among other goods, a ham and a cheese. Two days later the lady called again and asked why these two articles had not been sent with the other goods. "Oh," replied the merchant calmly, "I saw by the postcard yo' got yestiday that yo' friends wasn't comin', so I nachelly thought yo' wouldn't need them things."—Argonaut.

Tarzan of the Apes

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey company.

"My little son is crying for nourishment. Oh, Alice, Alice, what shall I do?"

And as John Clayton wrote the last words his hand was ever destined to pen he dropped his head wearily upon his outstretched arms, where they rested upon the table he had built for her who lay still and cold in the bed beside him.

For a long time no sound broke the deathlike stillness of the jungle midday save the wailing of the tiny man-child.

* * * * * *

In the forest of the tableland a mile back from the ocean old Kerchak, the ape, was on a rampage of rage among his people.

The younger and lighter members of his tribe scampered to the higher branches of the great trees to escape his wrath, risking their lives upon branches that scarce supported their weight rather than face old Kerchak in one of his fits of uncontrolled anger.

The other males scattered in all directions, but not before the infuriated brute had felt the vertebrae of one snap between his foaming jaws.

Then he spied Kala, who, returning from a search for food with her young babe, was ignorant of the state of the mighty male's temper until the shrill warnings of her fellows caused her to scamper madly for safety.

But Kerchak was close upon her, so close that he had almost grasped her ankle had she not made a furious leap far into space from one tree to another—a perilous chance which apes seldom take, unless so closely pursued by danger that there is no other alternative.

She made the leap successfully, but as she grasped the limb of the further tree the sudden jar loosened the hold of the tiny babe where it clung frantically to her neck, and she saw the little thing hurled, turning and twisting, to the ground thirty feet below.

With a low cry of dismay Kala rushed headlong to its side, thoughtless now of the danger from Kerchak, but when she gathered the wee mangled form to her bosom life had left it.

With low moans she sat cuddling the body to her, nor did Kerchak attempt to molest her. With the death of the babe his fit of demoniacal rage passed as suddenly as it had seized him.

Kerchak was a huge king ape, weighing perhaps 350 pounds. His forehead was extremely low and receding, his eyes bloodshot, small and close set to his coarse, flat nose; his ears large and thin, but smaller than most of his kind.

His awful temper and his mighty strength made him supreme among the little tribe into which he had been born some twenty years before.

Now that he was in his prime, there was no simian in all the mighty forest through which he roved that dared contest his right to rule, nor did the other and larger animals molest him.

Old Tantor, the elephant, alone of all the wild, savage life, feared him not—and him alone did Kerchak fear. When Tantor trumpeted the great ape scurried with his fellows high among the trees of the second terrace.

The tribe of anthropoids, over which Kerchak ruled with an iron hand and bared fangs, numbered some six or eight families, each family consisting of an adult male with his wives and children—some sixty or seventy apes, all told.

Kala was the youngest wife of a male called Tublat, meaning "Broken Nose," and the child she had seen dashed to death was her first, for she was but nine or ten years old.

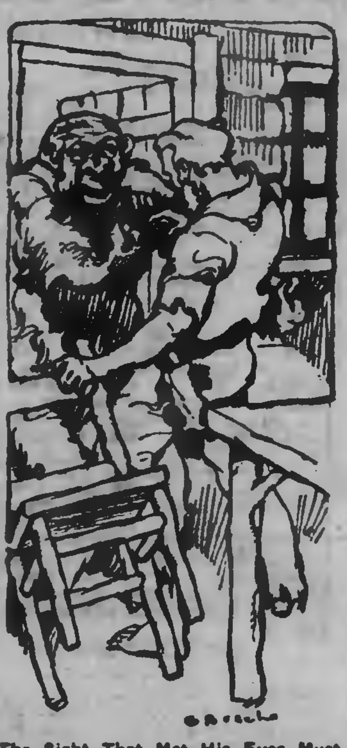
Notwithstanding her youth, she was large and powerful—a splendid, clean limbed animal, with a round, high forehead, which denoted more intelligence than most of her kind possessed. So also she had a greater capacity for mother love and mother sorrow.

But she was still an ape, a huge, fierce, terrible beast of a species closely allied to the gorilla, yet with more intelligence, which, with the strength of their cousins, made her kind the most fearsome of those awe inspiring progenitors of man.

When the tribe saw that Kerchak's rage had ceased they came slowly down from their arboreal retreats and pursued again the various occupations which he had interrupted. The young played and frolicked about among the trees and bushes.

They had passed an hour or so thus when Kerchak called them together and, with a word of command to them to follow him, set off toward the sea.

They traveled for the most part upon the ground, where it was open, following the path of the great elephants whose comings and goings break the only roads through the tangled jungle mazes of bush, vine, creeper and tree. When they walked it was with a rolling, awkward motion, placing the knuckles of their closed hands upon the ground and swinging their ungainly bodies forward.



The Sight That Met His Eyes Must Have Frozen Him With Horror.

But when the way was through the lower trees they moved more swiftly, swinging from branch to branch with the agility of their smaller cousins, the monkeys. And all the way Kala carried her little dead baby hugged closely to her breast.

It was shortly after noon when they reached a ridge overlooking the beach, where below them lay the tiny cottage which was Kerchak's goal.

He had seen many of his kind go to their deaths before the loud noise made by the little black stick in the hands of the strange white ape who lived in that wonderful lair, and Kerchak had made up his brute mind to own that death dealing contrivance and to explore the interior of the mysterious den.

He wanted to feel his teeth sink into the neck of the queer animal that he had learned to hate and fear, and because of this he came often with his tribe to reconnoiter, waiting for a time when the white ape should be off his guard.

Of late they had quit attacking or even showing themselves, for every time they had done so in the past the little stick had roared out the terrible message of death to some member of the tribe.

Today there was no sign of the man about, and from where they watched they could see that the cabin door was open. Slowly, cautiously and noiselessly they crept through the jungle toward the little cabin.

On they came until Kerchak himself slunk stealthily to the very door and peered within. Behind him were two males and then Kala, closely straining the little dead form to her breast.

Inside the den they saw the strange white ape lying half across a table, his head buried in his arms, and on the bed lay a figure covered by a sailcloth, while from a tiny rustic cradle came the plaintive wailing of a babe.

Noiselessly Kerchak entered, crouching for the charge, and then John Clayton rose with a sudden start and faced them.

The sight that met his eyes must have frozen him with horror, for there, within the door, stood three great bull apes, while behind them crowded many more; how many he never knew, for his revolvers were hanging on the far wall beside his rifle and Kerchak was charging.

When Kerchak released the limp form which had been John Clayton, Lord Greystoke, he turned his attention toward the little cradle, but Kala was there before him, and when he would have grasped the child she snatched it herself, and before he could intercept her she had bolted through the door and taken refuge in a high tree.

As she took up the little live baby of Alice Clayton she dropped the dead body of her own into the empty cradle.

The wail of the living had answered the call of universal motherhood within her wild breast which the dead could not still.

High up among the branches of a mighty tree she hugged the shrieking infant to her bosom, and soon the instinct that was as dominant in this fierce female as it had been in the breast of his tender and beautiful mother—the instinct of mother love—reached out to the tiny man-child's half formed understanding, and he became quiet.

Then hunger closed the gap between them, and the son of an English lord and an English lady nursed at the breast of Kala, the great ape.

Once satisfied that Clayton was dead, Kerchak turned his attention to the thing which lay upon the bed, covered by a piece of sailcloth.

A moment he let his fingers sink deep into the cold flesh, and then, realizing that she was already dead, he turned from her to examine the contents of the room, nor did he again molest the body of either Lady Alice or Sir John.

The rifle hanging upon the wall caught his first attention. It was for this strange, death dealing thunder stick that he had yearned for months; but, now that it was within his grasp, he scarcely had the temerity to seize it.

Finally the rifle was torn from its hook and lay in the grasp of the great brute. Finding that it harmed him not, Kerchak began to examine it closely.

During all these operations the apes who had entered sat huddled near the door watching their chief, while those outside strained and crowded to catch a glimpse of what transpired within.

Suddenly Kerchak's finger closed upon the trigger, there was a deafening roar in the little room, and the apes at and beyond the door fell over one another in their wild anxiety to escape.

Kerchak was equally frightened—so frightened, in fact, that he quite forgot to throw aside the author of that fearful noise, but bolted for the door with it tightly clutched in one hand.

As he passed through the opening the front sight of the rifle caught upon the edge of the inswung door with sufficient force to close it tightly after the fleeing ape.

When Kerchak came to a halt a short distance from the cabin and discovered that he still held the rifle he dropped it as though it had burned him, nor did he again essay to recover it. The noise had been too much for his brute nerves, but he was now quite convinced that the terrible stick was quite harmless by itself if left alone.

The cleverly constructed latch which Clayton had made for the door had sprung as Kerchak passed out, nor could the apes find means of ingress through the heavily barred windows.

Kala had not once come to earth with her little adopted babe, but now Kerchak called to her to descend with the rest, and as there was no note of anger in his voice she dropped lightly from branch to branch and joined the others on their homeward march.

Those of the apes who attempted to examine Kala's strange baby were repulsed with bared fangs and menacing growls, accompanied by words of warning from Kala.

When they assured her that they meant the child no harm she permitted them to come close, but would not allow them to touch her charge.

It was as though she knew that her baby was frail and delicate and feared lest the rough hands of her fellows might injure the little thing.

CHAPTER II.

The White Ape.

TENDERLY Kala nursed her little waif, wondering silently why it did not gain strength and agility as did the little apes of other mothers. It was nearly a year from the time the little fellow came into her possession before he would walk alone, and as for climbing—my, but how stupid he was!

Kala sometimes talked with the older females about her young hopeful, but none of them could understand how a child could be so slow and backward in learning to care for itself. Why, it could not even find food alone, and more than twelve moons had passed since Kala had come upon it.

Had they known that the child had seen thirteen moons before it had come into Kala's possession they would have considered its case as absolutely hopeless.

Tublat, Kala's husband, was sorely vexed and but for the female's careful watching would have put the child out of the way.

"He will never be a great ape," he argued. "Always will you have to carry him and protect him. What good will he be to the tribe? None. Only a burden.

"Let us leave him quietly sleeping among the tall grasses, that you may bear other and stronger apes to guard us in our old age."

"Never, Broken Nose," replied Kala. "If I must carry him forever, so be it."

Tublat went to Kerchak to urge him to use his authority with Kala and force her to give up little Tarzan, which was the name they had given to the tiny Lord Greystoke and which meant "white skin."

But when Kerchak spoke to her about it Kala threatened to run away from the tribe if they did not leave her in peace with the child, and as this is one of the unalienable rights of the jungle folk, if they be dissatisfied among their own people, they bothered her no more, for Kala was a fine, clean limbed young female, and they did not wish to lose her.

As Tarzan grew he made more rapid strides, so that by the time he was ten years old he was an excellent climber and on the ground could do many wonderful things which were beyond the powers of his little brothers and sisters.

In many ways did he differ from them, and they often marveled at his superior cunning, but in strength and size he was deficient, for at ten the great anthropoids were fully grown, some of them towering over six feet in height, while little Tarzan was still but a half grown boy.

Yet such a boy!

From early infancy he had used his hands to swing from branch to branch after the manner of his giant mother, and as he grew older he spent hour upon hour daily speeding through the treetops with his brothers and sisters.

He could spring twenty feet across space at the dizzy heights of the forest top and grasp with unerring precision and without apparent jar a limb waving wildly in the path of an approaching tornado.

He could drop twenty feet at a stretch from limb to limb in rapid descent to the ground, or he could gain the utmost pinnacle of the loftiest tropical giant with the ease and swiftness of a squirrel. Though but ten years old, he was fully as strong as the average man of thirty and far more agile than the most practiced athlete ever becomes. And day by day his strength was increasing.

His life among the fierce apes had been happy, for his recollection held no other life, nor did he know that there existed within the universe aught else than his little forest and the wild jungle animals with which he was familiar.

He was nearly ten before he commenced to realize that a great difference existed between himself and his fellows. His little body, burned almost black by exposure, suddenly caused him feelings of intense shame, for he realized that it was entirely hairless, like some low snake or reptile.

In the higher land which his tribe frequented was a little lake, and it was here that Tarzan first saw his face in the clear, still waters of its bosom.

It was on a sultry day of the dry season that he and one of his cousins had gone down to the bank to drink. As they leaned over both little faces were mirrored on the placid pool, the fierce and terrible features of the ape beside those of the aristocratic scion of an old English house.

Tarzan was appalled. It had been bad enough to be hairless, but to own such a countenance! He wondered that the other apes could look at him at all.

So intent was he upon his personal appraisement of his features that he did not hear the parting of the tall grass behind him as a great body pushed itself stealthily through the jungle, nor did his companion, the ape, hear either, for he was drinking, and the noise of his sucking lips drowned the quiet approach of the intruder.

Not thirty paces behind the two he crouched—Sabor, the tiger—lashing his tail. Cautiously he moved a great padded paw forward, noiselessly placing it before he lifted the next. Thus he advanced, his belly low, almost touching the surface of the ground—a great cat preparing to spring upon its prey.

Now he was within ten feet of the two unsuspecting little playfellows. Carefully he drew his hind feet well up beneath his body, the great muscles rolling under the beautiful skin of black and yellow. So low he was crouching that he seemed flattened to the earth except for the upward bend of the glossy back as it gathered for the spring.

No longer the tail lashed. Quiet and straight behind him it lay.

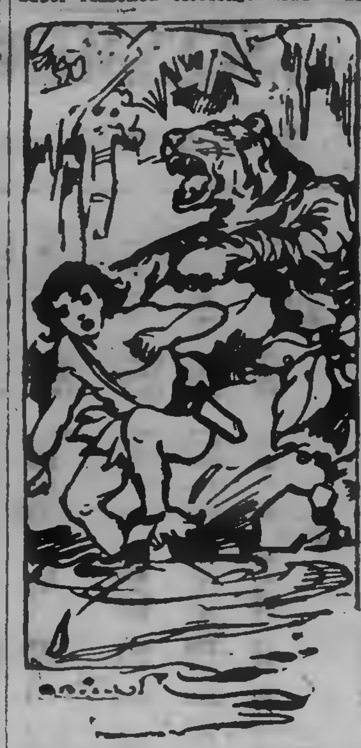
An instant he paused thus as though turned to stone, and then, with an awful scream, he sprang.

Sabor, the tiger, was a wise hunter. To one less wise the wild alarm of his fierce cry as he sprang would have seemed a foolish thing, for could he not more surely have fallen upon his victims had he but quietly leaped without that loud shriek?

But Sabor knew well the wondrous quickness of the jungle folk and their almost unbelievable powers of hearing. To them the sudden scraping of one blade of grass across another was as effectual a warning as his loudest cry, and Sabor knew that he could not make that leap without a little noise.

His wild scream was not a warning, but instead was meant to freeze his poor victims in a paralysis of terror for the tiny fraction of an instant, which would suffice for his mighty claws to sink into their soft flesh and hold them beyond peradventure of escape.

In so far as the ape was concerned, Sabor reasoned correctly. The little fellow crouched trembling just an instant, but that instant was quite long enough to prove his undoing.



And Then, With an Awful Scream, He Sprang.

Not so, however, with Tarzan, the man-child. Before him lay the deep waters of the little lake, behind him certain death—a cruel death beneath tearing claws and rending fangs.

Tarzan had always hated water, except as a medium for quenching his thirst. He hated it because he connected it with the chill and discomfort of the torrential rains, and he feared it for the thunder and lightning and wind which accompanied it.

But of the two evils his quick mind chose the lesser, and before the great beast had covered half his leap Tarzan felt the chill waters close above his head.

He could not swim, and the water was very deep. But still he lost no particle of that self reliance and resourcefulness which were the badges of his superior being.

Rapidly he moved his hands and feet in an attempt to scramble upward, and, possibly more by chance than design, he fell into the stroke that a dog uses when swimming, so that within a few seconds his nose was above water, and he found that he could keep it there by continuing his strokes and also make progress through the water.

He was much surprised and pleased with this new acquirement which had been so suddenly thrust upon him, but he had no time for thinking much upon it.

He was now swimming parallel to the bank, and there he saw the cruel beast that would have seized him crouching upon the still form of his playmate.

The tiger was intently watching Tarzan, evidently expecting him to return to shore, but this the boy had no intention of doing.

Instead he raised his voice in the call of distress common to his tribe, adding to it the warning which would prevent would be rescuers from running into the clutches of Sabor.

Almost immediately there came an answer from the distance, and presently forty or fifty great apes swung rapidly and majestically through the trees toward the scene of tragedy.

In the van was Kala, for she had recognized the tones of her best beloved, and with her was the mother of the little ape who lay dead beneath cruel Sabor.

Though more powerful and better equipped for fighting than the apes, the tiger had no desire to meet these enraged adults, and with a snarl of hatred he sprang quickly into the brush and disappeared.

To be continued.

When she told him that the fashion letter said that men's water he said he knew one man's that wouldn't.

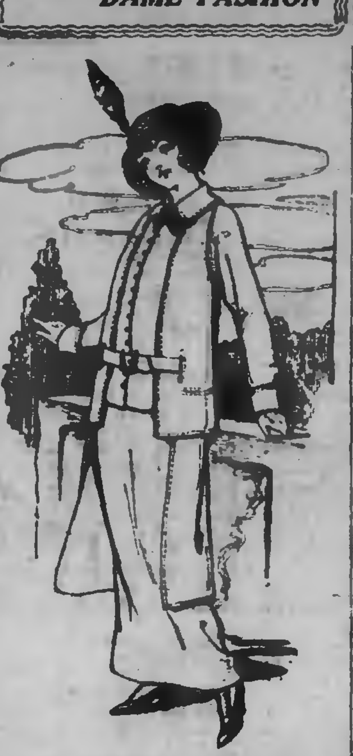
THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



DO YOU CONSIDER THE LINES OF YOUR SUIT?

The lines of which a suit is cut sometimes have more to do with its becomingness than has the material or the color, and here is a suit whose design will serve either afternoon or morning purposes in its ultra smart simplicity and length giving outline which will be especially becoming to a stout woman. It is developed in nocturne satin in grape brown, with a vest of soft tan duvetine raye. A collar and tie most girlish in effect, a belt made of satin, a brown flaring hat and brown topped button boots give the desirable accessories and finishes.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS CURE SICKLY BABIES

If your baby is sickly, if his little stomach is out of order, or his bowels need regulating, no other medicine will have such prompt or beneficial effect as Baby's Own Tablets. Thousands of other mothers use no other medicine for their little ones. Concerning them, Mrs. John G. Crockett, Glenberrie, N.S., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach troubles, vomiting and constipation, and in every instance they have proved successful. I would use no other medicine for my little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tracing Back a Joke.

It is difficult to find the genesis of the funny story. You know the one of the lady who objected to the man smoking in the railway carriage. She plucked away his cigar and flung it out of the window. The man picked up her pet dog and hurled it after his cigar because both dogs and cigars were illegal there. In a week end reading I have just found that story in Dostoevski's "The Idiot," told by a Russian who had fought in the Crimea. He was convicted of having stolen it from a newspaper. The story probably originated with Noah in the overcrowded ark. And it is good to think our ancestors laughed as heartily as we do.—London Opinion.

THIS PONY SAW 41 YEARS SERVICE

Probably the oldest horse in Ontario, an Indian Arabian pony, died recently at the farm of Mr. W. B. Scott, Prince Edward County. The pony had been used by five generations of the family and was 41 years of age. Mrs. Scott's children and grandchildren drove her and rode her up to the past year, when old age began to make its appearance and the pony's teeth failed. She was then fed on grain. She had the Western brand of A. B. on her shoulder.

OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS BUT ONCE, GRASP IT WHILE THERE IS TIME

Get Your Votes Now, Candidates, While You Can Get the Largest Number — Do Not Wait Until Later on.

The Daily Review's Great Contest is still very young. It has only been on a short time and the interest already is very great, as the prizes are so attractive that the public has been thoroughly aroused. Many people are interested in The Daily Review and many words of praise are heard of its progressive spirit in making up such a fine prize list.

A Word to Review Readers.

The "Opportunity Offer" of this great campaign should be of almost as much interest to readers of the Review as it is to the candidates. It means that you can help your favorite now with a subscription and it will count more votes than at any other future time of the campaign. A yearly subscription paid before Feb . 28th 8 p.m., will count the same as four yearly subscriptions paid during the last period of the campaign.

Extend Subscriptions

Subscribers should remember that if they give a six months subscription to some candidate in the early part of the campaign it would be well for you to make an extension at this time, when votes are of more value than at any future time.

It's Up To You.

While no candidate can hope to win who does not make an effort to do so yet at the last it is in the hands of the subscribers whether the candidates shall be successful or not. Do not disappoint the candidates who approach you asking your aid to help them accomplish their ambition. They will appreciate your kindness. Not a day passes but some grateful candidate brings us words of appreciation for some one who has given them generous assistance. If you saw them when they tell us of it you would be glad to think you could earn the same recognition for them.

Store Your Harvest Now.

This is the time when you should reap all the promises that you sowed early in the campaign. It is also the time for storing votes against the last day of the campaign, that day when every candidate will be "as generous as a witch" lest someone should get ahead of them. There is no prescription in the world so efficacious for that nervous feeling as a big bunch of reserve votes. Now while every bit of work you do counts for so much, this is your chance to pile up that reserve and win one of the prizes.

The Brass Agraffe Guards Tone

The purity of the New Scale Williams Tone is guarded at our patented Harmonic Bar by the use of anti-rust "Brass Agraffes."

There are three strings for each note in the treble scale of a piano. In the each note has an individual Brass Agraffe as shown. Each wire is strung through a separate eyelet, giving perfect individual tone and yet blending with the other two wires to give a complete note of wondrous purity, free from any metallic ring.

BRASS AGRAFFES in the HARMONIC BAR remove all possibility of any wire ever touching any other, or rust ever reaching the point of contact. Just one of a hundred mechanical betterments that make the incomparable tone of the New Scale Williams Piano. 2B

LIQUOR FLOWED FREELY

Pioneer Temperance Workers in Peterborough Had a Much Harder Task Than the Present Day Exponents of the Water-Wagon.

When our friends of the Local Option Committee put on the campaign to make Peterborough a "dry" city they realized the opposition that would be offered to the measure by the twenty or twenty-five hotels, and the liquor interests generally. Combined with this was the opposition of many citizens who object to sumptuary laws on principle. A sumptuary law, it may be explained for the benefit of any one who would not recognize such a thing, if met in the street, are laws that seek to restrain the citizen in such matters as his food he shall or may not eat, or drink and, long ago, wear. All such laws lack the support of a large number, whose support is generally given to measures ensuring law and order. And this accounts for a deal of opposition.

Our friends knew what they were up against. But large as the task, serious the opposition it was nothing to what faced the temperance men of sixty or sixty-five years ago, and even later, in heroic efforts to stem the tide of intemperance that poured as a flood over the land. And if there was such a state af affairs, who and what was responsible?

This section of country received a marked impetus in regard to number of population by means of the Robinson immigration. This was in 1825, when over 2,000 souls, drawn largely from the counties of Ireland were assisted out to find homes in a new land. These people brought with them as much as they might of habit and association of the old land and found here a larger liberty than they had ever enjoyed. Liberty led to some excess, and excess was manifested in the consumption of liquor. The facilities were ample and the temptation great.

As in all young communities much that was done was done on the community plan. If a house or barn was to be built, the timbers were prepared for the "raising." Then on a given day friends and neighbors for miles around gathered, and the frame was run up in short order. The same thing came about when a field was to be stumped, or stoned or reaped. The many working cheerfully and helpfully, that they in turn might be benefitted. The one invariable accompaniment to all such gatherings was a keg, pail or jug of whiskey. Why should this be the case.

One Shilling a Gallon.

At a time when the population of the place (it was never known as a village) numbered not over 1800 souls there were five distilleries and three breweries running full blast. Think of what that means, of the excess of production over normal consumption. A man named Pat Hamon came in from Cavan and made whiskey in the building in which Mr. Fitzgerald now carries on his coal and wood business. Good whiskey he said—it was. I have in my private archive a hand bill which he issued in which he advertises whiskey at one shilling a gallon, three pence the quart. Think of whiskey at the price of coal oil. And he adds, "not a headache in a quart."

The old stone building that so long sheltered the aged poor of the town, the Protestant Home, was another. Built and used as a distillery, then a soap factory and again as a distillery. It sent out a large amount. Across the street from the office of the Matthews Co., in the yard of the house, may be seen the ruins of the chimney of the old Boswell distillery. Queerly, most of the product from this distillery was sold in the small wooden building that stands immediately south of the Peter Hamilton shops. The reason was this. The distillery stood on what was practically an island at the mouth of the creek, and the expanse of water was known as Spauldings Bay. In spring and fall the point was flooded and no wagon could get near. In fact the regular route to the lower part of the town was by way of Aylmer Street, George street being often impassable. So the liquor was brought up and sold as stated. Another distillery stood on Sherbrooke street, part of the buildings built across the creek. Two of the breweries were in the Scotch Village, the name before Ashburnham was selected.

There was for years and years practically nothing of excise or of license. Excise is the tax placed by government on something manufactured liquor in this case—that may be made for about 17 cents per gallon and brings the price to about $4.00, a saving to the temperance holding citizen of just that much taxes, that would have to be raised in some other way. License is what one pays for the right to sell liquor with the consent of the law. Both of these restrictions were practically absent.

Liquor Everywhere.

Almost any one who wished sold liquor. Seven houses out of five kept it for use as a beverage. Now do not run away with the idea that all this indicated a vicious trait on the part of the people. Indeed the contrary was the case. It was only an act of common hospitality to offer drink. A man could not be asked to help take a hog from under a gate (gates were swung high on account of the snow and all domestic animals roamed at large) without the offer of a drink as a recognition of service and help given. The man who brought a load of wood and piled it in the yard expected and received a glass of whiskey before he went away. It was all the custom of the country.

The life of a part of the people provoked drinking. River men, engaged in the woods and on the drives were notorious consumers of whiskey. The quarterly fair was another occasion that provoked excess. Held on the first Monday in January, April, July and October it brought to town large numbers of people, some to sell others to buy and hundreds to see the fun. Anything and everything was on sale. Cattle, produce, furniture, meats, through the whole gamut of necessaries. Business was done during the morning. In the late afternoon the yards of the hotels and even the streets were the scenes of wild disorder. The Montgomerys from up Bobcaygeon way and the Crowleys from Otonabee, met and fought. Not vicious fighting, but trials of strength. The Bowles from Otonabee stood about to take a fall out of the victors. The weekly papers print accounts of their doings and ask for many and more of constables. No constable would risk his limbs in such company, when men were infuriated with drink.

The Black Horse Inn.

The life of a party of the people town was by way of Hunter street and the bridge. On the Peterborough side were three hotels, or drinking places and across the river two others. At one the traveller going home took something to keep the heat in and at the others something to keep the cold out. There were five places at which liquor was sold between here and Lakefield. Four on the road to Keene. So many as seven on the way to Port Hope and thirteen between Peterborough and Lindsay. Even at this late day if a piece of red card were tacked on the old places still standing where liquor was sold, it would convey the impression that an epidemic of scarlet fever had broken out. The Black Horse Inn, was a notorious place for drinking. This building still stands on Aylmer street, adjoining the creamery. Respectable and peaceful in its old age.

Directly the result, undoubtedly traceable to the drink, were the scenes of violence that came about. And worse, in the doorway of the old stone building that stands in the yard off the lane at the Lock Works a man while in a drunken frenzy, slew his wife, was tried, and condemned to be hung. The sentence was afterwards modified to that of imprisonment for life.

Where the post office now stands was a bad place. A two-storey frame building, down in the hollow. Many a tragedy occurred within its walls. When preparing the foundations for the post office the skeletons of two men were found buried just at where the side of the building touched on Water street. No clue could be had as to identity, and no record could be found of that which proceeded the burial.

Sons of Temperance.

Such were the conditions along in the middle forties, when right living men of the town got together determined to do what they could do to stem the tide of intemperance. It was a herculean task. Public opinion was not easily impressed. They could not strike at the root of the matter, the presence of the distilleries, and the law gave little aid. An organization was formed called the Sons of Temperance. Even the boys were formed into a Band of Hope. Such pressure as could be used was put on the authorities to restrict so far as possible the sale of liquor. Those were the days of the temperance movement led by John B. Gough. He was brought to Peterborough and addressed meetings. Other able advocates followed. There was no lack of illustration of the evil effects of the use of drink. Men were striven with and pledged to abstain. By a system of friendly espionage that would seem impertinent today those who gave way, having been pledged, were brought back into the ranks. Gradually headway was gained. As years rolled past the persistent work told in the gradual dimunition of sale and manufacture. It began to be really respectable to be temperate, and men ceased to be pointed out as examples in such respects. The coming in of the Crooks Act was a long step forward, and the centralization of the manufacture of liquor brought it under direct government control. Probably the largest factor in holding down the sale was the advance in the price so soon as excise began to be imposed with relentless severity. Most of the small places and private sales rooms closed, and along the leading roads liquor selling and liquor sellers went out of business.

It was all due to good heroic work on the part of the Men of Temperance, and the town owes a debt of gratitude to such as William McBurney, Joseph Stalker, Philip Giles, Philip Martyn, John Williamson, William John Mason, Robinson Rutherford, Joseph Ford and many others who stood shoulder to shoulder in those days and fought the good fight for temperance and a better life.

TRUANT OFFICER DIES SUDDENLY

Frank B. Fee of Grand Rapids, Formerly of Cavan Stricken with Paralysis.

A Grand Rapids exchange says:—When Frank B. Fee, municipal truant officer, awoke at 8.30 Sunday morning, he was apparently in the best of health and spirits. At 8.45 he was stricken with paralysis, and at 3 p.m. he died. The stroke came as he was dressing, and he was found lying on the floor of his room by his wife, at his home, 1354 Wealthy Street, S.E. Dr. R. J. Hutchison was summoned, but the patient was beyond help.

Mr. Fee was born in Cavan, Ont. in 1860 and he came to Grand Rapids 32 years ago. He entered the service of the police department as a patrolman and was given the berth of city truant officer when that office was created. He had served in that capacity for 28 years. He was one of the organizers of the C.O.S., now the Social Welfare Association and was connected with the Children's home, which later became the Blodgett home. He was a member of the Elks and of the Woodmen and Masonic fraternities.

Besides his widow Mr. Fee is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Robert Grandy, Green Lake, Wash., and Mrs. Hannah Battisby and Mrs. Ellen Tisdale of Toronto: and three brothers, John of Grand Rapids, Mich., Robt., of Robinson, Illinois; and Henry of Cavan, Ont.

POOR AMMUNITION BLAMED.

Reason Given Out For Canada's Bad Showing in the Palma.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—That Canada's ammunition, not her riflemen, was responsible for the poor showing of the Canadian team in the Palma trophy match at Camp Perry, Ohio, last fall is the interesting statement of Lieut.-Col. Helmer, director of musketry and commander of the team, in an analysis of the result, published in the annual report of the Dominion Rifle Association, out yesterday. His statement has been eagerly awaited by Canadian riflemen. It is a condemnation of the low ballistic powers of the ammunition as compared with that of the United States and Argentine teams, both of which beat Canada in the Palma.

Assassination In Prison.

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The Suffragette, the organ of the Women's Social and Political Union, charges the Government with trying to kill Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst. The paper prints a sworn statement by Mrs. Smith, the woman who was arrested at Campden Hill Square in mistake for Mrs. Pankhurst, alleging deliberate police brutalities committed on herself.

The Suffragette expresses the opinion that the Government has abandoned torture for direct assassination.

Canada's Trade Grows.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—According to a statement issued yesterday by Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Customs, the total Canadian trade for the ten months of the present fiscal year ended Jan. 30 last, was $958,660,913. For the corresponding ten months of last fiscal year, the total trade was $884,232,421. The present outlook is, therefore, for a trade of well over a billion dollars for the fiscal year ending March 31 next.

The exports for the ten months were $384,334,000, of which agricultural products form the large proportion of $186,648,000. The dutiable and free imports for the ten months were $540,092,000.

VILLA'S EXECUTION OF BRITISH SUBJECT AROUSES EXCITEMENT

Unjustifiable Slaying of William S. Benton at Juarez is a Direct Violation of U.S. Warning to Factions to Protect Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A slumbering Mexican situation was brought quickly to a point of intense international interest yesterday by the flash of a message stating that William S. Benton, a British subject, had been killed in Juarez, by order of Gen. Francisco Villa, the constitutionalist commander.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, conferred with Secretary Bryan about it; President Wilson and his Cabinet discussed it thoroughly and an investigation was ordered by the State Department from consular representatives on the border.

In this case, for the first time since the present revolution began a year ago, the general warning from the U. S. Government to Mexican factions to protect all foreigners went unheeded, though there is evidence to show that both the British Ambassador and the State Department were advised too late of Benton's impending fate to intercede specifically for him. The news shocked officials generally, who had come to believe that Gen. Villa fully realized the petition of the American Government in regard to the protection of foreigners in Mexico, particularly in the north of that country.

"I have not sufficient facts on which to base an opinion," said Secretary Bryan yesterday. "Until I have the Department will express no opinion."

The killing of a British subject under circumstances such as despatches from the border portrayed caused a stir in diplomatic circles. Those familiar with the aggressive attitude Great Britain assumes in pressing for reparation when her subjects have been wronged were inclined to see interesting developments impending.

Talked Back To Villa.

EL PASO, Feb. 21. — Intense excitement prevails here as a result of the murder of William Benton, English rancher, by order of Gen. Villa. Inability to get details resulted in the selection of ex-Governor Curey of New Mexico as an agent to seek the truth.

Just what occurred between Villa and his ill-fated visitor last Tuesday may never be known. Through the widow and a cousin, William Benton, and through friends of the deceased, it was learned that Benton wished permission to bring to the United States four hundred head of cattle on his ranch, Los Remedios, in western Chihuahua. Charles Qualey, a friend, now here among the other refugees, advised him of the probable procedure. "Villa probably will grant your request, but he'll give you a lecture and you must not resent the lecture. If you do you may get into trouble." "If he lectures me I'll lecture back," Benton replied. "I have never made a political move in Mexico and if he accuses me of it I have some accusations of my own to make."

Benton made the request, and his friends never saw him alive afterwards.

Benton, it is said, was tried on a charge of conspiracy against the rebel government and with "provoking and insulting Gen. Villa."

Major Jesus Rodriguez presided. Adrien Aguirre Benavides acted as legal adviser to the court and Major Manuel Gloria acted as prosecutor. Benton is believed to have been held incommunicado, the while, and it is admitted that there was no counsel to represent him.

That there was a real courtmartial nearly everybody on this side of the river doubts.

GOVERNMENT TO LOAN MILLIONS TO MONTREAL AND QUEBEC

Hon. J. D. Hazen Gives Notice of Motion to Advance $15,000,000 to Montreal and $2,000,000 to Quebec For Port Development as Required.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. — Hon. J. D. Hazen has given notice of resolutions which he will move on Monday next to provide for loans to the harbor commissioners of Montreal and Quebec for the purpose of carrying out the development plans of these two important harbors. Fifteen million dollars will be provided for in the case of Montreal and two millions in the case of Quebec.

With regard to the Montreal loan it is stipulated that the money is only to be advanced from time to time as found necessary.

It will be used to pay off and retire debentures of the corporation to the value of $335,000, which mature in 1917, and to enable the corporation to construct the terminal facilities of the port of Montreal for which the plans have been approved by the Government, and to construct such additional terminal facilities as are necessary to equip the port properly.

It is provided that during that period of construction the interest payable on debentures receivable by the Minister of Finance for such advances may be paid out of the $15,000,000. It is stipulated that the harbor commissioners shall deposit with the Minister debentures of the corporation equal in par value to the advances made, repayable within twenty-five years from the date of issue and bearing interest payable half yearly at the rate of three and one-half per cent.

The conditions in regard to the Quebec loan are practically the same.

Navigation on the St. Lawrence, port facilities at Montreal, and marine insurance rates were discussed in the House yesterday, when estimates for the Marine and Fisheries Department were under consideration.

Replying to Hon. Mr. Lemieux, the Minister of Trade and Commerce said that while the Government was in sympathy with any movement to secure lower insurance rates on the St. Lawrence, representations made to Lloyds had not accomplished much. The Canadian shipping people had been assured by the Government that if they would undertake to do their share in organizing a new plan of insurance the Ministry would do its share.

Speaking of the water level on the St. Lawrence, Hon. Mr. Hazen explained that the commission which had been investigating the water levels during the last season, had found that further investigation this summer would be necessary before a report could be presented.

Nothing had so far been learned, however, that would cause the Government to abandon the plan of deepening the channel to thirty-five feet. Work on the scheme is to be carried on vigorously during the coming summer.

A new ice-breaker is also to be built for use on the St. Lawrence. This vessel is to be built in Canada, but so far no satisfactory tenders have been received.

Mr. Weichel (North Waterloo) asked if it was the purpose of the Government to grant financial aid to the centennial of peace celebration.

Mr. Borden replied that the Canadian section of the Peace Centennial Commission had aroused great interest all through the country in the proposed celebration. The Prime Minister said that the Government was heartily in favor of the proposed celebration, and would make a grant of $25,000 at this session to defray the preliminary expenses of the Canadian commission, of which Sir Edmund Walker is chairman.

MUST CONTROL PETROLEUM

Government Takes Steps to Guard Supply in Case of War.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21. — Presumably acting upon a hint from the Admiralty, the Government yesterday asked authority from Parliament to control and if necessary, to prohibit the export of petroleum from Canada. The committee of the whole after a brief debate reported favorably the following resolution: Resolved, that it is expedient to amend the Export Act, chapter 5, of the revised statutes, 1906, to give the governor in council power to prohibit the exportation of crude or partly manufactured petroleum.

Thereupon, Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs, introduced a bill founded upon the resolution which was read the first time. A more extended debate is anticipated upon a second reading of the bill. The Prime Minister in presenting the resolution, said it was deemed expedient to give the Government power to regulate and even prohibit the export of petroleum in the interest of national and imperial defence.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that oil had been struck in Alberta, and great developments were expected. To put arbitrary power in the hands of the Government would be to discourage all industry.

It had been intimated that the power was asked by the Government for reasons of imperial defence, remarked Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Was that the only reasons? he inquired.

Mr. Borden said that the conservation of our oil supply was a defensive measure which might not be invoked, but, if it were, then all private property depreciated thereby would be paid for by the Government.

The Prime Minister said that possibly rather wide power was conferred by the proposed legislation, but there was no intention on the part of the Government to use such power, except for the purpose of defence.

CANADA OWES MUCH TO HER PIONEER ENGINEER TRAINER

Head of Faculty of Applied Science In Toronto University Has Spent Fifty Years In the Task of Making Engineering a Recognized Profession In This Country.

When Dean Galbraith of the Faculty of Applied Science in the University of Toronto, first became associated with the teaching of young Canadians fifty years ago, there was no such thing as the engineering "profession," it was to a large extent "a trade," based upon a system of apprenticeship. There was no literature of engineering science worthy of the name. There was no real educational standard. Engineers were trained by big firms as apprentices. There was little tabulation of principles in the profession and comparatively little standardization of practice.

Galbraith was one of the few students of engineering in the world who sought to change these conditions. His opportunity came when the Government asked him to take charge of the old School of Technology, in the old Public Library at the corner of Adelaide and Church street, Toronto. The politicians of the day were willing to accept the conditions of the day. They conceived of nothing better than a technical school for machinists, a project which at that time and in view of the limited amount of money available was not suitable to the country. Galbraith proposed in place of the School of Technology a School of Practical Science to teach engineering principles, and he was able, by reason of his personality and reputation, to convince the authorities and have the school established—that was 35 years ago.

Since that time Dean Galbraith has devoted himself to the task of teaching and directing the young engineers who come to him as pupils. Teaching, and upholding the principles of the profession he loved, have been the one occupation of Dean Galbraith's life. He does not golf, fish, nor motor. He declines every offer — and there have been many — to obtain twice his present income by accepting appointments in the industrial world. He declines all requests—and there are many—for his services as consulting engineer, unless he can be certain that such work, however lucrative, will not interfere with his college work; if it gives any suggestion of conflicting with his "duty" he refuses it. Sometimes he permits himself the luxury of a canoe trip in the north country, a region he learned to love during his years as a surveyor for the C.P.R. Alone, he is content to put in with a tent and some grub and paddle through the wildernesses, silent save for the lapping of lake water and the sighing of the forests. On one such occasion he paddled from Lake Superior to Hudson Bay and back again via another route, all in his quiet, steady, simple way.

During the college year he lives between his laboratory, his classes, and his home. His wife, who was a Miss Stupart, sister of the Meteorological Director, is his constant assistant, if not in a technical way, in the many other ways in which a woman may contribute to the success of her husband. His life centres in the School of Practical Science. Its success and the success of its graduates, are his reward. He has seen it grow from nothing to greatness. He has seen come to fruition the dreams he dreamed forty years ago, of a country that would need skilled men—engineers to "direct the great sources of power in nature to the use and convenience of man," and of his opportunity in this way to serve his country. If to-day Canadians have been able to carry out the great engineering feats involved in the development of the nation, it is chiefly due to the fact that Galbraith foresaw the need and provided for it by organizing the School of Practical Science. To-day, his graduates are to be found in every part of Canada and some of them are among the most eminent in the profession in the great world centres.—Britton B. Cooke in Toronto Star Weekly.

More Immorality.

It is contended by the Central South London Free Church Council in the annual report of its social purity, rescue, and temperance sections, greater prosperity is accompanied by greater immorality. "We have to regret," the council states, "that the great boom in trade which has, more or less, affected every part of the kingdom during the past year, has led to an increase of immorality."

TO CENSOR PUBLICATIONS

Senator Choquette Would Bar Criminals' Pictures From Papers.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—A bill to forbid Canadian papers publishing portraits of criminals was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Choquette.

To accomplish this the bill amends the section of the criminal code which provides a penalty of two years' imprisonment for the sale of obscene literature.

As amended by Senator Choquette, the section imposes a penalty against anyone who "manufactures, sells or exposes for sale or public view, or circulates any obscene book, pamphlet, newspaper or other publication containing, without authorization of the judge of a superior court or of the Attorney-General of a province, the picture of any person accused of or condemned for any crime or misdemeanor, or of their assistants or accomplices, or of the instruments which they used, or any picture, photograph, model or other object tending to corrupt morals.

The Senate adjourned until Thursday next.

Dozen Are Injured.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Three buildings were partially wrecked and a dozen persons were injured by flying glass and thrown from their beds, and windows a block away were shattered early yesterday, when a bomb exploded in the doorway of Leonardo Melon's grocery in the Italian quarter.

The grocer received a Black Hand letter demanding $2,000 three months ago. He did not comply with the demand, and four days ago received another letter saying his store would be blown up unless he paid $5,000.

U. S. Consul at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 21.—The announcement of the intention of the Government at Washington to create a United States embassy at Buenos Ayres has aroused great satisfaction here. Handsome Gift To Town.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 21. — E. D. Smith, a wealthy bachelor farmer, aged 60, at Listowel, called on the mayor and announced that he would give a valuable site he owns in the centre of the town, one hundred loads of gravel and one hundred loads of sand toward building a place where young men and women can congregate rather than in picture theatres, pool-rooms, hotels, and on the streets. A big public meeting has been called to raise the rest of the money and several handsome donations have been volunteered.

WILSON STRONG

U.S. Senate Votes Down Treaty Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—By defeating amendments to general arbitration treaties pending renewal with Great Britain, Japan and six other nations, the Senate took yesterday the first decisive step in the policy of the Administration to lift the United States from what officials have characterized as its "isolated position" in foreign relations.

The supreme test of strength in the treaty controversy came on an amendment to the Spanish treaty urged by Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, which would withhold from arbitration such important international issues as immigration, the question of admitting aliens to domestic schools, affairs involving the Monroe doctrine and the provision of the Panama Canal act exempting American coastwise shipping from tolls. This amendment was rejected by a vote of thirteen to forty, more than two-thirds majority. This result was regarded by Administration leaders last night as marking the end of the controversy over the Government's foreign policy, and assuring the ratification of the treaties which expired more than a year ago with Great Britain, Japan, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and Switzerland. The way is also clear for the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption for American shipping.

President Wilson let it be known yesterday that he is for out-and-out repeal of the tolls provision; that there can be no compromise in the situation in order that it may be signalled to the world that the United States will stand firmly by its international obligations.

SEATH SCHEME IS ENDORSED

Adherents of Various Denominations Hold Meeting in Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—A large gathering of clergymen and laymen representing many shades of opinion, met in St. James' Parish House yesterday afternoon, and decided to urge upon the Ontario Government the necessity for the teaching of the Scriptures in schools, and, as an encouragement to the pupils, ask that the successful passing of a projected examination in theology, should be a means of assisting a pupil, who may have failed in another subject, to pass his or her entrance examination to the High School. A resolution was passed, which reads as follows:

"Resolved, that this conference cordially approves of the proposed scheme presented by Dr. John Seath, Superintendent of Education for the Province of Ontario, and urges him to bring it before the Minister of Education and the Government, and also promises to bring the proposed scheme again before the bodies here represented to secure their support of this, his scheme for religious instruction in public schools as well as a systematic teaching of morality."

The meeting was attended by adherents of Anglican, Roman Catholic, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, and Hebrew bodies.

THIN-BLOODED MEN AND WOMEN

Need of Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Thin-blooded people do not remain so from choice, but from independence; in some cases from despair. People who are pale, languid, with palpitation of the heart, some difficulty in breathing and a tendency to be easily tired are suffering from thin blood. They need only the resolution to take the right treatment and stick to it until cured. The remedy that can be relied upon is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. With every dose they make new blood, and new blood means health and strength. The red cheeks, good appetite, increasing weight and strength that follow the use of these Pills prove their great value to thin-blooded people. Here is an example. Mrs. R. Steele, Afton Road, P.E.I., says: "Following child-birth I took a pain in my head which grew so bad I had to call in a doctor. He told me that my blood had turned to water and that I was in a serious condition. He treated me four months, but still the pain remained, and my condition was growing pitiable. I lost my appetite, and was so weak and run-down that I could no more than walk across a room. I was as pale as a corpse and the doctor told my friends he had but little hopes of my getting better. A cousin who came to see me urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I sent and got a supply. In about a month after beginning their use I had much relief, and by the time I had taken six more boxes I was cured and felt as well as ever I did in my life. I have never had a twinge of the pain since, and feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after the doctor had failed."

Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS TURN DOWN REQUEST

the public sentiment. Things have been said and written whose only effect, if any, is to lessen or destroy respect for the officers of the law, and for the law itself.

A community or any part of it that loses due regard for law and order, loses an element most vital and necessary for its welfare, and those whose words or actions bring this about, are more dangerous than scorpions let loose.

Now as to the question in hand. We are told two things: first, that Peterboro is a very bad place, one of the worst, if not the worst in Canada, and secondly, that this can and should be remedied by the appointment of a woman police officer. True, neither of these propositions is supported by evidence of any kind, but we are so told and forsooth, should act accordingly. It is alleged, not proved, stated, not demonstrated.

As to the first, I do not believe it at all. Peterboro is not, I think, worse than most other places of its size, and I regret to say, I am quite sure it is not any better. But we are told a great wave of immorality is now sweeping over us and must be stemmed. I must crave pardon if I do not accept or believe that either. The wave most noticeable of late, is one of ignorance and bad taste; if not ignorance, it is impertinence, which is worse.

I have tried to learn something about the instances referred to in the petition presented and in its support. The trouble is, no complaint was ever made at the time, and no particulars given, so, it is quite impossible to trace them; the only one cited in which the police were notified, I have inquired into and located. I find it occurred five years ago. If that is not sufficient answer in itself, I am assured the whole matter was satisfactorily explained and cleared up then. I do not attempt to condone or cover up rowdyism or wrongdoing; those who know me best will be the last to suggest that. It is my supreme desire to maintain and enforce the strength and dignity of the law, but things will happen we deplore, even if we quadrupled our force, and is not a charge five years old rather stale? I was not here then, and the Chief of Police of that time is departed. I am quite aware we must increase our force, but for its number, I believe it most attentive and efficient and not excelled anywhere. In fact, quite recent events show it most capable and superior to nearly all others, and Peterboro today is throughout the whole State of Massachusetts, most extensively advertised and discussed owing to the extreme alertness and efficiency of her local police force.

But though I have tried fairly to find out, I may be wrong as to the degree of immorality in our city. I want to get at the absolute truth if I can, and beg to offer to those active in making the allegations, the forthcoming suggestions and request for their assistance.

Give or send me the names of witnesses who can give evidence as to existing conditions, including your own names and the evidence that can be adduced. I promise you to lay the matter before the Attorney General and ask him to appoint special counsel to conduct an investigation before the next Grand Jury, for the city and county.

I will direct the Grand Jury to investigate rigidly and thoroughly and make its report to me which will then be published. The Grand Jury is an honoured and rightly honoured institution of the people, for the people, beyond reproach. I promise to direct every witness so suggested to be subpoenaed to give evidence, and myself to assist by every means in my power, and with confidence. I now ask all good citizens who know things themselves, or know those who do, to give me this assistance. If they refuse or neglect to comply with this request, I and others must form our conclusions.

A band of self-constituted advisers send me a resolution assuring me of their "approval" provided I comply with their desires at an "early date." Most considerate on their part! That is indeed sugar-coating the pill of intimidation which so many others have endeavored forcibly to thrust down my throat. But because encased in honey, I resent it none the less. Why should a self respecting judge care for approval or disapproval. Scarce a day of my life passes when I do not get both. Whenever I decide a civil case, for or against, or convict, or acquit a prisoner, I receive both from some one, as I know full well, but I should be false to my oath and duty if influenced by them in the slightest degree. I doubly deplore and resent all such efforts to cajole, intimidate, or dragoon me into action for a police woman or anything else whatever, for I am assured ,the very people who resort to such tactics, and who have so persistently kept at them for the past month would despise me in their hearts as a weakling if I yield to their screaming importunities, and even if they did not do so, I should despise myself, which to me is infinitely worse. Then too, we are told we should appoint a woman policeman. I promised not only to consider carefully, but to investigate thoroughly, as to her success elsewhere, and under conditions like or unlike ours, to secure the best expert opinion available as to the advisability of the appointment. This I have done. I have had a vast amount of correspondence and have personally interviewed many authorities in other places, and from what I have heard and seen, the results of actual trial and experience, must decide.

I use the term, "expert opinion" advisedly; my information has come, not from theorists only, but from men in the highest and most responsible positions in city and state, men whose lives and best efforts have been devoted to criminal affairs and police administration.

The result of my research has convinced me, that in the case of the local advocates of the idea, there is more heat than light, and their knowledge is in inverse ratio to their zeal.

There are to-day in the whole Province of Ontario, just three policewomen, and so far as I have been able to learn, just four in the whole Dominion of Canada. No city in Canada, even approximately the size of Peterborough, has one or has even seriously contemplated one as necessary, though suggested and discussed in some of them. Guelph, Brantford, Windsor, Stratford, Belleville, Kingston, Berlin, Woodstock, Chatham, St. Thomas, St. Catharines, Fort William, Port Arthur, and the Sault have none. These are all smaller cities like our own. London with fifty-five thousand, has not any, nor has Hamilton with her one hundred thousand and more. I am authorized by his Honor, Judge Snider, Chairman of the Police Commission there, to say, they not long since took this matter up, discussed it at length and made the most complete investigations, with the result that they refused to entertain the idea. He and his colleagues further permit me to say, they were then and still are unanimously opposed to it, and in such opposition are almost unanimously approved by the citizens. Ottawa with one hundred thousand, and Hull with twenty thousand attached, have one who was appointed and began duty on the first of January, 1914. Mark the date, for with prophetic prescience, the month had scarce half gone by, before we here were assured of its supreme and permanent success and urged to follow its example.

The Ottawa appointment was made purely as an experiment, as admitted by friends and foes, and it is all too early to form any conclusions as to her success or otherwise. Toronto with her half million people, and nearly seven hundred policemen, has two police women, and two only, also as yet only an experiment, appointed some six months ago. It is hoped they will all succeed, but some most in their favor in these cities, and largely responsible for their appointment, assure me that in their judgment, such an appointment in a city of twenty or twenty-five thousand, would be an absurdity. Just here, I regret having to make a statement; a gentleman quoted to us as an authority, assures me the only thing he ever said about it was, a hope rather than an opinion, said in strict confidence, not to be publicly used in any way whatever; notwithstanding this, he was quoted here in Peterborough, no, not quoted, misquoted and distorted. Some of the small American cities have tried the experiment but generally speaking, it has not been satisfactory and has been discontinued in most cases. Nearly all with experience of working of policewomen agree in saying she is a success in large centres and large stores in detecting women shop-lifters, arresting and searching them forthwith. Opinion is greatly divided, as to her ability in dealing with vice conditions or immorality. Some have told me she is of material assistance in these matters, while more inform me that is just her weak point in actual work, and she is no use there whatever. It is said that young people spoken to by her, knowing her authority, resent it, and are not influenced as by a deaconess or some other woman, vested only with the authority of kindness and goodness. The truth probably lies between the two, and largely depends on the fact and capacity of the woman herself. To sum up however, the great mass of the information I have received, leads to the conclusion that the policewoman is more a fad than a necessity, more ornamental than useful. It is all but unanimous that such an appointment is unwise and uncalled for in a city of the size of Peterborough, or even in one considerably larger. As the result of consideration and investigation of this much mooted question, (without wishing to influence unduly any other member of the Board), I have come to a conclusion satisfactory to myself on the question and that is, that I am opposed to the appointment of a policewoman in the city of Peterborough and I shall vote against it.

On the other hand, while of opinion that our force is good, I think it inadequate and favor a considerable addition to its numbers. Our outside and residential sections are insufficiently patrolled, and very often even on the main streets, more men are necessary to handle properly the crowds of people there.

I am further of the opinion that very soon we should have a police matron; in fact I favor her appointment forthwith, either permanently or as occasion may require, because though possibly not often needed, if needed at all, she is an absolute necessity. I refer to cases of women prisoners being brought to the station and later on up for trial or preliminary hearing. I think a matron should be with such unfortunates in all these painful and embarrassing conditions. I would suggest that she might or could do some probation work in addition. Just one word more. I do not wish to be misunderstood in my remarks referring to improper influences. They refer and apply to things improper and not those that are innocent. I do not wish any one to speak to me or in my presence or hearing, to write me any letters or print or place any remarks before me relating to any cases pending trial, from any motive or reason whatever.

The same thing applies to me as ex-officio police commissioner, except that I shall gladly receive any suggestion or information, and will hear and investigate any complaint that may be made. Anything further than that, is grossly improper and my position should protect me from such insult and attempted persuasion or intimidation.

If such attempts are made again, I shall refuse even to consider them, and dismiss the suggestion without the courtesy of investigation, believing that object wholly unworthy, which requires the assistance of improprieties, no matter by whom preferred.

"His Honor has covered the ground effectively and has also expressed views similar to my own," remarked Magistrate Dumble. The ladies of the city are of the opinion that we are the masters of the people. Bad manners, impropriety, an ill-conduct cannot be touched by the law unless illegal. The ladies here relate stories of immorality. No doubt if the lid were taken off you would see much for condemnation. The police are not moral officers. They are legal officers. His Worship referred to the visit of Inspector Boyle of Springfield, and his statements. On several occasions he had sent girls to Toronto where they were taken in by the Salvation Army, an institution that was doing excellent work.

"It is creditable for an institution to look after these cases," concluded His Worship.

"I have to congratulate the Judge on his excellent address," said Mayor Buller. "The report is most thorough and full of facts," continued the Mayor, who, as he continued spoke of the first meeting when they had been waited upon by the council of women in connection with the important issue before them today.

In speaking of his supposed lost plank from his platform, he said that they had gone to him and stated that Ald. Gillespie had said that he was going to support anything in the interest of morality of the city. He had himself remarked that he would do the same, and was still going to support anything in the interests of morality in the city. "I told them if you and the Board were satisfied, I would also be satisfied," said His Worship. "We must keep the salaries down and by all means must not increase our rate of 25 mills. "We are aiming to keep down offensive crime," remarked Magistrate Dumble.

Speaking of four more additional police, Magistrate Dumble expressed himself that four more men could not be all over the city. We want more police. We have got to have more police to spread over the city. We must provide for a good Christian woman to look after the poor unfortunate women who are wronged. "If you had one thousand police you could not keep the city good,' was the opinion of the Mayor, who throughout the entire proceedings, fought hard to stem the increase of dollars for the city.

"It is our duty to keep within the twenty-five mill rate," he said.

"I move that the four officers be appointed," said Judge Huycke.

"I believe we have a good force. I have made a careful study and find it compares most favorably with others, but we have a smaller force per thousand than any city in the province. George Street is almost unmanageable on Saturday eveneveninga. The occasions should be looked after. The residential section should also be carefully patrolled."

Magistrate Dumble—"This Saturday night business is just an immoral parade. It must be broken up, therefore I move that two men be appointed."

Mayor Buller again brought up his dollars and cents end of the discussion and Judge Huycke remarked that this should only be a secondary consideration in the matter. They must keep pace with the large growth.

Mayor Buller said he would be satisfied to appoint one man.

The matter was brought to a conclusion with Magistrate Dumble's motion, calling for the appointment of two men. The motion was seconded by the Judge. Mayor Buller was adverse to the motion.

Mayor Buller then moved that a matron be appointed, and the motion was seconded by Magistrate Dumble. The appointment of the matron is not however permanent.

SINGING TO A PHONOGRAPH.

One of the Most Trying Ordeals in an Opera Artist's Career.

Specially constructed violins, cellos, tubas, drums and reed instruments are required as accompaniment to the grand opera singer when he or she essays to waft the voice upon a phonograph record. And it is safe to say this singing to the phonograph is the most trying ordeal in the artist's career.

Singers like Caruso, Melba, Farrar, Amato and a host of others are united in declaring the singing for records is the hardest work they ever have undertaken. They are bereft of their audiences that inspire confidence, and they necessarily must be careful to avoid false notes or inflections. The slightest clearing of the throat or the muffled shuffling of feet will spoil a record. And then it all has to be done over again.

The singer is ushered into a great barnlike room, curtained off at one end. Through this curtain protrudes a gigantic brass horn, suspended from the ceiling. It is attached to the phonograph record.

It is then the singer notices a bevy of musicians, but with instruments the like of which he never has seen in any theater. The violins are of different shapes from the instruments with which he is familiar. The horns are of varied shapes, and to each is attached a little funnel that points in the direction of the large receiving horn. This is to concentrate the sound.

The conductor sits on a platform high above his musicians and the singer. Thus he offers no obstruction to the free transmission of the sound waves. The singer is stationed upon a platform and close to the mouth of the horn.

A red light flashes, the musicians pour forth light, soft melody, for which their instruments are particularly designed, and the grand opera artist loosens his vocal cords. His tone must be steady and strong. The slightest variation is recorded upon the wax record, and a trivial noise may spoil the performance. Once he has finished, the record is placed upon a producing machine and played over to detect faults. These errors are pointed out and the singer rehearsed to prevent them. Again he repeats the song, and perhaps a dozen times he is forced to sing before a perfect wax impression is obtained.

Great grand opera artists are paid thousands of dollars for a series of records, and the sale of these brings millions to the manufacturers.—Indianapolis Star.

A Friend In Need.

A speaker in an English election relates the following incident. One night he spoke in the poultry market at Whitchurch. The next morning a young man stopped him in the street and said:

"I was looking well after you last night."

The speaker expressed surprise at the necessity.

The young man continued his story: "I saw a young man come into the meeting with his coat pockets bulging out in a way that made me suspicious. Two of us followed him in. He stood at the back of the room, and we stood one on each side of him. Gently but firmly we pressed against him. There was a crackling sound of breaking eggs, and the man was out of action."

Pearls as Medicine.

Scotland still produces pearls, found mainly in the fresh water mussel. They could no doubt be found in England if the industry were profitable.

Cleopatra was not the only person who swallowed a dissolved pearl. Until comparatively recently pearls were used medicinally in the west and still appear in the materia medica of China. According to one Chinese authority, a pearl, after being treated with pumice stone and honeycomb, mixed with the gall of a serpent, "might be drawn out to the length of three or four feet. Make it into pills and swallow them—henceforth food will be unnecessary."

The suggestion is not that the patient would be finished off, but that he would live, foodless, forever.—New York Sun.

IRISH MONK'S JOKE.

A Witty Retort to the Late Queen Victoria.

The Dean of Windsor, Dr. Eliot, who is domestic chaplain to the court, has been relating some interesting experiences with members of the royal family. The memory of Queen Victoria he holds in the deepest reverence and affection. "Queen Victoria," he told a reporter, "had great powers of sympathy. Although there was about her on all occasions an indefinable something that inspired respect she could unbend at times and indulge in a joke like other people. I remember that one day, when the late Archbishop Magee was here on a visit she was twitting him rather on the fact that he was an Irishman.

The Queen told him that once she visited the monastery of the Certosa at Florence, and on her arrival there was informed that among the monks was an Irishman. She asked if she might see him, and he was sent for. Presently in came a monk with his head clean-shaven. After greeting him she said: 'You must feel very cold sometimes about the head.' 'Oh, no, not at all, your majesty,' was the Irishman's reply, 'I belong to a hot-headed race.' Queen Victoria was a deeply religious woman and a staunch upholder of the Church of England. I believe the fact that she used to attend the Presbyterian service at the parish church close to Balmoral has been the subject of some comment, but in this, as in other matters, her action was scrupulously correct, for the sovereign is head of the Church of Scotland as well as of the Church of England. Prince Edward, in the same way, attended Presbyterian services when in Scotland, as does the present King.

How Do Glowworms Glow.

Some of the mystery concerning the source and character of the supply of light which the glowworm and the firefly furnish at will is being cleared up. That mystery has been diligently inquired into ever since electric lighting was achieved and the problem of light without heat became even more than ever pressing.

The phosphorescent theory by way of accounting for the light given out by these insects had not been entirely satisfactory, owing to the brilliancy of the flashes produced by these tiny animals. Prof. Pethen gives an account of the effect of lightning on the glowworm. He had a number of them in glasses.

For an hour, from 8.15 p.m., when the lightning flashes were very frequent, he kept the larvae under observation. The unusual amount of electricity in the air certainly appeared to affect these larvae, for tiny bright greenish lights kept appearing and disappearing, from first one glass and then another, throughout the time that they were watched. Occasionally there would be lights showing in all four glasses at the same time, when from six to twelve distinct points of light could be seen; at other times there would be only three or four lights visible.

This appears to indicate that glowworms and fireflies are equipped with natural storage batteries, but the question remains, what becomes of the heat?

Circumstantial Evidence.

"Even the cleverest and most perfect circumstantial evidence is likely to be at fault, after all, and therefore ought to be received with great caution," said the late Mark Twain.

"Take the case of any pencil sharpened by any woman. If you have witnesses, you will find she did it with a knife; but if you simply take the aspect of the pencil, you will say she did it with her teeth."

Had an Alternative.

Pilrey—And because you couldn't find a nickel to pay the fare did the conductor make you get off and walk?

Jayson—No; he only made me get off. I could have sat on the street if I'd wanted to.

His Preference.

"You say this man stole your coat?" said the magistrate. "Do I understand that you prefer charges against him?"

"Well, no, your honor," replied the plaintiff. "I prefer the coat, if it's all the same to you, sir."

LETTER FROM THE PREMIER

Sir James Sends Message of Appreciation to Legislature.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—At the opening of the short session of the Legislature yesterday the Speaker read a letter from the Prime Minister, which was as follows:

"Dear Mr. Speaker,—The session now being open, I feel it incumbent upon me to endeavor to express, through you, to my fellow-members of the Legislature, and to the people of the province generally, my grateful appreciation of the warm sympathy which has been extended to me during my recent severe illness, and, above all, for the prayers that were offered for my recovery.

"Apt and fitting language to express as I could wish what I desire to say on this subject would be difficult indeed for me to find, and I confine myself to this simple expression of my hearty and earnest thanks."

The message was received in silence by the House, until just before adjournment Mr. Rowell arose and moved that the Speaker send a message to Sir James, expressing the "gratification with which the House has received the message of the Prime Minister, and the hope for his early and complete recovery."

The resolution, which was seconded by Hon. Dr. Pyne, who was acting as leader of the House, was received with applause from both Liberal and Conservative benches.

Mr. J. C. Elliott (West Middlesex) introduced his bills to extend the municipal franchise to married women who were otherwise qualified to vote.

Mr. J. Wesley Johnson (West Hastings) has given notice of a bill to amend the municipal act to prevent municipalities from investing their sinking funds in their own debentures.

The House adjourned after sitting only fourteen minutes.

Popular Science.

According to an English scientist, X rays are the most extreme rays at the ultraviolet end of the spectrum.

That the power of a magnet increases as its temperature decreases seems to have been shown by recent tests.

The moon is getting nearer to the earth at a speed of about fourteen feet in 200 years—and astronomers cannot explain why.

The microscope is in daily use in the examination of metals and alloys in more than 200 laboratories in the United States.

Surprises For the Librarian.

"No man gets a better insight into what people read than the public librarian, and a friend of mine, custodian of a library in a poor South London district, can cite many instances of a taste for the higher things of literature in unexpected places," says a writer in an English publication. "Among his regular borrowers are a policeman who specializes on sociology, a lavatory attendant who borrows little else but works on education and psychology, a commissionaire with a taste for abstruse theology and two rag and bone shopkeepers, one of whom studies only theosophy and Buddhism, the other only art."

A Defect.

A little girl was playing with a girl friend of her own age on the porch of her home. An elderly gentleman, her mother's father, and an elderly lady, her father's mother, were sitting on the porch talking pleasantly with each other. The little girl had often wished her grandparents were of the same name, like other children's grandparents. Presently the little guest remarked, "What a nice grandmother and grandfather you have!"

"Oh, yes," she said, with a sigh, "but they don't match."

A Burst of Genius.

"If twenty men reap a field in eight hours, how long will it take fifteen men to reap the same field?" a student was asked. He thought long before writing down the answer, and when he handed in his paper this is what the examiner read, "The field, having already been reaped by the twenty men, could not be reaped a second time by the fifteen."

Another Idea.

"Dear, when shall I install you as the mistress of a dear little home?"

"You may as well understand now first as last, John Henry, that there won't be any home on the installment plan."

"How about burs, teacher?" queried the small boy at the foot of the class.

"Odd thing that she noticed it."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

FERGUSON—ARMSTRONG.

The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Armstrong, Fraserville, was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding when their eldest daughter, Sarah Ethel became the wife of Mr. Alexander Ferguson of Parry Sound. Rev. H. A. McConnachie, pastor of Centreville Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. They were unattended. The bride looked exceedingly charming in a gown of silk Santoy, trimmed with lace and silver rose buds, and wearing the gift of the groom, a gold pendant, entered the room leaning on the arm of her father. After the ceremony and congratulations they all sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson left on the 4.48 train from Cavanville for Toronto, where they intend staying for a few days before leaving for their home in Parry Sound. The bride travelling in a tailored suit of curcula cloth with hat to match.

NORMAL AT HOME

The annual At Home given by the pupils of the Normal School last night, proved to be one of the most delightful social events of the season. The school was very fittingly decorated with streamers and pennants, giving it a decidedly picturesque appearance. The reception committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Misses Lacey, Paul, Armstrong and Mr. L. McFadden received the numerous guests in the teachers' room after which a very enjoyable program was rendered in the Assembly Hall. Mr. L. McFadden, president of the N.S.L.S. acted as chairman. All the numbers were well received, especially the wand drill. The accompaniste of the evening was Miss M. Rannie, teacher of music in the school.

After the program a promenade of twelve numbers was enjoyed, the music being supplied by Messrs. Huycke and Wilson.

During the promenade dainty refreshments were served by Coleman Miss Ferguson, teacher of Domestic Science, had charge of the gymnasium in which the refreshments were served.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by Official Scribe.

The usual bi-monthly meeting of the representatives of the various locol labor organizations was held on Wednesday, President J. J. Hartley occupying the chair.

Attention was drawn to the fact that some of the locals had not nominated their representatives for 1914. As this laxity hinders progressive work, a move in this direction named is to be desired.

The following letter from Mr. Burnham was received, the text of which is now generally known by the newspaper reading public:

House of Commons,
Ottawa.

The Trades and Labor Council, Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have put on the order paper of the House of Commons a notice of motion that the House go into a committee of the whole to consider a resolution to this effect, viz: That in the opinion of this House it is desirable that manufactured goods and natural products coming into Canada from countries where the rate of wages of those employed in making or producing the same is below that prevailing in Canada, should be subjected to a tariff duty sufficient to preserve the rate of wages of those in Canada employed in making or producing like goods and products.

A strong protest is being made by Trades and Labor Councils against allowing immigration of Asiatics who work for low wages and tend to depress the rate of wages in Canada.

The same injury will accrue where goods and products of these people are allowed in free, or with an insufficient duty, hence my notice of motion.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

On motion the secretary was asked to write and endorse the motion.

In reply to an enquiry as to when Mr. Fred Bancroft would address the Council on the Workmen's Compensation Act, the scribe replied that although as requested, he had furnished a date, no notice had been received from Mr. Bancroft whether or no the date suited him.

REDISTRIBUTION MAY AFFECT EAST PETERBORO

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—In connection with the redistribution bill, a special memorandum, which has been prepared by the government, detailing the procedure followed in past years, gives a list of constituencies which are below the election unit of 30,819, and as such are liable to be affected in the coming readjustment.

In Ontario the seats which are decidedly under the unit and as such likely to be affected are:

Brockville, 18,531; East Elgin, 15,597; East Grey, 19,650; South Grey, 19,250; East Huron, 16,289; South Huron, 19,508; West Huron, 17,186; North Lanark, 14,624; South Lanark, 19,571; Middlesex East, 20,814; Middlesex North, 13,737; Middlesex West, 16,214; Northumberland West, 12,965; Northumberland East, 19,927; East Peterboro, 18,947; Prince Edward, 17,150.

BURGLARS GO TO PRISON.

Two Gentlemanly Criminals In Toronto Get Four Years Each.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—Out of an acquaintance apparently formed at the Central Prison in June, 1912, Steve Charron and William Besso, two young men of the "gentlemen burglar" type, entered into a partnership of crime, and on four charges of shopbreaking were yesterday each sentenced to four years in the penitentiary by Magistrate Denison.

Both Charron and Besso have the appearance, the clothes, manners, and speech of young downtown business men. There isn't a hard glint in their eyes, or a tough line around their mouths.

But caught by Constable Leitch last week just after they had broken into Ruse's tobacco shop, they were yesterday convicted of that and several other crimes of like nature.

One interesting feature of the case is that a wallet containing $40, which Charron stole from a Mr. Travers, was sold to a pawn broker for 25 cents, the thief not discovering the bills that were stowed in the back of it.

To Serve Prohibition Term.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Seven and a half years of total abstinence from liquor instead of seven and a half years in jail, was the sentence imposed by Supreme Court Justice Davis yesterday upon Joseph A. Sheridan, president of the Independent Ice Dealers' Association, convicted of attempting to extort $1,000 from the Knickerbocker Ice Company by threats to institute a newspaper campaign against the company.

"It is apparent," said Justice Davis, "that you are a victim of drink, and it would be a good thing to send you away to get liquor out of your system."

Seven and a half years was the maximum penalty for the crime.

Panama Canal Open In July.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 21.—Col. G. W. Goethals said yesterday that barring unforeseen accidents, the Panama Canal will be open for merchant ships July 1.

The colonel added that he had always been opposed to the exemption of American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls, because it would decrease the revenues of the canal, would not benefit consumers, and would merely increase profits of the ship owners.

Atlantic Liners Delayed.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—In the absence of the customary wireless notices from the Alsatian, due at St. John yesterday, the Allan Line officials sent out radios asking what was the cause of the delay. The reply come that almost from the time the Alsatian left Liverpool she had run into a series of hurricanes which had compelled her for hours at a stretch to go at half speed.

Similar reports were received by the Canadian Northern. It was reported yesterday that the Royal Edward was struggling in the teeth of a tremendous gale to reach St. John.

Guarantee for Tunnel Asked.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—Asking for a fifteen-million-dollar bond guarantee for a tunnel under the St. Lawrence river, a Montreal deputation waited on the Prime Minister and other members of the Government. The proposal is to connect Montreal and Longueuil. Premier Borden stated that the application was an unusual one, but would be given consideration.

Forest Notes.

The forest service collected 40,600 pounds of tree seed last year for use in reforestation work. The total area reforested was about 30,000 acres.

More than 120,000,000 board feet of timber was given away free by the government last year to settlers and miners living in or near the national forests.

German pencil manufacturers are looking to California incense cedar for pencil wood. The establishment of a pencil factory in California is not improbable.

There are sixteen maples in the United States, most of them being eastern species. The most valuable, not only because of the product of its sap, but also of the lumber, is the sugar maple.

Bulldozing the Bull.

A few years ago I took the short course at our college of agriculture, and, besides learning how to judge calves and so forth, I learned the university yell. During the following summer our neighbor's bull bothered us at times by breaking through the fence and coming up from the pasture with our cows. Finding this breachy bull in the lane one night, my brother who also knows something about college yells, and I each took a pitchfork and started after him.

The bull took to his heels and ran until he came to a good sized elm tree. Here he wheeled and started pawing up the earth and bellowing and otherwise showing an inclination to fight. To keep up our own courage we started giving the college yell. The bull gave one startled look and then made for home the [illegible]ightest and swiftest way. It took [illegible] through two barbed wire fences, but they did not binder him any. He did not trouble us again.

The moral of this is: When you go to college learn all you can, for you never can tell what you may have use for.—Country Gentleman.

Reservations For Utopia.

Give me the sofa in the drawing room. I never make my wife out a liar in company, no matter what she tells. I always wait until the company leaves.

When talking with a person from New York or Boston I have never asked, "Who's running the hotel down there now?"

I've never remarked when eating at the Palmer House, "Mrs. Palmer certainly is some cook."

Although I come from the south, where I did ride horseback, I don't mention the fact to a person until at least five minutes after we have been introduced.

When the hotel clerk asks me if I want a room with a bath I never say, "No; I will not be here Saturday night."—Chicago Tribune.

Dueling Prime Ministers.

In the old days a number of British premiers figured on the dueling ground. John Wilson Croker wrote in 1841: "Within the last hundred years six persons have fought duels who have been prime ministers—Pulteney (Lord Bath), Lord Shelburne, Mr. Pitt, Mr. Fox, Mr. Canning and the Duke of Wellington. I might also add Peel, who twice challenged, and Castlereagh, who was almost a first minister. Of late years the custom has certainly decreased, and the house of lords has not now, I dare say, above half a dozen who have actually fought."

Added a Postscript.

A man was on trial before a western judge for horse stealing, and when it came time for the lawyers on both sides to tell the judge what instructions they wanted him to give to the jury in addition to the points covered in his own charge the attorney for the defence said, "I respectfully ask your honor to instruct the jury that it is a fundamental principle of law in this country that it is better for ninety-nine guilty men to escape than for one innocent man to be found guilty."

"Yes, that is true," said the judge, "and I so instruct the jury, but I will add that it is the opinion of the court that the ninety-nine guilty men have already escaped."

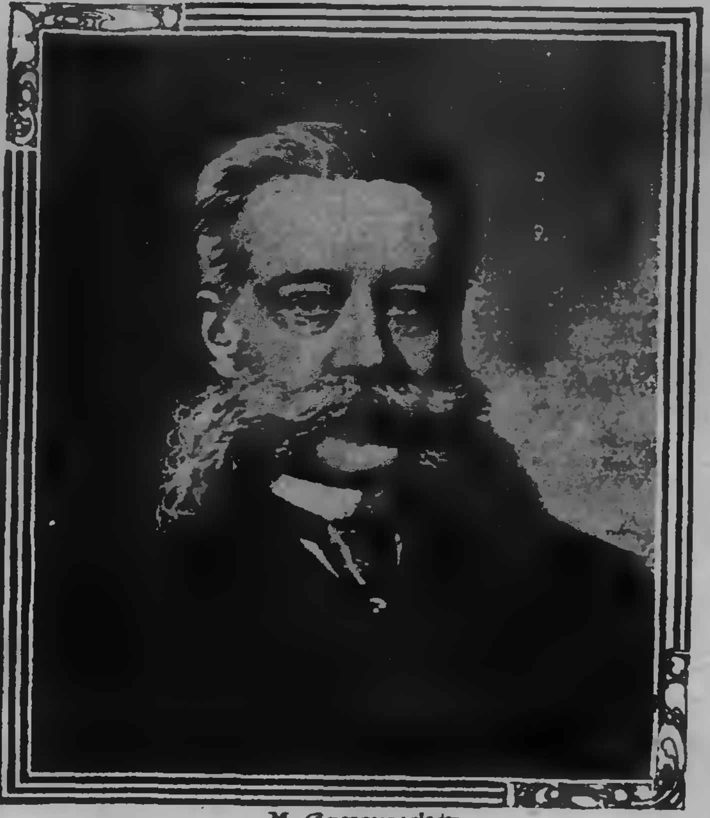
MR. GOREMYKIN IS RUSSIA'S PREMIER.



M. Goremykin

The appointment of Mr. Goremykin as Premier was officially announced in St. Petersburg, Russia, recently in an imperial rescript, regretfully accepting the resignation of Mr. Kokovsoff, because of ill health, and conferring upon him the title of Count in recognition of his great public services.

The resignation from the Premiership of Mr. Kokovsoff was the direct outcome of a prolonged struggle between the Premier and Mr. Krivoshein, the Minister of Agriculture, who is considered a masterful statesman. Mr. Krivoshein is now abroad for the ostensible purpose of consulting physicians, but it is generally understood that he desired to be absent during the transition stage, leaving to others the task of deposing Mr. Kokovsoff, who is popularly regarded as the bulwark against reaction.

PROVIDE FOR BRINGING CASES OF CORRUPTION BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE

Would Prove the Most Effective Method of Stopping Corrupt Practices at Elections — Mr. J. H. Burnham in the House.

As will be seen by the report of his remarks, taken from Hansard, Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., made a very fine address in the House in upholding the resolution of Mr. A. K. Maclean of Halifax, asking for more effective provisions to punish bribery and fraud at elections.

Mr. Burnham said :

Mr. Speaker, I should like to say a word or two on this subject, especially as I regard it not only as my privilege but my duty. Those who remember the history of affairs in England prior to 1881 will remember that England had become so absolutely rotten politically that it was almost impossible to carry out a system of government there. The consequence was that they brought in Sir Henry James' Bill, which was carried out so well and so thoroughly that political corruption amongst the masses—I do not mean amongst the titled classes—was very largely stopped. In the United States, as the Rev. Dr. Rainsford has lately said, they are at least twenty years ahead of us in grappling with corruption. I do not think that in either of these countries the people are better inherently than we are, but it is because there has grown up in Canada a certain cynicism as terrible as it is pathetic, which affects pretty nearly every one and which regards as a joke the man who stands up for clean elections. The only hope in all this is that when things get so bad that they cannot get worse and have to be reformed, necessity makes it imperative that we shall reform them. Therefore, if things have not reached that stage in Canada yet, they shortly will be there, and from the very necessities of the case we shall have to reform them if from no higher motive than that.

I would like to say also that it is well understood, by the risen as well as by the rsing generation, that men who will condone or practise one form of crookedness will condone and practise every other form. The gentle art of lying requires, on their behalf to be carried out in its entirety. As for saying that people shall, by declaration and otherwise, file certain statements. I have only to remark that such a proposition is absurd. We know that some people would file anything under heaven and stop only as near as possible to the margin or limit at which they are likely to be found out. I have bad plenty of painful experience in this regard and I know whereof I speak without presuming to know too much. I think the remedy is not to encumber the statute book with further provisions, which make it a long, weary and expensive task for those who would undertake to vindicate the law, but that a simple remedy would be found by adding a clause, if necessary, to the Criminal Code stating that each individual offence as it rises may be treated before a magistrate of the peace. If you make that change in the law you have the difficulty solved. Instead of waiting to make a long bill of complaint with one, or two, or four, or five hundred charges in it and watching your witnesses, you could deal at once with the persons who had perpetrated bribery, if necessary by that method. You could carry out your plan at once upon the material provided. The petitioner under the present circumstances when the list of charges is served, in the hands of an unscrupulous and cunning opponent, might as well put his head on the block and have it chopped off at once and save a lot of expense and trouble. If, however, he could get a constable, if he could go before a magistrate and promptly state his case, lay an information if necessary, and, if the gravity of the offence warranted it, swear out an information or get a warrant, if he could not get a summons, or vice versa, have the accused individual brought before the magistrate and have each individual case treated in this way it is my opinion that it would prove the most effective method of putting a stop to these corrupt practises. Then, instead of waiting for an election petition to be tried, the material is provided at hand, the case is really settled before any one can get away and before the hostile forces have been collected for the killing. I know myself that we would have saved several thousands of dollars, a lot of time, a lot of worry, a lot of abuse and a lot of absurdity if we had had the privilege of going before a magistrate with our men, one by one, and making our charge then just as if it were a case of common assault. If we had had that privilege we would have nailed the whole lot without waiting.

But beyond and behind all this little remedy lies the fact that such a condition of cynicism, of apathy, has taken possession of the people of the country that we, I believe, simply wait for the deluge. It is a well recognised fact, so well recognized that no one denies it, that corruption is rife, that it fairly smells to heaven it is so rank. Yet a country that will send missionaries to convert the heathen will not take time to convert itself. It would be a good thing if we should devote a little of our time, a little of our leisure, to introspection. Everybody knows that men who spend money must be recompensed that they must get it back in some way, that they must get it back from somebody, and the result of this admirable practice is found in the frightful scandals that we have from day to day; so much so that when I use the word 'scandals' now I am reminded of the story of the man whose wife had awakened him over fifty times to tell him that there were burglars in the house. He said: Burglars be blowed, let me sleep: let them rob the house. The people of Canada believe that a great many people are in public life for what they can get out of it. This was the principle recently enunciated by a gentleman who was remonstrated with in the United States for having perpetrated some political crime. He said: Why, robbing the country? What is the good of the country if you cannot realise upon it? It will not be long until that will be the idea of patriotism in this country unless we can imitate the older and more highly civilised countries more closely.

The responsibility rests upon ourselves—upon Parliament and upon this Parliament. The time is ripe. A great public duty has been performed by the hon. member for Halifax (Mr. A. K. Maclean) in bringing the matter forward. We cannot escape our duty. We cannot escape the fact that the people are crying out against this tide of corruption, and unless something is done that will allow people inexpensively, as in other cases, to proceed to law and to proceed to the vindication of their rights as citizens, we might as well dissolve Parliament and let everybody have a free hand. The law is only there to restrain honourable men. Since a dishonourable man can avoid it, it serves simply to keep honourable men out of public life. It would really serve a better obect to do away with this law and let men cry havoc and let loose the dogs of war, a fair field and no favour. But these things are far from being a matter of merely casual complaint; they are serious things, and they affect the honour of every Canadian and the vital well-being of this country.

FOUR OUNCE EGGS.

Chinese Fowl Can Give Ordinary Hens Something To Emulate.

It may be of interest to breeders and egg farmers in Canada to know that I have seen recently, eggs weighing over four ounces, produced by an ordinary hen of no particular breed, fed on corn and kept in a confined inclosure, writes a member of the Consular Service in China. This, however, is not a daily performance. The fowl referred to is a black hen, of no particular breed, but resembling a Langshan. She lays an egg weighing four ounces or over at least every third day, and lays an egg every day for about a week or ten days, when there occurs an interval of two or three days during which no eggs are laid. The smaller eggs average six to the pound. The shell is brown, with a circle of dark spots near one end.

Other hens bought in the market average six eggs to the pound, with white or brown eggs, there being no standard, of course. What these hens could do if fed and cared for scientifically, can not be told, but they should be wonders.

It is common to buy from Chinese, eggs that will average six to the pound, though smaller ones are also plentiful, but the chicken business is not yet understood by the Chinese, and the hens get practically no care or attention. They get little protection from a temperature frequently falling below zero.

The largest eggs I have seen here averaged four to the pound, some being slightly over, some 4 1-2 ounces. These were from a hen kept by a man in Antung, whose hens get more attention and better food than the Chinese-kept hens. The best hen referred to was bought in the market for killing, but escaped that fate, and has established a local record.

This man has sent some of these large eggs to Norway, where they were admired. It might be possible to improve the size of Canadian eggs by the introduction and careful breeding of some of the fowls referred to, if Canadian poultrymen are interested. I believe seven eggs to the pound is the highest Canadian average.

The flavor of eggs bought from local Chinese farmers is often poor and sometimes objectionable, but this is undoubtedly due solely to the character of the food the hens consume for lack of better, as they receive practically no attention from their owners.

TINY MEN AND WOMEN.

Some Noted Liliputians Who Were Exhibited in England.

Of dwarfs exhibited in England the most celebrated was the Pole, Borulwaski, who was born in 1739 and died in 1837. At six he measured seventeen inches and finally, in his thirtieth year, reached thirty-nine inches. He had a sister shorter than himself by head and shoulders. Borulwaski traveled all over Europe, and now lies buried at Durham.

In the year of his death his successor, Charles Stratton, known to fame as "General Tom Thumb," was born. When twenty-five he was thirty-one inches high.

In 1844 he appeared in England and had an extraordinary success. After extensive travel in both hemispheres the "general" again visited England in 1857, but the dwarf man, in spite of many personal and intellectual qualities, was less attractive than the dwarf boy. In the year 1863 he married the very minute American Lavinia Warren, and died in 1883.

Other well known dwarfs of the past have been:

Three children of a Scottish shepherd named McKinley, the shortest of whom was forty-five inches.

Don Francisco Hidalgo, a Spaniard, twenty-nine inches.

Jan Hannema, a Dutchman, twenty-eight inches.

Mary Jane Youngman, an Australian, who at the age of fifteen was thirty-five inches high.—Pall Mall Gazette.

What Killed the Adjutant.

There is a story of an English officer, Colonel FitzRoy, that dates back to 1880. FitzRoy when in India was possessed of an air gun, and one afternoon he took a shot at an adjutant, a bird which, being an excellent scavenger, is protected from injury by a fine of 100 rupees. Several people saw the bird fall, but heard no report. There was, of course, a hubbub, and a court of inquiry was ordered to investigate the bird's death.

As luck would have it, FitzRoy was appointed president of the court, the finding of which was duly recorded as follows: "The court, having carefully investigated all the evidence brought before it, has come to the conclusion that the bird died of sunstroke. (Signed) Phil FitzRoy, Captain and President."

Lines by a Sick Poet.

Mr. William Watson, when ill in London and attempting a dinner for which he had no appetite, scribbled these lines on a scrap of paper, which he threw to his attendant:

Strange sauce that's mingled with the meat,
Strange meat that's mingled with the sauce—in vain
I eat and, wond'ring what and why I eat,
Long for the porridge of my youth again.

CATS GALORE.

About 180,000 Mummified Felines Arrive in London.

Some time ago it was announced in the English newspapers, and the French followed suit, that a ship had recently reached London and disembarked 180,000 mummies of Egyptian cats. For a long time manufacturers of different nationalities have been accustomed to seek out the burying grounds of animals throughout Egypt, and to export the bones to Europe, where they are used as manure. At one time a necropolis full of monkeys was sent to Germany to manure beetroot fields. It seems, says Sir Gaston Maspero ("Egyptian Art: Studies," a fascinating guide to its subject, T. Fisher Unwin), whom we quote, that the cats were discovered near Beni-Hassan; they were piled up at hazard in a sort of cavern, into which a fellah in search of antiquities was the first to penetrate.

In fact, at some distance to the south of the hypogaeums (buildings below ground level) of Beni Hassen, in the place called by geographers Speos-Artemidos, is a chapel hollowed out in the rock, and consecrated by the kings of the eighteenth and nineteenth dynasties to a local goddess, a woman's body with a cat's or lion's head, called Pakhit. The cats must have lived in the vicinity, under the protection of their cousin, the goddess. Cemeteries of the same kind existed every where a divinity of a feline type was worshipped, lion, tiger, or cat. The most celebrated was at Bubastis, in the delta, where the seekers of antiquities cleared away the rubbish about thirty-seven years ago. The mummies of cats were buried there in "favissoe," deep pits, some merely wrapped in swathings, others enclosed in little coffins reproducing the image of the animal.

Some of these coffins are entirely of wood covered with white stucco, gilded, painted in bright colors; some are in bronze, others have the body in wood and the head in bronze, with gold rings in their ears and incrustations of gold on the forehead and in the eyes. Statuettes of cats of different sizes, portraits of the goddess Battit with a cat's head, or of the god Nefirtoumou, are mingled with the mummies. Thence come the thousands of bronze cats, big and little, with which all the antiquaries of Europe and Cairo were so abundantly provided from 1876 to 1888.

The important cat who lives now in one of the glass cases in the Salle divine" of the Louvre, is a perfect type of the species, long, slender in the back, broad in the hind-quarters, delicate, well-set head, rings in the ears, a necklace round the neck, and a little scarab on the top of the head; the artist who modelled it has rendered excellently and truthfully the supple bearing and the bold physiognomy of his original.

The cats represented on the monuments, or the mummies of which are found in Egypt, were not of the same race as our domestic cat. Scholars have studed them and are unanimous in recognising them as the "Felis maniculata" and the "Felis chaus." Egypt has tamed a few individual ones, but had not domesticated the whole species. They are sometimes to be seen on the bas-reliefs solemnly seated near their masters. It is commonly asserted that they were used for hunting birds in the marshes, and Wilkinson quotes in support a fairly large number of mural paintings where they stalk through the reeds routing out little birds.

I confess, concludes Sir Gaston Maspero, that this interpretation does not seem to me to be correct. Where others claim to recognize animals ready for the chase and acting on behalf of man, I only see animals, tame or not, on marauding bent and scouring the bushes for their own purposes; just as our domesticated cat chases the sparrows in our gardens and destroys the nests in our parks without any advantage to his master. Egyptian artists, very acute observers of what was going on around them, reproduced their cats' expeditions, as they noted other picturesque details of the life of nature.

A Whispering World.

The time was—and not very long ago—when country visitors to London would stand in the "Whispering Gallery" of St. Paul's Cathedral transfixed with amazement at its marvellous acoustic properties. The wonder of this curious feature of the great Metropolitan Church has been completely eclipsed by the scientist's conquest of the air as a medium of communication.

The world is becoming a great whispering gallery; the same atmosphere as is in Wren's unique monument is carrying whispers we cannot even hear. The countryman who yesterday marvelled at the echo in St. Paul's Cathedral can now walk into the postoffice of his village—a village, it may be, unconnected by even a railway with the busy, bustling world—and despatch a message to a friend on board ship in mid-Atlantic, off the coast of Arabia.

Power of Healing.

No little sensation has been caused by the remarkable speech delivered at the University College the other day by Lord Sandwich, who said that he personally possesses the power of healing by suggestion. He said there were few serious maladies he had not treated with success, and claimed to have relieved many people in agonies of pain. There is no limit, he said, to his experience, for he had attended people in palaces, cottages, and hospitals. He could not explain the power he possessed, but he was certain others also possessed it.

A Beer Lottery.

William Banks, landlord of the Craven Arms public house, Preston, England, was fined $12 and costs on a curious lottery charge. The police found several pint pots of beer on the counter. Some had threepenny pieces in the liquor.

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Hospitable Anyway.

When Jones called on the Browns with an important message last night he had no umbrella. It was raining pitchforks, and he was soaked to the skin. Mrs. Brown was sympathetic and hospitable.

"I couldn't dream of letting you go away like that!" she cried. "You must come in and get dry and have some supper."

"Never!" demurred Jones. "I am soaked through and couldn't get dry. And I couldn't sit down at your table in these clothes."

"But Mr. Brown will lend you a suit."

"Wouldn't do. I'm twice as big as Brown."

"Well, he'll lend you two suits. He has a-plenty—come in!"—New York Globe.

Bluntly Told.

A good story is told of the childhood of a noted singer. As a little girl she went to stay with a lady who gave her the family portrait album to look at. She turned the leaves quickly and in a few minutes closed the book.

"Don't you like it, my dear?" the lady asked.

"Yes, very much," said the little girl politely, adding, "We've got one at home, only the pictures are prettier."—Exchange.

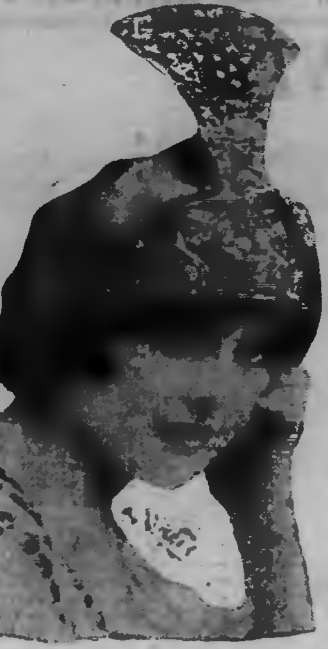
FOR EVENING WEAR.

Coiffure Not Complete Without Ornament.



THE ECCLESIASTICAL HELMET.

Every woman who goes out a great deal in the evening is enchanted with the new coiffure ornaments. In Paris this winter flowers are not worn in the hair by smart women; neither are ribbon bows, except in the case of extreme youth, and fashionable women the world over are beginning to imitate the Parisienne in this respect.

The coiffure ornament illustrated is copied from the headgear of one of the dignitaries of the Roman church. It is built of passementerie with a crown of gold colored satin.

Today's Style in Names.

What are the names that the girls of today are bearing? Perhaps a good reply to that question would be to give a list of the Christian names of the girls that make up the crews in a well known college. Here they are, exactly as published a few days ago:

Adelaide, Mary, Priscilla, Dorothy, Natalie, Lucie, Eleanor, Mary, Ethel, Linda, Virginia, Henrietta, Valleria, Bertha, Anna, Rachel, Thelma, Mildred, Hildegarde, Marie, Gareta, Helen, Carolina, Avondelle, Carolyn, Mildred, Elma.

Out of the list of twenty-seven Mary occurs but twice, though another time it appears masquerading as Marie. There are several names never heard of before, and the mothers of those girls surely did not lack courage. The Carrie that was changed to Caroline has now become Carolyn and Carolina.

The foreign element in our country is shown by such names as Linda, Thelma and Elma. There is certainly a variety in this up to date list. Perhaps the mothers are becoming militant and standing up for their rights in the naming of their girl babies.

Charmingly youthful is this little gown of white taffeta silk and shadow lace trimmed with rosebuds. The wired ruffles are chic, but the bizarre effect of the minaret tunic is lacking.

Winter Gloves.

White gloves worn with fur become soiled in half an hour. It is scarcely for this sensible reason, however, that fashion has banished them for the moment, replacing white by antelope, iron gray or sable brown.

It is a supple skin, warm and comfortable. Button fastenings will soon disappear completely from gloves in favor of the "pressions" which click into each other with an ease and security their predecessors never achieved.

"Grate Victory For Sence."

Two large orchards, side by side, brought much profit to Farmer Turmut and much trouble, for the orchards were considered fair game by the youth of the village and two orchards are harder to watch than one.

One day, looking from one orchard to the other, Turmut saw a small boy shin down a tree and, uttering a word of warning to another imp still up among the apples, ran off.

Turmut reached that tree in record time.

"Got yer this time!" he roared to the boy almost hidden among the leaves. "Come down!"

Getting no answer and not being in a hurry, he sat down and waited. Time passed, and still he waited, until a servant brought him a note that had just been dropped through the letter box. He did not wait after he had read it, as follows:

"Some people as apples, some as sence. You bin wotchin a pare of trowsis stuffed with straw, and we bin gettin' your apples from the other orchard. Grate victory for sence!"—London Answers.

Chinese Women at Theaters.

In order to prevent trouble the various Chinese theaters and musical houses are not permitted to sell tickets to Chinese visitors with their women folk. But as there are some foreigners who wish to hear Chinese singing and music and always buy tickets for their wives and female friends and refuse to observe this rule the owners of the musical houses and theaters petitioned the police about the matter. In reply the chief of the police said that as foreign men and women enjoy equal rights in their own countries and are permitted to make friends with each other without restriction they should not be treated in the same way as Chinese women and girls, so the owners are permitted to allow foreign women theater goers to sit together with their male friends, but Chinese females are still not allowed to enjoy the same privilege.—Peking Gazette.

A Fable.

A Humorist who journeyed at Night stopped at the House of a Friend.

"Welcome to Thee," said his Friend. "Hast Thou had Aught to relieve Thy Hunger?"

"Verily, I have," replied the Humorist. "I have Fed on the Fat of the Land and the Sky. I stretched forth mine Hand and took the Dipper and filled it with Milk from the Milky Way; I placed it on some Ice from Iceland and set it Down to cool. Then fetched I some Greens from Greenland and a Sandwich from the Sandwich Islands. To this I added a Shank from Turkey, a Greaser from Greece and Butter from Moscow. Such was my Repast."

"Very good," said his Friend. "I need not Disturb my Servants to bring Thee wherewith to Eat."

That Poole Story.

In his book, "My Memories," Lord Suffield, who was considered "the very pink and model of fashion," sets us right about the well known story of Poole, the tailor, which is sometimes attributed to the Prince of Wales:

"As a matter of fact, it was not the Prince of Wales, nor was I the witty author of the repartee. The true story is that Poole went down to Bradgate park to visit Lord Stamford, and on his return he was asked by Alfred Montgomery, the wittiest man of his age, how he had enjoyed his visit and whom he had met. 'Well, sir,' replied Poole, 'the fact is that the company was rather mixed.' 'But, —— it all, my good fellow,' retorted Montgomery, 'surely you did not expect them all to be tailors?'"

Victoria Water Lilies.

The giant water lilies which are known now as Victorias, after the late queen of England, are natives of the warmer portions of South America, where they thrive in lagoons and in the quieter portions of rivers. Haenke, a German botanist, first reported their discovery in 1801 and startled all Europe by his description of their gigantic leaves and flowers. Almost half a century elapsed in fruitless experiments to introduce the plant into the old world when in 1849 the first flower opened on the Duke of Devonshire's estate at Chatsworth, England.

Life Assurance

Fifteen years ago a prominent merchant on George Street took out a 10 pay 15 year endowment policy No. 69879, for $2000 on his life at age 45 in the Sun Life of Canada, premium $189.50.

Had this man taken a non-par policy his premium would have been $172.50 or $17.00 per year less.

PARTICIPATING RESULTS.		NON-PAR RESULTS.
$2637.75	Total cash 1st Dec. last	$2000.00
1895.00	Total prems. paid	1725.00
742.75	Amount received over that pd. in	275.00
Almost 40 p.c.	Percentage returned over prem paid	almost 16 p.c.
1299.70	or, Cash returned and a paid-up Policy of $2000	661.25

Now, this man paid $17.00 per year for 10 years only, or $170.00 all told and it yielded him $637.75 in profits. Just figure out what rate of interest that is on the $17.00 per year, paid extra for profits, and see if you would not like to invest a few dollars at the same rate. If so, call at or 'phone the Sun Life Office, 402 Water Street.

Mother was fair, but she wished to be fairer still. Adorned by nature, she sought further beautification. Loveliness was her great goal.

Invited out to dinner, she stood before the mirror, and, having made her yellow locks a trifle yellower, she proceeded to apply the pencil to her eye brows. This, it may be remarked, is an age of artificiality, and mother had reached this age.

The little daughter stood by and wondered.

CURIOUS FISH FACTS.

One Fancier Says His Goldfish Came to Be Scratched.

There are fishermen and fishermen. There are knights of the rod and line, and lovers of the finny tribe, whose stories of the fish they have caught and seen arouse the derision of the sceptics. There are others, alas! too few, who at times confound those deriding sceptics by providing proof of their seemingly incredulous statements.

We welcome, therefore, the story of the man who had a goldfish to whom he attributed, if not human intelligence, at any rate human emotions. He claimed that this goldfish came to the surface of the aquarium every morning to have its back scratched, and after the comforting caress the little creature would sink to the bottom with a contented smile.

Unfortunately the owner of this wonderful goldfish was called away from home for a couple of weeks. During his absence, it languished for its daily scratch, grew morose, refused all nourishment, and died. Of course, people to whom he told the story made some subtle remarks about a relative of Ananias, but the sorrowing owner of the pet goldfish, it is related, promptly produced the dead fish and showed the marks left by the scratching.

There may be those who doubt the truth of this story, but they would have hard work to convince the worthy people of a little village in Worcestershire, who still talk of a wonderful trout which was so tame that it would eat out of people's hands, and that fish have no human intelligence. Indeed, there was a stone set up, which may still be in existence, setting forth the wonderful qualities of this tame trout.

According to the experts who have studied the manners of the finny tribe, fish have many of the emotions of the human race. Among their means of expression, it is pointed out, is the habit they have of erecting their scales or fins under the influence of anger or of terror, much in the same way that feathers and hairs are erected in birds and mammals.

One of the most striking examples of the effect of emotions on color in regard to fish is that furnished by the stickleback, which shows a violent temper, particularly during the breeding season, when various combats among the males are of frequent occurrence. When fighting, their brilliant colors stand out with extraordinary vividness, and at the conclusion of the combat the defeated one, his gay colors now unite faded, seeks refuge among his more peaceable companions.

It is also pointed out that there are quite a number of different species of fish, the scad or horse mackerel, the globe fish and conger eel, which emit curious sounds when in a rage, as, for instance, when they are caught in a net or on the line.

Her Eyes Upon Him.

A well-known writer was present recently at a dress rehearsal of a comedy played by amateurs. The rehearsal went well, but the hero, B., seemed rather hard and cold. The novelist sat in a box next to a charming woman of middle age. She said at the end of the third act, "It goes beautifully, doesn't it?"

"Beautifully," said the gentleman. "But B. doesn't make love to that pretty girl in as ardent a manner as I could wish. His lovemaking, in fact, strikes me as tame and spiritless."

The woman frowned. "He won't put any more spirit in it while I've got my eye on him, let me tell you," she said. "I'm Mrs. B."

A Sculptor's First Job.

The story of Naoum Aronson's first commission reads like a romance, says a writer in World's Work concerning the Russian sculptor. He had gone short of food and worked incessantly in his scanty leisure so that he might send a bust to the salon, and it had been accepted. One morning, faint from want of proper nourishment, he turned giddy on the stairs, fell down the flight and knocked himself senseless, and there he was found unconscious by his first patron, a gentleman who had noticed his work in the salon and called to commission a bust. From that moment Aronson never looked back.

PIECES OF SILVER.

They Supplanted Cacao Beans as the First American Currency.

Before Mexico was invaded by the Spaniards coins were unknown there, the natives using in place of money the smallest cacao beans, reserving those of larger size and better quality for the manufacture of a liquor to which they were addicted.

About fourteen years after the conquest—that is to say, about 1535—Castilian coins began to make their appearance in Mexico. As they arrived only in very small quantities, they were insufficient for the needs of trade. It was then that the viceroy ordered the manufacture in the City of Mexico of small pieces of silver of a certain weight.

These pieces were not stamped with any coinage mark, and their value was determined entirely by their weight. From them was derived the name "peso."

These pieces of silver remained in circulation a number of years, and pieces of gold and of copper were also added in time. Soon, however, it was found that this sort of circulating medium made fraud easy, and the Spanish government established three mints, granting them a perpetual existence for America.

The coinage of money in the City of Mexico was actually begun during the reign of Viceroy Antonio de Mendoza, who established a mint in buildings belonging to the Marquis del Valle. Here it remained only a short period, being transferred first to the council building and later to the viceroyal palace.

During all this time the coinage was of a considerable amount and the facilities for the establishment were not sufficient to meet the demands made upon it for coins, for which reason frequent demands for minting apparatus are found in the records. In the year 1778 the mint was established in the Apartado building and has continued since then in the street of that name. From the declaration of independence until the year 1847 the mint was rented out to contractors.—New York Sun.

BATTLES IN POETRY.

In Tuscany Even the Peasants Indulge in This Pastime.

Visit the home of a peasant in Tuscany on some winter's evening and you will be surprised and charmed, writes Mr. Richard Bagot in "The Italians of Today." Gathered round the kitchen fire after the day's work is done, these peasants, fresh from their rough labor in the fields and vineyards, vie with each other in reciting poetry and telling stories. Generally both are extemporaneous, and often they have a good deal of poetic grace and imagination.

The gift of reciting improvised poetry is not, however, confined to the peasants in Tuscany. I know of an instance that occurred in my own neighborhood not so very long ago that certainly could not have occurred anywhere but in Tuscany. A local doctor was driving to catch a train at a station a few miles from me, and on his way he was accosted by a colleague who happened to be looking over his garden wall. The colleague shouted out a line of improvised verse to him, upon which the other instantly pulled up his horse and capped the line with another.

Doctor No. 2 responded, and for three hours the poetic contest was continued without cessation. In the meantime the whole of the village had turned out to listen and to make wagers on which would be the first to lack an inspiration. It was only as dusk came on that doctor No. 1 remembered that he was on his way to catch a train!

Whether a patient was expecting him I know not, but I feel convinced that such a detail would not have been allowed to interfere with this war of verses.

It is interesting to see that even the illiterate peasants detect at once the slightest departure from the form in which the original lines are set and consider the offender to have lost the match.

The Oyster.

The oyster is a very ancient institution and a most honorable one. From time immemorial poets have sung of him and orators have dwelt upon his charms. Juvenal, the most illustrious of all satirists, enlivened the literary charms of the reigns of Trojan and Hadrian with his comments on the oyster, and the comments were not satirical either, but warmly commendatory. The oyster, the true cosmopolite, is found pretty nearly everywhere and was the delight of the world for ages upon ages before the man from Genoa found the shores of America.—New York American.

Where the Poets Worked.

The sixth grade of a certain school in a foreign settlement in one of our cities was learning the use of possessives.

The book required the pupils to correct and expand into a complete sentence the following expression: "Milton and Shakespeare's works." Joseph Nikodym handed in this sentence: "Milton and Shakespeare work in a coal mine."

Living With Them.

"I hope you know enough to keep your wife's relatives at a distance."

"Hum! My wife's maiden aunt is going to live with us."

"Good gracious, send her away!"

"I can't. She's going to live with us in her house."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Buying Books.

To buy books only because they were published by an eminent printer is much as if a man should buy clothing that did not fit him only because made by some famous tailor.—Pope.

The Grave of Cecil Rhodes.

"The grave of Cecil Rhodes, I think, is the most remarkably silent place I have ever visited," says Mr. Ambrose Pratt in his book, "The Real South Africa." "It is a serious though inspiring, somber, forbidding and desolately grand place. While one stands gazing at the tomb scores of lizards, blue, green and gray, crawl from the crevices among the rocks and steal like brilliant phantom streaks across the tor. They are almost fearless of intruders, but they make no sound. Sometimes the distant shrilling of cicadae wounds the stillness with a faint yet piercing dagger thrust of song. But soon and always the eternal hush returns, and silence reigns supreme again. The world is full of great tombs, vast and awe inspiring, but there is neither pyramid nor tomb nor monument in all the world which can equal that of Rhodes' sleeping place in simplicity and majesty."

Operating Under Difficulties.

When on a trip in Little Tibet, Dr. Neve, in his book "Thirty Years in Kashmir," tells how three importunate women blind with cataract arrived at his camp at Shayok imploring treatment:

"I had my box of instruments, but how should I sterilize them, and how should I light a fire? I told the Ladakis, and they tried to strike sparks with flint and steel, but the tinder seemed moist. One of them produced a little gunpowder and placed it on a stone, tore off a rag from his shirt and, fraying it out, laid it by the powder, then with flint and steel ignited it. Then a cooking pot was produced, and soon water was boiling. What an anachronism between the aseptic surgery aimed at and the primeval method of fire production!

"While the instruments were being boiled I cleaned the eyes and instilled cocaine; then, kneeling in the sand, removed the three cataracts, completing the operations just before a gust of wind came, laden with dust and grit, which would have put a stop to the work. The gratitude of the people knew no bounds."

Snowball Showers.

More than one explorer in cold climates has noted the curious phenomenon of a "snowball shower." The balls, it is true, are not very big, the average being about the size of a hen's egg, but they are true snowballs for all that—compressed globes of snow, not little lumps of ice or hail. A fall of the kind occurred in north London in March, 1859, and at the time it was observed that the balls seemed five times as dense and compressed as ordinary snow and in no way to be told from the usual handmade missiles. They had fallen during the night and were strewn many layers thick over a very large area. No cause—except a doubtful electrical one—can be ascribed for the strange phenomenon, and mountaineers are apt to discredit the stories of snowball showers told them by the old guides till suddenly in the midst of an ordinary storm they find themselves assailed as though by myriads of mischievous schoolboys.—London Standard.

MOODS OF THE RHINO.

Emotions It Exhibits at the Sight and Odor of Men.

The recognized presence of men rouses in the rhinoceros several emotions, which in the order of their intensity I should put as bewilderment, fear, dull curiosity and truculence. If the men are merely seen usually the only emotions aroused are bewilderment and curiosity; if smelled fear is the usual result, but in a certain number of cases even the sight or the smell of men arouses senseless rage.

Some rhinos are always cross and evil tempered, but many others which are normally good natured now and then have fits of berserker fury. Anything conspicuous which arouses their interest may also arouse their hostility. White has an evil attraction for them. My friends the McMillans while traveling through a rhino country found that the two white horses of their cavalcade were so frequently charged that they finally painted them khaki color. I have never seen them charge other game, and gazelles and hartebeests feed in their immediate neighborhood with indifference, yet I have been informed by trustworthy eyewitnesses of one rhinoceros charging a herd of zebra and another some buffalo.

The rhinoceros usually gets out of the way of the elephant. It will unquestionably on occasions charge men and domestic animals entirely unprovoked. Twice I have known of one charging an oxen wagon. In one case an ox was killed, in the other the rhino got entangled in the yokes and trektow, and the driver, an Africander, lashed it lustily with his great whip until it broke loose and ran off, leaving the ox span tumbled in wild confusion.—Theodore Roosevelt in Scribner's.

Some Siege.

Crete endured the longest siege on record, beside which Troy's ten years seem but a skirmish. In 1648 the Turks, attempting to conquer the island, laid siege to the capital city of Candia, which, however, did not surrender until September, 1669, after 21 years. Again in 1821, when the Cretans revolted, the defeated Turks were able to hold the fortified cities against all attacks, and many of them were still uncaptured when the powers intervened nine years later.

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

RETAIL MERCHANTS MEET DISCUSS THEIR INTERESTS

All the Officers are Re-elected at the Annual Banquet a Large Attendance

The Retail Merchants banquet and election of officers held in the spacious dining hall of the Oriental last evening was largely attended by the retail and wholesale men of the city.

President Thos. Barrie occupied the chair, and opened the toast list with the toast, The King, which was responded to in the usual manner.

The toast to the Provincial House was responsible to Mr. E. A. Peck, M.L.A., who in his remarks congratulated the Association on their marked success.

The toast, The Wholesalers, was responded to by Chas. Rishor, Jas. Edgar and W. J. Hopwood. All said they were afforded much pleasure at being present. Mr. Hopwood is one of the veteran wholestlers in the Province. In speaking of the general benefit of the work of the Association, he urged them to ingraft good spirit outside as well as in the centre.

The President read a detailed statement of the remarkable growth of the Association during the past year and since its organization in this city, and also throughout the Province. The increase in membership in Peterborough is about 100.

Mr. R. C. Braund also gave a short and appropriate address on the marked growth of the Association since its first appearance.

The Secretary, Mr. Cameron, in speaking of the work done by the Association, said there were prospects of better results even in the future.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. M. S. Madore, President of the Ontario Hardware Association, said that they should not become self-centred. The great object was to become a combination, thoughtful and energetic, to place them in power to prevent noxious bills and other detriments. He spoke of the injustice to the retail man by the Cartage bill. It was very unjust. The weight scales, was another burden to the retailer. "We are not seeking class or personal legislation," remarked Mr. Madore, amid the applause.

He was glad to see the enthusiasm of the gathering, and spoke of the energetic manner in which the Secretary was conducting the affairs.

A vote of thanks was moved in favor of the speaker by Mr. Robert Fair, seconded by Mr. R. G. Kingan.

The election of officers resulted in last year's officers being re-elected as follows:—

President—Thos. Barrie.
1st Vice-President—R. C. Braund.
2nd Vice-President—Harry P. Morgan.
Chairman of Grocers—D. H. Kerneghan.
Chairman of Butchers — William Kempt.
Treasurer—Jas. Connal.
Secretary—N. C. Cameron.

Among those who participated in the delightful repast served in the usual high-class style by Mine Host McDonough, were:—Messrs. Cameron, Barrie, Hill, Kempt, Fair, Morgan, Picard, Micks, Might, Maher, Byers, N. Routley, Rishor, Kingdon, Kerr, Nelson, Braund, Stentson, Kerneghan, Oke, Davidson, C. B. Warne, Harper, McDonald, Edgar, Tully, Anderson, Boorman, Minicola, White, Wesley, Cox, Snider, Madore, Cocks and others.

Great credit is due to the efficient staff of the Oriental for the capable manner in which the wants of the guests were looked after and the kind attention shown them.

Many of the gathering expressed great pleasure at the excellent service and up-to-date features of the handsome dining hall. Mr. McDonough carries with him the thanks of the entire gathering for the manner in which he took care of his guests.

VISITORS AT COLDSPRINGS SUNDAY SCHOOL

H. P. Kennedy, a Former Superintendent, Gave An Address

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Kennedy, who were in the city over Sunday, drove out to Coldsprings and attended the school which is held in the afternoon. Mr. Kennedy was at one time superintendent and is always a welcome visitor.

After the session Mr. Kennedy was called on to address the school, which he did in a creditable manner. Speaking particularly to the children he urged them to have a strong faith in religious matters and to give themselves over to a Christian life.

He attributed largely to the lessons that he had learned as a member of Coldsprings, the power to overcome difficulties which confront every business man. He said that although attending a Sunday school in Toronto, he could never forget the school of his youth.

He also referred to the fact that those actively engaged in religious work preserved health much better than those who did not take an interest in Christian service.

At the close of the address, Miss Laura Bennett said that the success of Coldsprings was largely due to the solid foundation of religious principles that had been laid when the school was being formed and that Mr. Kennedy was one of the active founders of the school.

Coldsprings annual oyster supper will be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 26th. An attractive program has been arranged and a large crowd is expected. Supper will be served from 6.30 to 8 p.m. All are welcome.

A LECTURE ON MACBETH

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick Addressed St. Peter's Literary Society.

The Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S., had a most successful meeting on Friday evening last, when Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, of Ennismore, gave an extremely interesting lecture, on "Macbeth." The hall was filled, for all who have ever heard the reverend gentleman lecture are anxious to hear him again, as he excels in Shakespearian subjects. There was an especially good musical program for this evening:

Instrumental solo—Miss Margaret McDonald.
Vocal solo—Mr. A. New.
Vocal solo—Miss Mabel Mahoney.
Mr. E. Hanrahan.

Miss Marion Gorman kindly played all accompaniments in her usual efficient manner.

Rev. Father Fitzpatrick opened his lecture by giving a brief synopsis of the play itself, quoting a learned German authority who stated that "Macbeth" is the greatest conception of the human mind in the line of drama, and will reward the earnest student who reads it over and over again with ever renewed appreciation of its beauty. England may be surpassed in many things, but in one she stands pre-eminent, the home of the greatest writer of drama that has ever lived, and Macbeth is his masterpiece. For depth of thought, "Hamlet" is considered by many to be his greatest work for free, bold historic perfection, "Julius Caesar" may come first, and for richness of characterization, "Othello" stands pre-eminent, but for simple force of narrative, "Macbeth" is the very greatest of all the master's work. In the transparency of its plan for in the first scene of the first act one may see what is coming later, in the bold sweep of its language, in its unity, "Macbeth" surpasses all. A drama to merit the term of great, must consist of a single idea developed completely and in every part, all through the play. Critics have said that this play should be called "Lady Macbeth," on account of her especial prominence, but the speaker asserted that she merely helped to reveal the character of "Macbeth" himself. Unity of thought is shown through the whole drama, the overmastering of a noble character by a mysterious, inexplicable temptation, the rise of "Macbeth" and then the gradual fall. The atmosphere in which the play opens is continued throughout the whole of the drama, for the gloomy, uncanny atmosphere of the blood-stained heath seems to prevade it from beginning to close. The play is perfectly symmetrical, for each act has a definite plot. The first portrays the temptation, the second, the murder of Duncan, the third the murder of Banquo, the fourth the murder of McDuff's wife and children, and the fifth, the just and sure retribution which follows on all this, a retribution which is pictured in two forms, coming to Macbeth himself by means of external forces, when the English overthrow him in his own palace, and to Lady Macbeth in a different manner, in the overthrow of her reason, leading to suicide. In the play, there are three forces constantly urging Macbeth on to his final destruction, firstly, his own vaulting ambition that overleaps itself, and the murderous inclination that was there from the very beginning, secondly, the prophecies of the witches, and thirdly, the forceful and inspiring eloquence of his wife. It is not until the third act that the turning point in his blood-stained career is apparent. Up to that all success is his, but defeat begins with the escape of Banquo's son, after his father's murder.

In the character of the two, Lord and Lady Macbeth, there is a great discrepancy. He was a brave and valorous soldier, but a moral coward, who required constant prompting from his wife to execute the murderous designs that had been lurking in his own mind for so long. He was extraordinarily selfish, inordinately ambitious and utterly devoid of self-control, wildly superstitious, wavering and faltering, with a mind poisoned by long-mediated guilt. Lady Macbeth, however, was not the monster of cruelty so often represented, but a woman, with a woman's heart. She was cruel and unscrupulous, but her character is, after all, of a nobler order than her husband's. It is her eloquence that forces him on, but it is because of her love for him, and her ambition that he shall be King of Scotland, while his unbounded selfishness is so strongly marked that even when he is told of her death by her own hand, he simply consols himself with some fatalistic platitude, to the effect that she would have died hereafter anyway. Her unbounded love for him, her unbounded ambition, and her unbounded will-power, all combine to drive her on with such tenacity of purpose, almost to the deed itself, but she has to resort to stimulants then to compose her nerves, and when she hears of the murder of the grooms later, she faints. She has to remove all scruples and resistance from the mind of Macbeth at first, she has to get him to do the act itself and remove the fear that remains afterward. This idea of fear seems to be the very keynote of the play. Macbeth is afraid of the consequences before he commits the murder, and after, fear makes him commit crime after crime to try and cover up the first act. After the deed is done, she had to protect him, to stay him from the wavering impulses of his own cowardly heart, continually prompting him to confess all. She exhibits in her own sad end, the vindication of the moral order which stands above all human destiny, and the inevitable retribution that follows on sin. Left to a solitary contemplation of the wrong she had done, and the sins she had made her husband commit, she goes insane, trying to wipe from her hands the stains of the old man's blood.

Father Fitzpatrick then dissected the play, act by act, quoting here and there, and emphasizing his points in a most striking manner.

The chairlady, Miss Mamie McCarthy, then thanked the reverend speaker in the name of the Society, for the exceptional treat afforded at this meeting and Rev. Fathers McColl, Galvin and Meagher, who were on the platform, spoke briefly in turn.

BILL TO TAX THE BACHELORS

Suffragette Member in House Introduced Bill.

Some remarkable bills for legislation were introduced at the mock parliament held in the St. Paul's Sunday school room, last night. Mr. M. Rosenburg was Premier; Mrs. John Allan was leader of the Opposition, and Mr. H. B. Cowan was Speaker.

One member of the Suffragette division introduced a bill to provide a tax for bachelors. One of the sterner sex wanted a tax on toothpicks.

It did not need a vote from the gallery to show that the ladies had the better of the argument throughout the session. With Mrs. Allan, as their leader, the ladies had the "hopes of the land" continually backing up and sparring for oxygen.

POLICE COURT.

One lone knight of the canteen graced the cells at Police Court this morning. The court took a sympathetic view of his condition and requested that he depart forever. He complied with their urgent request, promising that he would walk the straight and narrow path in the future.

ANOTHER STORY OF THE KIDDERMINISTER MURDER

Birmingham Post Recalls the Murder of Mary Swinebourne

ACCUSED MAN FREED

A copy of the Birmingham Post, England, just received, contains the following reference to the murder, which Alfred Kimberley said he committed:

"A man about thirty years of age has confessed at Peterborough, Ont., to complicity in the murder of a woman near Kidderminster several years ago. He is being detained by the police. It was just outside the borough, the barbarous murder was committed on October 1st, 1903. The woman's name was Mary Swinebourne, who was found dead near the golf links near Kidderminster. Her body was covered with wounds evidently inflicted with a penknife. Mary Swinebourne hailed from Wasall, where she had been hoppicking. No trace of the murderer could be found. The following year George Fisher, alias White, was in custody at Lincoln. He tore a page from his note book and after writing on it, swallowed it but, the scrap was secured by the warden. On the paper was written, 'Murdered Mary Swine bourne, Saturday evening, murder will out. God help me."

Fisher afterwards at his trial said the knife was his and that he had lost it at Ledbery. At his trial his defence was that at the time of the murder he was in Devonshire and produced several witnesses that corroborated this story. He was acquitted. Fisher was a man of about fifty years of age and of a tramp nature.

Kimberley in his confinement at the County jail, is appreciably satisfied with his lot and he evinces but little interest in outside affairs.

DEPORTED LABOR LEADERS LAND IN ENGLAND

Their First Intention Was to Refuse to Leave Steamer

Canadian Press Despatch.

Gravsend, Feb. 24.—When the steamer Umigeni, with ten deported labor leaders from South Africa, arrived this morning, the exiles declared their intention of refusing to land in England, and insisting on a steamer returning them to South Africa. After long parley, however, with Arthur Henderson, the Labor member of Parliament, who went down the river in a tug to meet them, they revoked the decision and landed here.

CHARLEY RAY IS GRATEFUL

Sporting Editor of The Review.

Dear Sir,—

Kindly allow me through the columns of your paper to express a few words of thanks to all those who were instrumental in bringing about and making such success of the hockey game for my benefit. I know that words are inadequate to indicate my feelings, but I sincerely trust that these lines will, in a small measure at least, show that I am not ungrateful for what has been done for me.

Ever since I have been sick I have been meeting with kindness from the most unexpected sources, but when I first heard that a hockey game was to be staged for me, it was the surprise of surprises; both my father and I understand thoroughly the obstacles met with and overcome, and the personal sacrifices which have been made by many in order to make the game a success. Aside from the financial viewpoint, I feel deeply honored to know that the boys thought enough of me to do what they have done. Last Saturday night's game was a fitting tribute to an athlete, far worthier than I. Of course I was passionately fond of hockey, and tried to give my best at all times, but that best is very little in comparison with the manner in which I have been repaid. The Benefit Game of Feb. 21, 1914, will be indelibly stamped upon my memory as a monument of the well wishes and thoughtfulness of the players and sporting fraternity of Peterboro.

In conclusion, I wish to say that when my period of convalescence is over and I am again able to resume work, I hope that I shall still be able to always carry your good wishes with me. I remain,

Very sincerely yours,
CHARLES RAY.

Peterboro, Feb. 23, 1914.

THIS PARTY WILL NOT COME HERE

Immigration Agent Finch Miller has received a communication to the effect that twenty-four families had applied to the District Borough at London for emigration to Canada and enquiring of Mr. Miller if he could handle the party. The party consists of men and their wives, some with children. Five single men are included. Their ages range from twenty-four to forty-eight. Mr. Miller expressed his opinion that he was unable to take the party owing to the fact that he did not think them suitable for farm work. Their ages are also against them and with four and five children they would have a hard time to make things go.

"I suppose they are generally kept by the city in the winter," inquired the scribe.

"Generally, yes," replied Mr. Miller.

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEB. 24, 1914.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN.

THE SUDDEN PASSING of The Rev. T. J. Mansell is one of those incidents in the hurried life of a city which pull us up, at least for a moment, and we give a recognizing nod to the final "enemy." Death knocks at every door, in some cases he knocks more than once, in a few instances he comes in without knocking. In this case the dark angel knocked so slightly that he was not heard, or if he was heard the occupant did not recognize the visitor until he was in the house and had taken possession. The last words of the late reverend gentleman, as he expired, were: "It is something different this time, doctor." Mr. Mansell had suffered from a similar attack; this was the final visit of Death.

Mr. Mansell was a quiet and venerable man, both in appearance and in disposition. He appeared to look at life soberly and thoughtfully. He seemed to combine equally the finer qualities of head and heart. His preaching was not highly emotional, nor was it coldly intellectual; he struck the via media, he was an evangelical tempered by long experience and a growing insight into the deeper and calmer things.

Death will cast a holo about most of us, and in the presence of death we are apt to bury all that is bad and glorify the good. Newspaper obituaries are usually fulsome or charitable in dealing with the late departed; but there is no need to go out of the way for fulsome adjectives in speaking of the late pastor of Charlotte Street Church. He was a typical shepherd, or more appropriately, a father of his people. It will be as such that he will be missed by his congregation and the city, and especially by the Methodist Church of Canada of which he was one of the best beloved ministers. He was, what he ever sought to be, a Christian gentleman.

READ SOMETHING.

LORD ROSEBERY, at a public meeting held at Glasgow University, made a characteristic speech in which he gave the students present some advice. He told them to throw all their energy and pride into their craft and exalt it by their devotion; he asked them, however, to look beyond the pursuit of their craft and devote some time to reading which would stimulate and encourage them in the work, and would feed their imagination in higher ideals than were apt to be got in average life. He did not believe in reading the highest works of art and of imagination unless they could be assimilated, as they would only produce disgust. If they felt it their duty to read "Paradise Lost" and did not like "Paradise Lost" let them put it back, but let them not go out saying: "Excuse me, I am in a hurry I am reading 'Paradise Lost.'" If they did not like "Paradise Lost" let them try another masterpiece such as "Don Quixote." If they did not like Don Quixote they could try Dickens and Thackeray; if they did not like these, he advised them to try something else, and if nothing else would satisfy them they might try Euclid.

It is a good thing to get the reading habit, and it is still better to read the best. "Paradise Lost" is ,to most people, a paradise they never found, and the danger is that those who devote their leisure to the study of Milton's masterpieces get lost to everything else. Milton is an immortal who can only be fully appreciated by those who are willing to ascend the heights and descend to the depths with him, and this means leaving this "solid-seeming" world behind. Still it would do most people good if they could get their heads into these upper regions occasionally, they might be a little purer-minded, a little gentler and kinder for the excursion.

As for reading generally, it is mainly a matter of appetite and digestion. Tastes differ and mental capacities differ. As in the animal creation, one species eat meat and the others are vegetarian. All birds do not eat the same food, the goose picks up on the common what it likes and often passes over what is bread and meat to other fowls. But all beasts and birds eat something, for food is necessary to life, and the same thing might be said of the mental or intellectual life; reading and thinking is food to the mind and if a person neglects this part of his nature he will become a mental starveling—Obey, therefore, the injunction of the philosophical peer and read something if it is only Euclid.

MEXICO AND THE BRITISH SUBJECT.

A BRITISH SUBJECT has been killed at Juarez in Mexico by order of General Villa, the Constitutionalist commander. Sir Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, has conferred with Secretary Bryan on the matter. President Wilson and his Cabinet have discussed it, and the State Department have ordered an investigation. Ever since the present revolution began in Mexico the United States Government has warned the Mexicans against the molesting of foreigners, and these warnings have so far gone unheeded for their has been no effort made to protect them. It is said that the officials of the American Government are shocked at the news, for they had trusted that Villa fully realized the firm attitude of President Wilson as regards the protection of resident foreigners particularly in the north of Mexico.

It is said that Benton was only executed after a trial by Court Martial, but details are lacking. The killing of a British subject is a very serious piece of business, and when the machinery of reparation gets going at Downing Street and Whitehall there is usually something doing. Hundreds of lives are ready to be sacrificed to avenge the unjust taking of one. This may be a strange proceeding, but it is almost essential in the present state of things. Everything will be done to avert such measures, and probably they will be averted. At the same time the whole British navy and the Empire stands for political justice wherever a British subject is concerned, and if America does not lay a firm hand on the Mexican, and force him to respect the lives of civilized people dwelling within their borders, Great Britain will take up the rod of chastisement.

William Benton was a wealthy land-owner in Mexico, and just what occurred between him and Villa may never be known. Through relatives and friends of the deceased it is learned that Benton wished to bring four-hundred head of cattle on his ranch into the United States; as the result of this some altercation ensued between Villa and Benton, and it is not clear whether Villa shot the Britisher, or ordered him to be shot.

A report from London, England, says that Everend R. Calthrop, a consulting engineer and a personal friend of Benton, and who visited him in Mexico, said that "Benton spent most of his life in Mexico. He came to England about every two years. He was a fine specimen of man; the last man to be in any way unpleasant or provocative. He was very tactful and spoke Spanish perfectly and not the man in any circumstances to pick a quarrel. The hundreds of natives employed at his mines at Inde and Benton, thought very highly of him on account of his fairness in all his dealings with them. I am sure General Villa shot him out of pure wantonness. I see it is stated that Benton entered the General's office armed, but every man in Mexico carries a revolver. It is perfectly absurd that President Wilson should have recognized Gen. Villa, who seems to be shooting every decent man he can."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ALDERMAN GREEN says he has been in the Post Office only twice in two years and he does not see how people are going to be hurt by its removal to another site. It may be that we could do without a post office altogether, will Mr. Green tell us his secret.

HARRY BULLER, a young man who has a cobbling shop at Ridgetown, has been deaf and dumb since childhood. However, when a gun was fired off nearby he could feel the shock. He felt the tremor of a gun discharged the other day, and going into the house told his mother in his own way of an itching feeling in his head. Later he was taken with the grippe, and now that he is recovering his hearing is coming to him, and he also has the power of speech. Being unable to talk for some twenty-five years the change seems strange to him, but he is making good headway.

MR. J. W. FLAVELLE, of Toronto (says The Montreal Gazette) in the course of an address on the food question, said the farmer's son should be paid a wage and not be forced to work from morning till night for nothing; his position at present was worse than the hired man's. There is undoubtedly wisdom in what Mr. Flavelle says, although not every farmer will be inclined to agree with him. The old man often turns over the farm to his son and more often still helps to settle him on another one. He does not do that for the hired man. Mr. Flavelle is possibly pleading for the prodigal son, who said: "Make me one of thine hired servants."

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

War and Human Nature.

Toronto Daily News.

Norman Angell's peace movement is based on the belief that men will not go to war against their financial interests. It is merely a revival of one of the tenets of the Manchester School of Political Economists. Charles Dickens more than once expressed his opinion of laissez faire and of all the other doctrines of this special group. In one of his letters he wrote: "The Manchester school deserves all the schooling it can get touching its reduction to the grossest absurdity of the supply and demand dogmatism, and its pig-headed reliance on men not going to war against their interest; as if the vices and passions of men had not been running counter to their interests since the creation of the world."

An Ode to Germs.

Sing a song of microbes,
  Dainty little things,
Ears and eyes and horns and tails,
  Claws and fangs and stings.
Microbes in the carpet,
  Microbes in the wall,
Microbes in the vestibule,
  Microbes in the hall.
Microbes on my money,
  Microbes in my hair,
Microbes on my meat and bread,
  Microbes everywhere.
Microbes in the butter,
  Microbes in the cheese,
Microbes on the knives and forks,
  Microbes in the breeze.
Microbes in the kitchen,
  Microbes in the bed,
Microbes on the brush and comb,
  Microbes in my head,
Microbes in the faucet,
  Microbes in the drains,
Microbes in my shoes and boots,
  Microbes in my brains.
Friends are little microbes,
  Enemies are big,
Life among the microbes is—
  Nothing "infra dig."
Fussy little microbes,
  Billions at a birth,
Make our flesh and blood and bones,
  Keep us on the earth.

PROCRASTINATION

By Walt Mason

At early morn one's sleep seems best, and man would get all kinds of rest, if silence would obtain; but at the first faint peep of day the world wakes up and gets too gay, and beds are all in vain. In town the milkman comes along and makes a racket with his gong, while drowsy people swear; and wagons rattle through the streets, and newsboys shriek the morning sheets, and noise is everywhere. And so the man who fain would sleep just hands out curses large and deep, and sighs: "I'll leave the town; I'll seek the quiet countryside where man, when tired and heavy-eyed, can hold some slumber down." So to some bosky dell he speeds, convinced 'twill answer all his needs, and with a farmer boards, and in the morn, when dawn is gray, he hears the hoot and grunt and bray of all the barnyard hordes. The cows are bawling passing well, the frisky mules rear up and yell, the porkers voice their woe; the goats, the guinea hens, the geese get busy and disturb the peace, the bughouse roosters crow. And in the dawning, cold and bleak, the victim swears in French and Greek, in Gaelic and low Dutch; he swears in dead and living tongues, and, though he wears out both his lungs, it doesn't help him much.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—A few mornings ago I noticed a letter in The Morning Times nquiring about the nurse who is vis-inquiring about the nurse who is vis-necessary for me to state in this letter the nature of the enquiry, but I wish to state that as a supporter of our public schools and as an ex-teacher, I consider the letter which appeared in The Morning Times an insult to the efficient nurse who so far as I can learn, is doing her duty, and a very much greater insult to our lady teachers. The person who wrote the letter referred to, cannot have a very high ideal in his mind, and perhaps the persons with whom he is in the habit of associating, would require the services of the kind referred to in his letter.

Yours truly,
JOHN EDGAR.

Big Beds.

Our ancestors would have had small respect for the modern single bed. We all know their old four posters with their ample room to spread, but these were quite cramping in comparison with some of the really big beds of the world. The great carved oak bed of the Saracen Inn, at Ware, England, now a curiosity of Ryehouse, in Hertfordshire, measures twelve feet square and can hold four people comfortably. But no one on record seems to have wanted so much night room as Og, King of Bashan, whose iron bedstead had an area of 150 square feet and was eighteen and three-quarter feet long and eight feet wide.—London Saturday Review.

This institution, planned on big and generous lines, will in time be a monument to his zeal and efficiency. It is to be built on a magnificent site at Point Grey, near Vancouver, and already extensive plans have been prepared for a number of the buildings. A president has been appointed and a competent staff is in process of selection, with a view to the commencing of instruction next year.

SCANDALS IN THE ARMY OF JAPAN

Revelations Cause Serious Commotion in House

TOKIO, Japan, Feb. 24. — The Japanese naval scandals brought to light through the alleged relations between a former Japanese naval attache in Berlin and a German contracting firm were shown yesterday to be even more extensive than a first thought, as three prominent Japanese contractors furnishing supplies to the navy were arrested on the charge of bribery.

The discussion of the subject led to a serious commotion in the House of Representatives. Korehire Kurahara, a deputy well known in the United States and in Europe, read a letter, in which high officials of the Japanese Government were named and which alleged they had been guilty of amassing wealth by means of corruption.

Mr. Kurahara refused to disclose the name of the writer of the letter and was ordered by the House to be brought before a committee of the members of Parliament.

EVEN PREACHERS DO IT

This is the age of full-speed-ahead-at-the-risk-of-breaking-your-neck. Speed is the thing. Fast trains, fast motor cars, quick lunches — the pace that kills! Anything to save time and energy! People indulge in phonetic spelling and chop off the last syllable of words. When Christmas approaches the majority use the word "Xmas," because it is labor-saving and can be written with more speed. But the abbreviation of the sacred name to the letter "X" has reached a new stage. Recently the following subject of a sermon was noticed on a bulletin board in front of Rev. J. H. Pedley's church on Spadina avenue, Toronto: "Xtianity and Voting." Xtianity is merely the spirit of the times.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Says They're Polygamists.

Eight thousand Mormons from Utah and other parts of the United States will arrive in western Canada this spring, according to the message received by the Presbyterian home mission officials of Canada from W. Shearer of Calgary.

The influx of thousands of Mormons into Alberta is regarded in Presbyterian home mission circles as a peril, because of their views respecting polygamy. Mr. Shearer says: "I have not yet met a gentile who has lived any length of time among the Mormons of Alberta who did not believe that many of them were polygamists."

Tarzan of the Apes

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey company.

The boats and trains and cows and horses were quite meaningless to him, but not quite so baffling as the odd little figures which appeared beneath and between the colored pictures—some strange kind of bugs he thought they might be, for many of them had legs, though nowhere could he find one with eyes and a mouth. It was his first introduction to the letters of the alphabet, and he was over ten years old.

Of course he had never before seen print, or never had spoken with any living thing which had the remotest idea that such a thing as a written language existed, and never had he seen any one reading.

So what wonder that the little boy was quite at a loss to guess the meaning of these strange figures.

Near the back of the book he found his old enemy, Sabor, the tiger, and, just above him, coiled Histah, the snake.

Oh, it was most engrossing! Never before in all his ten years had he enjoyed anything so much. So absorbed was he that he did not note the approaching dusk until it was quite upon him.

He put the book back in the cupboard and closed the door, for he did not wish any one else to find and destroy his treasure, and as he went out into the gathering darkness he closed the great door of the cabin behind him as it had been before he discovered the secret of its lock, but before he left he had noticed the hunting knife lying where he had thrown it upon the floor, and this he picked up and took with him to show to his fellows.

He had taken scarce a dozen steps toward the jungle when a great form rose up before him from the shadows of a low bush.

At first he thought it was one of his own people, but in another instant he realized that it was a huge gorilla.

So close was he that there was no chance for flight, and little Tarzan knew that he must stand and fight for his life; for these great beasts were the deadly enemies of his tribe and neither one nor the other ever asked or gave quarter.

Had Tarzan been a full grown bull ape of the species of his tribe he would have been more than a match for the gorilla, but being only a little English boy, though enormously muscular for such, he stood no show against his cruel antagonist. In his veins, however, flowed the blood of the best of a race of mighty fighters, and back of this was the training of his short lifetime among the fierce brutes of the jungle.

He knew no fear, as we know it; his heart beat the faster, but from the excitement and exhilaration of adventure. Had the opportunity presented itself he would have escaped, but solely because his judgment told him he was no match for the great thing which confronted him. And as flight was out of the question he faced the gorilla squarely and bravely without a tremor of a single muscle or any sign of panic.

In fact, he met the brute midway in its charge, striking its huge body with his closed fists and as futilely as if he had been a fly attacking an elephant. But in one hand he still clutched the knife he had found, and as the brute, striking and biting, closed upon him the boy accidentally turned the point toward the hairy breast.

As it sank deep into the body of him the gorilla shrieked in pain and rage.

But the boy had learned in that brief second a use for his sharp and shining toy, so that as the tearing, striking beast dragged him to earth he plunged the blade repeatedly into its breast.

The gorilla, fighting after the manner of its kind, struck terrific blows with its open hand and tore the flesh at the boy's throat and chest with its mighty tusks.

For a moment they rolled upon the ground in the fierce frenzy of combat. More and more weakly the torn and bleeding arm struck home with the long sharp blade, then the little figure stiffened with a spasmodic jerk, and Tarzan, the young Lord Greystoke, rolled senseless upon the dead and decaying vegetation which carpeted his jungle home.

A mile back in the forest the tribe had heard the fierce challenge of the gorilla, and, as was his custom when any danger threatened, Kerchak called his people together, partly for mutual protection against a common enemy, since this gorilla might be but one of several, and also to see that all members of the tribe were accounted for.

It was soon discovered that Tarzan was missing, and Tublat was strongly opposed to sending assistance. Kerchak himself had no liking for the strange little waif, so he listened to Tublat, and finally, with a shrug of his shoulders, turned back to the pile of leaves on which he had made his bed.

But Kala was of a different mind. In fact, she had waited but to learn that Tarzan was absent ere she was fairly flying through the matted branches toward the point from which the cries of the gorilla were still plainly audible.

Darkness had fallen, and an early moon was sending its faint light to cast strange, grotesque shadows among the dense foliage of the forest.

Presently Kala came upon them, lying in an open space full under the brilliant moon—Tarzan's torn and bloody form, and beside it a great bull gorilla, stone dead. With a low cry Kala rushed to Tarzan's side and, gathering the poor, blood covered body to her breast, listened for a sign of life. Faintly she heard it—the weak beating of the little heart.

Tenderly she bore him back through the inky jungle to where the tribe lay, and for many days and nights she sat guard beside him, bringing him food and water and brushing the flies and other insects from his cruel wounds.

Of medicine or surgery the poor thing knew nothing. She could but lick the wounds, and thus she kept them cleansed, that healing nature might the more quickly do her work.

At first Tarzan would eat nothing, but rolled and tossed in a wild delirium of fever. All he craved was water, and this she brought him in the only way she could, bearing it in her own mouth.

No human mother could have shown more unselfish and sacrificing devotion than did this poor wild brute for the little orphaned waif whom fate had thrown into her keeping.

At last the fever abated, and the boy commenced to mend. No complaint passed his tight set lips, though the pain of his wounds was excruciating.

A portion of his chest was laid bare to the ribs, three of which had been broken by the mighty blows of the gorilla; one arm was nearly severed by the giant fangs, and a great piece had been torn from his neck, exposing his jugular vein, which the cruel jaws had missed but by a miracle.

After what seemed an eternity to the little sufferer he was once more able to walk, and from then on his recovery was rapid, so that in another month he was as strong and active as ever.

During his convalescence he had gone over in his mind many times the battle with the gorilla, and his first thought was to recover the wonderful little weapon which had transformed him from a hopelessly outclassed weakling to the superior of the mighty terror of the jungle.

Also he was anxious to return to the cabin and continue his investigations of the wondrous contents.

So early one morning he set forth alone upon his quest. After a little search he located the clean picked bones of his late adversary, and close by, partly buried beneath the fallen leaves, he found the knife, now red with rust from its exposure to the dampness of the ground and from the dried blood of the gorilla.

He did not like the change in its former bright and gleaming surface, but it was still a formidable weapon and one which he meant to use to advantage whenever the opportunity presented itself. He had in mind that no more would he run from the wanton attacks of old Tublat.

In another moment he was at the cabin, and after a short time had again thrown the latch and entered. His first concern was to learn the mechanism of the lock, and this he did by examining it closely, while the door was open so that he could learn precisely what caused it to hold the door and by what means it released at his touch.

He found that he could close and lock the door from within, and this he did so that there would be no chance of his being molested while at his investigations.

He commenced a systematic search of the cabin; but his attention was soon riveted by the books which seemed to exert a strange and powerful influence over him, so that he could scarce attend to aught else for the lure of the wondrous puzzle which their purpose presented to him.

Among the other books were a primer, some child's readers, numerous picture books and a great dictionary. All of these he examined; but the pictures caught his fancy most, though the strange little bugs which covered the pages where there were no pictures excited his wonder and deepest thought.

In his hands was a primer opened at a picture of a little ape similar to himself, but covered, except for hands and face, with strange colored fur, for such he thought the jacket and trousers to be.

Beneath the picture were three little bugs:

BOY.

And now he had discovered in the text upon the page that these three were repeated many times in the same sequence.

Another fact he learned, and that was that there were comparatively few individual bugs. But these were repeated many times, occasionally alone, but more often in company with others.

Slowly he turned the pages, scanning the pictures and the text for a repetition of the combination b-o-y. Presently he found it beneath a picture of another little ape and a strange animal which went upon four legs like the jackal and somewhat resembled him. Beneath this picture the bugs appeared as—

A BOY AND A DOG.

There they were, the three little bugs which always accompanied the little ape.

And so he progressed very, very slowly, for it was a hard and laborious task which he had set himself without knowing it, a task which might seem to you or to me impossible—learning to read without having the slightest knowledge of letters or written language or the faintest idea that such things existed.

He did not accomplish it in a day or in a week or in a month or in a year, but slowly, very slowly, he learned.

By the time he was fifteen he knew the various combinations of letters which stood for every pictured figure in the little primer and in one or two of the picture books.

Of the meaning and use of the articles and conjunctions, verbs, adverbs and pronouns he had but the faintest and haziest conception.

One day when he was about twelve he found a number of leadpencils in a hitherto undiscovered drawer beneath the table, and in scratching upon the table with one of them he was delighted to discover the black line it left behind it.

He worked so assiduously with this new toy that the table top was soon a mass of scrawly loops and irregular lines and his pencil point worn down to the wood. Then he took another pencil, but this time he had a definite object in view.

He would attempt to reproduce some of the little bugs that scramble over the pages of his book.

It was a difficult task, for he held the pencil as one would grasp the hilt of a dagger, which does not add greatly to ease in writing nor to the legibility of the results.

But he persevered for months, at such times as he was able to come to the cabin, until at last by repeated experimenting he found a position in which to hold the pencil that best permitted him to guide and control it, so that at last he could roughly reproduce any of the little bugs.

Thus he made a beginning at writing.

Copying the bugs taught him another thing, their number; and, though he could not count as we understand it, yet he had an idea of quantity, the base of his calculations being the number of fingers upon one of his hands.

His search through the various books convinced him that he had discovered all the different kinds of bugs most often repeated in combination, and he arranged them in proper order with great ease because of the frequency with which he had perused the fascinating alphabet picture book and the huge illustrated dictionary.

By the time he was seventeen he had learned to read the simple child's primer and had fully realized the true and wonderful purpose of the bugs.

No longer did he feel shame for his hairless body or his human features, for now his reason told him that he was of a different race from his wild and hairy companions. He was a "M-A-N," they were "A-P-E-S," and the little apes which scurried through the forest top were "M-O-N-K-E-Y-S." He knew, too, that old Sabor was a "T-I-G-E-R" and Histah a "S-N-A-K-E" and Tantor an "E-L-E-P-H-A-N-T."

From then on his progress was rapid. With the help of the great dictionary and the active intelligence of a healthy mind endowed by inheritance with more than ordinary reasoning powers he shrewdly guessed at much which he could not really understand, and more often than not his guesses were close to the mark of truth.

There were many breaks in his education, caused by the migratory habits of his tribe, but even when removed from recourse to his books his active brain continued to search out the mysteries of his fascinating avocation.

Nor did he neglect the sterner duties of life while following the bent of his inclination toward the solving of the mystery of his library.

He practiced with his rope and played with his sharp knife, which he had learned to keep keen by whetting upon flat stones.

CHAPTER IV.

Tarzan Mightiest of the Apes.

THE tribe of apes had grown larger since Tarzan had come among them.

Under the leadership of Kerchak they had been able to frighten the other tribes from their part of the jungle, so that they had plenty to eat and little or no loss from predatory incursions of neighbors.

The younger males as they became adult found it more comfortable to take wives from their own tribe or, if they captured one of another tribe, to bring her back to Kerchak's band and live in amity rather than attempt to set up new establishments of their own or make war upon the redoubtable Kerchak.

Occasionally one more ferocious than his fellows would attempt this latter alternative, but none had come yet who could wrest the palm of victory from the fierce and brutal ape.

Tarzan held a peculiar position in the tribe.

They seemed to consider him one of them and yet in some way different. The older males either ignored him entirely or else hated him so vindictively that but for his wondrous agility and speed and the fierce protection of the huge Kala he would have been dispatched at an early age.

Tublat was his most consistent enemy, but it was through Tublat that, when he was about thirteen, the persecution of his enemies suddenly ceased, and he was left severely alone, except on the occasions when one of them ran amuck in the throes of one of those strange fits of insane rage which attack the males of many of the fiercer animals of the jungle. Then none was safe.

FRY'S Cocoa—Every Drop is Nourishment

Dr. Andrew Wilson, the eminent British authority, once said of the cocoa bean—"It is a kind of vegetable egg which contains all that is needed to build up a living body." Tea and coffee are mere infusions—but cocoa is an actual food in itself. Elderly folk should remember that. Cocoa, made the FRY way, from a selection of the world's choicest cocoa beans, is pure, extremely soluble, and of delicious aroma and flavor. Nearly two hundred years' experience and knowledge of the cocoa business stand back of FRY'S.

WILL EXAMINE GEORGIAN BAY SHIP CANAL PROJECT

Hon. Robt. Rogers Says It Must Be Commercially Sound.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—That the Government would go ahead with the Georgian Bay Ship Canal when assured by the prospective commission of its feasibility as a commercial proposition, was the statement made in the Commons last evening by Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works.

The question was raised by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in a formal motion for a copy of the petitions and representations received during the past two years by the Government in favor of the immediate construction of the canal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, upon a motion of the return of papers in the House last night, discussed the Georgian Bay Canal. He said that, unfortunately, the House and country had been divided between the Georgian Bay scheme and the St. Lawrence-Welland route. He was in favor of both, and believed that the largely increasing production of the eastern country and the ever-growing commerce of Canada would tax both waterways.

At present a large portion of the western grain was being diverted to tidewater through American channels. "Of 133,000,000 bushels of wheat grown in the west and exported to Europe during the season of 1913, 75,000,000 bushels had gone to New York via Buffalo, and only 58,000,000 bushels had reached Montreal. This, he thought, was largely due to the inadequacy of the Welland Canal, but there would be no possibility of diversion at all to American ports if Canadian grain could go by the French and Ottawa river route to tidewater at Montreal.

He said that he hoped that the Government would not appoint another commisison. It was high time for some announcement of policy upon this important question.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, reminded the House that a great responsibility would be assumed by the Minister and the Government which decided upon the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal. Up to date Canada had expended $135,000,000 upon her system of canals, and was committed to the sum of $218,000,000 for needed extensions. With these tremendous committments for the St. Lawrence route, the Government might well take thought before embarking upon the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

The Minister said he was much struck by the statement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as to the diversion of Canadian wheat to American ports.

It must be admitted that the Georgian Bay Canal would prove an effective cure, and as its engineering feasibility was now assured, the only remaining question was as to its feasibility from a commercial standpoint.

Many engineering commissions had been appointed, Mr. Rogers admitted, and no more were required, but he thought the Government should go ahead with the commission whose appointment had already been foreshadowed. If that commission reported favorably upon the scheme as a commercial enterprise the Government would at once undertake the construction of the Georgian Bay ship canal.

P. E. Lamarche (Con., Nicolet), E. B. Devlin (Lib., Wright), and Gerald White (Con., N. Renfrew) also spoke in advocacy of the Georgian Bay scheme.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, in moving for the papers in connection with the purchase of a site for the new Montreal barracks at Lachine, said that he would probably have occasion, after examining the papers, to make a charge against the Minister of Militia and Defence, and to demand a drastic investigation. He declared that the Militia Department had purchased an inconvenient and undesirable site, and had paid more than twice what the land was really worth.

According to Hon. Mr. Lemieux's statement, the middlemen was a Montrealer who made over a hundred per cent. profit in his deal with the Government. A portion of the land had been purchased only 16 days before its transfer to the Government.

Hon. Col. Hughes invited a full investigation and denied that the site was undesirable. He asserted that, so far as transportation went, the site was more convenient than the old one, being reached by a number of suburban trains and street car lines. The Longeuil site, on the other hand, was across the river from Montreal and an unhandy place to get to. The land was worth all the Government paid for it and no property in the neighborhood could be secured for less than $1,200 an acre.

He took occasion to criticize the purchase of the Farnham camp in the eastern townships by the late Government, which, he said, had been brought about for the financial benefit of a Cabinet Minister and several Liberal members of Parliament.

Finds New Fruit Pest.

PETROLEA, Feb. 24.—G. Culham, assistant representative of the Department of Agriculture for Lambton, has returned from a tour of Bosanquet Township, where he made a search for San Jose scale. He found no trace of the scale, but a pest almost as bad was discovered in the black rock conker, which is devasting some of the best northern orchards.

The Germ of Smallpox.

The germ of smallpox, a protozoan so infinitesimal that it has passed through the minutest filters and escaped the trained gaze of microscopists for decades, has been finally discovered by Dr. Walter Fornet, staff physician at the Kaiser Wilhelm academy. Dr. Fornet claims not only to have discovered the germ, but to be able to propagate it. This means, we are told, that it will henceforth not be necessary to inoculate a calf or cow with smallpox virus in order to obtain lymph for vaccination and consequently that a pure culture can be obtained. The lymph won by present methods contains numerous bacteria, which must be exterminated before it can be used for vaccination.—New York Press.

MACKENZIE DENIES THE NEWSPAPER CHARGES

No Personal Benefit From Aid Given to the Road.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24. — Sir William Mackenzie has issued a statement on the Canadian Northern Railway system and its relation to public assistance, in which he denies the charges that the Canadian Northern has been subsidized in excess of its legitimate requirements, or that any of the moneys voted to the company have been diverted by himself and his associates for their own private purposes.

Guarantees have been granted by Provincial Governments for lines which have never been commenced, he says, which may never be built, and which, in some cases, were never asked for by the company. These guarantees, with unearned cash subsidies to certain branch lines within the system, are charged up by statisticians, casually referring to the blue book, as against the constructed mileage of the C.N.R.

"So much for the origin of representations that have taken place," says Sir William, "Now the facts: The Canadian Northern Railway Co. has under construction, and expects to have completed by the end of 1914 9,943 miles of railway. There are completed 8,694 miles, and under operation 7,152 miles. The completed and uncompleted mileage has cost for construction and equipment to December 31, 1913, $303,319,232. From the Dominion and the Provincial Governments and from municipalities, up to the same date, there have been received by the companies forming the C. N. R. system, whilst under control of Mackenzie, Mann & Co., $20,992,556 in cash subventions, or about six per cent. of the total cost of the railway mileage constructed. These figures are correct. They include all the cash subsidies received from public sources as a set-off against the three hundred and three millions of costs before mentioned."

This proportion of the costs is away below that given in subsidies to the other transcontinentals.

As for the land grants, Sir William says that the original lands secured by the company were those granted to railway promoters whose schemes never took shape and whose charters and the lands attached were refused by financiers in the big money markets until years after Mackenzie and Mann bought them up.

"After the railways had been constructed and the statutory provisions for the grants discharged, Mackenzie and Mann owned the land exactly in the same way as the man on the street owns his watch," says Sir William in his statement.

The land grant made to the companies, the charters and rights of which were secured by Mackenzie and Mann, total four million acres. The company got the benefit of these lands.

After pointing out the share the C.N.R. took in the work of developing the west, Sir William discusses the east where, he says, a total of 2,749,540 acres of land were granted by the Ontario and Quebec Governments, These were far inferior in value to the unwooded prairie lands.

Sir William says he has no desire to minimize the value of the Government's guarantee of bonds, but it is in no way to be considered as a subsidy.

Up to the 31st day of December, 1913, there also have been expended for the purposes of the several companies within the system $134,123,171, raised absolutely without Government assistance. When this amount is compared with the figures previously quoted as to cash subventions, moneys raised from land grants, and moneys raised by the guaranteed securities, it will be seen how little truth there is in the statement that the Canadian Northern has been built by public funds and presented by a gullible public to Mackenzie and Mann for their private emolument.

As for their own operations, Sir William says he and Sir Donald Mann have confined their energies to acquiring the common stock of the line in a full belief in its value.

SIR JAMES MAY TAKE HIS SEAT

TORONTO, Feb. 24. — Yesterday's sitting of the Legislature, in view of the debate to-day, was brief and confined to the answering of questions asked by the Opposition.

In reply to Mr. Rowell the Provincial Treasurer stated that the public accounts would appear in part during the week and the financial statement early in the following week. Hon. Mr. Foy, as acting Premier, was unable to give a definite reply to Mr. Rowell as to the date at which the redistribution bill would come down. The Government was working on it and as soon as possible the members would have it for discusison.

The request of the Liberal members for specific accounting of expenses in connection with the commissions working on statute revision and workmen's compensation elicited the statement from the Government that the amount spent on these and some other accounts approximating $26,000, totalled in all $238,354.32.

J. C. Elliott, of Middlesex, again pressed to learn the reason of Hon. I. B. Lucas' visit to Europe in 1902, and asked if it was for the purpose of learning the advisability of public ownership in telephones. He was assured that such was the case and that a report had been made to the Legislature. The total expenses involved were $840.

It is not unlikely that the Premier will yet take his seat in the House during the present session. Speaker Hoyle, at the opening of yesterday's session, stated that following a wonderful show of strength the hope was that Sir James would be able to see the members from his accustomed place before adjournment of the business for the year.

ONE DAY LOST NOW IS GONE FOREVER

Energetic Candidates in The Review Contest Making Most of Opportunity Offer in Effort to Win Auto

These are the days that the live, energetic candidates are doing their best to get every subscriber possible. Some one is going to win an automobile and some are going to win gold watches. It all depends upon what the candidates do the next few days which will determine their success in this great enterprise.

It is not as easy to get subscriptions to-day as it was last week at this time and each day candidates will find that it is harder to get subscriptions. Why is this? The answer is a simple one, the territory is being canvassed by earnest workers who are getting the subscriptions that are the easiest to procure. In order to win one of the many prizes in The Daily Review Contest it will take work. Nothing was ever gained that was worth anything without energy and work. This is true in every day life. Did you ever see anything that was desirable to you that was not hard to get?

Why Some Candidates Will Lose.

In a competition of this kind, like in the daily walk of life, some will win and some will lose. The reason for this is a simple one, there are opportunities that present themselves and are cast aside unheeded by some, others will grasp them and make the most of them. This is the very reason that some candidates in The Daily Review Contest are getting subscriptions to-day and not standing idly by and saying that it is impossible to get subscriptions. There are subscriptions, to be gotten, and some will get them if you don't. Think of these things, candidate, and make up your mind that you will get a certain number of subscriptions each day and don't stop until you get them. Determination is the keynote of success.

Only Four More Days.

Only four days more of golden opportunity in The Daily Review Great Contest. Are you satisfied with the results that you have gained in the last few days? Have you made the best of your time? What do you think you will win? Think of these things now, not after "Opportunity Offer" is past. There is an old saying that "time will wait for no man" and this is something that candidates should realize. Two thirds of the time of this great offer is gone. Look over these last few days for yourself. If you think you have done your best, very well, if not, make up your mind that you make the future in a way make up for the past. Your past is only proof of progress.

Enthusiasm is the greatest business asset in the world. It beats money, and power and influence.

An enthusiast convinces and dominates where the wealth accumulated by a small army of workers would scarcely raise a tremor of interest.

Enthusiasm tramples over prejudice and opposition, spurns inaction storms the citadel of its object, and like an avalanche overwhelms and engulfs all obstacles.

Enthusiasm is nothing more or less than faith in action. Faith and initiative, rightly combined, remove mountainous barriers and achieve the unheard of and miraculous.

Set the germ of enthusiasm afloat in your campaign for votes; carry it in your attitude and manner; it spreads like a contagion and influences every fibre of your industry before you realize it; it begets and inspires effects you do not dream of; it means increases in production, it means joy and pleasure and satisfaction to your helpers; it means life, real and virile; it means spontaneous bedrock results—progress, accomplishment and success.

RATE WAR HAS CEASED

Intervention of Kaiser brings About Community of Interests

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The intervention of the Kaiser, which as stated a week ago was mainly responsible for the conclusion of peace between the rival German shipping lines, has resulted, according to The Tageblatt, in a "community of interest" between the Hamburg-American and the North German Lloyd Lines covering a period of seventy-five years. Certain details still remain to be concluded, but the basis of peace is that both lines henceforth share equally both the North American passenger and freight business. The North German Lloyd Line hitherto has had the lion's share of the passenger traffic, while the Hamburg-American did the larger freight business. The peace treaty is also said to regulate the question of new ships that each line may in future build. It is expected that the "community of interests" will result in a large saving of operating expenses on both lines.

It is stated in Berlin that yesterday's negotiations in London have resulted in a definite prolongation of the international pool for five years.

Pool Is Extended.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—A full conference of the North Atlantic steamship lines was held here yesterday, and practically resolved to renew the North Atlantic pool for another five years, the reservation being made that several unsettled questions should be discussed in the next few days. Should these questions be found impossible of settlement the renewal of the pool will hold good only for the current year.

BRITAIN CANNOT MOVE IN MEXICAN SITUATION

But Foreign Secretary Says Steps Are Being Taken To Get At the Facts

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The British Parliament and press have been stirred by the recent killing of William S. Benton, a British subject, by order of the Mexican Constitutionalist general, Francisco Villa, at Juarez, and yesterday the question of protection for British interests and for Englishmen residing in Mexico was made the subject of earnest consideration, both in the House of Commons and the columns of the newspapers.

Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, outlined the attitude of the British Government, and the nature of the communications which the British ambassador at Washington had had with the Government of the United States. He said that Sir Cecil Spring-Rice had told Secretary of State Bryan that the public of Europe was likely to be seriously affected by the action of Gen. Villa, which announcement was greeted by the members with a cheer.

The Foreign Secretary assured the House that the Government was taking all possible steps to learn the facts of the Benton case, and to secure full protection for its nationals in Mexico, but pointed out that the Government was powerless to take any measures in the disturbed regions.

Referring to Benton's death, Sir Edward Grey said:

"Before this incident occurred the United States Government had at our request impressed upon the leaders of the Constitutional party in Mexico the necessity of respecting the lives of foreigners. I should like to add to that the fact that we are communicating with the Government of the United States does not, of course, imply that it has any responsibility for what has taken place.

"Communication has been made because the United States alone can in these circumstances exercise any influence to discover the truth and get justice done. Juarez is close to the United States frontier, and we have ourselves no means of exercising influence in those regions under existing circumstances. I am still in communication with the British ambassador at Washington and with the United States Government as to what further steps can be taken."

Sir John Reese asked whether Sir Edward Grey had any information concerning other Europeans who are said to have disappeared in Mexico.

Sir Edward replied: "No, sir; but I have already telegraphed to Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, suggesting for his consideration what steps it would be possible to take in this very disturbed region to ascertain the whereabouts of these people."

Francis Dyke Acland, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, made an earlier statement, in which he said:

"The pacification of Mexico is an object we earnestly desire to see accomplished, but it is impossible to effect it by British intervention. We do not intend to make any attempt of that character which would be both futile and impolitic."

That the British Government is concerned over the reported disappearance of other Europeans in Mexico is evidenced by the fact that Sir Edward has communicated with the ambassador at Washington respecting steps that it might be possible to take to ascertain the whereabouts of these people.

The newspapers, while awaiting the result of the enquiry instituted by the United States Government, are practically united in condemning the action of Villa, which some of them regard as nothing less than murder.

France Is Silent.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The French Foreign Office has no comment to make on the Benton affair in Mexico, nor does the French Government appear to be disposed to offer any suggestions to the United States on the subject or to press any other policy upon Washington than the policy which is now being followed. The Foreign Office appears content to leave President Wilson to work out the situation.

PEERS CENSURE PRACTICE.

Awarding of Titles to Party Contributors is Condemned.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The House of Lords yesterday unanimously adopted a motion by the Earl of Selborne that contributions to party funds should not be considered in awarding honors. The House of Commons will be asked to concur.

Viscount Milner, the Marquis of Lansdowne and other notable Unionists, supported the motion.

The Marquis of Crewe formally denied that the present Government had been influenced by money considerations in recommending to the King those upon whom titles were to be conferred.

Fifty Thousand Books Lost.

MORRISTOWN, N.J., Feb. 24.—The Morristown Library and Lyceum Building, containing 50,000 volumes, among them many valuable historical records of New Jersey, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The building was erected in 1878, and was owned by the Library and Lyceum Corporation, organized years ago to provide Morristown with a library and school building. The building was worth about $75,000. No estimate of the loss on the books was obtainable.

POLICE PROBE IS REFUSED

Edmonton City Council Say Coruption Is Quite Evident

EDMONTON, Feb. 24.—Edmonton City Council rejected a petition of 3,000 property owners, asking for a judicial investigation into charges made against ex-Police Chief Carpenter and the police department. The mayor and the majority of the council took the ground that they were satisfied that there was corruption in the police department, and they did not need an investigation to satisfy themselves. The recent charges of immorality and corruption in the department, made by the mayor and Ald. Joseph Clarke, has created a great stir in the city, and it is said the matter will not be allowed to drop.

Further Censure For War Office.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The military correspondent of The Mail, discussing the Bisley dispute, says: "There is a growing feeling among rifle shots that the recent action of the War Office is absolutely unjustified. Why, it is asked, should a Government department which grants ammunition to the value of £4,000 annually, be allowed to dictate to the National Association, incorporated under royal charter, members of which at their own expense, encourage skill with the rifle throughout the Empire?"

How difficult to draw the line between genius and insanity.

SOCIALISM CRITICIZED

Three Objections are Cited by Rev. R. Pogue

In his sermon on Socialism Sunday night in St. Paul's Church, the Rev. R. Pogue dealt first with the rapid growth of Socialism. So rapid has been its growth in the last quarter of a century that it has compelled the attention of statesmen, economists, historians, diplomats and even kings. The most disinterested and acute minds of our time are now giving the movement their earnest and patient thought. Bismark tried to stamp it out in Germany but persecution only resulted in its further growth. During the twelve years that it was under the ban of a special code which prohibited its societies, broke up its meetings, and condemned its leaders to imprisonment the Socialist vote rose from 312,000 to 1,427,000. Its growth in France, Great Britain and the States has been steady. Rev. Chas. S. Telzle says that "for thousands of working men Socialism has become a substitute for the Church, the idealism of the earthly propoganda taking the place of the visions and ideals of the religious faith."

What is Socialism? Mr. Morris Hillquit who may be regarded as the ablest Socialist in America states the Socialist program in this fashion. He says, "Concretely stated, the Socialist program advocates a reorganization of the existing industrial system on the basis of collective or national ownership of the social tools. It demands that the control of the machinery of wealth-creation be taken from the individual capitalist and placed in the hands of the nation, to be organized and operated for the benefit of the whole people. The program implies radical changes in the existing industrial machinery, political structure, and social relations. The form of society which would result from such changes is usually designated in the literature of the subject as the 'Socialist State' or the 'Socialist Ideal.'" Now there is a great deal in this program that ought to find a sympathetic response in every truly human breast. Its underlying problem is poverty, and that is the problem of the church and of all social reformers. It is the one thing that throughout the centuries has stood in the path of progress and that has cast a shadow over any material prosperity that has come to the race. No state can ever be said to be prosperous and happy while a large proportion of its citizens are constantly on the verge of starvation. Before passing criticism upon Socialism, I desire that all present who may be ardent Socialists should understand that your problem is my problem, that it is the problem of the church and of all who are working for right and just social relations. We are all working for the ideal society. We are working for equality of opportunity for all men, for an equitable distribution of the gifts of God's bounty, and for such pure and righteous social conditions as will make life pleasant and happy for all the children of men. I have two or three objections to bring against Socialism, however,

First Objection.

My first objection to it is that it involves an all to serious interference with individual liberty. It means not only the suppression of the individual, but of his individuality, and that, it seems to me, is contrary to the law of nature and to the law of God. It is the privilege and duty of individuals in any society to surrender certain rights and advantages for the benefit of the society in which they live. The more highly civilised a people are the more will they be willing to surrender their personal rights in the interest of the well being of the whole community. Now I can see that a measure of Socialism might not invade the sacred rights of personality, indeed, it might result in a richer, fuller life for the individual. But there is a point beyond which the State must not go, else she enslaves her subjects and destroys the liberty of the individual. In the Socialistic State there is a great army of workers who must obey. The individual can only marry when he is given permission by the State and then, indeed, he cannot marry whomever he pleases, for in the ideal Socialistic State there will be "suitable factories for the human instruments of production of marriage," provisions for improving the breed. The weakness of Socialism is seen here, that it fails to give due consideration to the facts of human nature.

Second Objection.

The second great objection to Socialism is that in denying competition it takes away the strongest motive power that we have for the development of the race. There is a competition which is grinding and exhausting and which is altogether unnecessary. But competitions for the honors of life, for the sheer satisfaction that a man has in excelling another is absolutely indispensable as an incentive for the progress of the individual. I am dealing with a something here which is fundamental to human nature. It is a something that is seen in a home among the different members of the family, it is seen in the school and on the play ground, on the field of sport, and in our college halls. Then in the world of industry some of our greatest discoveries and inventions that have resulted in untold blessing to the race have been the result of the working of this law. The evolution of industry and the upward ascent of the race have been due in large measure, to the ambitions which spurred men to do their utmost and their best. Now in the Socialistic State the tendency is to suppress the natural ambitions of men, it would largely paralyze the inventive faculty. "The tendency," says Father Ryan, "would be to turn out old and standard kinds of goods, and the combined effect of all these restrictions would be disastrous to self-respect, self development, social contentment and social stability."

A Third Objection.

The last objection to Socialism is a religious one. The great mass of Socialists are avowedly atheists and materialistic. But from a Christian standpoint the fundamental thought of Socialism is wrong. It teaches that man is made for society rather than society for man. It sacrifices the individual for society, and this is fundamentally opposed to the teaching of Christ. The greatest blessing which Christianity brought to the world was the discovery of the infinite value in God's sight and hence in a man's own sight, and in the sight of society, of the individual. Then Christianity lays greater emphasis upon morality and character than material prosperity. The Kingdom of God is not loaves and fishes, is not physical ease, good tailors and French cooks, play-houses and automobiles. It is righteousness, joy and peace in the Holy Ghost. It is to do justly, love mercy and walk humbly with thy God. It is to cultivate a man's inner nature and to bring every power that he possesses to the highest degree of development. It teaches that the Christian graces alone make life worth living and that their possession is more to be desired than physical ease or temporal comfort. And it teaches that it is only as men seek these and manifest the spirit of Christ that we have ideal social relations. It is the possession of these graces that create social reformers, and change for the better industrial and economic conditions, and which alone can make these changes permanent.

FRENCH CABINET UPHELD.

Deputies Refuse To Blame Condition of Army on New Government.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The French Chamber of Deputies yesterday adopted by 285 against 25 a vote of confidence in the Government, based on an interpellation by the Socialists on the state of health of the French troops. From numbers of garrisons reports had reached the War Office of widespread epidemics of measles, scarlatina and cerebral spinal meningitis, which in many cases had been fatal. The Chamber ordered the continution of enquiry into the sanitation of the barracks to be carried out by the commission of health appointed by the Government. It was pointed out that the barracks were overcrowded owing to the large increase in the army brought about by the recent adoption of the three years' term of service instead of two, as formerly.

Great interest was manifested by the public in the subject under discussion and yesterday's sitting was regarded as the most critical one which the Government had had to face.

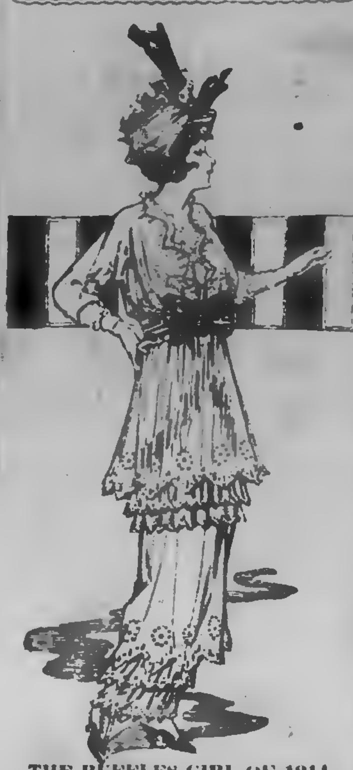
THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION



THE RUFFLES GIRL OF 1914.

Ruffles and flounces with all their charm have come back to the mode of to-day with all the added beauty of form and material that comes with the renewal of an old fashion. An ideal stuff of the spring and summer for these flounced designs is shown in this cleanable frock of very sheer batiste machine embroidered with a design as fine as hand work. With flounces, these machine embroideries are having an unusual vogue this year.

STRANGE STORY TOLD AT TRIAL

Father of Accused Young Man Gives Amazing Version

STE. SCHOLASTIQUE, Que., Feb. 24.—A story of having been shot in the leg and beaten as he lay helpless was told on the witness stand in the McGibbon murder trial here yesterday by Peter James McGibbon, father of the accused, Leonard McGibbon.

Many of the statement of the witness, in explanation of the events of the tragic August day when his son, it is alleged, killed his nephew, were received with incredulous tittering. The prisoner sat dejectedly at the bar and all the time his father was on the stand never raised his head.

Witness said he did not see the fatal shot fired, though he distinctly saw the victim aiming a second shot at himself while he lay on his back. He denied assaulting his niece, Elizabeth McGibbon, sister of the victim. In cross-examination he admitted that the accused walked around his prostrate form toward his cousin, who was later shot.

Colored Wigs Appear.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. — Colored wigs to match the gowns they wore were introduced in New York Sunday by two actresses. The appearance of the latest fad from Paris created a sensation in two fashionable uptown hotels, and there was some comment and some remarks. Under the latter heading, Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, the suffrage leader, expressed a philosophical view. "To say the least, they are frank," Mrs. Shaw said. "They do not pretend to be what they are not."

One of the young women wore a green wig to match a Nile gown, and the other a purple one that blended with her plum-covered suit.

Mrs. Pankhurst Going To See King.

LONDON, Feb. 24. — Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, will personally head a deputation which the Women's Social and Political Union, purposes to send to interview King George. In making this announcement at the weekly meeting of the militant organization yesterday Mrs. Dacre-Fox added that Mrs. Pankhurst would be accompanied by her bodyguard. The leader will first write a letter to King George and subsequently proceed to the place she has appointed to meet His Majesty.

Stage Fright.

Very few people are really free from liability to stage fright, and the veteran in public life is just as likely to be affected as is the novice. Attacks, moreover, frequently come when they are least expected. Hence no speaker or artist can face an audience and feel sure that he will not have to suffer from the tortures of this particularly painful form of nervousness.

Musicians, of course, are the worst sufferers. The performer on a stringed instrument is helpless if his hand trembles, while the clear enunciation of a singer can be ruined by that "catch in the throat" or that twitching of the lips which is perhaps the simplest and most common manifestation of stage fright.

A Paradox.

"Since Footlight inherited a fortune he is a paradox."

"What's the answer?"

"He's both the richest and poorest actor on the stage."

Kind words are the music of the world.—Faber.

SCREAMED WITH THE TERRIBLE PAIN

"Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Distressing Kidney Trouble.

ST. THOMAS, ONT., April 1st. 1913.

"In 1911, I was laid up with Kidney Trouble and not able to get out of my chair. Had tried many kidney remedies without satisfactory results. The pain was excruciating and my screams could be heard on the street. One day a friend from Ottawa came to see me, and when he found me in such poor health, said he would send me a sample of "Fruit-a-tives", which he did and I commenced taking them. The results were so apparent with the first few doses that I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and was completely restored to my normal state of health. I would strongly advise anyone suffering with Kidney Trouble to take "Fruit-a-tives" and cure themselves" CHARLES CALVEART.

ADVERTISING

A STORE'S importance is rightly judged by its advertising. Not altogether by the size of the advertisement, but by size and tone, and quality of announcement.

What the store has to say is one thing. Quite as important is how it says it.

Given that the clerical force is competent and up-to-date, it will say, over the counter, the very best to be said in reference to the goods enquired for. It may, and should, suggest other goods, not in the customers view.

This implies that the customer is in the store. But what brings him or her there? The wish to buy and the belief it is a good place to buy at.

How is this learned of?

By advertising. The advertisement is a message, an intelligent middleman, doing service between seller and buyer. The space talks to thousands, even while the store is closed for the night.

Use The REVIEW and tell the story of your store and its opportunities for good service.

PETERBORO ATHLETIC CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED

Object is to Develop Young Players in Various Branches of Sport

There will be a meeting of the Peterborough Athletic Club in the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday night of this week for the purpose of organizing electing officers and making other arrangements for the launching of this new organization. Everyone who has signified his intention of becoming a member of the club is requested to be on hand at eight o'clock sharp, as Thursday night's meeting will be a most important one.

The Peterborough Athletic Club is being formed for the purpose of encouraging and developing young players in different lines of sports. It is essentially a young men's club and already has a membership of thirty-five enthusiastic young athletes. There has been nothing in Peterborough along this line for many years and the new club has been hailed with enthusiasm by the sport-lovers of the city. Club rooms will be secured at once and the club will take up several branches of sport during the coming summer.

LINDSAY FANS WOULD LIKE TO SEE LOCAL JUNIORS MEET COLLEGIATES

Lindsay's speedy Collegiate hockey team played a seven representing Peterboough Collegiate Institute on Saturday afternoon.

The score was 12—3, and that tells the story of the struggle. The visitors came up with a strengthened team determined to wipe out the stain left after two former defeats, but at no stage of the game did they show any indication of being able to carry out their intentions.

The game was a splendid one, the speed of the local seven was bewildering to the Electric City team. The play was clean at all times, and both teams put up a fine exposition of the popular winter pastime.

Some of the local enthusiasts would like to see a game arranged between the Collegiate and an O.H. A. Junior team—Peterborough or Orillia for instance. They would make the best of them go the limit to win. —Lindsay Post.

BELLEVILLE AND OSHAWA JUNIORS TO PLAY HERE

As a result of the successful protest of the Oshawa Club against the Kingston Frontenacs, the O. H. A. has ordered Belleville and Oshawa to play a sudden death game at Brock Street Rink tomorrow night.

The winner will meet Orillia in the semi-finals. Local fans will be assured a great game of hockey, as the opposing teams have some of the junior stars of the country.

Secretary Hewitt made arrangements for the rink this morning.

TOOLROOM DOWN BANKERS; WILL NOW PLAY THE TEST

Very Little Doubt as to Final Outcome of the Game—Score Was 6-2

Once again will the Tool Room hockey team enter the finals of the Mercantile League. No matter how flies the dope at the beginning of the season the boys from the C. G. E. have always figured in the last game and twice out of three times they carried off the honors. Just whether they can win over the Test is uncertain but they can be relied upon to fight for sixty minutes.

Their wi novr the Bankers last night at Brock Street Rink was a battle all the way. The final score was 6—2, but it doesn't indicate the play, as at fifteen minutes from the final gong the score stood 3—2 and both teams were fighting furiously. Then the Tool Room forward line broke away a few times and put the game on ice.

The pace of the opening few minutes were terrific. The Bankers were all over the ice and had they but kept up their fast work they would have walked away with the game. Inside of two minutes Minorgan had found the nets, beating Cassidy on a waist high shot from the side. Then the Tool Room dug in. Up and down they went, with the C. G. E. team having most of the play and they finally scored via Jackson and the teams were even. Barrie was going strong and a few minutes afterwards was rewarded by securing a counter after a nice rush. The next few minutes included some of the fastest hockey witnessed here this season. The Bankers would break away only to be stopped by nifty back checking on the part of the T. R.'s forward line. The peck hovered around the latter' sgoal for a few minutes and then the feature of the game occurred. Fred McGrath took the puck from the corner and combined with Barrie, all the way up the ice. It was not a circling individual rush that brings the fans to their feet, but rather it was one of those nifty bits of team play that made Newsy Lalonde and the rest of his team famous. It finally resulted in McGrath scoring from close in. This made it 3—1 and that score prevailed till half time.

After resting period the Bankers came strong andn for a while it looked as though they'd clean up. They pressed hard and finally Peyton beat "Dinnie" on a nice shot from the side. With the score 3—2 and fifteen minutes to go, it was anybody's game, but when Primeau secured a tally from a scrimmage and Jackson added another on a rush with Barrie, the Bankers began to fade. Just before full time Primeau had his nose hurt and left the ice, and while he was off, Jackson made it six on a shot from close in . The sixty minutes ended, a few minutes later, with the Bankers on the defensive.

Cassidy played a great game in goal for the C. G. E. septet, and shares to a large extent, the honor of the victory. McGrath and Kelly played a hard defence game. While Barrie, Primeau, Jackson and Cranfield on the forward line, worked like fiends. The work of Jackson and Barrie was very prominent.

McCrimmon had too big a task on his hands and although he kicked out several bad shots, he let a few easy ones beat him in the last few minutes. Corkery and "BadJoe Hall" Phelan was going well on the defence, while Smith and Peyton were the pick of the forwards. If the Bankers had been in a little better condition they might have come out on the big end, but were found wanting, so the fault was all their own. The teams:

Tool Room		Bankers
Cassidy	goal	McCrimmon
McGrath	rt. def.	Phelan
Kelly	left def.	Corkery
Barrie	rover	Peyton
Jackson	centre	Minorgan
Primeau	rt. wing	Smith
Cranfield	left wing	Moore

BELLEVILLE IN; PETES STAY OUT

Why the Belleville team should get another lease of life and the local juniors be passed by, is a mystery for the fans to try and figure out. It may be that O. H. A. consideration goes back only to clubs who have won their district and have been put out in the next round by the offending club. This was the fortune and fate of the Belleville Club, while Peterboro did not win their district. Rupert Millan, the player who was protested, had a lot to do with the defeat of the locals.

PICKED TEAM PLAY MILLBROOK

A team from Millbrook played a hurriedly picked up septet of this city last evening at Brock street rink and the visitors went home with a 4—1 victory. The game was very rough and Mr. G. Bain, the referee, had his own time making the boys play hockey. "Pat" Walker put up an exceptionally good game in the nets for the local team.

The line-up:

Millbrook—Goal, G. E. Richards; defence, P. Handley and E. Sutherland; rover, H. Nattrass; centre, J. Bingham; wings, R. Edmonds and H. Orr.

Peterborough—Goal, Walker; defence, R. Graham and J. Hetherington; rover, L. Holland, (G. Meehan), centre, J. Murty; wings, S. Graham and F. Hatcher.

SKIP CONNAL WON FINAL

Took Inter-rink Competition by Three Shots

To Skip Connal's rink goes the honor winning the championship of the inter-rink competition of the local curling club.

In the finals played last night the Connal quartette finished three shots up, but they had to curl all the time. The opposition coming from Skip Brightman's rink was pronounced in the early stages of the game as at the end of the fourth round, Brightman had a four shot lead and Connal had been blanked in three of the four ends. At the end of the seventh, Connal had the game tied. Brightman took a one shot lead, but was overtaken again in the ninth and finally eliminated.

The rinks were

Rev. Jas. Rollins	John Hill
W. R. G. Higgins	F. Bartlett
H. Martin	H. Evans
T. Brightman	Jas. Connal

Scores by ends:

Connal	0300211x3x31—14

One of the Family.

Boarding round, as the old time district school teacher did, was not always an unmixed joy, but occasionally, writes Sophie E. Eastman in her book, "In Old South Hadley," teachers were able to administer needed discipline by reason of their intimate knowledge of the family life of their pupils.

There were some teachers who did not need the usual injunction to "make yerself to hum." Miss Mary N. one day called to her desk a boy with whose widowed mother she was then boarding. She gave him what she called "a good ferruling," although he had no idea for what offense he was being punished.

"There," she said when she had finished, "now we'll see whether you will make up faces at your mother the next time she tells you that you are to have hasty pudding and milk for breakfast!"

An Error of Phonetics.

Mr. Arnold Bennett once told an amusing story about the Cockney accent that prevails in parts of London.

"That Cockney accent," said Mr Bennett, "turns 'make haste' into 'mike iste'; and 'th' it turns into 'v or 'f.' Thus, in Cockney, 'father' is pronounced 'faver,' and 'thistle, 'fistle.'

"A little boy, who always spoke the broadest Cockney, was sent by his mother to buy some fish.

"'Gimme a haddie,' he said to the fishmonger.

"'Finnan?' the dealer asked.

"At this the boy laughed knowingly, with the air of one determined not to be cheated.

"'Fin'um?' he said. 'No not likely. Fick'un!'"

Prince Arthur of Connaught had electric cardiograms of his heart taken in London the other day. Accompanied by his bride, the Duchess of Fife, he had opened the new National Hospital for Disease of the Heart, in Westmoreland street, London, and records of his heart beats were presented to him before he left the building.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Last evening about thirty friends of Miss Elsie Frost, of Coldsprings, Otonabee, in view of her approaching marriage on Thursday, presented her with a beautiful silver bread tray. Miss Andra Spears made the presentation, while Miss Laura Bennett superintendent of Coldsprings Sunday school, read the address.

Miss Frost is being married on Thursday to Mr. John Dickson, of Morse, Sask.

DANCE AT ENNISMORE

The parish Hall in Ennismore was the scene of a very delightful function last evening, it being the closing social of the season, given under the auspices of St. Martin's T. A. S. Some 100 couples were present, among them being many local people. Cards, refreshments, served by the ladies of the parish, and dancing, were the order of the evening. The music for the dancing was supplied by the society's orchestra, assisted by local musicians.

NO. 6 COMPANY DANCE.

Captain McLean and the boys of Company No. 6, did themselves proud at the bandroom of the Armouries last night, when they held their annual dance, with over one hundred couples in attendance. All the arrangements were in capable hands, and the guests expressed their appreciation and added congratulations to the popular captain and the members of his company.

The bandroom was tastefully decorated. The floor was in perfect condition and to this was added the entrancing strains of Mr. Asa Huyck's orchestra. The quartette of musicians consisting of Mr. Wilson, violin; Mr. Jos. Minnicolo, cornet; Mr. Geo. Chambers, trap and drums; were very popular. The dance music included A Perfect Day, Come to the Ball, and a selected number, a Scotch air, played on the bagpipes. It was the first public appearance of the full orchestra, and it proved to be a first night of success.

Col. Clegg and Major Hayes were visitors during the evening. At eleven o'clock the dancers adjourned for supper, which had been prepared by Hoopers. Supper was enjoyed to the utmost.

Miss Beth Dumble, daughter of P. M. Dumble, left last night for a visit with relatives in Cobourg.

And still the mercury goes down below zero many degrees every night, nearly five weeks of extreme cold, but cheer up, everybody, a spring bird, the pee-wee, was plainly heard on Water Street north, yesterday, and a new straw hat was worn on George Street by a leading society lady. The marbles, and skipping ropes will soon be in evidence.

And now that the two most serious and important questions, the new site for the post office and shall we, or shall we not have a policewoman? are settled, what further interest has life for the newspaper reading public?

The deepest sympathy of everyone who knew them, will be extended Mrs. Mansell and family on the sudden death of Rev. Mr. Mansell. All the circumstances connected with his demise make it one of the most impressive ocurrences that ever occurred in our city. The fact of his being allowed to complete his sermons on The Apostles' Creed, seemed such a striking evidence of his work completed here. No one who heard him Sunday night will ever forget it. It was the most powerful appeal that could have been given as to all being prepared for a sudden call.

McMILLAN—HANNICK.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning just as the bell tolled the angelus at 6 a.m., when Ellen Hannick and George R. McMillan were united in the hold bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father Meagher. Mr. Wm. J. Power, of Hastings, acted as best man, while Miss Catherine Hannick, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. After the wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. McMillan left on the 7.45 C.P.R. train for Toronto on a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

WELSH—MAHONEY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Joseph's church, Douro, this morning at nine-thirty, when Rev. Father McGuire united Mr. Patrick Welsh, of Douro, in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Loretto Mahoney, also of Douro, and daughter of Mr. James Mahoney. Mr. Richard Sheehan and Miss Mary Mahoney, sister of the bride, acted as groomsman and bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Welsh left on a short honeymoon, after which they will reside in Douro.

WHITE — FITZPATRICK.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. P. J. Kelly, in St. Paul's church, Norwood, this morning at nine o'clock, when Mr. E. H. White Sr., of this city, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss May Fitzpatrick, of Norwood.

After a short wedding trip to Toronto and Rochester Mr. and Mrs. White will reside in this city at Mr. White's residence, on Charlotte st., west.

The way of the transgressor is doubly hard when he has to convert bowlders into small pebbles.

The honeymoon is over when the bride discovers that she might have done better.

CLEARING SALE NOW GOING ON

No doubt every man in the city will take advantage of the reduced prices on cigars, tobaccos, etc., at the big stock reduction sale now going on at the Peterborough Cigar Store, George street. Everything must be cleared out almost at once to make more room for a large shipment of goods on order, and as floor space will not permit it they have decided to reduce prices in order to dispose of it quickly. All leading cigars, with exception of a few lines that sell regularly for ten cents, will be cleared out at half price. They are also offering special inducement prices on all cigars purchased by the box. This is a rare opportunity to save money and no doubt many will take advantage of high grade goods at greatly reduced prices.

FINE OPENING BILL SEEN AT THE ROYAL

The opening bill at the Royal Theatre this week is one which deserves the patronage of every motion picture enthusiast and every music lover in the city. The great Tigris film showing one of the greatest detective stories ever written, is an attraction in itself. To say that this one picture was worth five times the price of admission would be staying on the straight and narrow path.

The vaudeville is exceptionally good, the musical numbers are exceedingly well rendered and the gymnast's work is also of a high standard. It is one of those good bright shows where nothing offensive is seen or heard.

CHAMBERS OF HORRORS.

Two Famous Tower of London Dungeons to Be Exhibited.

The dungeons of the White tower and the Bloody tower, two of the most interesting parts of the Tower of London, will be thrown open to the public for the first time within the next few months, and the prison's torture chamber will be seen for the first time in all its eerie and mysterious gloom.

In the wall dividing the two dungeons is the narrow black cage, like a recess, in which Guy Fawkes was immured between periods of torture on the rack, and all about the walls are hanging the instruments of torture—thumbscrews, temple bands, searing irons and a rack. Only a few yards away from the well of the Tower in a dungeon is a small, domelike recess, where the gallant and unfortunate Walter Raleigh spent ten years of his life, and, as if by the irony of fate, almost overlooking the spot is a model of Queen Elizabeth, wearing the gorgeous state robes in which she went to St. Paul's to celebrate the triumph of her fleet over the Spanish armada.

Seven hundred Jews once sought refuge from a London mob in the dungeons and spent long days and nights in darkness, huddled together, until they crept out and sought safety elsewhere.

While a good part of the Tower has been open to the public for a long time, still many of the historical parts are always closed.—New York Tribune.

OXYGEN FOR THE INSANE.

New Treatment That Is Said to Yield Remarkable Results.

A new and extraordinary use for oxygen has just been found by Dr. Toulouse, chief physician of the Villejuif insane asylum. He finds it a most valuable aid in the treatment of madness.

Dr. Toulouse makes certain that the oxygen in the steel cylinders in which he receives it is pure and free from nitrogen; then he fills small glass flasks with it. A rubber bulb enables him to regulate the pressure in the flasks, and a rubber tube connects these with a fine hypodermic needle. Through this 250 cubic centimeters of oxygen are injected under the skin.

A physician who has watched the operation and its effects upon patients, reporting his observations for Nature of Paris, says the results are remarkable among patients in a condition of acute mental confusion, who are always greatly improved and often cured entirely by a few injections. The excited and victims of insomnia become calm and lucid.

In cases of acute mania, dementia, epileptic fits and certain cases of melancholia good results have been obtained. The oxygen treatment is now being tried upon other forms of insanity.

Some fellows are never too weary to carry a grouch around.

It sometims happns that a girl who has narrowly escaped matrimony is to be congratulated.

INDIA A GLUTTON IN SWALLOWING UP THE YELLOW METAL

HOARDS IT LIKE A MISER TOO.

Millions on Millions in Bullion and Golden Coins Flow Into That Country Every Year, Hardly Any of Which Returns or Is Ever Seen Again.

A steady stream of gold has been flowing for centuries into India. One might say streams of gold flowing thence, for since India produces comparatively little gold herself she lays the whole world under tribute. Hardly any of this gold returns. It is as if the earth of India had opened and swallowed it up. The American tourist in India who parts from a sovereign or a five dollar gold piece may be pretty certain it will go straightway out of circulation and nevermore be seen in the country of its minting. In one year alone India has been known to import over $300,000,000 in bar gold and English sovereigns.

What has become of this vast accumulation of gleaming treasure? To what use is all this gold put, since India has not minted a gold coinage of her own for many generations? The puzzle becomes a bit curious when it is remembered that as a whole the three hundred odd millions of natives refuse absolutely to deposit their savings, gold or otherwise, in banks and will take no part financially in such productive enterprises as railroads, irrigation works or factories.

The sharpest and most astute get-rich-quick bucket shop artist that ever soaked a gullible occidental public could no more beguile the mild Hindu to buy a share of stock with the glittering promise of a thousand point rise in value than the government has been able to induce him to invest in solid guaranteed bonds.

It has been estimated that "the visible hoarded wealth of India in temples, the treasure chests of princes and in the jewelry of the Indian men and women amounts to $1,800,000,000"—a simple portable treasure that would look like a pretty respectable pile even for our day and make the old time buccaneers set sail for India in a hurry. Part of this any American tourist can see for himself in such toys as the two gold cannon of the gaekwar of Baroda, each containing 280 pounds of pure gold, and from glimpses caught of temple images of solid or thickly plated gold and blazing with jewels. As a special favor he may be permitted to glance within the iron bound treasure chests of some highness and plunge his arm to the elbow in ancient gold mohurs.

But this would hardly account for the greater part of that golden current set toward India since the beginning of the record. It is into the earth that current sinks, year after year for hundreds of them, to be forgotten or lost trace of in the violent social upheavals, plagues and famines that have swept over the country. In India man has but to relinquish his fight against the jungle growth for a short space to result in the tearing down, overwhelming and utter obliteration of all his work. Therefore it is scarcely a flight of imagination to picture the black cobra nesting in some hole of ruined temple masonry stuffed with gold and jewels or the tiger seeking a lair in the dazzling throne room of a long forgotten dynasty buried in the jungle.

For the reason of this curious gold problem of India apparently one has not far to seek. Until the English went to India the country was swept repeatedly by invasions and conquests. Each newcomer was bent chiefly on plunder, but if he decided to remain he set up a government in which all life and property were his sole and undisputed possession. The only rights the conquered Hindus possessed were those he chose to grant. These consisted principally in providing the conqueror with splendid palaces, jewels, gorgeously caparisoned elephants, dancing girls, a host of swashbuckling retainers and costly tombs. That is why the American tourist in India gets a surfeit of palaces, temples and tombs.

As to the people, they seem to have come to the conclusion pretty far back that it was advisable for them never to display signs of overmuch wealth. The plundering soldier or tax gatherer was always at the door, so apparent poverty was the best shield of defense. Besides, as hasty flight was recurrently necessary before the ravaging armies of Tartar, Afghan and Mogul, gold and jewels were the easiest forms of negotiable security to transport or hide in the earth. In this way Delhi was sacked and sacked again until John Ireland, the New York traveler, visiting that city in the middle of the eighteenth century, thought Nadir Shah must have swept it clean of treasures in his last $200,000,000 raid. Delhi looked to him a poverty stricken place. Yet a century or so afterward, when the British troops stormed it in the mutiny, the Thomas Atkins of those days was pretty soon seen bartering jewels for drinks and playing quoits with gold anklets and bangles.

Since then Delhi has probably accumulated another hoard of treasure, for the people's yearning in that respect seems to be explained by their never having got over their scare of the invader plundering and squeezing them for ages or the dread terror of a plague taking its toll in millions. Something then unchanging in value to fly with or bury would appear to be the sole idea of security, and without doubt this is best represented in gold and jewels.—New York Tribune.

HOUDIN'S MAGIC.

How a Nation Was Conquered With a Magnet and Little Black Box.

In these times of machine guns and other instruments of war we certainly are going some, but before such things were dreamed of an entire nation was conquered with a magnet and a little black box. It was one of the marvelous inventions of Robert Houdin, the great French conjurer, who applied electricity to many of his magical experiments and delighted the Parisian public for years. After accumulating a competence, Houdin retired to his family estate on the banks of the Loire river, hoping to end his days in peace. But after a year or so there came to him, through a military friend, a request from the French Government that he go to Algiers. In his memoirs, translated into English some years before his death, he says that the Marabouts of that country, a sort of medicine men and wonder-working priests, controlled the masses and incited them to intermittent revolts against the French by their tricks. These tricks, he assures us, were of the simplest and most primitive type. It was the hope of the Government that Houdin, by his mysteries, could demonstrate that the white conqueror's magic was superior, and Houdin did it.

His recital of his performance in Algiers is exceedingly interesting. Some of the most distinguished natives were there. Houdin showed them all sorts of things; allowed himself to be shot at, and caught the bullet unharmed, and many other such feats. But his piece de resistance undoubtedly was his box. He called for a strong man to come on the stage, and a giant responded. Houdin toyed with him a moment, bantered with him about his strength and asked him if he could lift his little black box. Disdainfully the Arab lifted it and smiled. But Houdin warned him. "Wait. But a moment and you shall be as a little child!" He placed the box on the stage and dared his huge guest to raise it. The Arab tried with one finger; grasped it with his great muscular hand; tugged at it with all the strength of his massive arms, bracing his legs like two huge bronze columns, so Houdin says, to no avail. Try as he would, this son of the desert could not stir that little box from its place. For a breathing spell he released his grip for a moment, then went at it again. And while the awe-stricken audience panted in amazement, he suddenly writhed in acutest agony and sank groveling to the stage. The current coursing through him had galvanized him into misery. Then Houdin gave a signal; the current from the electric magnet beneath the stage was turned off and the Arab fell back groaning. He lifted himself to his feet and, hiding his face in his cloak, crept away to blush unseen. The little black box had conquered.

Houdin was triumphant. The country had seen him shot at by a man who said he wished to kill; had seen him rob a giant of his strength. No Marabout had ever done that. No Marabout with primitive tricks could convinced them that any revolt of theirs could prevail against the white man and his magic—his electricity. The conqueror's conquest was complete.

How To Restore Crape.

It costs from $2.50 to $5 to restore a widow's veil, the price depending upon the size of it, but the work can be done at home for nothing at all, even by an unskilled person. You lay a folded sheet upon a table and pin down the veil to it very carefully. The hems must be straight and all edges laid flat. Then you take a clean white cloth wrung out of hot water and lay over a portion of the crape.

When the veil is smooth hold a very hot iron over the wet cloth and about two inches away from it. It must never for a moment touch the wet rag. Go all over the crape as directed and do not take from the sheet until perfectly dry. The crape will then be crisp and, in fact, exactly like new.

No matter how wrinkled it may have been before, it will be perfectly smooth now. Smaller pieces of crape may be renovated in the same way.

Islands In a Volcano.

The crater of Halemaumau, Hawaii, presents a particularly impressive sight, for the surface of the boiling lava supports several floating islands. According to Frank A. Perret, most of the larger islands seem to be caused by the fall of masses from the crater wall, and some of them last for a year or more before they are finally melted. The phenomenon bears a certain resemblance to the formation and melting of icebergs. When the islands finally sink the lava surface oscillates like boiling molasses. When one island disappeared it caused a huge sausage-shaped gas-inflated bubble of black lava glass no less than 170 feet long.

Queen as a Caddie.

A royal golf match was held the other day at Sandringham, between Prince John and Prince Olaf of Norway. The caddies were the Queen of Norway and Princess Victoria.

Both the young princes are keen golfers, and Prince John has gained considerable skill in the game. His instructor is the King's pipe-major, who also drills the little prince every morning. Prince Olaf has his "professional" with him also—a Norwegian soldier.

AERO CLUB RECEIVES THE APPLICATION FOR LONG RACE SANCTION.

The application from Mr. C. C. Moore, president of the Panama Pacific Exposition, for the sanction for the aeroplane race around the world was received by the Aero Club of America recently. The application is signed by Mr. Moore, and was transmitted to the Aero Club of America by its affiliated club, the Pacific Aero Club, the governors of which signed a resolution recommending that the sanction be granted.

EATING AND ELOQUENCE

All men eat, most men speak; but, though all men eat a dinner, only the few speak after it, while the many listen and suffer.

To say that eating and eloquence go hand in hand may be a solecism, but it is a fact, at any rate a condition, in these days and these latitudes. After dinner speaking is an evil peculiar to no land. It is an infliction that obtains a wider vogue in civilized countries than in those that are still close to the primitive ideal. The savage has not reached that stage of degeneration where he imagines that the processes of digestion are aided by discussion and stimulated by dullness. The primitive man clings to tobacco and repose as the pleasurable adjuncts of his victuals.

Postprandial garrulity reaches its most virulent development among the English speaking peoples. It has become almost a ritualistic and religious function with them, and the resolute Englishman or American goes to his feeding function, his banquet, to eat, drink and be talked at seriously and solemnly.

To gorge a man with dishes and delicacies as a preparation for goading him with deliverance and dullness is the substitute which a modern civilization provides for the Roman holiday, for, though this age abhors blood and slaughter and shudders reminiscently over the memory of gladiators, Numidian lions and Christian martyrs, it does not hesitate to make martyrs of its guests and throw them to its lions, the after dinner spouters. — London Truth.

HUNTING THE HIPPO.

Methods of the Wily Native Hunters of North Africa.

As hippopotamus hunters the Shullas of the Sobat region, North Africa, stand alone. A native hippo hunt is an exciting and dangerous sport. The hunters are in dugout canoes; two or three paddle while one manages the harpoon or barbed spear, to which are attached a stout rope and a float of ambatch.

When the hippo comes to the surface to breathe an attempt is made to steal upon him with the harpoon; when this is accomplished the hunters make a hasty retreat from the enraged beast, and in turn engage his attention while attempts are made to spear him by those in the other canoes.

When severely wounded a hippopotamus goes ashore to rest or to die and not to attack its assailants, as has been so often reported. The native hunters wait for this, and when the animal goes up out of the water a volley of spears is thrown into it, and slowly the huge beast bleeds to death. The hunters do not always escape. Sometimes the life or a limb of one of them is sacrificed to their daring.

The hide of the hippopotamus is cut into strips and dried to be sold to Arab traders, who, in turn, sell it to the whipmakers of Omdurman and Egypt. Certain portions of the hide are much prized as shields. The flesh is cut into long, narrow strips and dried in the sun; its taste resembles that of coarse beef.

A King's Dog Lost.

Lord Northcliffe's reference to King Charles' cry for his lost dog as being among the earliest English newspaper advertisements reminds one, says the London Chronicle, of the tone of those pioneer announcements. Here, then, is Charles in search of a dog:

"We must call upon you again for a Black Dog, between a Greyhound and a Spaniel, no white about him, only a streak on his brest and his tayl a little bobbed. It is his majesty's own dog, and doubtless was stoln, for the Dog was not born nor bred in England, and would never forsake his Master. Whosoever finds him may acquaint any at Whitehall, for the Dog was better known at Court than those who stole him. Will they never leave robbing his Majesty? Must he not keep a dog? This Dog's place is the only place which nobody offers to buy."

Intelligence and Intelligence.

The biography of the late Sir W. H. Bailey tells that when he was a witness before a Parliamentary committee he airily observed that all men of intelligence were in favor of a certain bill. The opposing counsel, marking his prey as secure, asked: "Is Mr. John Bailey in favor of it?" "No," cheerfully answered Sir William. "Do you consider your father a man of intelligence?" pursued the barrister. "Ah!" said Sir William, as though the matter had just dawn on him, "we must discriminate; there is ancient intelligence and modern intelligence; my father represents the first, but I represent modern intelligence." — M. A. P.

Use Crystal Palace.

It is announced that the Crystal Palace has been secured for the British Dominions Exhibition which is to be held in the summer of 1915. Three years ago there was a meeting of influential men at the Colonial Institute, when the question of such an exhibition was carefully discussed. The proposed exhibition of 1915 is really the outcome of that meeting, and Lord Strathcona, in spite of his burden of years and his duties as High Commissioner of Canada, had undertaken the presidency. The exhibition promises to be one of the most magnificent ever organized in Great Britain, and is being supported by hundreds of influential men on both sides of the Atlantic.

DERELICT AHOY! ABANDONED HULL

The dismasted battered bulk of a derelict floating so low in the water as to be almost level with the waves, is, of course, a very great danger to navigation, especially in foggy weather.

The majority of derelicts are sailing ships laden with timber. They may have been dismasted and rendered absolutely helpless in storms, partly demolished by fire, by collision with an iceberg, or by the mere force of the waves themselves. The crew, unable to make their ship seaworthy, may have abandoned her in the boats, or have been rescued by some passing vessel, but, whatever their fate, their forsaken ship, if laden with wood, remains practically unsinkable and is driven hither and thither over the ocean, at the mercy of the winds and currents.

In course of time the swelling of the wood cargo may burst the hull asunder; but until this happens, or until the vessel is driven ashore and broken into matchwood against some iron-shod coast, she will remain a terror to passing ships.

Now and again a steamer may be rendered helpless owing to her machinery becoming disabled, by shortage of coal, or by the loss of her rudder or propeller in heavy weather. Her crew may decide to abandon her and take to the boats, but if they neglect to open the seacocks on their departure their ship may float for many a long day.

The erratic movements of some derelicts are almost uncanny. Not so very long ago a Norwegian sailing-ship called the Crown left Nova Scotia for a South American port. She was laden with timber and while still in the North Atlantic Ocean was overtaken by a terrible storm, which dismasted and left her a battered wreck. The crew realizing it was useless to remain on board, abandoned her and took to the boats, never to be heard of again; but their ship, although she vanished completely for no less than three months, was sighted at the end of this time on the edge of the Sargasso Sea, a good seven hundred miles away from where disaster overtook her.

Soon afterwards she was sighted off Bermuda, but then disappeared again, and, for all we know, may still be drifting about the ocean.

Derelicts are sometimes saved, and bring in a large sum in salvage money to the crews of the ships who tow them into port.

By an Act of Parliament passed in 1896 the master of any British ship sighting a derelict is bound to report the fact, to the nearest Lloyds' agent, so that if the abandoned ship is in the track of ships, a man-of-war may be sent out to destroy or bring her into port.

There are other dangers besides derelict ships. A few days ago for example, a wireless message was received from the captain of a British ship, informing Lloyds that he had passed a dead whale, which was a danger to navigation.

It's no reflection on the charm or ability of a young woman when other women can't see what a certain young man sees in her.

ABBE LISZT'S DICTUM IS DISPROVEN OVER AND OVER

Dr. Tudway, Rubenstein, Rossini, Offenbach and Dr. Arne Have All Delightful Bon Mots to Their Credit—Sometimes It Is a Harmless Witticism But Often the Jest Is a Bitter Reproof.

"I have known many composers in my time," the Abbe Liszt once wrote to a friends, "but I have not met one who has had any great sense of humor. I am pleased to learn that you have been more fortunate."

Certainly the famous Abbe was not fortunate in his own experiences; for that the great musician often has as keen a sense of humor as any man, the following stories should prove:

Even Douglas Jerrold himself need not have blushed to be credited with some of the bon mots of Dr. Tudway, an old-time professor of music at Cambridge and a composer of high repute in his day. Once when he was lying dangerous ill of a quinsy, his doctor, turning to Mrs. Tudway, said, "Courage, madam! your husband will get up Hay Hill before summer ends; now that he has been able to swallow some nourishment." "Don't mind him, my dear," Tudway retorted, with a feeble smile, "one swallow does not not make a summer."

On another occasion, when some friends were discussing the niggardly patronage of the Duke of Somerset, then chancellor of the university, the professor convulsed them by saying, "the chancellor rides us all without a bit in our mouths."

Better still was his retort when once he was asked to give his opinion of a certain organist's skill. "He is a clever man, isn't he?" remarked the organist's champion, "and also he is a good man, quite pure and simple." "Oh, as to his simplicity," chimed in the doctor, "that is beyond doubt, for his left hand knoweth not what his right hand doeth."

At one of his recitals at St. James' Hall, Rubenstein was accosted in the entrance hall by an old lady, who addressed him thus: "Oh, Mr. Rubenstein, I am so glad to see you! I have tried in vain to purchase a ticket. Have you a seat you could let me have?" "Madam!" answered the great pianist, "there is but one seat at my disposal, and that you are perfectly welcome to." "A thousand thanks!" the delighted old lady exclaimed. "Where is it?" "At the piano," smilingly answered Rubenstein.

"Pardon me, sir," a shopkeeper once said to Rossini during a visit to his favorite provision store, "may I beg a great favor of you, that you will give me your photograph with a few words under it." "With pleasure," was the composer's smiling answer as he took a portrait from his pocket, and wrote on it the words, "To my stomach's best friend."

When Offenbach was asked why he had dismissed a clever valet, "Well, you see," he answered, "he always used to beat my clothes outside the door—and I never could get him to do it in time."

Dr. Arne, a famous composer in his day, was once asked to decide on the relative merits of two singers of more conceit than skill. After hearing both, he turned to one of the rivals and said, "You, sir, are the worst singer I ever heard in my life." "Then," exclaimed the other triumphantly, "I win." "No," came the crushing answer. "As for you you can't sing at all."

Equally disconcerting was Handel's rebuff to Dr. Maurice Greene, a composer of very mediocre church music, who invited his opinion on a solo anthem. On the following morning the doctor called to learn the great musician's verdict, but to his disappointment Handel made no reference whatever to the anthem. At last Greene, his patience exhausted, said, "Well, sir, my anthem—what do you think of it?" "Oh! year anthem! ah! I did think it wanted air." "Air?" repeated the mystified caller. "Yes, sir," replied Handel; "and so I did hang it out of de vindow."

When Rousseau produced his "Devin du Village" the public hooted it off the stage, and, as if this treatment were not enough, the members of the band crowned the ignominy of the composer by hanging him in effigy at the door of the theatre. On hearing of this outrage Rousseau added oil to the already fierce fire by saying, "Well, I don't wonder that they should hang me, after having so long tortured me."

Of Cooke, a once famous composer, the following amusing story is told. On one occasion, when he was asked by a bumptious lawyer in court, "What is musical accent?" he answered, "My terms for teaching music are a guinea a lesson." "Never mind what your terms are," continued the counsel angrily. "I want you to explain to his lordship and the jury what is 'musical accent.'" "Very well," replied the composer, "musical accent is emphasis laid on a certain note, just as you would lay stress on any word when speaking, in order to make yourself better understood. Let me give you an illustration. If I were to say that you are a donkey, the accent would be on 'donkey,' but if, instead, I said, 'you are a donkey,' it rests on you, sir, and I have no doubt the gentlemen of the jury will corroborate me."

Equally ready-witted was one of Mozart's pupils, called Kelly, who, finding little gold in his music, took to the more profitable selling of wine, and boldly proclaimed himself, in tribute to his changed character, "Michael Kelly, Composer of Wine and Importer of Music."

ORIGIN OF A NOTED PHRASE.

"I'd Never Allow the Constitution to Come Between Friends."

In one session of the legislature the New York city Democratic representatives were split into two camps, and there were two rivals for leadership. One of these was a thoroughly good hearted, happy-go-lucky person who was afterward for several years in congress. He had been a local magistrate and was called judge. He was always willing to vote for any other member's bill himself, and he regarded it as narrow minded for any one to oppose one of his bills, especially if the opposition was upon the ground that it was unconstitutional.

On one occasion he had a bill to appropriate money with obvious impropriety for the relief of some miscreant whom he styled "one of the honest yeomanry of the state." When I explained to him that it was clearly unconstitutional he answered, "Me friend, the constitution don't touch little things like that," and then added, with an ingratiating smile, "Anyhow, I'd never allow the constitution to come between friends."

At the time I was looking over the proofs of Mr. Bryce's "American Commonwealth," and I told him the incident. He put it into the first edition of the "Commonwealth." Whether it is in the last edition or not I cannot say. —From "Theodore Roosevelt—An Autobiography."

FATHER OF PSYCHOLOGY.

Theory of Dr. David Hartley, the Famous English Philosopher.

The first attempt to explain psychological phenomenon on physiological principles was made by Dr. David Hartley, the English philosopher, who was born in the year 1705. In his great work, "Observations on Man—His Frame, His Duty and His Expectations," published in 1749 after patient investigation covering sixteen years, he elaborated his epochal theory.

By the development of his law of association and chiefly by the law of transference he accounted for all the phenomena of the mental constitution. According to him, the white medullary substance of the brain, spinal marrow and the nerves proceeding from them, is the immediate instrument of sensation and motion. When a sensation has been frequently experienced it acquires a tendency to repeat itself spontaneously.

Ideas are but these repetitions or relics of sensation and in their turn recall other ideas. Thus the sight of an apple recalls an idea of its taste, and this recalls other associated ideas. In this way Hartley accounts for all human emotions.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Goldsmith's Actor.

Lord Nugent was one evening very eloquent to Goldsmith in praise of M. (a bad actor). "But, my lord," said Goldsmith, "you must allow he treads the stage very ill—he waddles."

"Waddles?" said Lord Nugent.

"Yes, he waddles like a goose. Why, you know we call him Goose M. Well, and then, you know, when he endeavors to express strong passion he bellows."

"Bellows?" said Lord Nugent.

"To be sure he does—bellows like a bull. Why, we call him Bull M. Well, then," continued Goldsmith, pursuing his triumph, "his voice breaks, and he croaks."

"Croaks?" said Lord Nugent.

"Why, the fellow croaks like a frog. We call him Frog M."

"But M. is a good actor."

"Why, yes," said Goldsmith, "barring the goose and the bull and the frog and a few other things I could mention, and, not wishing to speak ill of my neighbors, I will allow M. is a good actor."—"Memoirs of the Earl of Nugent."

Sundials.

A sundial consists of two parts, the style or gnomon, usually the edge of a plate of metal, made parallel to the earth's axis, and pointing toward the pole, and the dial plane, which may be of any hard substance and on which are marked the directions of the shadow for the several hours of the day, their halves, quarters, etc.

Dials are given different names, according to the positions which they are constructed to occupy. The dial is called a horizontal dial when the dial plane is on the plane of the horizon; a vertical dial when perpendicular to that plane. A dial whose plane is parallel to the equator is called an equinoctial dial. There are also north dials, south dials, east dials, west dials, polar dials, declining dials, etc.—Chicago Tribune.

NOVA SCOTIA'S DYKES.

Marshes of the Bay of Fundy Unparalleled In Canada.

Around the Bay of Fundy, the coast water to the northwest of Nova Scotia, lie extensive tracts of alluvial land which have been reclaimed from the sea by means of great dykes. When the French came to Nova Scotia early in the seventeenth century they found great areas of bottom land along the banks of the streams emptying into the Bay of Fundy. These lands were covered with water at every tide. The French began reclaiming the land by building dykes, and this work was continued by their English successors. The land thus made available for agriculture, and called "dyked marsh," contains in some instances 80 feet of soil free entirely from stones.

This soil is composed of inorganic red mud brought in by strong tidal currents, of alluvial sediment consisting of the drainage of the uplands, and of putrescent vegetable matter and other particles deposited by the rivers flowing into the bay. The action of currents and the unceasing motion of the tides agitate and disturb this mass, and thus diffuse it equally on all sides; but at the mouths of the rivers it accumulates to a great thickness. The fresh waters there meet with the resistance of the ocean and are in a great measure arrested in their progress. During the temporary stagnation thus created the insoluble matter in the waters subsides rapidly and forms a rich and deep bed. The water of the bay near these rivers is not only discolored but actually turbid with the great quantity of matter held in solution. If one supposes that this process has continued for the 2,000 years during which it is caluclated the globe has undergone no material physical revolution, one can easily explain the acknowledged excellence of marsh soil when reclaimed from the ocean.

These tracts are equal, if not superior, in fertility to the celebrated Scottish carses of Gowrie, Falkirk, and Stirling, and to the water-formed lands in England which border on the many rivers emptying themselves into the Humber. There are a great many thousand acres of this description in Nova Scotia at Windsor, Newport Falmouth, Horton, Cornwallis, Annapolis, Londonderry, and Parrsboro, and at the head of the Bay of Fundy seventy thousand acres in one body, all of which have been won from the sea, and are preserved from it now by regular lines of embankment.

In its natural state this land produces a strong, coarse, aquatic grass, but when enclosed by dykes and well drained it grows magnificent crops of hay and grain. Root crops will grow in this soil, but not to the best advantage. The tracts also afford rich pasturage and are used for this purpose. The well-cultivated portions yield the usual upland English hay grasses, which become very luxuriant but not rank, producing from two to three tons of the best of hay to the acre. In less well-drained places coarser grasses grow, but these, too, are of good value. No fertilizers of any sort are used, and the only cultivation consists in an occasional plowing, on an average once in ten or fifteen years, when a single crop of oats is grown, after which the land is brought at once into grass again. This system has been pursued on many of these marsh farms for 150 years. When the soil has lost its fertility by exhausting crops, its powers of production are renewed by letting in the salt water for two or three seasons.

Origin of Famous Phrase.

Some years ago the late Rev. John Ambrose, D.D., an Anglican clergyman greatly beloved for his interest in the poor and afflicted, caused considerable excitement throughout Nova Scotia by writing a series of letters to the newspapers denouncing the system in vogue in the County of Digby, where he labored, of farming out the poor. The municipality at that time sustained no poorhouse or poor farm, but the unfortunate poor were auctioned off as "help" to farmers and others. Dr. Ambrose characterized this as "white slavery," and this may have been the origin of the term now applied to another abuse. His denunciations of the "traffic," as he termed it, compelled the authorities to act, and Digby County now cares for its indigent poor in a more humane and Christian manner.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Thoughtful Quail.

The tourist who was anxious for game entered a western Texas hotel, paused and looked around. Then he quietly approached the desk and addressed the proprietor.

"Any quail about this neighborhood?"

"Quail!" echoed the proprietor, with an indulgent smile. "They have become so numerous around here that they are a nuisance. The cook complains that she can't throw a piece of toast out of the kitchen window but four or five fat quails fight to see which one shall get on it."—Lippincott's.

Sharpening a Pocketknife.

Cutlers have certain rules for sharpening razors, pocketknives, etc. "A razor," said one of the craft, "must be laid flat on the hone, because it is hollow ground and requires a fine edge. But a pocketknife requires a stiff edge, and the moment you lay it flat on a stone, so as to touch the polished side, you injure the edge. It must be held at an angle of twenty to twenty-five degrees and have an edge similar to a chisel."

PUTTING ON THE "LID."

Western Cities Are Acquiring the Closed Sabbath Habit.

Residents of parts of Ontario accustomed to extreme limitations in what they may buy on the Sabbath, and to the idea of possible penalties for a fracture of the law, in however minor a respect, are sometimes surprised when they find that in Winnipeg and the majority of other places in the Western Provinces it is not impossible to secure some of the necessities and a few of the luxuries of life during that part of the week delegated to spiritual pursuits. To be sure, there is now a tendency towards a more strict enforcement of the law, and in Calgary the other Sunday a young lady with a most unbearable toothache was mightily surprised when she found that her druggist wouldn't sell her anything for its alleviation — he was afraid of prosecution. It is probable that the authorities of the provinces consider that they are enforcing the law to as great an extent as is justified by public opinion, for the fact remains that the average western city is not as straight-laced in what might be perhaps termed the minor moralities as most of the eastern cities.

In Winnipeg drug stores it is possible, for instance, to buy on a Sunday that which may be purchased on Monday and no questions asked, though there have been suggestions lately that they be restricted to the sale of drugs and positive necessities. This proposition met with immediate opposition from druggists, who claimed that they could not afford to keep their establishments open for the sale of a few articles only, and the question has not been settled. No difficulty is ever experienced in securing cigarettes or cigars or candies from most any of the thousand-and-one restaurants, big and little, and the family who wait for Sunday before buying their fresh fruit are not likely to go fruitless for their Sunday supper. Instances have even been known where meat and bread and other groceries have been procured without any subterfuge at provision stores out of the centre of the city. These things are taken for granted, and, in the opinion of a good many people, do not involve any slackening in the observance of the Sabbath. Churches are as well attended as in the east, the liquor laws are kept, and there is no reason for believing that Winnipeg is not as moral a city—in the sense in which that word is usually applied—as any other of its size. Some of the moving-picture shows gave Sunday entertainments on one Sunday early in the year, the receipts from collections going to the Dayton flood sufferers. The proprietors were prosecuted, and the case is still in the courts, with no public interest whatever in the outcome. Sunday evening band concerts are given in a couple of the theatres after the church hour.

The tendency, however, as stated, is towards the shutting down of Sunday buying and selling, and in Victoria, "blue laws" of the time of Charles II. have recently been invoked in this connection. So it is possible that the Westerner will yet find it as difficult to get his Sunday shoeshine as his eastern brother, and will have to take the precaution of buying his Sunday paper on Saturday, and will do without his Sunday smoke unless he remembers it beforehand.

Sufficient Unto the Day.

Rev. J. E. Starr, the Juvenile Commissioner of Toronto, whose untimely death will be sincerely mourned by thousands all over Canada, earned his appointment to the official position which he occupied by a lifetime of devotion to the working out of the problem of the neglected child. His unvarying kindness to children brought him many interesting experiences, some pathetic and some humorous, of which the following is an example. One day when driving in a cab through "The Ward" in Toronto, when he was pastor of the Elm Street Methodist Church, Mr. Starr invited several ragged children to ride with him. One of them was a little colored boy, and this lad Mr. Starr placed beside himself. After driving a block or so Mr. Starr asked:

"Well, my son, are you enjoying this ride?"

"Oh, yes, sah," answered the child in his soft drawl.

"Art you a Christian?" was Mr. Starr's next question.

"Yes, sah; I'se a Christian."

"Well, are you a Methodist?" continued the minister.

"Oh, no, sah; I'se a niggah, and that's bad enough," was the child's unexpected answer.—Toronto Saturday Night.

Convinced His Critic.

Arthur Hawkes, of Toronto, who recently contested South Lanark on a Canada-first platform, is telling with considerable satisfaction of an incident in that campaign.

It concerns a Canadian voter of the fourth generation who told Hawkes he was a "buttinski" who shouldn't interfere in Canadian affairs. Whereupon the candidate had replied that he had been in Canada since 1885 and had four children, whereas his critic had but two children. And while his (Mr. Hawkes') mother had never seen Canada, and is now in her 88th year, in her Kentish home, yet has contributed 44 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren to the Dominion.

His critic tendered an apology.

Salmon Were Cheap.

During the recent salmon run in British Columbia waters salmon were sold at retail in Vancouver shops for 15 cents apiece, the fish averaging five pounds dressed.

Cows Are Improving.

J. A. Ruddick in a recent address declared that the annual production of milk per cow in Canada had increased from 3,350 pounds in 1900 to 3,805 pounds in 1910.

London painters ask 21 cents per hour.

Chinese Bandits Massacred Hundreds When Liuan Was Sacked.

PEKIN, Feb. 23.—It is estimated here that the bandits led by "White Wolf," massacred 1,300 men, women and children when they sacked Liuan Chow, province of Ngan Hwei, on Jan. 29. On that occasion they murdered Father Rich, a French Jesuit missionary, and captured and held two others for ransom.

An army of 25,000 Chinese troops is now converging on "White Wolf's" strongly entrenched position in the vicinity of Chang Yang Kwan, further to the north in the same province. "White Wolf" there has a force of 2,000 bandits, half of whom are armed with modern rifles.

The opinion is expressed here that unless the opportunity is seized of exterminating "White Wolf" and his followers, they will form the centre of another rebellion. The troops, however, show a strong disinclination to come to close quarters with the bandits.

DEPOT IS DESTROYED.

Hartford, Conn., Loses Union Station In Fire.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 23—Fire broke out in the Union Station of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad here Saturday afternoon, and in a few minutes the structure appeared to be doomed. The station is of considerable dimensions.

The station was wrecked, all train service interrupted, and everyone driven out. The fire apparatus was delayed in reaching the scene owing to the deep snow in the streets.

The fire swept its way with remarkable rapidity. Not many minutes elapsed before the train platforms, which were above the main floor level of the street and station, were ablaze, and the roof of the main structure had fallen in. The station was first occupied in May, 1889.

The loss by the fire is roughly placed at $250,000.

Pasteur's Modesty.

In 1882, when the international congress of medicine first met in London, Pasteur was the most distinguished of the foreign delegates present. With his usual anxiety to avoid publicity, he came over accompanied only by his son and son-in-law and took rooms in Clarges street. For ten days before his arrival invitations were addressed to the famous Frenchman at the bureau of the congress, but no one called for these, and he was not seen till he entered St. James' hall to attend the opening meeting. One of the stewards was leading him to the place reserved for him on the platform when he was recognized, and immediately cheers rang through the hall. Quite unconscious that these were meant for him, he said apologetically: "No doubt the Prince of Wales is arriving. I ought to have come sooner."

Bargain Hunting.

An amusing story is told in connection with the early days of Sir J. B. Robinson, the South African millionaire. He was crossing the Vaal river in 1869, looking for diamonds. He asked the natives if they had seen any "pretty stones," and at last he found a man who had a diamond. It was a small stone, and the prospector offered him £10 for it, but he refused to part with it. He increased his offer to £12, but still the man refused.

"What will you take for it?" he was asked.

"Twenty goats," was the firm reply; "nothing less."

"I sent off to the nearest farm," says Sir J. B. Robinson in telling the story, "and bought twenty goats for £7 10s. and so got possession of my first diamond."—London Globe.

Lord Wimborne Dead.

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Ivor Bertie Guest, First Baron Wimborne, died yesterday. He was born in 1835. In 1868 he married Lady Cornelia Spencer-Churchill, daughter of the seventh Duke of Marlborough.

Lord Wimborne owned 83,000 acres, and his heir is Lord Ashley St. Ledgers, who organized the polo team, which will attempt to recover the international cup now held in the United States.

Elusive Emmeline Escapes.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Women's Political and Social Union claims that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, escaped last night from the house in Campden Hill square, aided by a bodyguard of her supporters, after a scuffle with the police. It was from a window of the Campden Hill square house that Mrs. Pankhurst made a speech nearly two weeks ago attacking the Government.

The Organ.

Like most important inventions, that of the organ is veiled in mystery. The invention of the organ has been attributed to Ctesibius, a barber of Alexandria, about 250 B. C.; also to the celebrated Archimedes, 220 B. C. It is certain that the organ was brought to Europe from the eastern or Greek empire and was applied to religious devotions in churches about A. D. 650.

It Is Different Now.

When the first Pullman car was put into operation on our railways the system of bookkeeping was very crude. The conductor collected the fare from the passengers and before he turned the money in to the company collected his own salary from the revenues. No receipts were given, no records kept.

THE GAS BILL ONLY ONE OF MANY AGGRAVATIONS FOR BOWSER

SEES A BLACK CONSPIRACY.

With Mrs. B. Doing Her Best to Destroy Home and Happiness—Nothing Left but to Consult His Lawyer—Mrs. B.'s Sensational Acknowledgments.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.]

MRS. BOWSER was looking out the window as Mr. Bowser dropped off the car. There was a certain hitch to his legs and a certain bump to his shoulders which meant mischief. He kicked the gate open and kicked it shut, and there was a stony glare in his eyes as he unlocked the front door.

"Are you ill, dear?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

"Ill?" he growled. "The wonder is that I am not in my grave!"

"Have you got one of your old fashioned headaches?"

"Old fashioned bosh! I suppose hash is ready, but I don't want any. You can go along and eat by yourself!"

"Shan't I send for the doctor?"

"Send for nothing and nobody!" he shouted as he passed on to the sitting room and sat down on the lounge.

He Threatens to Leave Home.

Mrs. Bowser knew that it was useless to persist, and she went to her dinner alone. When she had finished and returned Mr. Bowser was standing before the fireplace, with his arm on the mantel. He looked at her for thirty seconds as a lion looks at his prey and then said:

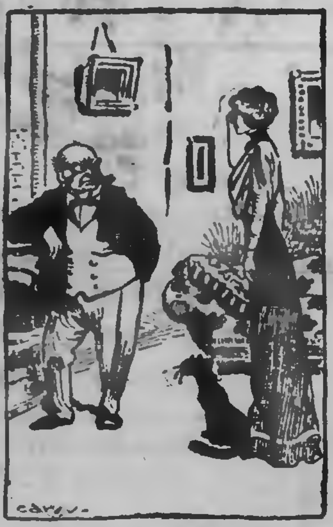
"Woman, things have got to go different around this house or I leave it!"

"What's the matter now?" she asked.

"Ten thousand things are the matter! Who took a sledgehammer and broke that pane of glass in the front window?"

"Why, you cracked it the day you were hanging a picture and fell off the stepladder."

"Never! Never hung a picture or fell off the stepladder in my life. In order to spite me some one has deliberately destroyed a pane of glass that cost $25! Who has been tearing our fence down since I left the house this morning?"



"AS A LION LOOKS AT HIS PREY."

"Tearing the fence down?"

"I said tearing the fence down, Mrs. Bowser. You probably spent half the day pulling at it and encouraging a mob of boys to create $100 damages."

"How foolish of you, Mr. Bowser! If you are ill let me make you some toast and tea or send for the doctor."

Sheds Light on His Grouch.

"Here is the gas bill," he said as he took it from the mantel and waved it around his head. "A gas bill for $3 for the last month!"

"Yes. It came today," she replied.

"It came today, did it? Came today! Three dollars for last month! Mrs. Bowser, you couldn't think of any other way to yank the last dollar I had on earth out of my wallet, and so you deliberately turn on the gas every day for a week or two and let it go to waste!"

"I'm sorry the bill is so high," she quietly replied. "But I couldn't help it. It is a dollar lower than it was last month."

"You left two burners going at full blast all one night."

"Never! Never!"

"Then a burglar got in."

"That's nonsense. You sat up one night to finish a pirate story."

"Mrs. Bowser, it is absolutely criminal to bring such a charge against a man who toils from daylight to darkness to make a living for his family."

"What's the matter with the carpet? I see you looking at it."

"Moths, Mrs. Bowser!" he whispered, with tragic gesture. "They have grown fat and lazy feeding on my carpets. See that hole, and that, and that?"

"There isn't a moth in this house, and I defy you to find one," she spiritedly replied. "This carpet is beginning to wear, but I've no money to buy a new one."

Putting Mrs. B. in Her Place.

"Don't talk back to me, Mrs. Bowser! When I say a thing is so, that ends it."

Mrs. Bowser walked over and sat down by a back window and picked up a newspaper. Something had gone wrong with Mr. Bowser at the office, or his stomach or liver was upset.

"And look at this mirror!" he went

Canal Zone Game.

As Gatun lake is the only large body of water in the canal zone it is expected that it will attract many birds on migratory journeys as well as become a habitation for native species. Along the Chagres river there is an abundance of small animals, and if the isthmian commission persists in its purpose to protect the game the country along the water course and the lake may become a considerable reservation.—Christian Science Monitor.

Stupendous Automobile Output.

The automobile manufactories of Detroit, Mich., have a total annual capacity of 400,000 automobiles, are capitalized at over $100,000,000 and employ 120,000 people, the weekly payroll being over $1,500,000. The total value of automobiles and automobile supplies produced by Detroit in 1913 exceeds $650,000,000.—Engineering News.

New Zealand's Great Geyser.

A geyser of immense proportions has been discovered at Rotomahond, New Zealand. A mass of boiling water half an acre in extent rises in a great dome, from which a column of water and stones shoots upward 300 feet, while immense columns of steam ascend as far as can be seen.

THE BLESSING OF MOTHERHOOD

Healthy Mothers and Children Make Happy Homes

Motherhood is woman's highest sphere in life. It is the fruition of her dearest hopes and greatest desires; yet thousands of noble women through some derangement have been denied this blessing.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong. This is evidenced by the following letters which are genuine and truthful:

London, Ont.—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking your famous medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before my baby was born I was so ill I could not stand long or walk any distance. I had to lie down nearly all the time. After I took your medicine I felt like a new woman. I could work from morning till night and was happy and well. I certainly think it relieves pain at childbirth and recommend it to every woman who is pregnant. You may use this testimonial if you like. It may help some other woman."—Mrs. FRANK CORBIN, 132 Adelaide St., London, Ont.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was ailing all the time and did not know what the matter was. I wanted a baby but my health would not permit it. I was nervous, my side ached and I was all run down. I heard that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good and took the medicine. I have now a beautiful baby and your Compound has helped me in every way."—Mrs. J. J. STEWART, 290 Humboldt St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Earache.

Don't ignore a child's complaint of earache, especially if it occurs frequently. Pain in the ear is always a danger signal. Have the child's ears, nose and throat examined by a competent physician.

Don't "box" or pull the ears as punishment.

Don't neglect an ear in which the hearing is failing. The trouble may be cured or kept from getting worse before complete deafness sets in.

Don't neglect adenoids, a common cause of defective hearing.

Don't force disease into the ears by blowing the nose too hard while the nostrils are being held partly closed. Always blow the nose gently, one nostril at a time.

Don't pick the ears or put instruments of any kind, such as toothpicks, hairpins, ear spoons and the like, into the canal of the ear.

Don't try to wash, clean or remove the wax from any farther inside than the entrance of the ear canal. The interior of the canal is self cleansing, and nature will resent any interference except by the skilled hand of the physician.

Makes Gloves X Ray Proof.

M. Menard, chief of the radiographic and electrotherapeutic department of Cochin hospital, Paris, and M. Cousin, chief pharmacist of the same hospital, have succeeded in impregnating rubber with the salts of heavy metals, such as lead, in quantity great enough to make the rubber impervious to X rays. With the impregnated rubber they have made gloves which will prevent the hands of operators from being burned while administering the X rays.

OFFICE BOY'S INCOME TAX.

my income tax it is tew laff
I make two dollars and a half
And every cent of it uv course flows unobstructed from the source beside that pure and slender fount no grim collector keeps account

But free from evil and mischance
it seeks the pocket uv my pants within its pools where heaven smiles

no lawyer practices his wiles
No labors tew defeat the ends of government around the bends

among its wet and mossy stones
no poor accountant works and groans
And all is beautiful beside the sweep and chatter of its tide

tew eagles sailing overhead
It seems a tiny silver thread
Emerging out of pleasant scenes and disappearing in my jeans sum day the office will no doubt explore that source and dig it out

But getting two bucks and a half at just this time it is tew laff

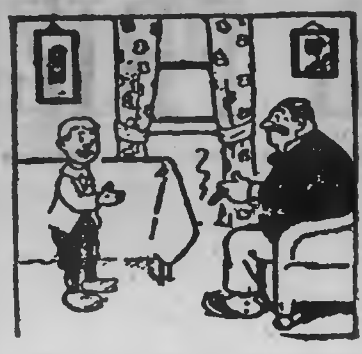
Branded.



Dad (meaningly)—Who is the laziest boy in your class, Willie?

Willie—I don't know.

Dad—I should think you would know. Who is it sits idly in his seat and watches the rest instead of working himself?

Willie—The teacher.—St. Paul News.

Going the Limit.

A clever lawyer succeeded in winning his client's case and getting the better of a rather bumptious barrister. The latter couldn't conceal his chagrin and, meeting his victorious opponent in the smokeroom of the hotel at which they were staying, he remarked in a loud and spiteful tone:

"Sir, is there any case too dirty for you or any criminal so much dyed in crime that you won't defend?"

"No," said the other in a quiet tone. "What have you been doing now?"—New York Journal.

In Her Glory.

A woman visited a friend whose husband thought of moving out into the country.

"Getting back to the land is all well and good," she said, "but could you be contented to live in a little place?"

"Yes," replied her friend, "I think I could if I were the only one there who owned an auto."—New York Times.

An Imaginary Conversation.

He—Do you think you love me well enough to be my wife?

She—Yes, George.

He—Thank you. I only asked to ascertain how you felt on the subject, so in case I should ever want to marry I should know where to come.—Boston Transcript.

Feminine Perception.

He—I was only at a friend's, my dear, playing some games.

She—What kind of games?

He—Oh, harmless ones—guessing and holding hands—

She—Yes; poker hands.—Baltimore American.

An Unfortunate Confidence.

"That fellow certainly is a dub."

"For why?"

"I told him I bossed my wife, and he went and told my wife."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Poorly Dressed.

"He says he's boss—likes to show his wife that he's clothed in authority."

"All I can say is that he's a pretty poor dresser."—Town Topics.

THE KAISER'S TREAT.

What an Invitation to His "Bier-abend" Really Means.

Kaiser Wilhelm occasionally gives a "bier-abend," an evening of informal entertainment, when beer is the only quencher of thirst. But an invitation to the kaiser's "bier-abend" is paramount to a royal command to "bring your check book!" It is the emperor's way of raising money. All the money for the recently opened Kaiser Wilhelm Research institute is supposed to have been raised in this way. A certain well known merchant prince had won the royal favor and was invited to drink beer at the palace. He found a group of wealthy persons around the table.

The emperor explained what he wanted and allowed the newcomer to fill out the first check. He began with $1,250, and the slip was carried around the head of the table for approbation. The kaiser tore it to pieces. "If you start with that sum they will only be paying $12.50 at the end," he said. So the merchant prince wrote out a check for $75,000.

This was approved, and the money the emperor wished for his pet charity was raised. Soon after the merchant prince received another invitation to drink beer at the palace. This time some one else had to write out the first check, but it cost him a good sum, anyway.

Quite soon another invitation came, and the merchant prince was beginning to feel that his hobnobbing with royalty was getting to be too expensive a luxury. But an invitation from a king is as binding as a summons, so he went and found an anxious group of charity supporters sitting around the table. The kaiser had not come, and the atmosphere was not exactly jovial. The emperor entered, beaming. "Good evening, gentlemen!" he said enthusiastically. "Tonight you will not have to pay for your beer!"—Raymond E. Swing in Chicago News.

The Home Grown Brand.

Life is not all sunshine.
  Often there are days
We cannot discover
  Any warming rays.
But when storm clouds gather
  And obscure the sky
You can make a little
  If you'll only try.

With a bit of practice
  You can make a grade
That would in its working
  Satisfy the trade.
But if you are busy
  Make enough, I pray.
Just for home consumption
  On a dreary day.

No one, you have noticed,
  Ever made a hit
With a grouch that didn't
  Know enough to quit,
And a crusty manner
  Doesn't put you right
With some worth while people
  Who for you will fight.

Try some handmade sunshine.
  There is no expense
Needed in the making;
  Only common sense.
Test it for a season,
  See what you have missed,
And I think you'll have it
  Always on the list.

Fulfilled the Contract.

"You said you would love me till the stars grew old," sobbed the young wife after their first quarrel.

"Did I say that?" asked the hard hearted one.

"Those are just your words."

"Well, the stars are old now, ain't they? I see by the papers they have been loafing around in the sky for several thousand years."

Effective.

"You rather got your skirts soiled in that last scandal, didn't you?"

"Yes; wonder how I can efface the spots."

"I'll tell you how."

"Go ahead."

"Give them a gasoline bath"—

"Yes."

"And then set a match to them."

All Others Closed.

"Hello, Jones! Where are you going this time of night?"

"Where should I be going?"

"I don't know."

"Well, I am going home."

"Well, why are you going home?"

"Where else can I go?"

WITNESSES TELL OF DEATH OF ROBINSON CHILDREN

Action For $5,000.00 Being Heard at The Spring Assizes.

At the Spring Assizes yesterday no defence was offered in the Wm. J. Kearns vs. H. F. Jackson case, in which the plaintiff, Kearns, claims through his counsel, S. T. Medd, of Hall, Medd & Davidson, $3,000 damages for false arrest and imprisonment.

Wm. J. Kearns, the first witness, said he was arrested and taken to the Police Station and had to remain locked up for twelve hours. The charge of obtaining $20 under false pretences against him was dismissed. There was no justification in Jackson charging him with obtaining money under false pretences.

Detective Newhall said he executed the warrant issued for the arrest of Kearns.

Mr. Medd, in addressing the jury, pointed out the position in which the plaintiff had been placed and of the only recourse open to him, that of obtaining damages.

The jury retired and after thirty minutes deliberation returned a verdict for the plaintiff, placing the amount of damages at $500.

The Jury is as follows:
E. J. Henry, City.
John McConkey, Otonabee.
R. Moncrief, Otonabee.
J. Lancashire, Otonabee.
H. Melville, Belmont.
R. Thompson, Asphodel.
Wm. Junkins, Harvey.
A. Holmes, City.
Thos. Goselin, City.
Thos. Doughty, Dummer.
M. Kerr, Otonabee.
W. Crowe, Ennismore.

One feature of the cuort was the interest evinced in the proceedings and the exceptionally large crowd present. Over forty men summoned as jurymen lined the south side of the court room.

Action for $5,000.

In the case of John Robinson, claiming damages from the corporation of Havelock, for $5,000, in connection with the death of his three children, who lost their lives by falling into a sandpit owned by the corporation of Havelock, Mr. Kerr, counsel for the defendants, contended that it was not a case for a jury.

Mr. O'Connell, counsel for the defendants, disagreed on the question contending it was a case for a jury. The latter contention was upheld by His Honor, and the case proceeded.

Scene of Accident.

Mr. O'Connell described the gravel pit and scene of accident and also the circumstances connected with the death of the three children of his client, John Robinson, who claimed $5,000 damages.

Mr. John Robinson, the plaintiff, called, gave evidence to the effect that he lived, until recently, at Havelock. He was thirty-eight years of age and had six children, the eldest being a girl ten years old. Three of the children were killed by the collapse of an over-head ledge of a gravel pit, about one quarter of a mile from his place of residence, last August. This pit was the property of the corporation of the village of Havelock. The area of the pit covered a little better than an acre. It had been fenced on the front side but the fence had been destroyed or else removed. There was no fence however, on the side where the accident took place. Mr. Gleason was in charge of the pit. Part of the pit was surrounded some time ago by a wire fence. That was when Mr. Green was in charge of it.

Speaking as to the danger of the pit, witness expressed himself that it was a dangerous spot.

"Did you ever see any children playing near the pit?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"I have seen children at the pit."

"What constituted the danger?"

"Why, the overhead ledges and many small caves."

"What means of access to the pit were there?" enquired Mr. Justice Kelly.

The witness outlined the plan of entrance to the pit as by a sloping driveway from the highway.

The formation of the vicinity was practically a hill.

Cross-examined by Mr. Kerr.

Witness said he found his children covered by heavy substance

"About how thick was this substance?" enquired Mr. Kerr.

"I should judge about thirteen or fourteen inches."

"How high was this particular place?"

"I certainly could not say, as I did not examine it closely."

"You have worked in this pit?"

"Yes," replied witness, stretching himself with a yawn.

"Did you tell a councillor that you had sent them out to play?"

"No, I certainly did not."

"Did you send them out to play?"

"No."

"The children had been playing at a neighbors?"

"I believe so."

"Do you know where they were?"

"Well, no."

"The danger of the pit did not occur to your mind until the accident?"

"It was much stronger after the accident."

"You have been a careful father?"

"I hope so."

"You have warned them to keep away from danger."

"I warned them to keep away from the railway track."

Witness admitted he never warned his children to keep away from the pit.

"What would be your ordinary wage?"

"From $2 to $2.50 per day."

"You don't get steady work?"

"I get all I want to do."

"How much a year?"

"I don't know."

"It was rather hard to keep six children?"

"It took all I could make."

"How about three?"

"It takes just the same, it all goes."

"Did you tell Dr. Kindred, no one was to blame?"

"I don't know, but when you go out and find your three children dead and a woman sick in the house you're liable to say anything."

Dr. Kindred, Reeve of Havelock, for the past two years and practicing physcian, said he received notice of the accident. The gravel pit in question was owned by the corporation.

A man named Gleason generally was in charge of the pit. He often looked after other little affairs of labor for the corporation. There was never anything but a verbal report regarding the removal of sand from the pit.

To Mr. Kerr witness said there had not, during his capacity as reeve, come to his knowledge any danger or apprehension of such in connection with the pit. He thought that Mr. Robinson had remarked to him the day of the accident, that nobody was to blame.

Snapshots of the scene of the accident were produced, but were vigorously objected to by Mr. O'Connell.

The witness said the pictures were a fairly accurate production of the spot where the accident took place.

Dr. Kindred advanced the theory that the pit was not dangerous. Havelock was considered a railroad centre with a population to the extent of 1700.

"When was the photograph taken?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

"A few days after the accident."

"Do you know if there were some changes made at the pit after the accident?"

"Well, no."

Witness admitted that part of the pit might have been straightened around.

"In any event, it would change conditions slightly?"

"Very likely."

After being kindly spoken to concerning the definition of the oath, Lilly Robinson, a cute little child of nine, evinced considerable interest in the proceedings and answered the court. To Mr. O'Connell she vividly described her first visit to the pit, when her brother and two sisters were killed.

"Do you mind being there?" asked Mr. O'Connell.

At this point the child remembered the awful circumstances and death of her own brother and sisters, broke down and had to be removed from the box by her parents.

Wm. Plunkett, a resident living adjacent to the pit, stated he executed the deed for the purchase of the pit by the council. It consisted of about three acres, more or less. This was three years old. At the time of sale, it was completely fenced and very little gravel removed from it. The fences collapsed after a year or so through undermining of the pit by the corporation.

The nine-year-old witness recalled, told how she in company with her brother and sisters and another companion, went to the gravel pit, the day of the accident and how the pit without warning or apprehension of danger of any kind, collapsed, killing the three children.

Walter Fair, a C.P.R. fireman, told of the recovery of the dead bodies of the children from the gravel pit. He had often seen the children of the community engaged in playing there. From personal observance the pit was overhung by heavy boulders, or ledges, making it very dangerous.

This Morning's Session

Wm. Parcels, a resident of Havelock, described the vicinity of the pit. He had often seen children playing around the pit. He had also seen children go to the pit in company with Gleason and play there. He distinctly remembered this instance happening several times. He worked in the pit and was engaged in working there on the 11th day of August, day before the accident. Witness was on the scene of the accident shortly after the children were killed.

To Mr. Kerr, witness said he was a nepwew of Robinson. He was, however, not sure whether he was a cousin of the children or not.

Lula Grills, an eleven-year-old companion of the three deceased children, described how she, in company with other playmates, had played at the gravel pit. Mr. Gleason had never warned her to keep them away.

NEW ARMOURIES AT OMEMEE TOTALLY DESTROYED BY FIRE, THIS MORNING

It is Believed That the Blaze Started in the Furnace Room

Omemee, Feb. 25.—The fine new Armouries opened last November by the Minister of Militia, were completely destroyed by fire early this morning. Only parts of the walls are standing.

It is thought that the fire originated in the furnace room. A class of instruction was held last night, but the members of the class left early.

Many of the villagers who did not hear the cries of fire were awakened and started by the explosions and discharge of the amunition stores in the building. Only the efforts of the volunteers could be brought to bear upon the flames and as a result there is now but little left of the building.

The High School and adjoining buildings in the danger zone were not damaged.

CRIME IN CANADA IS ON THE INCREASE

Increase in juvenile crime and the largest number of foreign offenders constitute the features of the annual report of criminal statistics just made public. In all Canada last year there were 20,168 charges, and 15,567 convictions. The year before there were 16,625 charges and 12,627 convictions. The increase of charges is 21.31 per cent and of convictions 23.25 per cent. Juvenile offenders increased 30 per cent in number. Ontario has the worst record, with 38.85 offenders per 100,000 population. Alberta has the best record with 1.84 per 100,000.

That the presence of the foreign-born is having an effect on the amount of crime is shown by the fact that of 21 convictions of murder during the year 17 were foreign-born. Of the 31 persons found guilty during the year of attempt to commit murder, 25 were born outside of Canada. This is still further shown in the general figures as to crime. The Canadian-born offenders represented 56.1 per cent. of the total; born in the British Isles, 19 per cent.; born in the United States, 7.6 per cent., and born in other foreign countries, 17.3 per cent. According to the last census the foreign born represent but 6.2 per cent. of the population, so that their amount of crime must be regarded as highest.

MR. AND MRS. OLVER WILL BE MISSED

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Olver, of Smith, has been the scene of some very enjoyable surprises during the past couple of weeks. Mr. Olver having disposed of his farm, has decided to remove to the city.

On the evening of the eleventh the teacher, Miss E. Garbutt, and pupils of Zion Public school, to the number of about thirty, came unexpectedly to their home; the girls providing cake and the boys' home-made candy in abundance. The evening was spent in games and other amusements after which luncheon was served, followed by three cheers for the Olvers The happy children then returned to their homes

Again on the eighteenth, the neighbours and friends honored the family by giving an oyster supper at their home. About forty guests were present on this occasion Again the happy hours soon sped in games, music, singing, speech-making and toast-giving.—Com.

The church was crowded, the congregation being representative of all denominations and creeds, this in itself being a striking tribute to the memory of the one who would no longer give his word of cheer and encouragement or add his sympathy in the hour of affliction.

HAULAGE TOO DEAR

Good Roads President Wants It Cut To One-Third

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—A reduction of the cost of haulage on Canadian roads from twenty-five to eight cents a ton, by their improvement, higher taxation of railways to provide money for the building of good highways and the forced contribution of automobiles to road repair funds to compensate the municipalities for the damage they did to roads, were some of the principal features of the annual address of N. Vermilyea, Belleville, president, at the opening of the twelfth annual meeting of the Ontario Good Roads Association in the York County buildings yesterday.

He said that there had been spent on railways in this country $681,000,000, while there had been spent on highways only $10,000,000. This meant that the middleman had 68 times as much spent for his benefit as he produced. Respecting railway taxation, he said he would like to see a little more of its in this country. Ontario with her 8,321 miles of railways collected in taxes each year from the companies only $873,000, while Michigan with her 9,200 miles, collected $4,377,000. That is, Ontario railways paid only $93 a mile, while Michigan paid $475 a mile. The ordinary taxes upon rail- than the taxes upon farm products. There is also a sharp line between the farmer and the automobilist, said he. The farmer builds roads, the automobilist comes along with his swift-moving machine and smashes them up, so he should be made to pay the damage.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE POOR WOMEN

Editor of The Review.

Sir,—The word "obey" is to remain in the marriage service and so the whole theory of human equality is bust, well! well! And "we are not to be allowed to have our policewoman." And this is notice to quit trying to get the vote. Women can go on looking pretty and thinking that they are running the world, but when it comes to the actual running, they are in the "also ran" class. Bonents and babies for the woman, but no tango, no votes, no say. Things are worse than ever and just when it was thought to be all over but the shouting, "obey" my sweet crayture, or I'll have to make ye, and quit writing appeals to the public in the papers.

CITIZEN.

"PEG O' MY HEART"

The Peterboro public are to have the opportunity of witnessing Oliver Morosco's production of "Peg O' My Heart", Laurette Taylor's marvelously successful triumph which is in its second year at the Cort Theatre, New York City, at the present time. Seldom if ever in the history of New York theatricals—and this means the theatricals of the United States—has a record been made such as this delightful J. Hartley Manner's comedy is making. New York cannot get enough of it. The same people witness it over and over again and the Cort Theatre is packed to the doors at each performance. Undoubtedly the play will break all records for New York runs, and thus doubly earn the title it already has—the greatest of American comedies.

Mr. Morosco, up to a few months ago, had never approved of second companies in any of his productions. However, the demand for "Peg O' My Heart" became so general all over the United States and Canada that he had to yield. New York insisted that Miss Taylor remain at the Cort, so there was nothing for the producer to do but organize other companies and satisfy the out-of-town demand for the comedy. Already six of these organizations are touring America and it isn't unlikely that there may be as many more. Everybody everywhere wants to see "Peg O' My Heart" and everybody is to be given a chance.

In being afforded the opportunity to see the performance of the Marion Dentler company, local theatregoers are particularly fortunate. Miss Dentler as "Peg", is perfectly cast, and her natural winsomeness and genuine acting ability makes her work in the role Miss Taylor created, a delight. This little actress was selected for the part of Mr. Morosco personally, and he considers her one of his coming stars. To see her as "Peg" is to love her. Surrounding the petite actress is a supporting company of exceptional merit, all of whom were engaged by the producer himself with a view of exactly suiting the temperament and acting style of little Miss Dentler.

Woman's Skull Was Fractured and She May not Recover

GARDEN HILL, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Thomas Bennett, residing about a half mile west of Garden Hill, is at her home in a very precarious condition, with slight hope held out for her recovery. His wife, according to Bennett's story, entered the shed unnoticed and in swinging the axe, Bennett struck her with great force on the head, making two large gashes and fracturing her skull. Dr. Beatty is in attendance and an investigation will be held.

Mrs. Bennett is twenty-five years of age and her husband five years her senior. They have four small children and Mrs. Bennett was soon again to become a mother.

If They Land in the Pound and Owner Does Not Pay

The Property Committee last night, decided on some further extensions to the garbage system and it was decided to charge the cost to the area covered. The whole city will contribute towards the cost and upkeep of the incinerator. Collections from the extended area will not start till the first of June.

The committee rescinded a previous motion and as a result the garbage system will remain in the hands of the committee. The Board of Works discovered that their proposed plan would not work this year. Hereafter the Police Chief will issue dog licenses instead of the City Clerk.

Any dog found running at large will be pounded. Unless claimed by owner within 48 hours, license procured, together with an additional charge of $1 for pounding, the animal will be destroyed, and fed to the incinerator.

THE SCUTTLING OF THE RATS.

LIBERAL JOURNALS are crying out against the report of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, because, as they affirm, it is hurting Canada's credit. They say the British investor is holding loans of money back which had practically been arranged. One Liberal paper, the Ottawa Free Press, prints the following, which it says is from the mouth of a Montreal manager of one of the biggest industries :—

"I am afraid the report is going to have a very bad effect on Canada's credit. The English capitalist is informed by a Royal Commission that many millions of dollars which he has loaned Canada for the building of a railway have been deliberately squandered among grafters. It makes him question the sanity and the general honesty of Canadians. He is now thinking over whether it would be advisable to place his investments elsewhere."

This same gentleman goes on to say that the publishing of these reports and comments thereon is "sheer insanity" from a commercial and financial point of view. There may be some truth in all this, and there may be no truth in it. British capitalists have not been altogether ignorant of the corruption which has been going on in this country and has had only too many illustrations of the bugling inefficiency of many of the business men of Canada, as well as among the Government officials. There was no need for a report to inform them of the state of things that existed, all kinds of rumors had been floating around about the railway contracts, and the report of the Commission merely spoke out loud what was being whispered in secret. The same thing might be said in regard to the Trent Canal Inquiry ; stories are passed from mouth to mouth which would entail a libel suit if they were published in a newspaper, but which if they are incorporated in a Government report will be accepted by the late Government supporters in silence.

There is no other way of cleaning up a country than by exposure ; the finest of all disinfectants are light and air—strong sunlight and good fresh air ! If Mr. Borden and his Gov. mean to oust the grafter and get down to clean, open and efficient business methods they will inspire investors with greater confidence in Canadian concerns and the country will be relaunched upon a still greater period of prosperity than we have yet known. British capital has been holding back through lack of confidence. This has been bred partly by past failures and losses, either through bad business methods or artificial booming and false statement. This loss of confidence is also in part due to a suspicion of disloyalty, or at least of unreliability among Canadians as regards the Empire, owing to the drawing back of the proffered aid to the British navy by the Senate.

The policy of Mr. Borden in business and in our relations with the Mother Country is one calculated to set Canada on a firm basis. All this "to do" and this squeaking at the light let in, is merely the scuttling of the rats, let them squeak and scuttle, we are well rid of them.

THE LAUREATE'S ENGLISH.

PERHAPS because there isn't much for a Poet Laureate to do, thinks the New York Tribune, Mr. Bridges has looked up a new "job." He is leading an effort to rescue the English language from slovenly tongues. He has enrolled Mr. Thomas Hardy and the editors of the Oxford English Dictionary, besides sundry Oxford professors, in "a society of scholars," for the "encouragement of the use of pure English."

Perhaps if a similar effort, remarks the Free Press, begun in this country a few years ago, had had a laureate to lead it, we should have heard something more of the project after the organizing throes were over. It can't be that we were found out not to need reforming after all. Dr. Bridges is going to attack the English for saying "neycher" for "nature," "chiune" for "tune," "powing" for "pouring," the omission of the "h" from "wheel" and "when." "He would send Englishmen to Ireland and Scotland to learn their 'r' and 'h,' says this editor, who, however, hasn't a great deal of encouragement to offer.

There has been a chorus of praise for the movement. And yet the very praise has indicated the confusion and difficulty with face these restorers. The English that Johnson spoke has been stated as the ideal before the reformers. Yet some critics have scoffed at the idea that Johnsonian pronunciation was ideal. Also the Oxford source of the movement has led to sharp comments upon the lax standard of pronunciation upheld by the Concise Oxford dictionary. That volume took pronunciation as its authors found it in every-day English speech, with some alarming results. Such versions as 'carry' for 'carriage,' 'mountin' for 'mountain,' 'jewll' for 'jewel,' and 'fored' for 'forehead,' were conspicuous.

"Altogether, we fear that Dr. Bridges is facing an almost insuperable task. The ways of tongues are unfortunately most difficult to change, even if you can agree on the standard to which they should conform. We wish him well. But the wells of English strike pretty deep—beyond the control of most societies of scholars, it has appeared in the past."

So far as the writing of English goes, even the Pall Mall Gazette doubts if much will be accomplished :

"The experience of various branches of everyday life require—even demand—the employment of jargon—medical, commercial, and so on. The standard of purity in writing can only be usefully held up before the eyes of the comparatively few who have the leisure and the capacity to write literary English.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE ?

A STORY COMES from Ottawa which makes sad reading and is scarcely believable in these days. Here it is :— "With both his feet badly frozen, Isaac Ouilette, a resident of Hull, worked for twenty-two days cutting ice on the Ottawa River, until he finally collapsed on Saturday night. Ouilette was shovelling snow for the Hull Electric Railway about the middle of last month when the extreme cold spell came and both his feet and both hands were severely frostbitten. By the use of home remedies he succeeded in restoring the circulation to his frost-bitten hands, he did not, however, succeed in doing any good to his feet, and not being able to afford a doctor he continued working. His job of shovelling snow having given out he took a job of cutting ice on the Ottawa River, and although obliged to walk always on his heels, he kept up the fight for a living until Saturday night, when he crawled to the Hull Police with both feet frozen stiff and almost falling off at the instep. Chief of Police Chevalier rushed the man to the Sacred Heart Hospital where he is being attended to. The doctors cannot save the feet and they will be amputated tomorrow. "I was in debt and I wanted to pay it off," was the reason the man gave for working in that condition. He is about 45 years of age and is single."

What strikes one as strange is the fact that this man went limping or shuffling about on frozen feet for days and all that time he was presumably working for someone. Is it possible that an employer could see a man in such a state without remarking his serious condition? It might be argued that the man was old enough to look after himself, but this does not aquit the person who employed him from responsibility.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

PRINCE ERIK of Denmark, a nephew of King Christian X, after working obtrusively on an English farm at Fairford, in Gloucestershire, for some months, will shortly go to Holland and Belgium, to continue his agricultural education. It is said the stay of the Prince in England is due to the advice of Minister of Agriculture Pedersen. The Prince lives in a farmer's family, on an equal status with its members. He works hard for long hours. Occasionally he pays a visit to his aunt, Queen Mother Alexandra, at Sandringham.

AT SMITH'S FALLS, Geo. Miskelly, a C.P.R. conductor, while riding in his van, Saturday night, spied a bear along the track. Stopping his train, he took the axe, the only weapon available, and soon despatched his bearship. The killing took place between Merrickville and Smith's Falls.—That is a bear story all right; it would bear a little explanation. Did the bear see the conductor coming ? It may be that the bear wanted to commit suicide and had placed its neck on the rails. The conductor would probably say axe no questions and I'll tell you no more lies.

IN THE MOUTHS of Wesley and Whitfield says the London Chronicle, the oft-repeated sermon was both necessary and effective, for they journeyed and found new hearers for old sermons. Wesley, for instance, travelled for 4,500 miles a year until he was well on three score years and ten, and, travelling, preached two, three, and occasionally four times a day. With Whitfield, particularly, the sermon gained by repetition. Thus his biographer : "It never reached its highest point of effectiveness until he had preached it 40 times. Then it became on his lips a perfect instrument of persuasion." And Whitfield, it has been calculated, preached over 18,000 sermons.

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

Manners and the Man.

Montreal Gazette.

The Halifax Morning Chronicle, in discussing Mr. Burnham's bill for the abolition of honorary titles in Canada, remarks that a man who tucks his napkin into his shirt collar ought not, for imperial reasons, to be permitted to mount the ladder of honor higher than the Michael or George standard. Does the Chronicle mean that a chap who aims to keep gravy off the front of his vest is not fitted for the most exalted honors a democrat to the hilt may aspire to in the King's deminions ?

One At a Time

(Orillia Packet).

A poetess, in a contemporary magazine, pleads: "Oh, brush the tears from your two eyes." But the Signal Hill Sage, with characteristic Scotch caution, and the chivalry for which be is distinguished, advises that she should brush the brine from only one at the start, to ascertain if the result is satisfactory. If it is, then a complete job can be made of it.

Rather Lonely.

(Canadian Courier).

An American mother had been telling her boy about George Washington. When she had finished, he inquired:

"Mamma, did you ever tell a lie?"

Being a very conscientious woman, she replied, after a moment's pause:

"Oh, perhaps, when I was young."

"Did Uncle Sam ever tell one?" was the next question

Again she hesitated before replying. "Well, perhaps he may have been led away."

"Did Aunt Jane?"

"Possibly, once or twice."

The boy thought it over a moment. Then he said: "It will be very lonely up in heaven mamma."

"Lonely, dear? Why?" was her query.

"Because there can't be anyone up there except God and George Washington," came the answer.

DELAY

By Walt Mason

"Delays," said Daddy, "are dangerous, and apt to work much harm." 'Twas in the days when, grangerous, we lived upon the farm. So we were always hurrying to get things done eftsoons, the plowing and the currying, the harvesting of prunes. We did our work kerwhoopingly, and gained the silver buck, while other farmers droopingly complained of evil luck. When storms came up a-thundering we did not care a darn ; they never caught us blundering—our hay was in the barn ; when rivers rose amazin'ly, o'erflowing banks and bed, we viewed the blame things brazenly—our wood was in the shed. The elements might clammily spread snow throughout the land, they could not catch our family without some coal on hand. The lessons learned thus youthfully have served me all my days, and I can tell you truthfully that "Up and Do It" pays. Delays are surely ruinous ; let's do things on the jump, or Fate will soon be shooin' us toward the blawsted dump.

TO AID B. C. RAILWAY.

McBride's Government To Subsidize Peace River Line.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 25.—It is rumored that provincial aid in the shape of a guarantee similar to that given the Canadian Northern Railway in British Columbia is to be provided at the present session of the Legislature for 330 miles of railway running northeastward from Fort George through Pine River Pass and on to the Alberta boundary. Foley, Welch & Stewart are to build the line. Forty Thousand Miners Out.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—Out of the 225,000 coal miners in the coal fields of southern France, 40,000 have struck work in response to the call of their leaders for a general strike as a protest against the elimination by the Senate of some clauses of the underground workers' pension bill. Rene Renoult, Minister of the Interior, reported to the Cabinet Council yesterday that order had been maintained everywhere, and that the miners in northern France had not joined the movement.

Birthdays of Note

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY TWENTY-FIFTH

Lieut.-Col. J. A. Currie, M.P. for North Simcoe and one of the prominent Conservative members of the House, is forty-eight to-day. Though now a wealthy manufacturer, he was once a poor hard-working journalist, and has made his way to the top of the ladder by sheer ability. His interests are wide-spread. He is above all a military man and was one of the organizers of the 48th Highlanders, of which he is now the commanding officer. During his newspaper career he acted as correspondent for the London Times and was twice president of the Press Gallery at Ottawa. He has the distinction to-day of being practically the only Gaelic-speaking member of the House of Commons.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. Frederick D. Rogers, of Chicago, Ill., says: I have found Fletcher's Castoria very useful in the treatment of children's complaints.

Dr. William C. Bloomer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: In my practice I am glad to recommend your Castoria, knowing it is perfectly harmless and always satisfactory.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

AMENDMENT TO ADDRESS IS VOTED DOWN IN LEGISLATURE

Hon. W. J. Hanna Refutes Insinuations of Harder Times Than Ever.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—N. W. Rowell's amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, calling for the appointment of a Minister of Labor to study industrial conditions in the province, went down on a division of the House. The vote stood at 58 to 19, with Allan Studholme of Hamilton voting with the Liberal forces.

The real champion of the Government was Hon. W. J. Hanna, who opened the fray. From the outset he trained his attack with authority and precision upon the points to which the Opposition leader in person had committed himself, and one by one he demolished them.

Mr. Hanna in resuming the debate took exception to Mr. Rowell's amendment to the address, on the grounds that it conveyed the impression that conditions of unemployment in Ontario were worse than they had even been before.

Mr. Rowell rose to say that he had not made the statement.

"No, but that was the impression," said Mr. Hanna in continuing, "and anyone listening would naturally be carried away."

The second point in the amendment, said Hr. Hanna, was that the province was away behind in social legislation.

"These statements are both wrong," declared Mr. Hanna. "I am not overstating the case when I say that in Ontario and in Canada as a whole we have suffered less from conditions brought about by over-production and unemployment than in any other parts of the continent. Nowhere have we suffered less than in Ontario. Conditions are generally good in comparison with other places."

Mr. Rowell had stated that from 45,000 to 50,000 persons in the province were to-day suffering from unemployment. This again gave a wrong impression. The figures could not fairly be supported by facts and were much larger than those given by the labor delegates. The latter had stated that probably 6,000 men had been out of work.

The Minister than proceeded to take exception to the charge that the province was backward in social legislation, and cited the advance in sanitation evidenced by the fact that while Niagara Falls, N.Y., was tied up with a smallpox epidemic, Niagara Falls, Ont., was free from the disease. A few years ago things in the Canadian city at the falls had been far different. Similarly in anti-tuberculosis work the Ontario demonstration car had been pronounced the best in the world by European authorities.

Mr. Hanna then passed in review the recent housing legislation, the work of public institutions, prisons, asylums, etc., advances in dairying, the Hydro-electric expansion, the forthcoming workmen's compensation and the spread of scientific agriculture. Deputations from Germany and the U. S. had come to study in Ontario, he said.

Sam Clarke (W. Northumberland) followed for the Opposition. After a brief reference to the North Grey bye-election, he criticized the liquor legislation of the Government and deplored its friendship with liquor dealers. One word and move on the part of the Provincial Secretary and he would have friends innumerable in the province. The Minister was inconsistent in laughing at the measures of Mr. Rowell when the anti-treating clause still remained untouched by the Government.

He replied to Mr. Hanna's objection to the statement that the Government was in alliance with the liquor party by suggesting that the word "partnership" might have been more properly applied, as it was evident in recent legislation that the Government had been careful not to injure the interests of the liquor people by shortening the hours of sale where it would most affect the trade. If the Government was really anxious to show its sincerity let it abolish the three-fifths clause. If this was done, in five years 85 per cent. of the municipalities of the province would be under local option.

He suggested as a cure for the labor unrest that a Minister of Labor collect five per cent. of the real estate profits in the large cities.

J. A. Johnson (Belleville) said it was not a Governmental matter to deal with labor unrest. The care of the poor and unemployed in the cities lay at the doors of the cities themselves.

T. Marshall (Monck) referred to the absence of tax reform from the address, and felt that the Hydro-electric might be made to do a great good by means of radials which helped the artisan to maintain a suburban home and yet work in the city.

The evening session was taken up by J. A. Hartt and Allan Studholme. He reviewed the unemployment situation, and deplored the fact that it had to be dragged through a political conflict before anything could be done. His address was concluded at 10.45 and the vote was taken.

Young Suffragette Sentenced.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Phyllis Brady, a militant suffragette, accused of arson, was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment at hard labor by a magistrate at the London sessions yesterday, despite the jury's recommendation of mercy on the ground that she had been led astray by older militants.

Miss Brady was arrested Jan. 17 last on the charge of being one of the suffragettes who set fire to the residence of Lady White, widow of Field Marshal Sir George White, at Englefield Green, Surrey, on March 20, 1913. She is 24 years of age and graduated at Cambridge University with honors in mathematics and economics.

A site has been secured and the capital for the investment has been subscribed. The house, which will be modelled on Parisian style, will be ready for use next fall, it is expected.

BUSINESS MEN WANT DOMINION CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Ontario Associated Boards in Session in Toronto Adopt Resolution Which Will Probably Result in Formation of Unified Body.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—A Dominion Chamber of Commerce is to be the outcome of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade convention, the opening session of which met in the City Hall yesterday. This is the result of a resolution, unanimously adopted, which was introduced by President W. N. Ponton.

"Let us have a Dominion Chamber of Commerce, which would not be merely full of potential results for profitable and productive good, but would also be one of the strongest, most conciliatory, unifying bonds between the various parts of this much-disintegrated Dominion, with its great areas and varying conditions and languages," said the president.

Referring to the proposed Workmen's Compensation Act, the president put forth a series of questions: Is Ontario ripe for such drastic legislation? Have the vast areas and climatic conditions, and the still struggling position of many industries in Ontario been taken fully into consideration? Will not the operation of the bill, if passe in its present shape, still further add to the high cost of living by increasing the risk, and therefore the cost of production of necessary articles? Would it not be better at least to delay the passage of the proposed bill for another session, until its results may be fully realized and so e modifications, in any event, introduced? Is not the present too critical a time to try out such an experiment?

The president crew attention to the imports of iron and steel, amounting to 140,000,000 pounds annually, yet Canada had plenty of iron and should have plenty of steel. They were importing butter, eggs and poultry from New Zealand, while only ten per cent. of the arable land in Ontario was under cultivation. They were exporting by the thousands, and milch cows had decreased by nearly 15,000, yet the pasture lands were ample. The great sheep industry was complicated because of the complicated laws.

Two Lives Lost in Fire.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Two men were killed, ten others had narrow escapes and several firemen were slightly hurt yesterday in a fire that swept through the four-storey Bakers' Hotel—occupied chiefly by bakers—at Ninth street and First avenue. The bodies of Ernest Schick, who returned to the burning building for valuable papers in his room, and that of an unidentified man, were found on the top floor after the fire had been extinguished.

PRAIRIES ARE NOT ENTITLED TO BOTH LAND AND MONEY

Premier Maintains That the Terms Offered Are Unreasonable.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25. — For some hours in the House yesterday the Opposition occupied itself in an onslaught on the Government on the grounds that it had failed to fulfil its pledge to restore their natural resources to the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The Prime Minister and others of the Cabinet, in reply, pointed out that the promise was to adjust the present difficulties on a fair basis. This had been rendered impossible by the unreasonable and unjust demand of the prairie provinces for the return of their lands, together with the continuance of the financial grants made to them in lieu thereof.

Mr. Buchanan (Medicine Hat) addressed the House upon the question of the restoration of their natural resources to the prairie provinces. He charged the present Government with inconsistency and insincerity, quoting from speeches delivered by Mr. Borden on his western tour in 1911, and referring to the various Conservative platforms and speeches on the subject.

Mr. Borden replied that he and the Conservative party had favored vesting western provinces with their own lands when the autonomy bills were under consideration in 1905. The Laurier Government, however, had decided against this policy, and had given large subsidies to Saskatchewan in lieu of their lands. It was now impossible to transfer the natural resources to these provinces without a readjustment of subsidies, in which all the provinces would be interested. This view had been expressed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his letters to Premier Sifton in 1911.

Since coming into power Mr. Borden had communicated with the various Provincial Governments, and he read letters received from the Premiers of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. They were all to the effect that if the western provinces were to receive lands by cession from the Dominion Government, that the Maritime Provinces should receive some compensating money allowance, as from their situation they could not gain any additional territory.

Mr. Borden said that the demand of the three prairie provinces that they retain their present large financial allowance and at the same time be ceded their lands and natural resources was an extravagant one; it could hardly have been put forth seriously.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that Mr. Borden had made the immediate restoration of their natural resources to the western provinces a leading plank in his platform in 1908 and again in 1911. In the latter year he had told the western people that they were free men, and being free men, were entitled to the right to possess their own land. There was no talk at that time about consulting the Maritime Provinces, or about financial readjustment.

Reviewing the policy of the Laurier Government in 1905, Sir Wilfrid said that he had followed the same course with respect to Saskatchewan and Alberta which had been followed with respect to Manitoba by Sir John A. Macdonald. He still thought the policy was a correct one. The Conservatives, however, had opposed that policy, perhaps more to embarrass the Government than anything else, and from Mr. Borden down had made extravagant promises which they could not keep. Their chickens were now coming home to roost.

Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, denied that he had ever been so foolish as to say that their resources would not be restored to Saskatchewan and Alberta so long as they voted Liberal. He had said, however, that the Dominion Government would not force the lands upon provinces which apparently did not desire their return.

Messrs. McCraney (Lib., Saskatoon) and Knowles (Lib., Moosejaw) read from the speech delivered by R. B. Bennett, M.P. for Calgary, delivered in his home city last autumn, in which he was reported as saying that he would resign his seat unless the Borden Government restored her natural resources to the Province of Alberta. They were anxious to hear from the Calgary member, but Mr. Bennett was absent from the chamber during the greater part of the debate.

Dr. Schaffner (Con., Souris) said the delay in carrying out the adjustment of western lands was chiefly due to the failure of the western members to co-operate in a reasonable way.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, said the Conservative party had never been pledged to make an unconditional return of their lands to the prairie provinces. He read from the Halifax platform to prove that Mr. Borden's promise was to restore the natural resources to those provinces "upon fair terms."

Hon. Frank Oliver insisted that Mr. Borden had unconditionally promised to return their resources to the people of the west, and had thus offered them a bribe of $200,000,000. He now found himself unable to deliver the goods.

Fallibility of the Eyewitness.

When Professor F. C. Dockeray, in the psychological department of the University of Kansas, got into an altercation one day with the janitor, who entered the classroom and insisted on sweeping while Dockeray was lecturing, a number of students rushed to his rescue. The affair grew into a free for all fight, during which the janitor, who had drawn a revolver, was overpowered and disarmed. As a burly student grasped the pistol a shot was fired. As soon as order was somewhat restored the frightened and fleeing students reassembled and accounts were taken from them of the affair. All the students swore they had heard the shot, and several told of seeing the smoke from the revolver. Then Professor Dockeray told them it was an experiment, a fight had been planned carefully, and the shot of the revolver was from the outside of the building by a student posted there. The purpose of the experiment was to show the unreliability of information, even when furnished by an eyewitness.

OBITUARY

RICHARD DAWSON.

An old and highly respected resident of South Monaghan passed away Thursday, Feb. 19th, in the person of Richard Dawson.

Deceased was born March 27th, 1824, nearly ninety years ago. He was probably the oldest living man who first saw the light of day in South Monaghan. He was one year old before the Hon. Peter Robinson brought his army of Irish immigrants to Peterborough. The late Mr. Dawson was the fifth child of the family, and the fourth one born in Canada, so it is well nigh a century since his father, the late William Dawson, left Yorkshire, England, and settled in Monoghan.

The late Richard Dawson was born on lot 7, concession 2, South Monaghan. His brother, William, was the first child born in the township. In all there was a family of seven; the only other surviving member is a young sister of the deceased, Mrs. Gillanders, now living in British Columbia. When the late Mr. Dawson was twenty-five he left the parental roof and married Miss Harriet Barnard, of East Peterborough. The late Mrs. Dawson passed away in 1864, leaving a family of seven children, the youngest is now deceased. They are as follows:—Mrs. N. Kerr, Mich.; Mrs. W. Wood, Hope; Mrs. John Perrin, W. E. Dawson, of St. Mary's, and J. W. Dawson and Harriet at home.

In politics the late Mr. Dawson was a Liberal, and had always been a close student of public affairs. He was a member of the Methodist church, Baillieboro.

MORE POWER IN SIGHT

Hon. Adam Beck Has Scheme to Get 2,500,000 h.p. for Peak Loads.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The announcement that he hoped to place a scheme before the Ontario Government whereby the Hydro-Electric Commission would secure at least a quarter of a million additional horsepower for peak-load purposes, was made by Hon. Adam Beck in addressing the Associated Boards of Trade at the banquet in the Prince George Hotel last night.

The speaker referred to the fact that the consumption of hydro power had become so great that the limit of the present production was being approached, and this fact made it necessary that means be taken to secure a larger supply.

After tracing the development of the hydro system, including the radial lines to be operated by the people's power, Hon. Mr. Beck said he had a vision of the future when hydro power would be used all over the province for heat, lighting and operating radials. He also saw the time in prospect when telephone wires would be strung on hydro poles, thereby suggesting future public policy of control of the complete telephone system of Ontario.

THE MARKET

Certain stories circulated recently in connection with the selling on the local market have reached the ears of the police department. It appears that some sellers (not all), have been exhibiting an extra fine brand of potatoes but delivering a much inferior quality. It is the wish of the police that the purchaser be given a fair deal, so if the next one who falls a victim to the trick will acquaint Chief Thompson with the facts of the case, action will be taken. There is very little change in the market this week. The following is the quotation:

For provisions the outcome was irregular, varying from 2½c to 5c decline to an upturn of 7½c.

ASQUITH REFUSES TO GIVE TERMS FOR ULSTER

Bonar Law Says It's Criminal to Delay the Proposals

LONDON, Feb. 25.—In the House of Commons yesterday the Opposition tried to obtain from Premier Asquith a disclosure of the concessions to be offered Ulster in the home rule bill by supporting a resolution introduced by Bertram G. Falle, the Unionist member for Portsmouth, "that the House considers it imperative in the interests of public peace that the Premier should submit his proposals without delay."

The Prime Minister refused to divulge his proposals, saying that the Government was prepared to put forward its suggestions at the earliest moment when they could be adequately considered by the House, which would be before Easter. The Government, he declared, had no reason to supplicate for a truce, still less to hoist the white flag of surrender. To his followers he would say that the Government was not going to betray a great cause at the eleventh hour.

The Opposition should understand that the Government would not be brow-beaten or hustled into a course which in its judgment would not promote, but embarrass the purpose the men of all parties should keep in view.

Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, asserted that the country was fast drifting towards civil war. If the Premier had proposals to make it was criminal to delay them so long. The Government adhered to the policy of drifting; therefore it was the duty of the Opposition to make it impossible for the Government to force the bill through the House unless supported by the verdict of the country at the polls. Otherwise, he declared, its passage would be regarded by Ulster as a declaration of war.

The motion was defeated 311 to 238, a majority of 73.

ARE YOU GOING TO WIN OR LOSE ?

It's up to you to get One of The Many Prizes in The Review Contest—Have You Enough Votes to Win?

You are almost sure of winning a prize in The Daily Review's great contest if you stay and work to the finish. The prizes are so numerous that every real worker will receive one. But there is a vast difference in the prizes, and there will be only a few votes difference at the finish between the candidate that wins the Grand Prize Auto and the one that wins the gold watch. Which of these prizes you win depends upon yourself. You will have to have the votes and it takes subscriptions to get votes; so its up to the candidates that expect to win to do their best this week.

Only a few days and this vote offer will be a thing of the past, three-fourths the allotted time has already gone, have you done your best this first part ? And will you have a goodly number of votes to your credit when this offer comes to a close ? Think what it would be if when the votes are counted that you would find that the winner of the Grand Prize only had a few more votes than you, and if you had taken advantage of this offer in this contest could be this one if they only take advantage of this Great Offer.

How Many Votes Win ?

This is a question that comes to the contest department nearly every day. The only answer to this question is, just a few more than your strongest rival. That may be one and it may be more, all depends upon how much you have been doing since the contest was announced. One thing is certain and that is a subscription now equals the value of four subscriptions at the end of the campaign. This is a little warning to those who are waiting for a better opportunity and think that sometime later in the contest the votes will count more.

Success is Yours.

A candidate that keeps working is the one that is almost sure to be an auto winner. Like the Tortoise and the Hair it is not the most fleet of foot that always wins the race, it is the one whoworks steadily that will be the winner of the Grand Prize. Now that the race is so near the end it is a shame that any one should fall by the wayside and be beaten when they are right on the threshold of success. Make a resolution that each day you will have one or more subscriptions to your credit and you will find that if you follow this advice that when the final count is made you will never regret it. MAKE EVERY DAY COUNT DURING THIS OPPORTUNITY.

What It Takes to Win.

This is the question that is bothering nearly every candidate in the contest. The only answer to this question is, hard work and do this work the next few days. It is only a few days and this last opportunity is gone. The votes will be cut down and it will take more subscriptions to get the same number of votes. What are you going to do ? Answer this important question for yourself. You are the only one that is to judge whether or not you have enough subscriptions to win the prize that you may aspire. You are the one that is going to get all this honor. You are the one that will ride in this Grand Prize Touring Car and you are the one that will have to decide whether or not you are doing enough work at the present. THINK OF THESE THINGS TO-DAY—NOT TO-MORROW. DO IT NOW

NEW TRIAL FOR BECKER

ALBANY, N.Y., Feb. 25. — The conviction of Charles Becker, a former New York police lieutenant, of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, was reversed and the conviction of the four gunmen for the same crime were affirmed yesterday by the Court of Appeals.

Justice Goff, the court held, erred in many of his rulings at Becker's trial and appeared to be prejudicial in his attitude toward the defendant. The reversal was based solely on these grounds.

All of the seven members of the court, except Judge Werner, who acted as presiding judge when the appeal was argued, concurred in the prevailing Becker opinion.

The decision in the case of the four gunmen, "Gyp the Blood," "Whitey" Lewis, "Dago Frank," and "Lefty Louie," was unanimous. They had averred that the evidence against them was insufficient to warrant conviction, and that the court had erred in handling their cases, but these contentions were held by the court to be groundless.

The date for the execution of the gunmen will be fixed by the court within a few days.

BOSTON EXPLOITS RETURNED CHAMPIONS IN OVERTIME

Fred Graham Scored the Deciding Goal, Making the Count 4-3

Charles Murphy thinks he's the happiest man on earth, but he has another thought coming after last night. He'll have to share his mirth with Peter Gettas, manager of the famous Boston Exploits. When Peter is happy, it's a foregone conclusion that the Exploits have won and win they did last night. Ever since the Junior City Hockey League was formed, it became very evident that there was great rivalry between the Exploits and the Y.M.C.A. The season gradually wore on and this rivalry increased, and when they clashed for the first time the "Y" was handed a stinging defeat to the tune of 6—1. The next time they met it was a battle royal. Twenty minutes overtime and then the "Y" boys won 7—5. Then they met last night and as Peter is smiling all over today, it is very evident that the Exploits won. They did and it took them just 70 minutes to do it. The score was 4—3.

Without a bit of exaggeration, it was some game all the way through. Shortly after the opening bell the Exploits scored but the "Y" evened it up before half time so after the resting period they started again on an even footing. The "Y" were the first to tally but for a very short time only did they enjoy the lead, for the Exploits came right back and evened it up again. Once again did the Y.M.C.A. score and then the pace became furious. The time was wearing on and neither team could afford to take any chances. At last "Lornie" Rose went down the wing on a nice rush and shot on Darling. The "Y" goal custodian kicked it out but Butcher slid in and had the rebound in before Darling could clear. This made the score 3—3.

It can be readily imagined that excitement reigned supreme and although both teams worked hard, neither of them were able to deliver the needy. On one occasion Latimer sallied out and blocked Knapman, after the peerless "Silver" had passed both defence men. It saved the day. The final gong rang with the score 3—3, and both teams pretty nearly all in.

The game was ordered to be played off via the usual method, ten minutes' overtime, five each way. After a short rest both teams reappeared, but the game was hardly started when a long shot from Phelan's stick caught Jackson over the eye. The game was finally resumed and Phelan continued to stick in the long shots. Time after time the defence stopped them and saved sure goals. Rose broke away on several nice rushes, but they had no result. The first five minutes ended with the game still tied up.

The forepart of the last five minutes, the play was all Y.M.C.A., but the Exploits found themselves and soon were pressing again. Knapman came through with a long rush, only to be stopped by Regan. The latter carled the disc up to mid-ice and for a while the play centred around that section of the ice. Fred Graham, the midget rover, secured the puck and getting away from the forward line, he circled the defence and beat Darling with ease. It was the rush of the game and eventually won the championship. The puck was faced off, and while Referee Dobson's back was turned, Cranfield and Wolff commenced a fistic encounter. The time gong rang to attract the referee's attention and the players, thinking the game was over, started off the ice. The would-be fighters were separated, and after considerable delay the game was resumed. There was just a minute to go, but games have been won before in less than 60 seconds, so the "Y" had hopes. Such was not the way last night, however, and the final gong rang with the Exploits 4, Y. M. C. A. 3.

The bright star of the game was Lornie Rose. The kid is going all the time, and plays a fast, clean game. He has been showing up remarkably well all season and has developed very rapidly. Another season over his head and Lornie will be filling some of the vacancies on the O. H. A. team. Butcher, Wolff and Graham all went hard and the work of Butcher, not only last night, but all season, has been one big help to the Exploits. Phelan and Regan played a nice defence game, although the former delayed things occassionally when his shot connected with anybody's bean. Latimer played an exceptionally good game in the nets.

For the Y.M.C.A. Jackson and Knapman were the most effective with Smith crowding them for the honors. Cranfield also played good hockey, and considering the fact that he, Jackson, Moore and Smith played the night before, the Y.M.C.A. put up a grand battle.

The teams:

Exploits		Y.M.C.A.
Latimer	goal	Darling
Phelan	rt. def.	Moore
Regan	left def.	Cranfield
Graham	rover	Knapman
Butcher	centre	Jackson
Rose	left wing	Quinn
Wolff	rt. wing	Smith

Referee—Mr. Len Dobson.

A FENCE SEAT FOR DAVEY ROWAN

Not Quite Sure Just Where He Is At.

HAMILTON, Feb. 25.—Davey Rowan, of Toronto, doesn't know whether or not he is manager of the Hamilton Canadian Leaguers. Before the local stock company exercised its option on the club, which was purchased rfom Messrs. Burns and Lee of Toronto by George O'Neill, of London, Rowan signed as manager and proceeded to build up a team.

Legal advice has been secured by the stock company to the effect that Rowan's contract is not binding on the new owners.

BIG NIGHT IN CHURCH LEAGUE

Three Games On The Bill For Thursday Night.

A triple leader at Brock Street Rink for Thursday night will give followers of this league a chance to see six teams in action. The bill is as follows:

7- 8—Murray vs. All Saints.
8- 9—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Paul's.
9-10—St. Andrew's vs. George St.

The result of these games will go a long way in deciding which team shall hold the silver cup for the coming year. There should be a big attendance of the friends from the different churches to cheer on their representatives to victory. An admission fee of 10 cents will admit to all three games.

CURLERS WERE SEVEN SHOTS DOWN BUT HOLD THE CUP

Two rinks from the Millbrook club will play here tomorrow. Secretary Brownscombe posted the particulars of the Skips' Bonspiel, this afternoon.

The local curlers were seven shots down, in the return games for the Waddell-Capon Cup, at Toronto, yesterday, but as they had a margin of 32 shots from the games played here, they hold the silverware for the year. Their win on the round was by 25 shots.

In the friendly games with the Toronto Granites, the locals emerged with the appearance of a stalled locomotive in a thirty foot drift, as the Toronto curlers recorded an overwhelming victory

Mercantile Executive.

There will be a meeting of the Mercantile Hockey League executive and one representative from team in the Review Office to-night at 7.30 sharp. Some very important questions are to be dealt with and it will be advisable for each team to see that they have a representative on the job.

There is no small amount of interest in the big game next Monday night between the Test and Tool Room, and as the tickets are out for sale now there will no doubt be a large crowd on hand.

PLANNING A NEW PARIS.

M. Delanney's Big Scheme For Improving the French Capital.

Since Baron Haussmann remodeled Paris in the days of Napoleon III. at a cost of $500,000,000 no such stupendous alterations as M. Marcel Delanney proposes have been considered for the French metropolis.

M. Delanney is prefect of the Seine. His scheme involves the widening of many streets, the destruction of unsightly shanties and the erection in their places of model houses to be paid for in part out of $40,000,000 already appropriated for this purpose by the municipal council, the limiting of the height of buildings to the width of the street on which they are situated and the laying out of forty-seven additional public gardens, making a total of 128 of these institutions, or more than London has.

"Le Grand Paris," as Delanney calls his proposal, also involves the development of the suburbs, where there will be a sudden acquisition of space after the fortifications have been destroyed. A large appropriation has already been made to wipe out these fortifications, which now serve only to provide lairs for the riffraff of Paris, but the prefect of the Seine wants a further $100,000,000 to construct parks and flower beds where the old defenses now are. He would convert the open spaces about the city and the hills of the Seine, Marne and Oise rivers into huge gardens connected by a promenade about twenty-five miles in length.

At present there are nearly 200 inhabitants to the acre in Paris, twice as many as in London. The construction of "Le Grand Paris" would give the city nearly six times as much territory as it has at present, reducing this congestion and thereby lowering [illegible] the cost of living.—Outlook.

The Philosopher's Stone.

Professor Soddy makes the assertion boldly that it is only a question of application to change lead into gold. He says that, while now we can only work with electricity at 100,000 volts, it is only a matter of perfecting the method to be able to work at ten times that voltage, when the baser metals can be changed into the more precious. In other words, electricity, when brought to its highest efficiency and application, is the real philosopher's stone, for which the alchemists of the middle ages searched so long.—Dundee Advertiser.

Youngest Church Organist.

Henry Alban Chambers, just appointed organist of the Roman Catholic church of St. Ann's, Leeds, is probably the youngest church organist in the world. He is eleven years old, and at eight some of his compositions were published. His powers of transposing and improvising are described as remarkable. The late organist at St. Ann's, Mr. Grimshaw, described him as "the young Mozart."—Argonaut.

UNDESERVED GLORY.

Father Thought the Burglar He Tackled Was Young Mr. Staylate.

Mrs. Jimson was aroused from her slumbers by Mr. Jimson springing violently out of bed. Before she could say a word he had pulled on his dressing gown and slippers and had made for the door.

"What on earth are you going to do Henry?" she asked.

"I'm going to jolly well put a stop to that young fellow staying here till all hours of the night. Listen to him now!"

"Henry, don't go; don't go!" whispered his wife hoarsely. But Henry was already halfway down the stairs. In another few minutes she heard the sounds of a frightful struggle going on. Glass crashed to the ground, and chairs were overturned. Then somebody dragged some one else to the front door, kicked him down the steps and slammed it to again.

Then Mr. Jimson, very much out of breath, but highly pleased with himself, once more entered the room.

"Oh, Henry, how brave you are!" murmured his wife admiringly.

"Why, how's that?"

"Oh, Henry, it was a real burglar at last!"

Henry turned pale.

"My word!" he said. "And I thought it was Mabel's young man!"—London Answers.

Wolseley's Christmas Pudding.

One of the most remarkable Christmas puddings on record was the one made by the late Lord Wolseley and a brother officer to celebrate the Christmas spent in the Crimea. These are the details: A box of figs did for fruit. Suet was unobtainable, so they used rancid grease. There was no flour to be had, so they made some by pounding up ship's biscuit with a pestle and mortar. The latter articles were also improvised—a Russian round shot and a piece of an exploded shell.

When the mess was properly mixed it was tied in a towel and placed to boil. An order to hurry to the trenches cut short this operation, however, and the fate of the pudding hung for a moment in doubt. Either it had to be wasted or eaten half cooked. It was eaten, and Wolseley had to retire some time later from the trenches under doctor's orders.

Villa Retains Body.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Consular Agent Carruthers, at Juarez, telegraphed Secretary Bryan last night that Gen. Villa had notified him that he will not surrender the body of William S Benton at this time, but would turn it over to the United States at some later day, with an additional statement concerning Benton's death.

More Than His Match.

Patrick Casey is blessed (or otherwise) with six fine strapping sons, every one of them "a broth of a bhoy." The other day friend Flaherty paid Patsy a surprise visit.

"Thim's six fine bhoys ye have, Casey," he observed.

"Yes, indade," answered Patsy.

"Do yer ever have any throuble with thim?"

"Throuble? Divil a bit. I've niver had to raise me hand to anyone of them—except in self-defence."

"ON THE TRAIL OF THE SPIDER GANG"

Big Detective Story at "The Grand" Today and Tomorrow

"Quo Vadis" was shown for the last time last night, at The Grand, to a full house. In addition to this beautiful picture, a two-reel feature was also shown in which Miss Barbarra Tennant (Mrs. Wadely) had one of the important parts.

Beginning with a matinee today at 2.30, an extra special three reel feature will be shown entitled "On The Trail of the Spider Gang." This is a thrilling detective story, filled with startling and romantic adventures. During the progress of the play a head-on collision in which two giant locomotives are shown, takes place, an aeroplane flight, big explosion, as well as an exciting automobile chase. The disguises assumed by Hayes, the detective, are marvellous, and the many exciting incidents throughout the play make it one of the best detective stories ever put on the screen. This feature will be shown for two days only.

There are three other reels of pictures in addition to the big feature mentioned above.

The management of The Grand greatly appreciate the splendid patronage so far given the pictures, and are endeavoring to give the patrons the very best pictures it is possible to obtain. The matinee performances commence at 2.30 and 4.00 p.m., and the evening show at 7.30 and 9.00 o'clock.

WEDDING BELLS

MALLETT—FOOTE.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. J. Clarry, at the home of Mr. G. C. Barrett, Brownton, when Miss Mary Sarah Foote, formerly of Norwich, England, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Richard Mallett, also formerly of Norwich, England. They were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Mallett will reside in Brownton.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Flat Foot.

The early pain of flat foot can be quieted by having both sole and heel of the shoe made wedge shaped, with the thick edge on the inner side. That throws the weight of the body on the outer side of the foot. Sometimes the sufferer has to have an "arch" in the sole of the shoe, but he had better do without it if he can and discard it as soon as the arch ceases to show signs of giving way. Cold douches or alternate cold and hot douches will also strengthen the fibrous structures that normally hold up the arch of the foot.

Ominous Indications.

The baby was slow about talking, and his aunt was deploring that fact. Four-year-old Elizabeth listened anxiously.

"Oh, mother!" she ventured at length. "Do you think he'll grow up English? We couldn't any of us understand him if he turned out to be French!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

STREET COMMISSIONER AFTER SALARY INCREASE

Says he Has Saved Money for the City in Construction Work

COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

Hospitals Ask Settlement of Accounts for Indigent Patients

"I think I have saved my salary in construction work," wrote H. Evans, Street Commissioner, in a letter to the Board of Works last night, in which he asked for a substantial increase in salary, which is now $1000.

Mr. Evans has held the position for ten years, during which time he has constructed forty miles of concrete sidewalk, some bridges and other work.

The matter was laid over till tonight's meeting of the committee of the whole council, when applications for increase in salary will be dealt with.

At this meeting Ald. Stratton will bring forward his motion calling for the re-arrangement of the staffs in the office of the City Clerk, City Engineer and City Treasurer, and also for the appointment of an assistant for the City Clerk.

Pay for Indigents.

An official from the House of Providence may also attend the meeting to ask Council to pay accounts for indigent patients. Officials from the Nicholls Hospital were to have been present on the same errand, but for some reason they will not attend.

It appears that both hospitals have long-standing accounts against the city for indigent cases. In some instances the city has refused to pay.

According to the laws of the land, it is evident that the city can be compelled to pay for all cases.

TWO FINES IN LIQUOR CASE

Man Who Supplied Booze is Assessed $28.85

Robert Sheridan was before Magistrate Dumble this morning on two charges. The first one was that of supplying Manley Smith, a blacklister, with liquor, to which he pleaded guilty. He was assessed $25 and costs amounting to $28.75 or an option of 30 days in jail.

The second charge was that of supplying W. F. Hamilton with the same liquid, but Sheridan pleaded not guilty to this charge and as the Chief was not ready to go on with the case, he was remanded for eight days.

Hamilton failed to appear in court, the reason being that he was taken to the hospital.

He had entered a plea of guilty and a fine of $10 was recorded.

BOARD OF WORKS PASSES STREET RAILWAY REQUEST

For Turnout at the Corner of George and Charlotte Streets

A MEETING TO-DAY

To Consider Question of Loop by Way of Perry Street

Last night the Board of Works granted the application of the Street Railway Company, to construct a turnout, running north and south on George street, from the corner of Charlotte and George streets.

This turnout has to do with the operations of the company to give a ten minute service, and direct transfers, as previously stated.

From the north side of Charlotte street, the turnout will extend 160 feet north on George street, but it will not be necessary to tear out a portion of the street pavement. The track will run about 200 feet south of Charlotte street. There will be ample room for traffic between the track and the sidewalk curb.

A loop will run off George street, along Perry street and connect with Lock street, thus eliminating the McDonald siding. A new siding will be placed between Smith and Antrim streets and new curves provided at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. The curves and the loop will permit of a freight service.

The Board met at the corner of George and Perry streets this afternoon.

MILK VENDOR IS KILLED

Limb of Tree Crushed His Chest

BRANTFORD, Feb. 26.—Richard Morris, a milk vendor of St. George was almost instantly killed there last night by a limb of a tree which he had cut down and which he was trying to swing over, striking him on thec hest crushing it in.

He leaves four sons, two daughters. Major Frank Morris, London and Staff Capt. Arthur Morris, Toronto, both in the Salvation Army are sons.

APPROPRIATIONS MUST BE CUT DOWN TO RETAIN RATE

The thinnest man in the world will have company in the form of the Committee Estimates of the City Council, when pruning operations are concluded, and he will have to hustle to hold his job.

When the Board of Works received the estimate for their department last night, Mayor Buller thought three items could disappear. These items were $1,500 for gravel $1500 for stone and $200 for surface drainage.

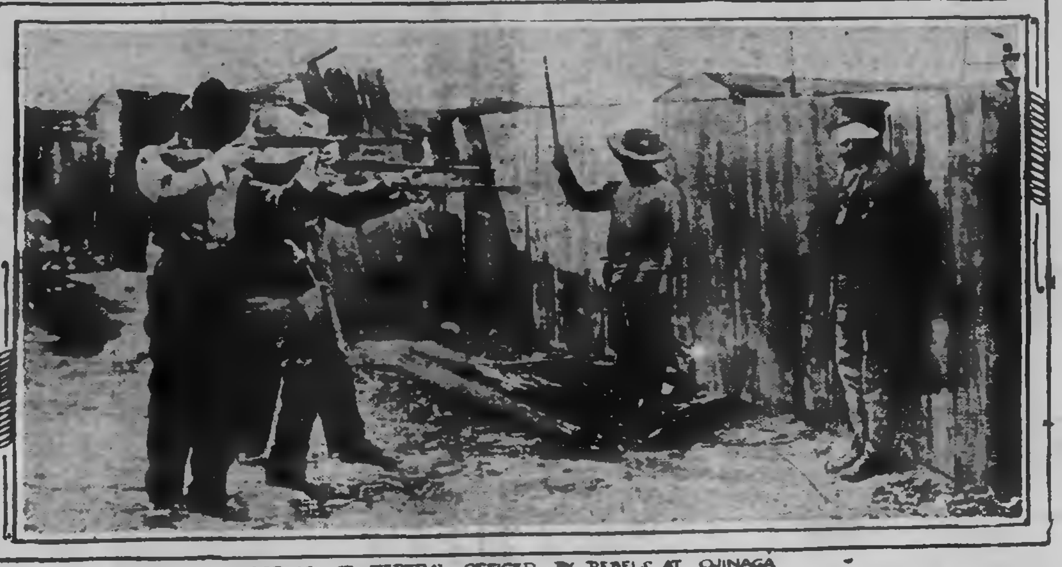
Ald. Green thought that all legitimate expenditure should be made, even though the taxes were increased. He opined that as the year might be a hard one, it would be a good thing for the city to spend the money.

Mayor Buller was in favor of spending money, but he thought such work as was not really necessary could wait over for another year. His argument was that in the past few years, the city had been doing work that should have been accomplished in gradual stages during the past twenty years. This was particularly so in the case of the School Board and the Police Department. This condition of affairs called for large expenditures, and such work as was not actually necessary could afford to wait for later attention.

The discussion that followed showed quite clearly that all the committee estimates would have to be cut down, if the rate of 25 mills is to be retained.

The increased revenue of $16,000 is gobbled up by the increase in the estimates for the Board of Education, Police Department, interest and sinking fund.

REBELS TAKING THE LIFE OF A FEDERAL PRISONER



SHOOTING OF FEDERAL OFFICER BY REBELS AT OJINAGA

The above photograph shows the shooting of a federal officer by the rebels at Ojinaga, Mexico. ORANGEMEN PURCHASE LOT AND WILL BUILD FINE HALL

Property is on Brock Street—What Other Lodges are Doing

The members of the various Orange Lodges of the city district have increased with such rapidity that of late their officers have been giving considerable of their time to the adopting of some plan for obtaining a hall. It was first thought it would be advisable to purchase a large building and remodel it, but they finally thought it best to buy land and build. The question as to where to buy the land at a reasonable price and yet have it centrally located, was the next impediment and this resulted in the purchase of the lot owned by Mr. W. J. Hancock, which is situated on Brock street, directly opposite the skating rink.

The lot has a fifty-three foot frontage and is one hundred and ninety-two feet deep. Although The Review scribe couldn't find out officially what the price was, it is said that it was in the neighborhood of $3,500.

Of course there are no specified plans for the style or class of building, but the fact that some $15,000 will be spent along that line assures us that its equal will not be found in any city of this size in Canada. Just when the building will be commenced is not known but the time should not be very far distant.

The next open meeting of the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows which is held every five weeks, will be held on the evening of Thursday, March 5th, in their hall. Mr. Wm. McLaren will speak on "Pallstine and its Principle Characters." A musical program will also be rendered.

The third degree will be exemplified to-night by the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows. The members of the third degree team are requested to be on hand early.

The Tuesday evening meeting of the A.O.U.W. was marked by another large initiation. This lodge has been placed on the honor roll having taken in more members than any other of the twelve lodges in the central section. The membership of this lodge at present is a little over 100.

The W.O.W. held a very enthusiastic meeting on Monday night. It is interesting to know that the local lodge is the second largest lodge of W.O.W. in Canada and is the largest lodge of any society of this city.

L.O.L. No. 50 is making arrangements for the celebration of their anniversary, which takes place on Monday, March 23rd.

There will be an initiation of new members into the Golden Link Lodge No. 81, Daughters of Rebekah, at their meeting next Tuesday night in the I.O.O.F. hall. All the degree staff are requested to be on hand early and as many members as possible.

At the meeting of the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows No. 13, held on Monday night, the initiatory degree was solemnized. Next Monday night the first degree will be solemnized, so the members of that degree team are requested to be on hand early.

Last night the members of St. Peter's C.M.B.A. Branch No. 30, visited the residence of Dr. Galvin, to view the remains of the late Dr. Moher. The society was represented at the funeral to-day. The late doctor was one of the members of the local branch.

Courts Peterborough and Langton invite the members and their friends to their hall on Simcoe street tomorrow night when a program, including singing, music and dancing, will be provided.

WEDDING BELLS

HARTMAN—NORTHCUTT

On Wednesday, Feb. 25th, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Northcutt, Bewdley, when their youngest daughter, Ruby Sarah Elizabeth, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Frederick David Hartman, of Peterborough.

The ceremony took place at twelve o'clock noon with Rev. T. D. McCullough officiating.

Only the immediate friends of the bride were present. The happy couple will reside in Peterborough.

DAVIDSON—ANDERSON.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. C. Anderson, 156 Douro St., when his youngest sister, Lucy M., was united in marriage with Mr. Wm. E. Davidson, son of R. J. Davidson, of Orono. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Rollins, of St. Andrews Church.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, Mr. J. C. Anderson, while the wedding march was played by Miss Jean Anderson, niece of the bride. After the ceremony the company retired to the dining room where the wedding repast was served, the tables being prettily decorated with cut flowers and ferns.

Afterwards the happy couple took the 4.33 C.P.R. train and after a short honeymoon will take up their home in the west at Medicine Hat.

The bride was prettily gowned in blue silk eolienne with sable trimmings, and the only ornament worn was a handsome necklace of pearls and olivines, the gift of the groom. She travelled in a suit of plum velvet and mink furs.

The only out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Anderson of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Anderson, of Campbellford.

LEAVES VALE OF SORROW; ENTERS INTO HIS TRIUMPH

Ministers and Citizens Pay Their Tributes to the Late Rev. T. J. Mansell—A Soldier Returned From Battle

The public service held yesterday afternoon over the remains of the late T. J. Mansell was a public demonstration of the high regard in which he was held. The church was fittingly decorated with crepe and mourning and a most striking feature was that all the lady members of the choir were in mourning with black waists trimmed slightly with white. The vast assemblage rose to their feet while the casket was moved slowly up the aisle. The deep notes from the organ floated over all and caused a deep gloom. Behind the remains a long procession of friends, ministers and representatives from various secular bodies followed slowly and filled the seats reserved for them.

After the invocation Hymn number 855 was sung. Few indeed were the dry eyes as the following words were reverently uttered;

Servant of God, well done
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last;

Of all thy hearts desire
Triumphantly possessed;
Lodged by the ministerial choir
In thy Redeemer's breast.

Immediately after the hymn prayer was offered up by the Rev. Mr. Johnston, chairman of the district, while Rev. F. J. Sawyers and H. J. Keith read Psalms 46 and 90 and Cor. 1, verses 35 to 58, respectively.

After a hymn by the choir Rev. R. W. Limbert spoke a few touching words about the late minister. His sudden death has caused a dark cloud to suddenly fall about us but there is always a silver lining to such clouds. It is true that the citizens were dearly attached to him but we should remember that he has entered into his reward and is as it were a soldier who has returned from battle to enjoy his triumph. Most of us, Mr. Limbert stated, knew the late Mr. Mansell very intimately and those who did must say that they were at the very first impressed with his noble physique, which seemed to bespeak the spirit within the man.

His death was of course a shock to this community and likewise his vast number of friends and acquaintances but it serves to show that Almighty God is great, far greater than earthly things. He called his servant to Him, called him to his reward for the Rev. Mansell left this vale of sorrow to enter into his triumph.

Our city, said Rev. J. R. Webb, has been bowed under the burden of a great grief. One of the happiest of homes has been suddenly smitten and wrecked beyond repair. A representative church has been bereft of its pastor and leader. The city has lost a conspicuous figure and an influential citizen and the Ministerial Association has lost a brother indeed.

It was a kind thought on the part of those arranging this service to make a place for a few words of sympathy and appreciation from the body I have the honor to represent.

He never sought prominence. His ministry was not spectacular. He did not beg to be respected because of his office, but brought glory to the office by his faithfulness in it. He was not anxious to be heard on every question, but when he arose to speak he always commanded the attention of his brethren and not infrequently carried their judgment. He was not an apostle of peace at any price, but when he opposed his brethren he did it with such kindliness and dignity as made any after bitterness impossible. I see him yet, as on one recent occasion after something of a conflict, he walked up to his opponent, shaking hands with him, he said: "I congratulate you on being a strong, fair fighter."

I was associated with him for three years in the city of Montreal and learned to love him. It was a pleasure to hear that he was coming to Peterborough three years ago, and since his coming every hour spent with him has been an hour of blessing.

We sat alone together for twenty minutes last Saturday night talking of our work. He said: "No matter how hard I work I reach the week end feeling that it is only half done." Speaking of his Friday evening "At Home," he said: "How much we need an evening to ourselves, we have so few of them."

His last visit to the centre of the city was in the interests of the Ministerial Association and the entire community, and his weighty and kindly words on that occasion will not be unfruitful. His last message to his own people will surely have an undying echo. To all of us "He being dead yet speaketh."

Mr. R. F. Downey, who represented the congregation of the church was the next speaker. He referred at some length to the honor and privilege that had been conferred upon their parish in being able to associate with such a pastor as the late Mr. Mansell. Words were very empty when he wished to express the congregation's sorrow and it was also hard to express their sincerest sympathy for the widow and family. He urged the parishioners to unite with him and assist in comforting them with their prayers, in this, their hour of great affliction.

Mr. Downey then brought his

STRANGER GAVE HIM THE LIQUOR

Blacklister Goes to Jail to Recover His Memory.

Alfred Miliken appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning on the charge of being found under the influence of liquor while being on the black list. Defendant denied that he was under the influence of liquor, but he admitted having imbibed some of the contents of the bottle which was found on him. The Magistrate acquainted him with the fact that if he only had a spoonful he would be under the influence of it.

P. C. Hayward testified that he and P. C. Reid found him under the market arcade about ten-fifty last night and at that time he was under the influence of liquor. They took him into custody.

Miliken in the witness box stated that a stranger, who resembled one of the scribes sitting in the court, had met him early last evening and had given him the booze. He denied ever being drunk since he was put on the list last November, but the Chief was a bit doubtful about the veracity of the statement, so he was committed to jail for two weeks.

THE WATER ON THE DOWNTOWN WALKS

Pedestrian Asks Why the Drains are not Opened.

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—May I crave a few lines of space in your valuable paper to ask a few questions of our City Engineer. Why is he not opening up small drains along many of our streets in order to carry off the water from the sidewalks? On Charlotte street, from the G.T.R. track to George street, with the exception of a very short distance in the middle of the block, the sidewalks are covered with water from one to threeinches deep through which pedestrians have to flounder. The very same conditions exist on Hunter street, between George and Water. Can the City Engineer give any valid reason why this state of affairs should exist. It just seems to me that Mr. City Engineer is acting the part of the autocrat and will do things when it suits his own free will. The condition of affairs in regard to this little matter is becoming intolerable an dI would like the chairman of the Board of Works Committee to get after the engineer and make him do things.

Yours, etc.,
Pedestrian.

TWO HUNDRED OUT OF WORK

Five Storey Building is Destroyed at Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — Throwing two hundred men out of work, and doing damage of a quarter of a million dollars, a fire which broke out in the five-storey building of the Independent Cloak Co., 579 Richmond street west, proved one of the most disastrous and spectacular that has occurred in the city for many months. The flames spread with such rapidity that Chief Thompson on his arrival ordered his men to direct their their efforts to preventing a spread to other buildings.

Foreigners living close by told the firemen that they had seen men at a window on one of the upper floors adn a wild rumor spread that there were men confined in the building. The police and firemen made every effort to learn whether such was the case, but a search in this respect was unrewarded. The foreigners were probably mistaken.

STREET COMMISSIONER AFTER SALARY INCREASE

Says he Has Saved Money for the City in Construction Work

COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

Hospitals Ask Settlement of Accounts for Indigent Patients

"I think I have saved my salary in construction work," wrote H. Evans, Street Commissioner, in a letter to the Board of Works last night, in which he asked for a substantial increase in salary, which is now $1000.

Mr. Evans has held the position for ten years, during which time he has constructed forty miles of concrete sidewalk, some bridges and other work.

The matter was laid over till to-night's meeting of the committee of the whole council, when applications for increase in salary will be dealt with.

At this meeting Ald. Stratton will bring forward his motion calling for the re-arrangement of the staffs in the office of the City Clerk, City Engineer and City Treasurer, and also for the appointment of an assistant for the City Clerk.

Pay for Indigents.

An official from the House of Providence may also attend the meeting to ask Council to pay accounts for indigent patients. Officials from the Nicholls Hospital were to have been present on the same errand, but for some reason they will not attend.

It appears that both hospitals have long-standing accounts against the city for indigent cases. In some instances the city has refused to pay.

According to the laws of the land, it is evident that the city can be compelled to pay for all cases.

TWO FINES IN LIQUOR CASE

Man Who Supplied Booze is Assessed $28.85

Robert Sheridan was before Magistrate Dumble this morning on two charges. The first one was that of supplying Manley Smith, a blacklister, with liquor, to which he pleaded guilty. He was assessed $25 and costs amounting to $28.75 or an option of 30 days in jail.

The second charge was that of supplying W. F. Hamilton with the same liquid, but Sheridan pleaded not guilty to this charge and as the Chief was not ready to go on with the case, he was remanded for eight days.

Hamilton failed to appear in court, the reason being that he was taken to the hospital.

He had entered a plea of guilty and a fine of $10 was recorded.

Grand Jury Presentment.

The Grand Jury made their presentment to Mr. Justice Kelly this afternoon.

BOARD OF WORKS PASSES STREET RAILWAY REQUEST

For Turnout at the Corner of George and Charlotte Streets

A MEETING TO-DAY

To Consider Question of Loop by Way of Perry Street

Last night the Board of Works granted the application of the Street Railway Company, to construct a turnout, running north and south on George street, from the corner of Charlotte and George streets.

This turnout has to do with the operations of the company to give a ten minute service, and direct transfers, as previously stated.

From the north side of Charlotte street, the turnout will extend 160 feet north on George street, but it will not be necessary to tear out a portion of the street pavement. The track will run about 200 feet south of Charlotte street. There will be ample room for traffic between the track and the sidewalk curb.

A loop will run off George street, along Perry street and connect with Lock street, thus eliminating the McDonald siding. A new siding will be placed between Smith and Antrim streets and new curves provided at the corner of George and Charlotte streets. The curves and the loop will permit of a freight service.

The Board met at the corner of George and Perry streets this afternoon.

FINE BALCONY AT HOTEL NATIONAL

The owners of the Hotel National will be permitted to construct a balcony at the front of the hotel which is being improved and altered for Mr. G. N. Graham.

The balcony will be similar to that at the King Edward Hotel at Toronto.

Permission is given on the understanding that the owners sign an agreement, which will protect the city.

At 12.53 today at noon, the firemen answered a call to a fire at the residence of Dr. Gallivan, where a blaze had originated in the doctor's office, from spontaneous combustion.

Some oily substance had evidently found its way to some discarded cloths and cotton batting.

The office was badly damaged to the extent of between $200 and $400.

GUNMEN TO DIE ON APRIL THIRTEENTH

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DR. MOHER

The funeral of the late Dr. Moher took place this morning from the residence of Dr. Gallivan to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery. The high esteem in which the late gentleman was held was clearly shown by the large number of friends who were present in the cathedral. The funeral mass was celebrated by Rev. C. J. Phelan, while his Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., gave the last absolution. Rev. J. J. O'Brien was present in the sanctuary while Rev. J. V. McCauley assisted in the choir. Very Rev. Dean McColl officiated at the grave. Representatives of the C.M.B.A., Catholic Order of Foresters, Knights of Columbus and T.A.S. were present.

The following were pall-bearers:—Dr. McNulty, Dr. Coughlin, of Belleville; Dr. McGrath, James Lynch, J. C. Sullivan and M. O'Brien.

APPROPRIATIONS MUST BE CUT DOWN TO RETAIN RATE

The thinnest man in the world will have company in the form of the Committee Estimates of the City Council, when pruning operations are concluded, and he will have to hustle to hold his job.

When the Board of Works received the estimate for their department last night, Mayor Buller thought three items could disappear. These items were $1,500 for gravel $1500 for stone and $200 for surface drainage.

Ald. Green thought that all legitimate expenditure should be made, even though the taxes were increased. He opined that as the year might be a hard one, it would be a good thing for the city to spend the money.

Mayor Buller was in favor of spending money, but he thought such work as was not really necessary could wait over for another year. His argument was that in the past few years, the city had been doing work that should have been accomplished in gradual stages during the past twenty years. This was particularly so in the case of the School Board and the Police Department. This condition of affairs called for large expenditures, and such work as was not actually necessary could afford to wait for later attention.

The discussion that followed showed quite clearly that all the committee estimates would have to be cut down, if the rate of 25 mills is to be retained.

The increased revenue of $16,000 is gobbled up by the increase in the estimates for the Board of Education, Police Department, interest and sinking fund.

REBELS TAKING THE LIFE OF A FEDERAL PRISONER

SHOOTING OF FEDERAL OFFICER BY REBELS AT OJINAGA

The above photograph shows the shooting of a federal officer by the rebels at Ojinaga, Mexico. The federals and rebels have been killing all of their prisoners and bayoneting the wounded on the battlefield "to put them out of their misery." After the prisoner is shot the commander of the firing squad shoots him in the head with his revolver, delivering what is called "the mercy shot."

ORANGEMEN PURCHASE LOT AND WILL BUILD FINE HALL

Property is on Brock Street—What Other Lodges are Doing

The members of the various Orange Lodges of the city district have increased with such rapidity that of late their officers have been giving considerable of their time to the adopting of some plan for obtaining a hall. It was first thought it would be advisable to purchase a large building and remodel it, but they finally thought it best to buy land and build. The question as to where to buy the land at a reasonable price and yet have it centrally located, was the next impediment and this resulted in the purchase of the lot owned by Mr. W. J. Hancock, which is situated on Brock street, directly opposite the skating rink.

The lot has a fifty-three foot frontage and is one hundred and ninety-two feet deep. Although The Review scribe couldn't find out officially what the price was, it is said that it was in the neighborhood of $3,500.

Of course there are no specified plans for the style or class of building, but the fact that some $15,000 will be spent along that line assures us that its equal will not be found in any city of this size in Canada. Just when the building will be commenced is not known but the time should not be very far distant.

The next open meeting of the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows which is held every five weeks, will be held on the evening of Thursday, March 5th, in their hall. Mr. Wm. McLaren will speak on "Palistine and its Principle Characters." A musical program will also be rendered.

The third degree will be exemplified to-night by the Peterborough Lodge of Oddfellows. The members of the third degree team are requested to be on hand early.

The Tuesday evening meeting of the A.O.U.W. was marked by another large initiation. This lodge has been placed on the honor roll having taken in more members than any other of the twelve lodges in the central section. The membership of this lodge at present is a little over 100.

The W.O.W. held a very enthusiastic meeting on Monday night. It is interesting to know that the local lodge is the second largest lodge of W.O.W. in Canada and is the largest lodge of any society of this city.

L.O.L. No. 50 is making arrangements for the celebration of their anniversary, which takes place on Monday, March 23rd.

There will be an initiation of new members into the Golden Link Lodge No. 81, Daughters of Rebekah, at their meeting next Tuesday night in the I.O.O.F. hall. All the degree staff are requested to be on hand early and as many members as possible.

At the meeting of the Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows No. 13, held on Monday night, the initiatory degree was solemnized. Next Monday night the first degree will be solemnized, so the members of that degree team are requested to be on hand early.

Last night the members of St. Peter's C.M.B.A. Branch No. 30, visited the residence of Dr. Galvin, to view the remains of the late Dr. Moher. The society was represented at the funeral to-day. The late doctor was one of the members of the local branch.

Courts Peterborough and Langton invite the members and their friends to their hall on Simcoe street to-morrow night when a program, including singing, music and dancing, will be provided.

WEDDING BELLS

HARTMAN—NORTHCUTT

On Wednesday, Feb. 25th, a quiet wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Northcutt, Bewdley, when their youngest daughter, Ruby Sarah Elizabeth, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Frederick David Hartman, of Peterborough.

The ceremony took place at twelve o'clock noon with Rev. T. D. McCullough officiating.

Only the immediate friends of the bride were present. The happy couple will reside in Peterborough.

DAVIDSON—ANDERSON.

A very pretty but quiet wedding took place yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. C. Anderson, 156 Douro St., when his youngest sister, Lucy M., was united in marriage with Mr. Wm. E. Davidson, son of R. J. Davidson, of Orono. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Rollins, of St. Andrews Church.

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, Mr. J. C. Anderson, while the wedding march was played by Miss Jean Anderson, niece of the bride. After the ceremony the company retired to the dining room where the wedding repast was served, the tables being prettily decorated with cut flowers and ferns.

Afterwards the happy couple took the 4.33 C.P.R. train and after a short honeymoon will take up their home in the west at Medicine Hat.

The bride was prettily gowned in blue silk eolienne with sable trimmings, and the only ornament worn was a handsome necklace of pearls and olivines, the gift of the groom. She travelled in a suit of plum velvet and mink furs.

The only out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Anderson of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Anderson, of Campbellford.

LEAVES VALE OF SORROW; ENTERS INTO HIS TRIUMPH

Ministers and Citizens Pay Their Tributes to the Late Rev. T. J. Mansell—A Soldier Returned From Battle

The public service held yesterday afternoon over the remains of the late T. J. Mansell was a public demonstration of the high regard in which he was held. The church was fittingly decorated with crepe and mourning and a most striking feature was that all the lady members of the choir were in mourning with black waists trimmed slightly with white. The vast assemblage rose to their feet while the casket was moved slowly up the aisle. The deep notes from the organ floated over all and caused a deep gloom. Behind the remains a long procession of friends, ministers and representatives from various secular bodies followed slowly and filled the seats reserved for them.

After the invocation Hymn number 855 was sung. Few indeed were the dry eyes as the following words were reverently uttered:

Servant of God, well done
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is won,
And thou art crowned at last;

Of all thy hearts desire
Triumphantly possessed;
Lodged by the ministerial choir
In thy Redeemer's breast.

Immediately after the hymn prayer was offered up by the Rev. Mr. Johnston, chairman of the district, while Rev. F. J. Sawyers and H. J. Keith read Psalms 46 and 90 and Cor. 1, verses 35 to 58, respectively.

After a hymn by the choir Rev. R. W. Limbert spoke a few touching words about the late minister. His sudden death has caused a dark cloud to suddenly fall about us but there is always a silver lining to such clouds. It is true that the citizens were dearly attached to him but we should remember that he has entered into his reward and is as it were a soldier who has returned from battle to enjoy his triumph. Most of us, Mr. Limbert stated, knew the late Mr. Mansell very intimately and those who did must say that they were at the very first impressed with his noble physique, which seemed to bespeak the spirit within the man.

His death was of course a shock to this community and likewise his vast number of friends and acquaintances but it serves to show that Almighty God is great, far greater than earthly things. He called his servant to Him, called him to his reward for the Rev. Mansell left this vale of sorrow to enter into his triumph.

Our city, said Rev. J. R. Webb, has been bowed under the burden of a great grief. One of the happiest of homes has been suddenly smitten and wrecked beyond repair. A representative church has been bereft of its pastor and leader. The city has lost a conspicuous figure and an influential citizen and the Ministerial Association has lost a brother indeed.

It was a kind thought on the part of those arranging this service to make a place for a few words of sympathy and appreciation from the body I have the honor to represent.

He never sought prominence. His ministry was not spectacular. He did not beg to be respected because of his office, but brought glory to the office by his faithfulness in it. He was not anxious to be heard on every question, but when he arose to speak he always commanded the attention of his brethren and not infrequently carried their judgment. He was not an apostle of peace at any price, but when he opposed his brethren he did it with such kindliness and dignity as made any after bitterness impossible. I see him yet, as on one recent occasion after something of a conflict, he walked up to his opponent, shaking hands with him, he said: "I congratulate you on being a strong, fair fighter."

I was associated with him for three years in the city of Montreal and learned to love him. It was a pleasure to hear that he was coming to Peterborough three years ago, and since his coming every hour spent with him has been an hour of blessing.

We sat alone together for twenty minutes last Saturday night talking of our work. He said: "No matter how hard I work I reach the week end feeling that it is only half done." Speaking of his Friday evening "At Home," he said: "How much we need an evening to ourselves, we have so few of them."

His last visit to the centre of the city was in the interests of the Ministerial Association and the entire community, and his weighty and kindly words on that occasion will not be unfruitful. His last message to his own people will surely have an undying echo. To all of us "He being dead yet speaketh."

Mr. R. F. Downey, who represented the congregation of the church was the next speaker. He referred at some length to the honor and privilege that had been conferred upon their parish in being able to associate with such a pastor as the late Mr. Mansell. Words were very empty when be wished to express the congregation's sorrow and it was also hard to express their sincerest sympathy for the widow and family. He urged the parishioners to unite with him and assist in comforting them with their prayers, in this, their hour of great affliction.

Mr. Downey then brought his

TANGOITIS.

THE MONTREAL MAIL quotes from an encyclopedia to prove that dancing is a disease, the quotation runs : "An epidemic nervous disorder, apparently allied to hysteria and chorea, occasionally prevalent in Germany and Italy during the middle ages. As it has been in every instance chiefly propagated by physical contagion, like chorea, there is every reason to conclude that it had a like origin. In 1734, during the celebration of the festival of St. John at Aix-la-Chapelle, the street became crowded with men and women of all ranks and ages who commenced dancing in a wild and frantic manner, many losing entire control of themselves and continuing to dance until dropping down from fatigue. The mania spread to Cologne, Metz and Strasburg, and gave rise to much imposture, profligacy and disorder."

This must be the gruesome explanation, remarks the Mail, where we thought we were being ravished by the beauties of a dance we are being ravaged by the terrors of a disease. We are a world of saltatory invalids. The poetry has become the pathology of motion.

If dancing is really a physical malady it is up to our doctors to try and cure it. It has been left, to a large extent, to ministers of religion to deal with the complaint. But the dufficulty would be to locate the seat of the disease. The doctor might well ask, like the poet asked about "fancy" :

Tell me where is dancing bred
In the feet or in the head ?

Dancing cannot be said to be an intellectual pursuit, it rather indicates vacuity in the place where the brains ought to be. Activity at the nether extremities seldom goes along with activity in the grey matter. With most of us, to whirl round and round for even a short spell makes one dizzy. The effect of dancing on many young people is to make them giddy, the brain gives way to the feet and they want to Tango. This "Tango" is, from all accounts, a sort of Kangaroo dance which would be more appropriately called "Kango."

Dancing is certainly a disease of some kind, and mothers ought not to scold their girls for their giddiness, but take them to a doctor ; especially if the disease developes into the "Tango" stage. Good heavy boots might have the effect of taming the feet a little ; or, still better, a little mental exercise would work wonders.

LOCAL LABOUR CONDITIONS.

THE LABOUR GAZETTE, just issued, makes interesting reading. The reports from the various cities on labor conditions during the month of January show that all industrial centres have suffered more or less from slackness of trade and the consequent unemployment. Peterborough has not suffered in this respect more than many other cities, in fact this city compares very favorably with the rest of Ontario. Belleville seems to have been very little affected, but owing to our more extensive industries we naturally feel the "pinch" more. Indeed it might be taken as a sign of advancement and importance, so far as cities are concerned, to have a real unemployment problem occasionally. Where large business is being carried on there is bound to be an ebb and flow of trade, and if people will crowd into cities they must take the ebb with the flood. The Gazette says :

Labour conditions for the month of January were quiet in most lines. The severe weather during the latter half of the month caused a general suspension of the activity in the building trades, and as a consequence carpenters, bricklayers, masons, plasterers, labourers, and other outside workers, were mostly laid off. While some of the factories are enjoying busy conditions, others are closed down or are working short-handed. The Quaker Oats Company was busy and advertising for girls. All other help is very plentiful. The Wm. Hamilton Company has plenty of work, and is enjoying busy conditions. The city council is making arrangements to start work in connection with the new sewerage system ; this will give work to a large number. The ice harvesting season now commencing will also help those out of work. One of the principal features of local business has been the timely break in the price of coal. Stove coal is now selling at $7.25, as compared with $8.25 last month, and nut coal $7.50 instead of $8.50. The annual poultry show was held during the first part of the month. There were 1,300 entries. There were 183 permits issued last year, the total value of which was $267,682.

The farmers are bringing in considerable quantities of wood. Green maple has been selling for $5.50 to $5.70, and dry maple at from $6.00 to $6.50. The cow testing association of Peterborough centre now contains more herds than any other centre in the Province. Great improvements are being made by eliminating the poor cows, and many excellent animals are being placed at the head of the Peterborough herds. A large number of silos were built last summer, and arrangements are being made to build a larger number next summer. There is also a movement on foot to organize a ploughmen's association, whose object is to encourage its members to give greater attention to thorough cultivation of the soil.

Lumbering progressed rapidly in the back country, and a good cut is anticipated. Woodworking factories enjoyed busy conditions.

For the sake of comparison it is instructive to note what the same authority on labour conditions says about Toronto. In the Queen City, the Gazette says that the month of January was characterized by a general slackening of industrial activity and a large increase in the number of unemployed. Many of the manufacturers temporarily reduced their staffs, throwing a large number out of work, and there has also been a considerable influx of unemployed men from other places. The total number out of work during the earlier part of the month was estimated at about 15,000. Active measures were taken by the city and charitable organizations for the relief of the unemployed. On the 12th the city council voted $25,000 to provide work, and establish a civic Labour Bureau for the registration of the names of those wanting employment. Up to the close of the month upwards of 7,400 men had registered, for a large proportion of whom temporary employment was secured, either for the city or private employers. The Salvation Army also found work for a number. On February 2 a Woman's Employment Bureau will be opened by the Social Service Commission in conjunction with the W .C. T. U.

With regard to unemployment, which seems to be pretty general, there is no doubt that a lax immigration system has much to do with it. It would be well if a curb was put upon our immigration agents. People have been enticed to Canada with blatant and false promises, families have been dumped by agents into places where there may be good work at the time, but which is merely a rush for a season and the immigrants are unprepared for the problem of the Canadian winter.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

PREMIER ASQUITH says that he will announce his Ulster policy before Easter. He is evidently putting the matter off until the cold weather is over, when he may possibly dispense with the Ulster altogether.

THERE ARE VARIOUS definitions of a Conservative, and these depend largely upon the definer. The Globe quotes the following from Mr. Marshall : "One who sits on the tail of progress and hollers "Whoa !" this, says the Globe, is "one of the best definitions extant." If by "progress" is meant Transcontinental Railway contracting, as per the Laurier Government, then "Whoa" is excellent.

ANOTHER CLUB has been organized called "The Canada Forward Club." It is a Liberal affair.

"Forward be our watchword—
Not a look behind,"

might well be adopted by all Liberals just now, why rake up the past ?

LANSDOWNE SCHOOL was gutted by fire and 850 pupils filed out in good order inside of four minutes. The kiddies must have thought it was a false alarm.

BISHOP SWEENY in his Lenten pastoral letter appeals to the clergy to earnestly support Sabbath observance. If the clergy are remiss what can be expected from the people ?

WHAT THE WORLD IS SAYING

The Widow of R. L. S.
The Globe.

The widow of Robert Louis Stevenson, the great writer of fiction, died recently of apoplexy at her home in California, where she had resided since Mr. Stevenson's death in Samoa nearly twenty years ago. Her maiden name was Van de Grift, and her first husband, from whom she was divorced in 1879, was a Mr. Osbourne. She became the wife of Mr. Stevenson the following year, and was during the rest of his life "a perfect companion, taking part keenly and critically in his work, sharing all his gipsy tastes and love of primitive and natural modes of life, and being, in spite of her own precarious health, the most devoted and efficient of nurses. Her son and daughter both co-operated with Mr. Stevenson in his literary labors.

Domestic Service Versus Teaching.
Christian Science Monitor.

The girl was asked why she had chosen housework instead of qualifying as a teacher. She said that housework paid better in the long run and was much easier than teaching. It gave her time to pursue her studies, it left her with free thoughts. For all her interest in books, however, the girl had an eye to duty, and when a course in cooking was announced she consulted with her employer and it was decided she would better take it. She became thus an excellent cook, and unlike too many excellent cooks not an extravagant one

The girl appears from the account to have no special privileges in the way of familiarity with the family. She does her work on a business basis as a man in an office would do, and respects herself in it. She does not regard the family's use of their own home as a grievance. She enjoys her share of the home and evidently feels that she has all that is her due in liberty to spend her leisure as she likes and go out on stated occasions. She brings intelligence and zeal to the household tasks, and so she enjoys them. She is assuredly saving money for some new plan that may develop itself than many women who teach school and must eke out respectable clothing, high rent and the like on scanty pay. In other words this girl believes that one who adopts household service without feeling ashamed of it is freer and happier than girls who on small salaries are striving to keep up an appearance of social standing.

Oenone's Vale.

There lies a vale in Ida, lovelier
Than all the valleys of Ionian hills.
The swimming vapor slopes athwart the glen,
Puts forth an arm ,and creeps from pine to pine,
And loiters, slowly drawn. On either hand
The lawns and meadow-ledges midway down
Hang rich in flowers, and far below them roars
The long brook falling thro' the clov'n ravine
In cataract after cataract to the sea.
Behind the valley topmost Gargarus
Stands up and takes the morning ; but in front
The gorges, opening wide apart, reveal
Troas and Ilion's column'd citadel.
The crown of Troas.

FASHIONS
By Walt Mason

I wear the same old trusty hat I bought six years ago next May, and no one shies a brick thereat, or calls me down in any way. With toilers in the busy mart I mingle, as I always did, and hold discourses heart to heart—and no one seems to note my lid. I go to church on Sunday morn, to hear the eminent divine, and no one speaks, with blighting scorn, about that good old tile of mine. I wear it always out of doors, though it is old and out of style ; credit's good at all the stores, and people greet me with a smile. But Sister Jane must buy a hat whene'er new styles are advertised; if she should make refusal flat, she surely would be ostracised. They'd freeze her out of all the clubs, and she would get, to her distress, the ice tongs from the lady dubs who never think of aught but dress. And so I'm glad I'm not a dame, that I can wear just what I please in ancient hats, and clothe my frame in shelf worn hande-me-downs like these, and still be greeted by my friends with cordial grasp and cheerful smiles ; for all our dear bought freedom ends, when we are martyrs to the styles.

New Complication In Mexico Raised by Outrage of Federals.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26. — The Mexican situation, which has centred chiefly for the last few days upon efforts to determine how and why the Constitutionalists executed William S. Birthdays of Note

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY TWENTY-SIXTH

Arthur Stringer, the well known Canadian poet and novelist, who is observing his fortieth birthday to-day, is one of the few people who have read their own death notices. The incident occurred a couple of years ago when he was summering at his farm on the shore of Lake Erie. A report was published in the papers that he had been burned to death following the explosion of an oil stove. Of course it was utterly untrue and he hastened to deny it and relieve the anxiety of his friends. Mr. Stringer has been most successful in the literary field. He made his start as an author when attending the University of Toronto and subsequently acted as a reporter on newspapers in London, Montreal and New York.

RECARVING QUEBEC.

Redistribution Committee Begins Its Labors To-day.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The redistribution committee of the Commons will meet to-day. It is expected that rapid progress will be made with Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, which will be taken first, as there appears to be no disposition on the part of Liberals to quarrel with the proposal of the Government regarding these provinces. Quebec and Prince Edward Island will be left to the last.

The Liberals are opposed to the proposal to give the island province four members, and the fact that half a dozen rural constituencies in Quebec will be wiped out to make possible that additional member in Montreal will cause a battle royal among the French-Canadian members. Montreal will probably have eleven seats.

Atlantic Coast Has Snowstorm.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 26. — The south and southeast last night shivered in the grip of a general snowstorm, which blanketed the Atlantic seaboard as far south as southern Georgia, and reached to the gulf states. Weather bureau records for from eight to twenty years were broken. Falling temperatures accompanied the storm in many sections, the snow turning to sleet.

The heaviest snowfall was reported in Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi, and North and South Carolina.

Will Report on Canal Scheme.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—It is expected that to-day the appointment will be made of the commission to enquire into the feasibility of the proposed Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal. This is the commission which Hon. Robert Rogers promised a few days ago in the Commons.

While not officially given out, it is understood that the commissioners will be Frank Meighen and Edward Gohier of Montreal and W. Sanford Evans of Winnipeg.

CRAMPS, HEADACHE, BACKACHE,

Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"I was always tired and weak and my housework was a drag. I was irregular, had cramps so bad that I would have to lie down, also a distressed feeling in lower part of back, and headache. My abdomen was sore and I know I had organic inflammation.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier have helped me wonderfully. I don't have those pains any more and I am all right now. There are a great many women here who take your remedies and I have told others what they have done for me."—Mrs. CHAS. McKINNON, 1013 N. 5th St. W., Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

There are probably hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over 30 years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering. If you are sick and need such a medicine, why don't you try it?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Tarzan of the Apes

by Edgar Rice Burroughs

Copyright, 1912, by the Frank A. Munsey company.

On the day that Tarzan established his right to respect the tribe was gathered about a small natural amphitheater which the jungle had left free from its entangling vines and creepers.

Here the tribe often gathered. In the center of the amphitheater was one of those strange earthen drums which the anthropoids build for the dumdum, the queer rites the sound of which men have heard in the fastnesses of the jungle, but which none has ever witnessed.

On the day that Tarzan won his emancipation from the persecution that had followed him remorselessly for twelve of his thirteen years of life the tribe, now a full 100 strong, trooped silently through the lower terrace of the jungle trees and dropped noiselessly upon the floor of the amphitheater.

The rites of the dumdum marked important events in the life of the tribe—a victory, the capture of a prisoner, the killing of some large, fierce denizen of the jungle, the death or accession of a king.

Today it was the killing of a giant ape, a member of another tribe, and as the people of Kerchak entered the arena two mighty bulls might have been seen bearing the body of the vanquished between them. They laid their burden before the earthen drum and then squatted beside it as guards, while the other members of the community curled themselves in grassy nooks to sleep until the rising moon should give the signal for the commencement of the orgy.

A darkness settled upon the jungle, the apes commenced to bestir themselves, and soon they formed a great circle about the earthen drum.

The females and young squatted in a thin line at the outer periphery of the circle, while just in front of them ranged the adult males. Before the drum sat three old females, each armed with a knotted branch fifteen or eighteen inches in length.

Slowly and softly they began tapping upon the resounding surface of the drum as the first faint rays of the ascending moon silvered the treetops.

As the light increased the females augmented the frequency and force of their blows until presently a rhythmical din pervaded the jungle for miles in every direction. Huge brutes stopped in their hunting, with uppricked ears and raised heads, to listen to the dull booming that betokened the dumdum of the great apes.

As the din of the drum rose to almost deafening volume Kerchak sprang into the open space between the squatting males and the drummers.

Standing erect, he threw his head far back, and, looking full into the eye of the rising moon, he beat upon his breast with his great hairy paws and emitted his fearful roaring shriek.

Once—twice—thrice that terrifying cry rang out across the teeming solitude of that unspeakably quick, yet unthinkably dead, world.

Then, crouching, Kerchak slunk noiselessly around the open circle, veering far away from the dead body lying before the altar drum, but as he passed keeping his little, fierce, wicked red eyes upon the corpse.

Another male then sprang into the arena and, repeating the horrid cries of his king, followed stealthily in his wake. Another and another followed in quick succession until the jungle reverberated with the now almost ceaseless notes of their bloodthirsty screams.

It was the challenge and the hunt.

When all the adult males had joined in the thin line of circling dancers the attack commenced.

Kerchak, seizing a huge club from the pile which lay at hand for the purpose, rushed furiously upon the dead ape, dealing the corpse a terrific blow, at the same time emitting the growls and snarls of combat.

The din of the drum was now increased, as well as the frequency of the blows, and the warriors, as each approached the victim of the hunt and delivered his bludgeon blow, joined in the mad whirl of the death dance.

Tarzan was one of the wild, leaping horde. His brown, sweat streaked, muscular body glistening in the moonlight, shone supple and graceful among the uncouth, awkward, hairy brutes about him.

For half an hour the weird dance went on, until, at a sign from Kerchak, the noise of the drums ceased, the female drummers scampering hurriedly through the line of dancers toward the outer rim of squatting spectators. Then, as one man, the males rushed headlong upon the thing which their terrific blows had reduced to a mass of hairy pulp.

Flesh seldom came to their jaws in satisfying quantities, so a fit finale to their wild revel was a taste of fresh killed meat, and it was to the purpose of devouring their late enemy that they now turned their attention.

Tarzan more than the apes craved and needed flesh. Descended from a race of meat eaters, never in his life, he thought, had he once satisfied his appetite for animal food, and so now his agile little body wormed its way far into the mass of struggling apes in an endeavor to obtain a share which his strength would have been unequal to the task of winning for him.

At his side hung the hunting knife of his unknown father in a sheath self fashioned in copy of one he had seen among the pictures of his treasure books.

At last he reached the fast disappearing feast and with his sharp knife slashed off a more generous portion than he had hoped for.

Then he wriggled out from beneath the struggling mass, clutching his prize close.

Among those circling futilely the outskirts of the banqueters was old Tublat. He had been among the first at the feast, but had retreated with a goodly share to eat in quiet and was now forcing his way back for more.

So it was that he spied Tarzan emerging from the clawing throng.

Tublat's bloodshot, pig eyes sent out wicked gleams of hate as they fell upon the object of his loathing. In them, too, was greed for the meat the boy carried.

But Tarzan saw his arch enemy as quickly and, divining what the beast would do, leaped nimbly away toward the women and children, hoping to hide himself among them. Tublat, however, was close upon him, so that he had no opportunity to seek a place of concealment, but saw that he would be put to it to escape at all.

Swiftly he sped toward the trees and he had no opportu ty to seek a place of concealment, bu aw that he would be put to it to escape at all.

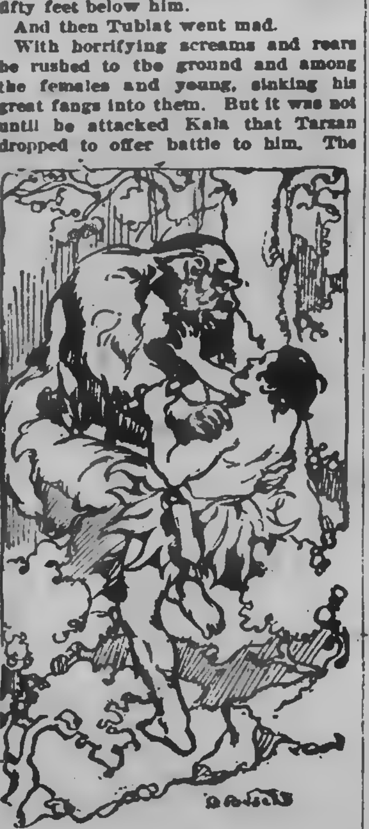
Swiftly he sped toward the trees and with a bound gained a lower limb with one hand, and then, transferring his burden to his teeth, he climbed rapidly upward, closely followed by Tublat.

Up, up he went to the waving pinnacle of a lofty monarch of the forest where his heavy pursuer dare not follow him. Perched there, he hurled taunts and insults at the raging beast fifty feet below him.

And then Tublat went mad.

With horrifying screams and roars he rushed to the ground and among the females and young, sinking his great fangs into them. But it was not until he attacked Kala that Tarzan dropped to offer battle to him. The infuriated bull found himself facing the man-child who stood between him and Kala.



With a Roar He Leaped Upon the Little Lord Greystoke.

Nothing could have suited the fierce beast better, and with a roar of triumph he leaped upon the little Lord Greystoke. But his fangs never closed in that nut brown flesh.

A muscular hand shot out and grasped the hairy throat, and another plunged a keen hunting knife a dozen times into the broad breast. Like lightning the blows fell and only ceased when Tarzan felt the limp form crumple beneath him.

As the body rolled to the ground Tarzan of the apes placed his foot upon the neck of his lifelong enemy and, raising his eyes to the full moon, threw back his fierce young head and voiced the wild cry of his people.

One by one the tribe swung down from their arboreal retreats and formed a circle about Tarzan and his vanquished foe. When they had all come Tarzan turned toward them.

"I am Tarzan!" he cried. "I am a great killer! Let all respect Tarzan of the apes and Kala, his mother! There be none among you as mighty as Tarzan. Let his enemies beware!"

Looking full into the wicked red eyes of Kerchak, the young Lord Greystoke beat upon his mighty breast and screamed out once more his shrill cry of defiance.

Tarzan of the apes lived on in his wild, jungle existence with little change for several years, only that he grew stronger and wiser and learned from his books more and more of the strange worlds which lay somewhere outside his primeval forest.

Many days during these years he spent in the cabin of his father, where still lay untouched the bones of his parents and the little skeleton of Kala's baby. At eighteen he read fluently and understood nearly all he read.

Also could he write with printed letters rapidly and plainly, but script he had not mastered, for, though there were several copybooks among his treasures, there was so little written English in the cabin that he saw no use of bothering with this other form of writing, though he could read it laboriously.

Thus, at eighteen, we find him an English lordling who could speak no English, yet who could read and write his native language. Never had he seen a human being other than himself, for the little area traversed by his tribe was watered by no great river to bring down the savage natives of the interior.

High hills shut it off on three sides, the ocean on the fourth. It was alive with lions and tigers and leopards and poisonous snakes. Its untouched mazes of matted jungle had as yet invited no hardy pioneer from among the humans beyond its frontier.

But as Tarzan of the apes sat one day in the cabin of his father, delving into the mysteries of a new book, the ancient security of his jungle was broken forever.

At the far eastern confine a strange cavalcade strung in single file over the brow of a low hill.

In advance were fifty black warriors armed with slender wooden spears, with ends hard baked over slow fires, and long bows and poisoned arrows. On their backs were oval shields, in their noses hung rings, while from the kinky wool of their heads protruded tufts of gay feathers.

Following them were several hundred women and children, the former bearing upon their heads great burdens of cooking pots, household utensils and ivory. In the rear were a hundred warriors, similar in all respects to the advance guard.

That they more greatly feared an attack from the rear than whatever unknown enemies might lurk ahead was evidenced by the formation of the column, and such was the fact, for they were fleeing from the white man's soldiers who had harassed them for rubber and ivory.

For three days the little cavalcade marched slowly through the heart of this unknown and untracked forest, until finally, early in the fourth day, they came upon a little spot near the banks of a small river which seemed less thickly overgrown than any ground they had encountered before.

Here they set to work to build a new village, and in a month a great clearing had been made, huts and palisades erected, plantains, yams and maize planted, and they had taken up their old life in their new home. Here there were no white men, no soldiers nor any rubber or ivory to be gathered for thankless taskmasters.

Several moons passed ere the blacks ventured far into the territory surrounding their new village. Several had already fallen prey to old Sabor, the tiger, and because the jungle was so infested with these fierce and bloodthirsty cats and with lions and leopards the ebony warriors hesitated to trust themselves far from the safety of their palisades.

But one day Kulonga, a son of the old king, Mbonga, wandered far into the dense mazes to the west. Warily he stepped, his slender lance ever ready, his long oval shield grasped in his left hand close to his body—at his back his bow, and in the quiver upon his shield many slim, straight arrows, well smeared with the thick, dark, tarry substance that rendered deadly their tiniest needle prick.

Night found Kulonga far from the palisades of his father's village, but still headed westward, and, climbing into the fork of a great tree, he fashioned a rude platform and curled himself for sleep.

AMENDMENT VOTED DOWN

Liberal Regrets are Excluded From the Address.

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—Apart from the sensational incident centering around Mr. Evanturel, the Legislature devoted several hours to a debate on a motion by Dr. McQueen (Wentworth) expressing regret that legislation to abolish the bar, to prohibit the treating system or to otherwise curtail the evils of the liquor traffic had not been promised. This motion was eventually defeated by fifty-two to fifteen. Mr. Evanturel did not vote. Mr. Studholme voted with the Opposition.

Dr. McQueen in proposing the amendment said the Government was glad to cover up its sins of omission by talking of the things it had accomplished and failing to deal with present conditions.

Mr. A. H. Musgrove (N. Huron) doubted the Liberals' sincerity in their protests against the three-fifths' clause.

Questioned by Mr. Proudfoot, Mr. Hanna intimated that no license would be granted in Huron on May 1 next, when the Scott Act comes into force.

Referring to Conservative and liquor interests alliance, Mr. Proudfoot maintained that in the Middlesex bye-election they had gone "hand in glove."

Mr. McFarlan, the Conservative elected at that bye-election, said that he was unaware that the liquor interests were supporting him.

Mr. Wm. McDonald (C. Bruce), Mr. Allan Studholme, Mr. A. C. Pratt (Norfolk), and Mr. C. R. McKeown (Dufferin) also spoke.

Proposed Negro Colony.

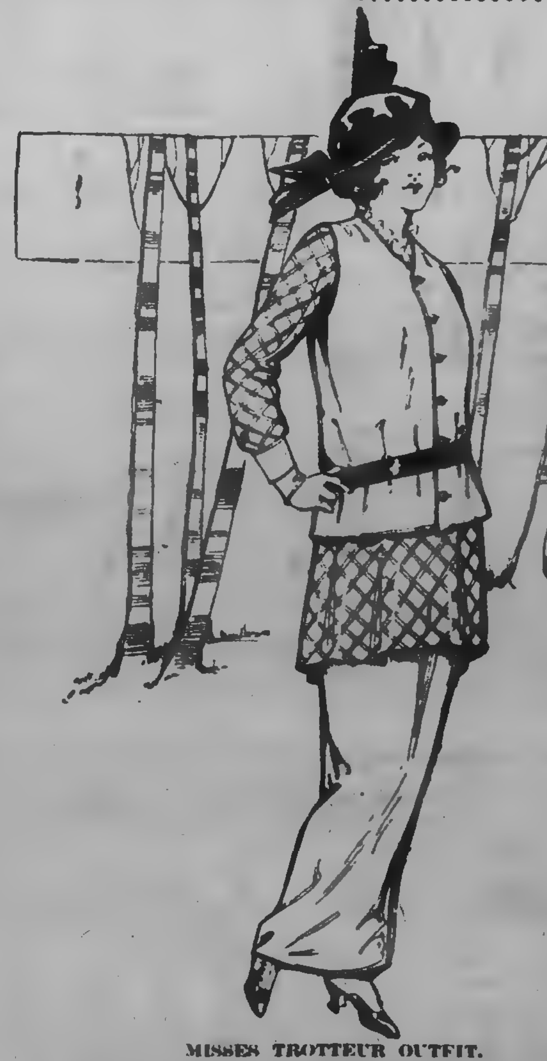
WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—At the request of the British Government the State Department has asked the Department of Justice to enquire into the proposed establishment of a negro kingdom on the Gold Coast of Africa by Chief Sam of Oklahoma. An investigation will be made, although it is not believed the American Government can take any action to prevent the emigration of negroes.

The British officials suggested that Chief Sam and his followers might find the Gold Coast unsuitable for their kingdom.

Pupils Cruelly Whipped?

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 26. — The Board of Education will be asked to investigate the alleged whipping of pupils of Talbot street school Tuesday until blood ran from their hands, while a little girl went into hysterics and the teacher of the class cried. The whipping is stated to have been done by a lad who is acting principal in the absence of the principal.

That the Martine silks are so successful since Poiret evolved them that the designes are now used in interior decorative fabrics.



MISSES' TROTTEUR OUTFIT.

An attractively simple yet most fashionable dress for misses' wear morning or afternoon is here developed in kismet tartan silk plaid combined with plain rough silk, all in a tone of dark green, even to the leather girdle. The bishop sleeves are decidedly this year's mode as is the outside-the-skirt effect of the blouse. The full hip line is added to misses' frocks and suits as well as to elder's. With the trotteur outfit the buttoned boot is more modish than ever and the hat must be simple and trimmed high this season.

LIBERAL MEMBER OFFERED SERVICES FOR $10,000

M.L.A. For Prescott After Denouncing Government Is Confronted With Letter In Which He Tried to Become Paid Agentt of Hotelmen In Ontario House--Rowell Repudiates Supporter.

TORONTO, Feb. 26—Disaster sudden and overwhelming befell the Opposition in its annual assault on the bar yesterday afternoon in the Legislature. Gustave Evanturel, Liberal M.P.P. for Prescott, had just taken his seat after a fiery denunciation of the Government for its "alliance with the liquor interests," when G. H. Ferguson, member for Grenville, arose from the Government benches and produced a letter from Evanturel to a hotelman, in which the member solicited a retainer of $10,000 from the "interests" in exchange for his services as their representative in the Legislature to appose the "abolish-the-bar" policy.

After a conference Mr. Rowell took the floor at the evening session and disclaimed all responsibility and sympathy for the act of his erstwhile supporter.

The episode created a profound sensation in the House. Mr. Evanturel made a desperate effort to explain away the charge, but the Speaker forced him to wait until to-day.

Mr. Evanturel, speaking to the amendment to the address, moved by Dr. McQueen (Lib., Wentworth) said that during the present debate his attention had been attracted to certain remarks by the leader of the Opposition of an alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests.

"I have the privilege to say, and I am prepared to prove it or resign my seat in this House, that there is in the County of Prescott, which I have the honor to represent in this House by a fair majority, a great and more than a great alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests. I call it scandal. I call it graft. I will prove it to you to-day."

Mr. Evanturel then went on to allege juggling of licenses, irregularities of license commissioners and traffic in a shop license and in the last named charge carried on a sharp dispute with Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Evanturel declared that the enforcement of the license law in the County of Prescott was a farce. A hotelkeeper, the second vice-president of the Conservative Association, maintained a house that was only a saloon. Further mixing of the liquor traffic and politics, Mr. Evanturel declared, obtained in connection with the license inspector, Mr. Joseph Lemieux, who was also a Conservative organizer.

Mr. G. Howard Ferguson (Grenville) in his reply expressed doubt of the sincerity of Mr. Evanturel's motives. He declared the belief that Mr. Evanturel bad an interest in the liquor traffic. He had not always been opposed to granting licenses to houses on concession lines. "He offered to take a retainer from the liquor interests to defend their action, and still he has the hardihood to pose as a man supporting the policy of the Opposition."

"Does he admit that he made a proposition?" pressed Mr. Ferguson, "that he negotiated with the liquor people? I would like to know."

Mr. Evanturel replied that there was no alliance whatever between himself and the liquor interests.

"He said there is no alliance or any negotiations looking towards an alliance between himself and the liquor interests," continued Mr. Ferguson, who held up a letter which he declared Mr. Evanturel had addressed to a hotelkeeper in Prescott County. He has forced me to read it to the House."

Amid an intense silence, broken only when Mr. Ferguson began to read the following epistle:

Alfred, Ont., Sept. 4, 1914.

Dear Sir,—I have written a long letter to the secretary of the Hotelkeepers' Association for Ontario, Mr. Allen, 26 Wellington street, Toronto, asking him to submit my letter to the directors of the association at their first meeting. In that letter I pledged myself as a true friend of this association and prepared to fight in the House and vote against my leader on that question of abolishing the bars, etc. I have been in the past, one of the speakers who has stood on the public platform in the County of Prescott against the Scott Act when it was tried some years ago in the province. During the past summer I have visited all my county and I have openly declared that I would not support my leader, Mr. Rowell, on his policy to abolish the bars, and I have in my two previous sessions, voted against him in that respect. I am, and I have always been, a true friend to the liquor interests, and I have been backed up by my constituents in doing so. I am a poor man, living only upon my small sessional allowance, and do expect that the association will see its way clear to help me along, and in my letter to the board I ask at least $10,000, payable $3,000 now, and the balance per instalments, in order to support me. I am prepared for that salary to be the defender of the association, and I will introduce before the Legislature any amendments to the Government measures to restrict the liquor traffic, etc. I am the only M.P.P. in the Ontario House who will place himself openly against that policy of Rowell and the restrictions to the trade brought from time to time by the Government. I believe it would be useful to your association to have an M.P.P., who would be there in the House to accept and present to the House all the suggestions coming from your important body. Will you kindly support my application, which is before the board, at its next meeting? I will sign any agreement which your board will require to be sure that I am the man who will fight for your cause in the House. The newspapers of Toronto have published already my interviews with the reporters at the time I have refused to support my leader on that ground of prohibition, etc. I am the only M.P.P. wha has taken that open step in the House and before the province. I am anxious to have the matter settled up as soon as possible as I have to be financially supported at the present time. You have known my late father, Hon. A. Evanturel, ex-Speaker of the Legislature, and ex-M.P.P. for the County of Prescott before me, and during his long and prosperous public life he has fought the battle for the hotelkeepers whenever he had the opportunity to defend your rights, etc. Confident of your strong support before the next meeting I am, very truly yours,

(Signed) Gustave Evanturel,
M.P.P. for Prescott County.

While Mr. Ferguson was reading the letter Mr. Evanturel interrupted with the remark, "I do not think it is fair at the present time to read this letter to the House. Later on I can state my position as against or in favor of the policy to abolish the bar.

"Order!" said the Speaker.

"I would like to have a few minutes to explain my position," said Mr. Evanturel.

The request was ruled out.

"He should take care," concluded Mr. Ferguson, "when be comes into this assembly and makes a charge that bis own hands are clean and free from being mixed up with the liquor traffic. But instead of that he has the temerity to stand up in this House and with a flourish say there is a corrupt alliance between the Conservative party and the liquor interests."

Referring to the episode in a brief speech at the evening session, Mr. Rowell drew attention again to Mr. Evanturel's charges of grave abuses in the license administration in Prescott, and said that it was absolutely no answer to the allegations to make a charge or an attack upon Mr. Evanturel himself. The charges must be answered on their merits and public attention should not be diverted from that fact.

Regarding the letter produced by Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Rowell said: "The attitude of the hon. member for Prescott has, ever since he has been in this House, been one of opposition to our policy of the abolition of the bar. He has never voted in favor of it. He has publicly stated his opposition to it."

That position he was entitled to take, continued Mr. Rowell, but there was more in the letter than a statement of opinion, and that was the part the Liberal leader regretted.

"But speaking to-night in my position of responsibility as leader of the Liberal party in this House," he continued, "I want to say there is absolutely no justification, I think, which the honorable member for Prescott can give for writing the letter he did, and I want to take the very first opportunity to disclaim all responsibility and all sympathy with the expressions contained in the letter with reference to bis attitude in the House."

Mr. Evanturel will have a statement to make when the orders of the day are read.

Fears For Envoy's Safety.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The British Government, it was announced yesterday, is still awaiting an answer from the State Department at Washington to its request to the United States Government to secure a safe conduct from Gen. Villa to enable Consul Perceval of Galveston to participate in the investigation into the death of William S. Benton at Juarez.

Francis Dyke Acland, Parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, stated yesterday in the House of Commons that the Foreign Office was not prepared to order Consul Perceval to leave El Paso for the dangerous districts of Mexico until it had received some assurance that he would be safe in doing so.

Had Killed Policeman.

DETROIT, Feb. 26. — Wesley Moore, the young self-confessed automobile bandit, yesterday admitted to a newspaper reporter, in the presence of a deputy sheriff, that his brother, Alpheus, who was shot and killed on Saturday night while trying to rob a grocery store, was the slayer of Patrolman Thomas F. Madden. The officer was killed several weeks ago when be attempted to detain two young men, who, he believed, had stolen the automobile in which they were riding.

SEVEN ADDED TO MAJORITY.

"Wets" In Welland Now Have a Total Lead of 32 Votes.

WELLAND, Ont., Feb. 26. — The scrutiny of the ballots in the recent Canada Temperance Act vote was resumed yesterday morning before Judge Livingstone. The official count at the adjournment last week gave a majority of 25 votes against the act, and this has now been increased to 32.

All the ballot boxes have now been counted, and the result shows a majority of 32 votes against the act. Proceedings will be renewed to-day, when all arguments and evidence in regard to spoilt or rejected ballots will be taken up by both sides, as well as other technicalities which have arisen, before, during, or since the election. It is expected that many witnesses will be called.

Becker To Find Real Culprits.

OSSINING, N.Y., Feb. 26. — As soon as Charles Becker gets out of prison — and he seems confident today of his ultimate release — he will devote all his energies, he says, to running down the men who are responsible for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler.

"The four gunmen are terribly down-hearted because they, too, were not granted a new trial," said Becker yesterday. "I feel sorry for them. They thought their case was tied up with mine. When I informed them that I had been granted a new trial they immediately concluded they had, too. They were joyous. It was hard when they were told the truth."

"If there was you would have heard it."

ORGANIZE PLOWMEN'S ASSOCIATION IN COUNTY

Twenty Members Wanted to Start the Association

The large number of successful plowing matches that are being held at different points throughout Ontario including the Provincial Match that is held each fall under the direction of the Ontario Plowmen's Association has led a number of farmers in Peterboro county to suggest that a Plowmen's Association be formed for this county. The officers of the Farmers' Institute and of the Agricultural Society have both had the matter under consideration and have corresponded with the Secretary of the Ontario Plowmen's Association. Local parties have offered to contribute prizes to a match if one is held in Peterboro County.

A requirement of the Ontario Plowmen's Association is that each local Association shall have at least twenty members. The membership fee is $1.00 a year. A local Association with twenty members must send half of its proceeds to the funds of the Provincial Association. In the event of its holding a plowing match it is then entitled to share in the Government grant to the Provincial organization. It has been decided to organize a Plowmen's Association in Peterboro county if twenty farmers will become members. Farmers who would like to see such an organization established are invited to forward their name and $1.00 to either M. H. B. Cowan, Editor of Farm and Dairy, Peterboro, or to Mr. Wm. Collins, 22 Romaine St., Peterboro, Secretary of the Farmers' Institute. Whether or not an Association will be formed depends upon the response the farmers of the county make to this appeal.

Several branch clubs have been formed, one of which is Township of Hope and one for Cavan and South Monaghan. A meeting will be called to organise as soon as a sufficient number of names are received.

NAMES FOR NEW STREETS.

Names are wanted for the new streets opened by the city from Patterson street to Sherbrooke street, and from Sherbrooke to Bolivar St.

Ald. Anderson has some other suggestions to make, and the matter will be considered at the meeting of Council to-night.

VALUE OF RHEUMA FROM THE COURT

Judge Barhorst was Relieved of Rheumatism After Doctors Failed.

If you have tried many other remedies and doctors' treatments for Rheumatism and found they failed, do not be skeptical about trying RHEUMA. Read the testimony of Judge John Barhorst, of Fort Loramie, O.:

"After treatment by three doctors without result, I have been freed of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previously I was a cripple, walking with crutches."

Such testimony should be convincing. 50 cents of the Warne Drug Co., guaranteed.

THE SPRING FEVER.

The spring, with all its charms and fascinations of Easter headgear, is approaching with a rapidity almost beyond one's realization, is evident owing to the fact that a number of wild ducks were seen this morning disporting themselves on the Otonabee near the Quaker Oats Company. One East City resident remarked that he heard a robin singing.

GOVERNMENT COULD BREAK THE OCEAN COMBINE SAY DELEGATES

Resolution Favoring the Entry of the Dominion Government Into the Atlantic Transportation Field Is Passed By Members of Associated Boards of Trade.

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—"A Government-owned fleet of fifteen to twenty Atlantic steamships to combat the ocean freight rate combine could be secured at a cost of $5,000,000," declared D. B. Wood of Hamilton at the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of Ontario at the city hall yesterday.

He declared that the Hydro-electric policy had killed the electric combine in Ontario; the parcel post system would eventually stop excessive express rates, and that it was now up to the Government to destroy the most iniquitous combine that existed in commerce to-day — the ocean freight rate combine. Canadians were annually contributing millions of dollars in execessive rates.

The Dominion Government had granted $130,000,000 to the C.P.R., $22,000,000 in two years to the C.N.R., and hundreds of millions in the building of the National Transcontinental, and could not reasonably refuse to accept such a chance effectually to kill the ocean freight combine as could be accomplished at an initial cost of five millions.

A resolution embodying the suggestion was put and carried unanimously.

A resolution was passed declaring that the present standard of residence within Canada by aliens be raised to at least five years.

Another resolution urged that the Hydro-Electric Commission proceed with the development of power in New Ontario.

In moving a resolution on the subject of undesirable immigrants, W. P. Gundy of the Toronto Board of Trade alleged that Canada was not getting the proper class of immigrants, but undersized, diseased, immoral people in many thousands.

NOW IS THE TIME TO GET BUSY CANDIDATES

Energetic Candidates in the Review Contest Are Making Most of Opportunity Offer in an Effort to Win Auto

TWO MORE DAYS OF OPPORTUNITY OFFER

These are the days that the live, energetic candidates are doing their best to get every subscriber possible. Some one is going to win an automobile and some are going to win gold watches. It all depends upon what the candidates do the next few days that will determine their success in this great enterprise.

It is not as easy to get subscriptions today as it was last week at this time and each day candidates will find that it is harder to get subscriptions. Why is this? The answer is a simple one. The territory is being canvassed by earnest workers who are getting the subscriptions that are the easiest to procure. In order to win one of the many prizes in the Review contest, it will take work. Nothing was ever gained that was worth anything without energy and work. This is true in every day life. Did you ever see anything that was desirable to you that was not hard to get?

WHY CANDIDATES WILL LOSE.

In a competition of this kind, like in the daily walk of life, some will win and some will lose. The reason for this is a simple one There are opportunities that present themselves and are cast aside unheeded by some, others will grasp them and make the most out of them. This is the very reason that some candidates in the Review contest are getting subscriptions to-day and not standing idly by and saying that it is impossible to get subscriptions. There are subscriptions to be gotten, and some will get them if you don't. Think of these things, candidate, and make up your mind that you will get a certain number of subscriptions each day and don't stop until you get them. Determination is the keynote of success.

ONLY TWO MORE DAYS.

Only two days more of golden opportunity in the Review's great contest. Are you satisfied with the results that you have gained in the last few days? Have you made the best of your time? What do you think you will win? Think of these things now, not after "Opportunity Offer" is past. There is an old saying that "time will wait for no man" and this is something that candidates should realise Two-thirds of the time of this great offer has gone. Look over these last few days for yourself. If you think you have done your best, very well; if not, make up your mind that you will make the future in a way make up for the past. Your past is only proof of progress.

Enthusiasm is the greatest business asset in the world. It beats money, and power, and influence.

An enthusiast convinces and dominates where the wealth accumulated by a small army of workers would scarcely raise a tremor of interest.

Enthusiasm tramples over prejudice and opposition, spurns inaction, storms the citadel of its object, and like an avalanche overwhelms and engulfs all obstacles.

Enthusiasm is nothing more or less than faith in action. Faith and initiative, rightly combined, remove mountainous barriers and achieve the unheard of and miraculous.

Set the germ of enthusiasm afloat in your campaign for votes; carry it in your attitude and manner; it spreads like a contagion and influences every fiber of your industry before you realize it; it begets and inspires effects you do not dream of; it means increases in production, it means joy and pleasure and satisfaction to your helpers; it means life, real and verile; it means spontaneous bedrock results—progress, accomplishment and success.

FREE OF ALL THREE DISEASES

"Fruit-a-tives" Brought Him Perfect Health

AVON, ONT., May 14th, 1913.

"I am younger since I have been taking "Fruit-a-tives". I was troubled very badly with Piles, Constipation and Stomach Disorder, but I found "Fruit-a-tives" was the panacea for the whole three.

Now I am free of all these diseases and enjoying perfect health, and able to work whenever I like. Five years ago, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives". I took two every night and they worked wonders for me.

No other medicine I could get was so good and I took lots of different remedies before I found out how good "Fruit-a-tives" were.

I keep "Fruit-a-tives" on hand all the time, and am never without them. I even take them with me when I go motoring, so I can have them handy. "Fruit-a-tives" are worthy of every good word I can say about them. The fact that they cured me of Piles, was something to be everlastingly thankful for"

O.H.A. KNEW ALL WHEN RUP. MILLAN WAS PASSED

Of What Use Are O. H. A. Certificaies? Kingston Fans Ask

KINGSTON, Feb. 26.—After two days consideration the Kingston hockey fans are still unable to swallow the decision handed out on Monday by the O.H.A. Executive Committee with regard to Rupert Millan of the Frontenac Junior team. The O.H.A. Executive is composed of middle-aged and old sports, but that sub-committee must be troubled with dyspepsia, when it delivered the decision that made such a mess of the junior finals. Even to the uninterested it seems clear that Millan was perfectly eligible to play with the Frontenacs. His visit to Cobalt was well known last December having been heralded. Every member of the O.H.A. Executive knew that this young man had visited Cobalt and returned to his home where he was born, bred, and educated, and where he has lived up to the present time. Knowing the circumstances, the O.H.A. Executive issued a permit two months ago to Millan to play. In view of this, the sub-committee should have stood by the action of its secretary and not over-ruled such a good fellow as Billy Hewitt. Of what use are the O.H.A. certificates after this Apparently worthless. Here was a case which should have been considered upon its merits. One fails to see an iota of excuse for the drastic action of the executive sub-committee in ruling that Millan was ineligible. Then the committee is illogical. If Millan is not eligible, then the Frontenacs should have been thrown out entirely. Without him, perhaps Belleville would have defeated the Frontenacs. Hence, why should the Kingston team have been ordered to replay one game with Oshawa ? And what about the expense of over $100 that the O.H.A. Executive has put the Frontenacs to by not cancelling the Orillia game, until the Oshawa protest was heard. The Frontenacs travelled to Toronto, and might have been in Orillia, before the dicision of the Committee was given. A wise head would have postponed this game scheduled for Monday night, and not allowed the Kingston team to waste two days and drop much money. It is up to the O.H.A. Executive to make the loss to the Frontenac Treasury.

WAS POOR EXHIBITION

Oshawa-Belleville Game Was Minus Many Good Points

THE KICKERS WON

Scored Winning Tally on a Rank Off-side in First Overtime Period

In a decidedly poor exhibition of hockey the Oshawa Juniors defeated the Belleville Juniors last night in Brock Street Rink and thereby qualified to play Orillia in the semi-finals. The game was witnessed by a very small crowd and everyone came away with the idea that the Oshawa team can last about as long with Orillia as one of the local Junior City League teams. Without a doubt the hockey seen the night before on Brock when the "Y." and Exploits clashed for 70 minutes was by far the faster. If the local Junior O.H.A. team couldn't beat either of the participants in last night's match some of the fans will quit talking hockey.

Belleville team came up with three of their regulars and in fact they had but two players, Box and their goal custodian. Not only were the Belleville players against Oshawa but they had to play Lawson Whitehead also. Summed up in two words he was off color. We respectfully urge him to interview an eye specialist. The boys from Belleville had two deaf and dumb lads from the D. and D. Institute and they were the victims of some of the inside stuff of Riordan and Weller. The former is the "nice pleasant fellow of Irish stock" whom the Toronto papers were talking about and incidentally it might be well to mention that he's one of the poorest sports in the O.H.A. The way he handed it to the deaf and dumb boys wasn't hockey at all and the worst feature of it was that Whitehead let him get away with it. Billy Eaton might as well give Whitehead a blue and white sweater for he was the best man he had last night This Weller would be alright if he wore a hat about three sizes smaller. He has the worst case of swelled cranium we have seen here in some time.

The Belleville boys went fairly well and at half time they led by 2-1 and inside of ten minutes following the resting period they had it 4-1. Then the Oshawa people started handing out the rough stuff. Riordan cut one lad across the ankles and got away with it while Weller gave another the end of his stick in the anatomy and this also missed the half closed eye of Mr. Whitehead. Bring all these tactics into any game and you'll win and this was the case last night. At full time the score was tied 4-4 and the teams went out for overtime.

The goal that beat the Belleville team was made in a way that is a disgrace to the O.H.A. Weller was loafing off side about twenty feet and when the puck came up the ice he unhesitatingly took it and scored. Needless to say the fans gave the referee a little of their minds.

The teams :

Belleville : goal, Nurse ; defence, Moore and Hemlock ; rover, Box ; centre, Arnott ; wings, Green and Boisebler.

Oshawa : goal, Jacobi ; defence, Bowen and Riordan ; rover, Williams ; centre, Hall ; wings, Weller and Miller.

HAROLD KNAPMAN FOR ALL STARS

Secretary Bond of the local O.H.A. club asked the O.H.A. to give the locals a chance at Oshawa. His request was, however, refused.

In speaking to Mr. Hewitt today Mr. Bond was asked for a man for the Junior all star team. As a right wing man was needed he recommended Harold Knapman.

MANAGER FOR HAMILTON

Player Recommended by Mack Will Lead the Kolts

Hamilton, Feb. 26.—Dr. R. W. Yates, of Philadelphia, recommended by Connie Mack, manager of the world's champion Athletics, will manage the Hamilton Canadian League club in 1914. His appointment was made at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the club directors, he being the choice of three other applicants. It was also announced that five young and speedy players had been signed, making prospects exceedingly bright.

Dr. Yates has a record that assures Hamiltonians of his ability to give this city a team that will be up there fighting all the way. He has played in the Pacific Coast league and with the Philadelphia Nationals, and is looked upon as the right man to pilot a B class club. Last year he was finishing his college course and did not play ball at all. He will report here about April 1st, or six weeks before the season opens.

The Canadian League opening dates are as follows:—Toronto at London; Hamilton at Brantford; Ottawa at St. Thomas; Peterborough at Erie. The season will open Thursday, May 7th, and close Labor Day, Monday, September 7th. Each team will play about 112 games during the season. Sunday ball will be played in Erie and Ottawa (Hull.)

CATCH-MY-PAL CRUSADER STARTLES ALLIANCE DELEGATES

Rev. R. J. Patterson of Armagh Says He Has Fourteen Saloonkeepers In His Congregation and Deplores Self-Righteous Attitude Towards Them---Clenched Fist Pledge Taken to "See This Through."

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — Standing with uplifted right hands, each fist being clenched, a thousand delegates to the Ontario Alliance yesterday afternoon shouted the declaration: "We will see this thing through." The incident formed the climax to a fervid address by Rev. R. J. Patterson of Armagh, Ireland, of "catch-my-pal" fame.

The convention opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning with the presentation of the annual report of the executive by Secretary Rev. Ben. H. Spence.

The executive report gave a lengthy summary of the part taken by the Alliance in the bye-elections and the local option contests.

A strong protest was made against the three-fifths clause.

Rev. Mr. Patterson aroused the delegates to fever heat by his forceful address. He startled the convention by saying that he had fourteen saloon-keepers in his Presbyterian congregation at Armagh. He believed men might think they could conscientiously be in the liquor business, and be had no sympathy with the self-righteous humbugs who would point to a man in the liquor business and say: "There is a child of the devil."

He declared the temperance crusade to be a religious movement, and concluded by calling on the delegates to rise and pledge themselves to personal total abstinence, and with upraised fists to vow to "see this thing through."

Convention sessions will be held to-day, and a public mass meeting to-night.

Rev. Canon Greene's presidential address took the form of an earnest exhortation based upon the text, "Be Thou Strong and Very Courageous." He considered that Hon. W. J. Hanna had done a grand work in establishing the Guelph prison farm, but the Alliance knew a better way to diminish crime. It was to "stop the tap."

BLOUNT SIGNS UP PLAYERS

The management of the local baseball club have received a letter from Manager Blount at Youngstown, Ohio, in which he states he has the following players signed up :

Pitchers : Schettler.

Infielders : Ed. Price, E. Miller and E. Flannigan.

Catcher : E. McClure.

Outfielders : P. Dawson and J. Bone.

A firstbaseman whose name Blount does not send, is 20 years old, is 6 ft. 2 in. tall and weighs 185 pounds. A contract has also been sent to Suggitt an infielder of Valentia, Ont., showed considerable speed around Cobalt.

The above players are all young and it appears as though Blount reckons on youth and speed. Schettler is the only old player among them and he's twenty-six.

Contracts from Cresswell and Fox have been received. It is expected that other contracts will be in, however, in the course of a few days. The team will commence training at Youngstown, Ohio, about the middle of April.

THREE TEAMS GET THE BIG GATES

Down and out of Mercantile League are Passed by.

At the meeting of the Mercantile League Executive and one representative of each team, held last night in the Review Office the question as to how the net gate receipts of the three last games will be divided was discussed. It was finally agreed that the net receipts of the last three games should be divided between the Bankers, Test and Tool Room.

This cuts the other three teams off from the benefit of the big gate and hardly looks like the proper action. It is customary for leagues and organizations to assist their weaker teams but this rule has been laid aside with the result that it may be hard work for those interested to secure enough teams next year to form a league, unless a new rule is made.

First Auction -- Wednesday, February 25th

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss McGivern has returned to Peterborough with Miss Miller, an experienced trimmer, fully equipped for 1914 spring business, after having vesited New York city and Toronto, to secure the latest novelties in art millinery.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 p.m. The Superintendent of Departments will read their monthly reports, everybody cordially invited.

Mr. Geo. S. Wilson, of the Lindsay Post, was in the city yesterday.

The many friends of Dr. Harrison of Keene, will be pleased to learn that he is almost quite recovered from his recent serious illness.

Master Harold Gallop, who broke his leg while sleigh-riding a few days ago, is progressing favorably.

Mr. W. Eaton, who controls the manufacturing part of the Eaton store, Toronto, was in the city yesterday.

Mr. T. Lane, of Lane and Eano, furniture and undertaking establishment, was in Lindsay to-day on business.

Mr. Percy Green, who for the past three months has been operating a linotype on the Review staff, left today for Toronto, where he has secured a good position on one of the Toronto papers.

Mrs. J. S. Coon, 597 Gilmour Street, is giving a 500 tea, this afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. A. Coon, of Belleville.

Mr. A. O. Langley, of Lakefield, is in the city today.

Mr. J. A. Cain, who has many friends in this city, is opening a furniture and upholstering store in Lindsay on March 1.

It will be with extreme regret that numerous friends of Mr. Ray Donohue, Simcoe street, will learn that he was suddenly seized with appendicitis yesterday and underwent an operation last evening in St. Joseph's Hospital. He is resting fairly well.

Miss Flossie Hall, of Peterboro, Miss Luella Archer, of Seymour, and Mr. Harry Balfour, of Bowden Sask., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Humphries.—Hastings Star.

Miss Victoria Eastwood, daughter of Mrs. Edgar Eastwood, of Marmora, and niece of Mr. Isaac Eastwood, 805 George Street, left for Toronto this afternoon to visit Miss Pearl Eastwood, nurse-in-training at the new General Hospital.

Miss Eastwood who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Eastwood for several days, leaves in May in company and Miss Squire of Norwood, for Paris, France, where they will pursue their profession of nursing.

For the past seven years, Miss Eastwood, has been on the nursing staff of a hospital at Seattle. Both of the young ladies were probationers together at Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

As an inspiration to a nobler and higher type of life, the funeral service at Charlotte Street Church for the Rev. T. J. Mansell, on Wednesday afternoon, was impressive in the extreme. A more beautiful eulogy could not have been given anyone, than the sentiments of appreciation so freely expressed by the speakers for this beloved co-worker and pastor, whose sudden demise is so much deplored, yet referred to as "his triumph over death."

"I know not where His islands lift
Their fronted palms in air,
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care."

Heavy draperies of black formed a backgroundf or the floral tributes which almost filled the space between pulpit and aisles and were massed at the head and foot of the casket. Such a Garden of Heavenly beauty has never been equalled in our city.

The Forget-me-nots
Of the Resurrection.

"I am glad you are burying him like a Prince, for he was a Prince, for he lived a Prince among men." was only one of the many remarks heard from the pulpit.

FLEMMING—McCLEARY.

NORWOOD, Feb. 24.—The marriage took place at Christ Church, Norwood, Thursday, Feb. 19th, at 10.30 a.m., by the Rev. N. H. Noble, of Miss Mary Louise, second daughter of the late John Wilson and Mrs. McCleary, to Horace Waldo, son of Mr. H. A. Flemming, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, and Mrs. Flemming, formerly of Toronto. The bride was given away by Mr. MacLaren who acted for the bride's brother, Mr. Frank McCleary, of Regina, who was unable to be present. She was attended by her sister Miss Lillie McCleary, and her cousin, Miss Ruth Birdsall, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Paul Flemming, of Toronto. The bride was beautifully gowned in white satin and wore a magnificent bridal veil which was worn by her great grandmother in 1830 and was also worn by her mother on a similar occasion. She carried a shower of roses and lily of the valley. A sunburst of pearls, the gift of the groom, was the only ornament. The wedding march was played by Miss Fleda Howson and the ringing of the old church bell announced the happy event. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Butterfield, the bride's grandmother after which the happy couple took the midnight train for Ottawa where they will reside.

Congratulations were received from the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other friends of the bride and groom.

Among the guests were: Mrs. and Miss Fielding, wife and daughter of the Hon. A. S. Fielding of Ottawa, H. A. Flemming, Esq., manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, Halifax, Col. and Mrs. Birdsall, also Miss Ruth and Capt. Birdsall, of Birdsall, Mr. Jas. MacLaren of Ottawa, Mr. N. P. Clark, of Omemee.

"THE DEAR FOOL"

One of the Best Comedies to be Seen Here This Season. An All-Star Cast.

Among the other witty features of H. V. Esmond's "The Dear Fool," which will be presented at "The Grand," by Eva Moore and H. V. Esmond, on Saturday next Matinee and evening, the English playwright-actor has devised the most original betrothal scene which any dramatist has given us in many a long day. An eccentric, poverty-stricken little Marquis calls on a woman at least twenty years older than himself and proposes marriage. At first she is so infuriated at his impertinence that she she slashes him across the face with a buxon bough of a tree. The Marquis takes this castigation so calmly and explains in such matter-of-fact phrases that he hasn't the slightest desire or the remotest intention of trying to love her, that the business instinct of the suffragette becomes aroused at once. She thinks the matter over calmly, sees the great advantage to herself eccruing from the title, and, after apologies for having thrashed the young man, finally agrees to marry him. The deliciously serious manner in which Mr. Leslie Banks and Miss Estelle Despa handle this scene make it quite the best light comedy episode of the season.

"NEVER SAY DIE"

A Fine Comedy With a Great Comedian.

No finer comedy nor comedian will be seen, it is said, at The Grand this season than Mr. Nat C. Goodwin, in "Never Say Die," who plays an engagement of one night, to-morrow, (Friday) coming here direct from the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto.

Mr. Goodwin has long ranked high as America's most unctious comedian and character actor, and if ever in times past he has not been seen to the best advantage through an unhappy selection of his play, or "vehicle" as it is termed, it has always been the consensus of opinion that "Goodwin himself was all to the good."

That he comes in an assured the patrons of t he Grand Opera House are practically guaranteed, for, "Never Say Die" has had and is still having a vogue at t he Appollo Theatre, London, where Charles Hawtrey is playing to his ninth month of capacity and success.

So, with such an endorsement it behooves those who enjoy a good comedy to be on hand to-morrow night.

LEAVES VALE OF SORROW

speech to a close by the following very appropriate verses:—

He giveth sleep, oh, so gently
As a mother will hush to rest
The babe that she softly pillows
So tenderly on her breast
Forgotten now are the trials
And sorrow that made them weep
For with many a soothing promise
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

Weep not that their toils are over
Weep not that their race in won
God grant we may rest as calmly
When our work like theirs is done
Till then we would yield with gladness
Our treasure to him to keep,
And rejoice in the sweet assurance
He giveth his loved ones sleep.

Mr. E. Sweet, who represented the Brant Avenue Methodist Church, of Brantford, then spoke a few words mentioning the high esteem in which the late Mr. Mansell was held by his parishioners and citizens in general during his short period in Brantford. He did not know a man who endeared himself in the hearts of his people so well. He was, Mr. Sweet remarked, a model Christian soldier.

Rev. S. J. Shorey, of Lindsay, and a former pastor at Charlotte street, and Rev. A. K. Birks, of Dundas, also delivered short speeches.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lakefield, in speaking of their late brother, stated that during the twenty years he had known him he had found pleasure in every interview he had with him, no matter how short or brief it was. Mr. Johnston spoke at length about the singular subject on which the late Mr. Mansell spoke on Sunday evening, "From thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead." It appeared as though the Lord Jesus Christ had granted Rev. Mr. Mansell the necessary time to close his sermons on the Apostle's Creed, and then called him to answer to the final roll call. Rev. Johnston tendered his deepest sympathy to the widow and family and hoped that comfort would come to them in their hour of trial.

Rev. R. G. Peever, of George street Methodist church delivered the final address of the service. He laid great emphasis upon the fact that the city was losing one of her best citizens. The man with the characteristics of the late clergyman was the type of citizen that was desired and in his passing to his reward this city is indeed bereft of a valuable man. He was as robust and upstanding in the Christian ministry as he was physically. He at no time forgot that he was a minister of God. In his death he went to his triumph, it was his victory, his final victory.

After the following hymn, benediction was announced and many of the vast audience moved slowly up the isle to view the remains.

I know that my Redeemer lives,
He lives, and on the earth shall stand;
And though to worms my flesh He gives,
My dust lies numbered in His hands.

In this re-animated clay
I surely shall behold Him near;
Shall see him in the latter day
In all His majesty appear.

I feel what then shall raise me up,
The eternal spirit lives in me;
This is my confidence of hope,
That God I face to face shall see,

Mine own and not another's eyes
The King shall in his beauty view:
I shall from Him receive the prize,
The starry crown to victors due.

Miss M. Clarry and Mr. John Crane presided at the organ.

The remains of the late Rev. T. J. Mansell were forwarded to Moulinette this morning, in a special car. Interment took place this afternoon. Several members of the Charlotte street congregation, relatives and Mr. A. Belleghem, accompanied the remains.

REFUSED TO KEEP PEACE.

Noted Supporters of Suffragette Cause Prefer to Go to Prison.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Five prominent suffragists were charged before the police magistrate at Bow street yesterday with obstructing the police during Tuesday night's demonstration in Parliament square, when they protested violently against Premier Asquith, who had refused to receive them.

The prisoners were: Laurence Housman, author and artist; Henry W. Nevinson, war correspondent; Mrs. D. A. Thomas, wife of the Welsh coal magnate; H. D. Harben [illegible] K. Haig.

The magistrate ordered them all to be bound over in a bond of $25 each to be of good behavior for six months. The prisoners all refused to enter into the bond.

In a speech from prisoners' enclosure Laurence Housman said he was there as a protest against the treatment of women political offenders and he would continue to protest so long as he thought it justified and necessary.

In the ordinary course offenders refusing to be bound over remain in prison for six months.

WORKS' CHAIRMAN WOULD SAVE MONEY BY CHANGE IN ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT

Capable Young Man Could Replace Two Members of Present Staff

A SAVING OF $462

A re-organization of the engineering department was urged by Ald. Duncan, chairman of the Board of Works, at the Committee of the Whole Council last night. He would engage a young man, capable of doing shorthand and bookkeeping, and who would be able to do the work of Mr. Quartermaine and the lady stenographer. The former receives $750 and the latter $312. Given a salary of $600, this would mean a saving for the city of $462, from which $300 could be taken and added to the salary for a capable plumbing inspector, making it $900.

The saving would also provide for an increase for the Street Commissioner.

Ald. Duncan said there must be some change, as the expense for clerical work in the department was too high.

The matter was left in the hands of the Mayor, Ald. Duncan and the City Engineer for a report.

City Clerk's Department.

The motion of Ald. Stratton, providing for a new arrangement as regards salaries in the offices of the City Clerk and City Treasurer, was left in abeyance.

Ald. Stratton feels it would be more satisfactory to have all the salaries paid direct by Council. At the present time, the chiefs of the department receive a lump sum and they pay the assistants.

Also, Ald. Stratton would give the City Clerk an assistant.

Mayor Buller thought the whole question could be dealt with to better advantage after the Public Utilities Commission is in working order, although his opinion was that the present system was satisfactory.

Increase for Mr. Evans.

It was the general opinion that Mr. Evans should receive an increase in salary and a boost to the extent of $150 was decided upon.

The matter of an increase for the Sanitary Inspector was left over.

Weighing Coal.

A motion by Ald. Gordon that the question of weighing coal on the market scales be referred to the Legal Committee was seconded by Mayor Buller, and carried.

New Hotel at Millbrook.

Millbrook is to have a new hotel on King street. The building is to be fitted with modern heating, plumbing and lighting systems.

CROWDS SEE THE STAR OF INDIA

The motion pictures presented at the Royal Theatre, continue to be of an exceedingly high standard. The four reel film entitled "The Star of India," drew a crowded house yesterday afternoon and people were turned away in the evening. It is the best film ever shown in this city. The vaudeville for to-day and to-morrow made a big hit in its initial appearance yesterday afternoon. For genuine amusement go to the Royal Theatre.

MEMORY CURE IS TRIED AGAIN

Once more Chief Thompson's "memory cure" was brought into effect this morning, when Jas. E. Weese, a blacklister, was remanded for one week, on his failure to give the court a satisfactory explanation as to how he got the liquor. His story of getting the booze at Hastings on New Year's failed to satisfy the Chief, who asked for a remand.

One hour later Weese gave the information. He was fined $10.

ST. LUKES WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Luke's church held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon, with the President, Mrs. S. Gaskins, presiding, and a very large attendance of members. The various reports of the year's work were read showing the affairs of the society to be in a very satisfactory condition.

The election of officers for the year resulted as follows:

Hon. President Mrs. E. A. Peck.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. F. J. Sawers.
2nd Vice-President — Mrs. T. Moore.

OFFICIALS OF TRENT CANAL ARE SUSPENDED

Irregularities in Connection With Canal Administration, Are Disclosed by Report of Investigating Official---Superintendent McClellan Says He is Not Worrying

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—As a result of an investigation which has been conducted by G. Howard Ferguson, K.C., M.L.A., into the management of the Trent Canal head offices at Peterborough, the Minister of Railways and Canals has directed the suspension of Superintendent Joseph McClellan, Overseer Samuel Clegg, Lockmasters Sol. Barrett and Wm. McFarlane, C. C. Huycke, caretaker of dam at Healy Falls, George H. Giroux, clerk of works; A. J. Raddon, cement tester; Frank Raddon, handyman; J. A. Hancock, inspector and timekeeper, and George A. Mothersill, auditing engineer, Ottawa.

The investigation has disclosed grave irregularities in connection with canal management and administration, and Superintendent McClellan has admitted that certain canal funds have been diverted for alleged Liberal campaign purposes. Accounts which, if proper, should have come in and been paid in the regular way, have been paid by placing the parties to whom amounts were owing on the pay list as laborers, etc., although no work as such was done by them. These accounts include even liquor, telephone, railway transportation and newspaper charges, and cover many years.

Pending a reconstruction of the staff at Peterborough, A. L. Killaly, of the Cornwall Canal, has been placed in charge.

The news of the suspension of the local Trent Canal officials has created quite a stir in the city, although this action was not unexpected. The fact that G. H. Ferguson, K.C., M.L.A., had conducted an extensive investigation into the affairs of the head offices, was generally known.

The local officials have not received official notice from Ottawa and they have very little to say. Superintendent J. Harrie McClellan, who has held the position for seven years, said this morning that he would leave the position a poorer man than when he went in. "It need not have been so," added Mr. McClellan.

When shown the dispatch stating that he had admitted that certain canal funds had been diverted for alleged Liberal campaign purposes, he would not say yes or no, his statement being that he could afford to let it pass, without answer. He was not worrying, he said.

George H. Giroux, clerk of works, has been with the department for thirty-three years. He was at a loss to understand why action should be taken against him. This was also the statement of A. J. Raddon, cement tester.

S. Barrett is lockmaster at Lock No. 3, and Wm. McFarlane is lockmaster at Lovesick.

BENNETT IS HELD IN JAIL

To Await Statement From His Wife, Whom He Struck With Axe.

Edwin Bennett, the man who struck his wife with an axe, at their home near Garden Hill, has been remanded to jail at Port Hope. The woman's condition is such that it is impossible to secure her statement as to the affair.

COUNTERFEITERS' CASE AT LINDSAY

Two Provincial Officers Follow up the Investigations

Lindsay, Feb. 27.—Inspector Parkinson and Detective Greer, who have been detailed to work upon the alleged counterfeit case now pending in Lindsay, visited the home of an east ward resident presumably for the purpose of making the chain of evidence which is now about complete, still stronger.

This unknown man, "Uncle," who has been mysteriously connected with alleged counterfeiting operations, may possibly be taken from his sequestered surroundings to give evidence in the case.

A local photographer's place of business was visited by the officers this morning, but the object of their mission there is unknown,

The inspector feels that the evidence at hand is sufficient to convict the men now under arrest,

It is understood from reports that Burkholder will plead guilty, while Burke stoutly denys any complicity with the counterfeiting of the bills, making the claim that it was only the material used in previous years the officers got in his possession.

James O'Neill, who was arrested in Barrie on a charge of circulating counterfeit bank bills, will be drought to Lindsay to give evidence against J. Burkholder and Charles Burke, whose trial will take place on Tuesday, March 3rd.

WEDDED IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Groom Will Spend Solitary Honeymoon of Three Months

Lindsay, Feb. 27.—There was no wedding march, no notes of any kind played, no giving away of the bride, no standing under the bridal arch during the performance of the ceremony, when Esther Edna Warwick, of Fenelon Falls, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Frank York at the County Jail.

The couple were married in the waiting room of the jail, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. McConachie, curate of St. Paul's church.

On arrival of the clergyman, Governor Balfour asked the turnkey to produce the bridegroom. The assistant obeyed the command amidst the rattling of keys and chains as he departed for his charge, with whom he quickly returned. The meeting of the young couple was of a formal nature, and nothing was said by either parties.

About a dozen persons witnessed the unusual event, and before parting they wished them health and happiness in their new state of life. MRS. FELIX DIAZ

Felix Diaz, who helped bring about the downfall of Madero, but later had to flee from Mexico for his life, arrived in New York recently with his wife from Havana. He declared that he had no intention of allying himself with Carranza and Villa, and declined to discuss what plans, if any, he had for regaining the power he once had in Mexico. Friends who accompany him in his exile said he left Havana because he feared the hostility of the Huertistas, who had already made one attempt to kill him since he fled from Vera Cruz.

Mrs. Arthur B. Cook, wife of Flag Lieutenant Cook, who is attached to the American fleet under command of Admiral Mayo at Vera Cruz, arrived on the same ship. Lieutenant Cook, it will be recalled, was shot while escorting his wife and her friend, Miss Ethel McKenzie, to the Morro Castle.
